CRISIS ON NOTTING HILL

Britain's Conscience Plagued by Race Riots

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—For years they said it couldn't happen here. Little Rock in the United States, apartheid in South Africa—these were other people's problems.

Now, with teenage gangs terrorizing the fading suburbs where Negroes live, Britain is worried and divided.

Part of the worry focuses on London's Notting Hill, the center of night riots in the past week.

Like most inner suburbs, it's a mixture of decaying mansions broken up into tenements alongside streets bright with coffee bars and the new supermarkets.

It's a mixture of peoples too—young couples from the provinces carving out a career; political exiles like the Hungarians and Poles.

In the tiny terraced back streets, the working people who have lived there all their lives now have new Negro neighbors.

Statistically, there's no color problem. Negroes in Britain total 190,000, or roughly one in 250 of the population. That compares with 1 in 10 in the United States.

They started coming five years ago. The pioneers were mostly Jamaicans who had flown with the Royal Air Force. They came back to Britain to find a better life.

THEY FOUND WORK, many of them as bus conductors or guards on the subway. A man and his wife together could earn maybe 20 pounds ($56) a week.

If they lived quietly they could save, and in a year or two buy a house and bring over a brother or cousin or even a whole family of brothers and cousins. And that's what they did.

Every day the charter planes and ships bring more, from the West Indies, from Africa and now from Pakistan. All hold British citizenship and the British have no law to keep them out. But in midweek the government hinted it is considering for the first time some curbs on the unfettered movement of law-abiding immigrants.

Along with honest and industrious settlers have come another type, peddling dope and vice.

Dusk-to-dawn basement parties keep the neighborhood awake with blaring music and yelling drunks.

In 40 vice prosecutions in Notting Hill this year—mostly for brothel keeping or living off prostitutes—all the offenders were listed as Negroes.

NOTTING HILL'S 6,000 colored citizens are as much disturbed by this kind of lawlessness as the 70,000 whites.

"They wouldn't get away with it at home," said a 21-year-old colored girl stenographer. "They bring the rest of us a bad name no matter how quietly we try to live."

And a colored woman social worker, employed by the London County Council to advise immigrants on race relations: "There's no doubt that there are bad ones among the West Indians like any other people.

"But that's for the police to deal with—not Teddy Boy gangs."

In the spate of soul-searching set off by the rioting the big question is why it happened. Three answers crop up again and again.

First, sex.

"It's the blacks after our women," said the middle aged man.

Second, work.

"If employers could take on colored people on their own terms, white workers would be finished," said Mrs. Mary

'Chiang's Rights Come First,' Ike Note Tells Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday welcomed Red China's decision to discuss the Formosa crisis at the diplomatic bargaining table. But it emphasized that "we will not be a party to any arrangement which would prejudice the rights of our ally"—the Nationalist Chinese led by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The U.S. position was set forth in a 300-word statement issued at the White House following an extraordinary three-hour meeting of the National Security Council convened by President Eisenhower.

The President had interrupted his Newport, R.I., golfing vacation to fly here for the conference and to handle other urgent affairs.

Ex-Premier Bulganin Ousted From Soviet Party Top Leaders

Radio Moscow Tells Decision by Committee

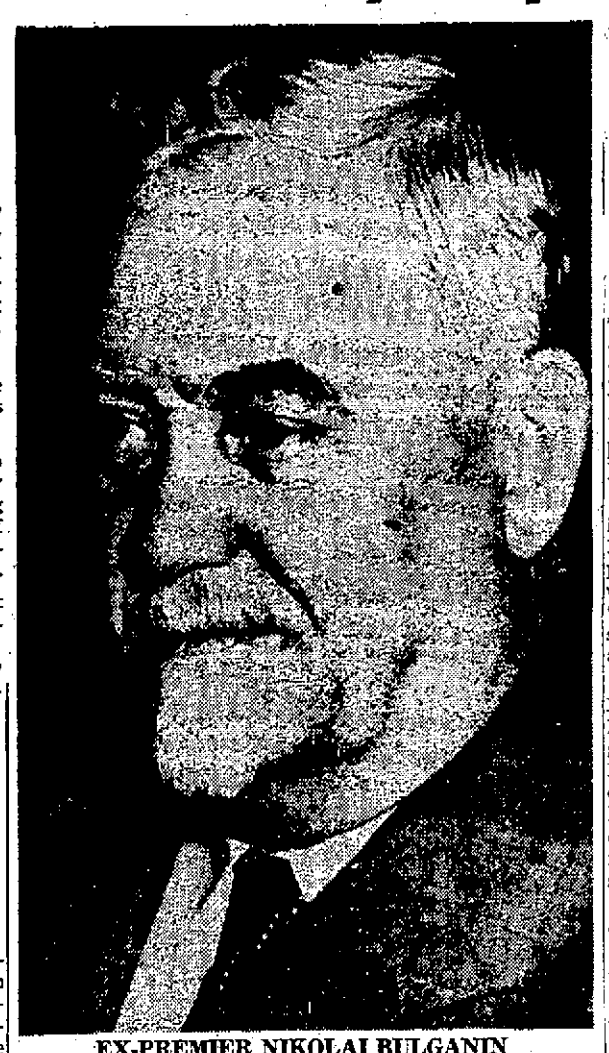

LONDON (AP)—Radio Moscow said Saturday former Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin had been removed from the Soviet Communist Party Presidium.

The broadcast also said the 21st Communist Party Congress will be held Jan. 27, 1959.

The two decisions—to drop Bulganin and to hold the party congress—were reached during a Central Committee meeting of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the broadcast said.

Bulganin was ousted last March 27 as premier and re-

Achieve Missile Mobility

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army said Saturday that a field type mobile launcher is being developed which soon will eliminate the need for permanent emplacements for Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles.

A report on recent test firings at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., said the giant missile capable of carrying an atomic warhead was shown to have "the mobility essential for the support of Army operations in any part of the world."

There are operational Nike Hercules sites now defending New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and the Washington-Baltimore area. The Army said others will be operational at Philadelphia in the next 10 days and in "many additional metropolitan areas" in the next six months.

The Florida tests were conducted by an Army task force from Ft. Bliss, Tex., commanded by Brig. Gen. John T. Snodgrass. The Army said the tests included the first successful firing of anti-aircraft missiles at target drones flying in formation.

Flash Floods, Heat, Hail in Weird Show

Lightning Starts 20 Brush Fires, Cuts Off Power

Sweltering heat, thunderstorms, flash floods and lightning-caused brush fires plagued Southern California Saturday in the year's weirdest weather display—and more of the same was forecast for today.

In Riverside, hail pelted down from thunderclouds while the thermometer read 102 degrees, deputy sheriffs reported.

Electrical storms started more than 20 brush fires in mountain and foothill areas.

Meanwhile, 600,000 persons swarmed to Southland beaches to escape muggy 95-degree heat in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area.

The U. S. Weather Bureau reported a deep low pressure area over Southern California, with warm, moist and unstable air bringing thunderstorms and humid high temperatures through Monday.

* * * *

IN SATURDAY'S storms, large areas of Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties were without electrical power for 30 minutes when lighting struck a 220,000-volt transmission line near Saugus.

Some 350 men were still battling a 650-acre brush fire near Hemet, and another fire burned more than 50 acres in mountains northwest of Riverside.

Heavy showers dumped more than half an inch of rain in the Palmdale area within an hour,

Miss. Girl Wins Title of Miss A

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Miss Mississippi, Mary Ann Mobley, a brown-haired southern belle from Brandon, Saturday won the Miss America title for 1959.

An 18-year-old senior at the University of Mississippi, the new queen hopes for a career in television. She beat 51 other beauties to win scholarships and prizes worth $150,000. She measures 34¼-22-35.

Second place went to Miss Iowa, Joanne Lucille MacDonald, 20, of Ames who received a $3,000 scholarship.

Third was Miss Oklahoma, Anita Bryant, 18, of Tulsa, who won a $2,500 scholarship.

Fourth place went to Miss California, Sandra Lee Jennings, 18, of Riverside, who won a $2,000 scholarship.

The fifth place winner was Miss North Carolina, Betty Lane Evans, 18, of Greenville, who won a $1,500 scholarship.

4 TIMES THICKER

San Francisco's Smog Beats L.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The smog in San Francisco Saturday was four times thicker than that in Los Angeles.

The San Francisco smog condition abated sharply in early afternoon, however, as temperatures fell off swiftly from a year's record high of 88 degrees.

The peak smog reading was 0.40 parts of oxidant per million of air.

The Los Angeles smog reading was 0.05 parts of ozone per million of air.

Pilot on Global Hop in One-Engine Plane

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 39-year-old airline pilot took off from Idlewild Airport Saturday in an attempt to become the first man to fly solo around the world in a single-engine plane since Wiley Post did it in 1933.

"I would say that I am completely frightened at the thought of this flight," said Capt. Charles F. Banfe Jr., married and the father of four.

Banfe hoped to reach Rome, first leg of the flight, Sunday night in his 180-horsepower Mooney Mark 20A plane. The plane carried 350 gallons, of fuel enough for about 48 hours of flying time. For nourishment, he had a bottle of fruit juice, vitamin pills and chocolate bars.

* * * *

THERE was no parachute aboard because, Banfe said, it "requires too much weight."

The Pan-American pilot, who lives in Palo Alto, Calif., took off at 10 a.m. EDT. He said he hoped to complete the global flight in eight days, arriving back here a week from Sunday.

Post completed his solo flight in a Lockheed Vega named "Winnie Mae" in 7 days, 18 hours, 49 minutes and 30 seconds. Post and humorist Will Rogers later were killed in a plane crash.

Banfe said his wife, June, was startled when he broke the news about the flight.

"When I told her about it, her mouth was agape," he said. "When I left home, her mouth was still agape."

100 Hurt in Mexico Rioting

MEXICO CITY (AP) — About 100 persons were reported injured Saturday in fighting between schoolteachers and police in downtown Mexico City.

Two hundred persons were said to have been arrested.

The disturbances came a week after university students and workers staged a series of violent disorders and strikes in Mexico City.

In his state of the union message last Monday, President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines warned that the government will use force if faced with any more riots and what it terms illegal strikes.

Police apparently acted on that order Saturday, moving to break up a teachers' demonstration that started shortly before noon.

Neighbor's Shot Hits Housewife

NORWALK — A 33-year-old housewife was critically wounded Saturday when she was struck in the face and chest by a bullet fired from a gun held by a neighbor across the street from her home.

Mrs. Clara Lorraine Hiller, of 11941 Lowemont St., was taken to Carobil Hospital, where she underwent surgery.

Sheriff's deputies booked the neighbor, Loy Hart, 41, of 11944 Lowemont St., on charges of drunkenness and suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. Hart, a butcher, told officers he had cleaned and loaded the .38 caliber revolver and slammed the cylinder shut when the weapon fired accidentally.

* * * *

MRS. HILLER, the mother of three children, was leaning over working in her front yard some 100 feet away. She was struck in the face and the bullet passed through her jaw and into her chest.

Detectives said it was impossible for the bullet to have struck Mrs. Hiller from the location where Hart said he was sitting in his living room without the bullet's going through the wall or window. Officers said they could find no bullet hole.

Ike Vetoes 'Depressed' Area Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower Saturday pocket-vetoed a bill to provide federal aid to chronically depressed areas on grounds the $279,500,000 measure was "unsound."

The legislation cleared Congress in the final days of the recent session.

The veto was expected to have political repercussions in congressional campaigns in several states.

The President did sign into law 16 other measures to clean up the last of a stack sent him by Congress just before adjournment.

One of these sets up a one-and-a-half year $2,250,000,000 continuation of the Agriculture Department's authority to sell surplus farm crops overseas in exchange for foreign currencies.

Nonstop Chicago—San Francisco 4 hours, 5 minutes.

Nonstop San Francisco—Chicago 3 hours, 25 minutes.

San Francisco to New York, with a stop at Chicago, 5 hours 30 minutes or 2½ hours faster than existing nonstop San Francisco-New York schedules.

L.A.C. Says:

Add Them Up

On one page of the paper last week were three separate tax stories. Each one told of bad news for the average property taxpayer. One told of a 7-cent increase in local school taxes. Another told of a 4.82-cent increase in county tax rates. A third story told of the $12-a-year charge for home collection of rubbish in Long Beach.

It is argued that the rubbish collection charge is not a tax rate increase. But the fact is, heretofore it has been paid for from the general funds provided by taxes. Then the city budget ran behind and city councilmen found they were a million dollars short of raising enough money to finance the city. Their answer to this problem was to start charging for services formerly paid for by general property taxes. On that basis it is hard not to consider this new charge as another new tax.

Most other cities already have a charge for rubbish collection. It is a good method of financing the service because in theory it is paid for by renters as well as property owners. But in practice most of the bills will go to property owners who will be liable for the charge whether or not they pass it on to renters. After a few months taxpayers will absorb all these new charges and be ready for the next tap on their incomes made necessary by the constantly increasing costs of local governments.

On the average, each man, woman and child in this country pays $530.80 annually for taxes. Of this amount 70 per cent is for federal and 30 per cent for state and local taxes. This is over $2,000 for the average family of four. It is true most families do not pay this amount directly. But they pay a portion of it in the high income taxes of corporations. The products they buy have those taxes included in the price they pay. The executive who pays 80 per cent of his income in taxes is part of the cost of things or services included in the normal bills you pay each month.

These are factors the general public fails to keep in mind as they calmly accept each tax increase. They do not take the time to ask what can be done to stop this steady spiraling of local taxes. Since the pressure groups are vocal, and the mass of taxpayers silent, expensive projects are approved which benefit the average taxpayers not at all.

The voters of Long Beach are going to be given the opportunity of cutting down on city taxes. This can be done on the November ballot when two propositions involving over $400,000 a year will be voted on. They are the elimination of the Municipal band, and consolidating the assessing and collection of taxes with the county. The saving from these two projects would be equal to about 5 per cent of local city taxes on property the past year.

Taxpayers should also keep in mind that land purchases by the City Council are responsible for most of their financial pains. The purchase of beach lots, and more to be purchased, is the reason why the budget called for a rubbish collection charge. The only use for the lots is a view of the beach for a three-block area and parking which can well be placed on the wide beach. These are just some of the reasons why taxpayers should add them all up and see what is happening to their cost of government.—L. A. C.

IN THE Torrance area, black thunderheads scattered spectacular lightning bolts for more than an hour Saturday evening, but no damage was reported.

For today, the Weather Bureau predicted 93-degree temperatures in the Long Beach area, with mostly clear skies in the morning followed by variable cloudiness and scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon and evening.

Flash flood warnings were issued for Mojave desert areas, and brief but heavy showers with gusty winds were expected in the mountains.

* * * *

SATURDAY'S temperatures ranged from 111 degrees in Palm Springs to 94 in Long Beach, with Santa Monica enjoying a cool 77.

Rainfall totals ranged from .81 inches in Palmdale to .23 in San Bernardino, with light sprinkles in the South Bay and Orange County areas Saturday night.

In Long Beach, some 125,000 persons flocked to the beaches, and lifeguards pulled 17 of them out when they got into trouble in the calm waters.

placed by Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist Party boss.

* * * *

FOUR DAYS LATER it was reported he had been made chairman of the state bank with cabinet rank, listed 44th among the 60 members of the new council of ministers.

In June he dropped out of sight but Khrushchev said June 13 Bulganin had undergone a serious operation and would return to work in a week.

Last Aug. 15 he was demoted again, named chairman of the council of the national economy in the remote northern caucasus town of Stavropol.

There was some talk that the jovial, bearded "Mr. B" of the famous "B and K"—Bulganin and Khrushchev—political tourist team had been sent to the area to help him recover his health. The Stavropol region is not far from the Black Sea resort area.

* * * *

BUT THERE was no doubt that the move was a demotion and an Italian Communist paper speculated he had been sent there because of his attitude toward Khrushchev.

Bulganin was reported to have sided first against Khrushchev in the party central committee over ousting V. M. Molotov, L. M. Kaganovich Dmitri Shepilov and Georgi Malenkov from roles of party leadership in 1957.

Bulganin later swung to Khrushchev's support but the suspicion in the Communist world as well as outside was that Bulganin had signed his own political death warrant.

* * * *

BULGANIN THUS has followed at least part of the way along the path blazed by Kaganovich, Molotov, Shepilov and Malenkov.

After they fell from favor they went various ways—Kaganovich to the directorship of a cement plant in the Urals, Molotov as ambassador to Mongolia, Shepilov to a teaching job far from Moscow and Malenkov to the directorship of a power station in eastern Kazakhstan.

Edith Piaf Injured in Auto Crash

PARIS (UPI) — Edith Piaf, the tiny, vibrant-voiced French songstress whose tear-stained ballads of Paris back streets brought her world fame, was injured seriously Saturday in an automobile accident.

The accident, in which three other persons also were injured, occurred on the eve of Miss Piaf's departure for a six-month engagement in New York.

Hospital officials at nearby Rambouillet, where the 43-year-old singer is being treated, said she suffered head injuries, facial cuts and two torn tendons of one hand.

Her condition, however, was described as "not alarming."

Miss Piaf underwent surgery shortly after the crash.

She was to have begun a singing engagement at the Waldorf Astoria in New York.

Pair Takes Marriage Plunge—But Literally

WICKFORD, England, Sept. 6 (AP)—Philip Narbeth, 24 and Maureen Feiley, 22, got married Saturday as planned but it wasn't easy.

Philip, a Paris-born student, and his brother John, who served as best man, swam to the church wearing only their underpants.

Maureen waded from her home in an old sweater and pair of jeans. Friends waded along behind her holding the wedding dress aloft in a suitcase.

The choir boys turned up in swimming trunks.

After they all dried off and changed clothes at the parish house of Father J. Collins, the wedding went on as scheduled at the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

The town of Wickford was under four to six feet of water as a result of Friday's freak storm which flooded parts of southeast England.

HOSPITAL HIT BY COMMUNIST SHELL

nist ambassador there" to resume talks on the Formosa dispute.

The United States and Red China had been discussing the problem previously in Geneva off and on since 1955. But the talks broke down last December when the Communists rejected repeated U.S. demands for a joint renunciation of force by the two nations.

But the Red Chinese radio announced Saturday morning that Premier Chou En-lai was ready to have the ambassadorial session resume.

* * * *

SO FAR, THE UNITED States has not received any official word on this subject," the White House statement said. But it added that "if the Chinese Communists are now prepared" to resume the talks, "the United States welcomes that decision."

"Naturally," the statement continued, "in these resumed talks the United States will adhere to the negotiating position which it originally took in 1955 —namely, that we will not in these talks be a party to any arrangement which would prejudice the rights of our ally, the Republic of China."

The White House said the Security Council also considered "measures which would conform to the policy" laid down by the President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Sept. 4 in a statement issued at Newport.

* * * *

THERE WAS NO elaboration on this point.

In that statement it was said the President would not hesitate to use U.S. forces to defend Nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu if he judged the circumstances made this necessary.

The White House said it hoped Red China's new willingness to talk over the Formosa crisis was in reply to another part of the Eisenhower-Dulles Newport statement.

That was a plea that "armed force should not be used to achieve territorial ambitions."

Red China Calls Mobilization

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China ordered general mobilization of its 600 million people Saturday.

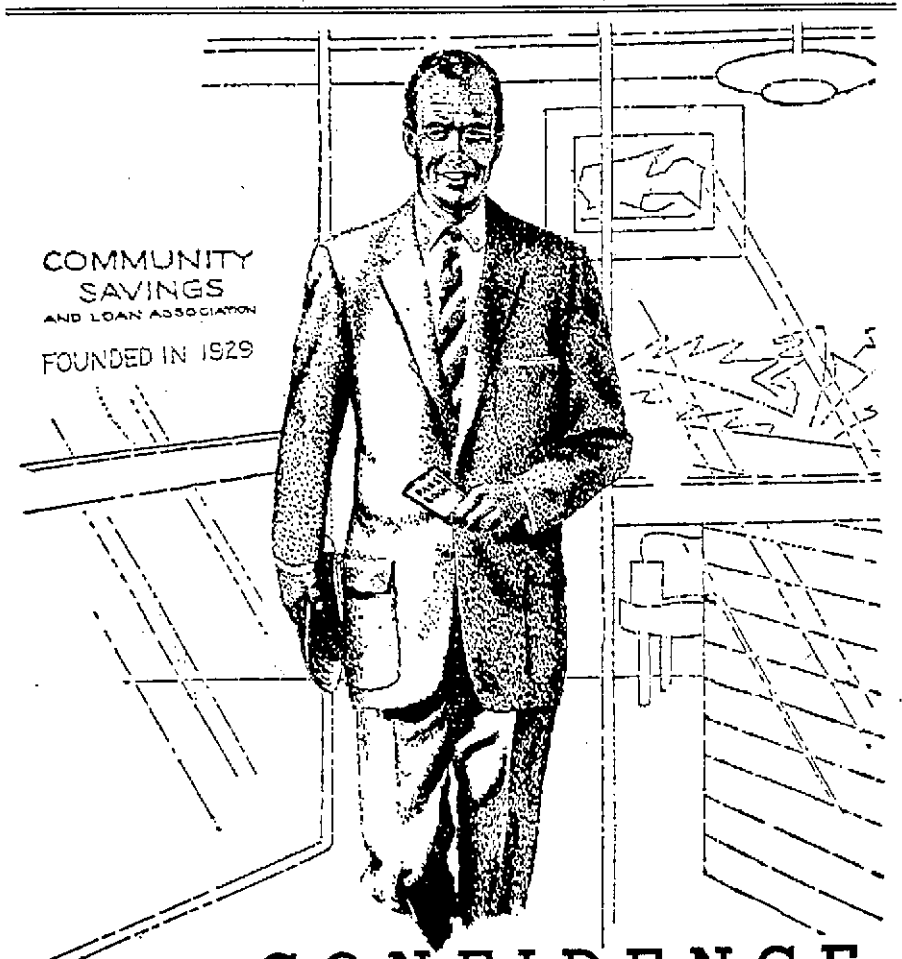

The mobilization order was issued by the Supreme State Council in Peiping "for the struggle against war provocations by American Imperialists in the Taiwan (Formosa) area," Peiping radio said.

There was no explanation of what is involved in the general mobilization order. Red China already has an army of three million men, a people's militia force of about 10 million men, and a conscription system that brings about 450,000 men annually into the army for three years' service.

In effect, the mobilization call may mean little more than using a military but rhetorical term to whip up anti-U.S. mass opinion in support of its leaders by rallying the whole nation to their new program.

Terrorizing of Negroes Has Britain Worried, Divided

Hiam, wife of an auto worker in depression-hit Birmingham.

Third, just plain thuggery.

"These Teddy Boys and hooligans have been spoiling up for a fight for a long time now," said a veteran cop. "This is just their excuse to cause trouble."

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS insist in their editorials that the trouble is mainly caused by hooligans. Certainly the riot pictures in the papers show white youths whose appearance fits the mold.

And the general run of Britons, who have had almost no contact with any of the new immigrants, are horrified by the disturbances—they agree it must be just the work of hooligans.

But the violence is the symptom, not the ailment. The question is what causes the tension that allows for the hooliganism.

The remnants of Sir Oswald Mosley's old Fascist movement have claimed "credit" for the disturbances. Jeffrey Hamm, secretary of the Mosley organization now known as the British Union, said his men had gone around Notting Hill distributing pamphlets entitled "The Colored Invasion."

"There has to be law and order," Hamm told newsmen. "We have to restrict the colored invasion of students and such like. We've got to have deportations."

But the general impression is that the old Mosley group is just trying to cash in on the disorders.

FATHER TREVOR HUDDLESTON, Anglican priest who for 12 years fought segregation policies in South Africa, warned that intolerance could spread through the whole nation if not beaten now.

He asked the British to prove to the world they still believe in freedom and justice by breaking race barriers in everyday life.

But how should it be handled?

A group of Members of Parliament, led by Laborites George Rogers and Maurice Edelman, advocate immigration controls. They believe every settler should be able to prove he has work and accommodation waiting for him.

Their idea has been taken up by the mass circulation Daily Mirror. It is pushing the policy hard.

Huddleston calls this a policy of despair.

"If we persist in believing that the trouble is merely the result of a stupid immigration policy," he said, "we shall capitulate to the ideology which already holds South Africa in its grip, the idea of white supremacy."

THE SITUATION HERE as it affected a colored person was summed up by one. "I have a British passport which commands 'in the name of Her Majesty the Queen' that I shall be allowed to pass 'freely and without hindrance,'" wrote Vivian Witter of Leeds.

"Is it a joke?

"When I went to look for lodgings in houses that advertised them, nobody came to the door—a corner of the curtain was pulled aside, and that was all.

"When my wife went to work she came home in hysterics because of jeers from her mates about grass skirts and mud huts."

The discussion of the racial troubles is the dominant feature in the British newspapers now. Is it all just the work of hooligans or the fault of the colored people or are the British just as subject to prejudices as other people?

The British just now find it all perplexing, shocking and somewhat numbing.

POLICE QUELL RACIAL FIGHT

Police grapple with a youth during free-for-all fight in the Queens, Long Island, section of New York City Saturday. More than 60 persons were involved after six whites tangled with a group of colored persons. Baseball bats, such as held by man at left, and whips made from auto radio antennas were used in the 10-minute battle before police halted the fight. No one was seriously injured. Six white persons were arrested on charges of inciting a riot.—(AP Wirephoto.)

U.S., RUSS DIFFER ON RADIOACTIVITY

Reds Cite Nerve Ruin in Rabbit Experiment

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States delegation to the atoms-for-peace conference disagreed firmly Saturday with Russian findings that even small amounts of radioactivity are damaging to the nervous system and "sensitive organs."

In a special statement, the American delegation said similar experiments had been conducted in the United States and "no effects are observed at low doses of the order of a few 'roentgens'."

Russian scientists claimed to have observed cerebral and nervous damage in rabbits during experiments using only 1 and 1.3 "roentgens" of radioactivity.

* * * *

A ROENTGEN is the international unit of measurement for X-rays.

The U. S. statement suggested disagreement not only with the Russians but with previous findings by leading scientists in the United States. In large areas at least, the statement would mean that there is a "threshold" below which radiation damage does not occur.

If a "threshold" could be established, a big field would be opened for radiation treatment below that level and possibly for building up human resistance to increasing amounts of radioactivity. The Russians contend there is no "threshold," and that all radioactivity is damaging.

The U. S.-Russia dispute, one of several since the 69-nation conference opened last Monday, broke out as the parley ended the first of its two weeks of sessions. More than 5,000 scientists are attending a non-stop series of meetings that continued through the day.

* * * *

AMONG THE developments was disclosure that U. S. researchers secretly proved the "operability" of a nuclear-powered aircraft engine more than a year and a half ago.

Such an engine was operated at power levels for 140 hours and its performance was satisfactory, according to a report submitted by D. R. Shoults, general manager, aircraft nuclear propulsion department, of the General Electric Company.

Shoults told reporters that "someone could build a nuclear aircraft now," if he wanted to, and indicated that the problems of shielding passengers from radiation dangers and cutting down weight had been at least theoretically solved.

"Nuclear-powered fight is inevitable," he said.

Series of Mishaps Keeps Family Apart

SEATTLE (UPI) — Roy Inman, 30, who was reported several weeks overdue on a trip from Houston, Alaska, to Santa Paula, Calif., turned up here Saturday wondering what had happened to his family.

His wife, Patsy, 28, earlier Saturday had asked Seattle police to help her in locating her husband, who was supposed to arrive here July 28 from Alaska. From here, he was to go on to the family's trailer home at Santa Paula.

* * * *

INMAN, AN oil driller, started down the Alcan highway as scheduled, but was involved in a traffic accident which wrecked his car. He has been staying with friends here for the past four weeks, "trying to get straightened out with my insurance company."

In the meantime, a line on an ammonia truck snapped as the vehicle was passing the Santa Paula trailer camp and ammonia sprayed into the park, ruining several of the mobile homes, including Inman's, and sending several people to the hospital.

Inman's three daughters, aged 6 years, 4 years and 20 months, were among those hospitalized. When they were released from medical care, Mrs. Inman took the children to a friend's home at Ventura, Calif., and waited for her husband to arrive.

That was in early August.

* * * *

INMAN SAID that since then he has written letters to his wife, "but all of them were returned. I had no idea what happened to them, but I couldn't leave town because of my hassle with the insurance company."

Saturday, Inman heard a United Press International story concerning his "disappearance" broadcast over a local radio station.

He immediately contacted UPI, learned of his wife's whereabouts and said he would phone her "right away."

"Thank you very, very much," Inman told a UPI reporter. "Believe me, it will be wonderful to talk to the family."

GREAT ARCHEOLOGICAL FIND

Skeleton Holds Solid Gold Bucket

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A solid gold bucket clutched in the bones of a 2,500-year-old skeleton has been found by an archeological team, the University of Pennsylvania disclosed Saturday.

"This is one of the great archeological discoveries of recent years," said Dr. Froelich Rainey, director of the university museum, sponsor of the expedition.

Dr. Rainey announced the discovery after receiving a letter from Robert H. Dyson Jr., expedition field director, in the iron age city of Hasanlu in northwestern Iran, on the shore of Lake Urmia.

* * * *

THE VESSEL is covered with mythological figures the details and composition of which are completely new to us," wrote Dyson. He described the bucket:

"Out of the soil emerged a large bucket-shaped vessel, pressed flat by the weight of the earth, eight inches high and two feet in circumference and shining in golden splendor as only gold, the one non-corroding metal, can do."

The vessel was uncovered in a small room where several skeletons, crushed by debris and lying in distorted positions, were found. Dyson said the skeleton clutching the object was that of a warrior.

Dr. Rainey said the mythological figures are believed to be unique in the art of the ancient Near East. He thought they might have some connection with objects found in the Caucasus, Mesopotamia and eastern Turkey once inhabited by the Urartu people unknown until about 50 years ago.

Dyson wrote that Hasanlu was a powerful, fortified city whose culture came to an abrupt end sometime after 813 B. C. The site was fire-ravaged.

Minister Admits He Was Fed Answer on '$64,000 Challenge'

NASHVILLE (UPI) — A Tullahoma, Tenn., minister has disclosed that he was "fed" an answer to a question when he appeared as a contestant on the "$64,000 Challenge," the Nashville Tennessean said in an article Saturday.

However, the Rev. Charles E. Jackson asserted that "you can't accuse the people who produce these quiz shows of anything criminal. If there's anything wrong, it's with the American people themselves who are so unforgiveably mercenary they worship anyone who makes money, no matter how it's made."

* * * *

JACKSON and several other Tennesseans who appeared on television quiz shows were contacted by the Nashville Tennessean, which published their comments Saturday.

The minister, who appeared on the quiz program in December, 1957, said that in a briefing before he went on the air on the "$64,000 Challenge," he was told by "a Miss Bernstein" that the answer to part of one question was "Thomas Hood."

The four-part question dealt with "Great Love Stories." It asked the name of Christopher Marlowe's long poem about a famous lover who had to swim to his sweetheart and the name of the body of water involved.

The lovers were "Hero and Leander" and the body of water was the Hellespont. The fourth part was who else also wrote about the story in verse.

The answer was Thomas Hood.

Jackson won $20,000 on two programs—$4,000 on the "$64,000 Question," and $16,000 on the $64,000 Challenge.

* * * *

THREE OTHERS who appeared on TV quiz programs were asked by the Tennessean what they thought of recent charges of "coaching contestants" on quiz shows.

Former Knoxville mayor George Dempster, who won $32,000 on the "$64,000 Question," said, "Hell, no," he wasn't prompted.

Doll Goostree of Clarksville, who went away empty-handed, said she could have "used a little help."

HOLE REPAIRED

Girl's Heart Halted 25 Min. for Surgery

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—Surgeons here revealed Saturday they stopped the heart of a 9-year-old girl for 25 minutes to repair a three-quarter-inch hole between the two chambers. The operation was successful and the girl will recover.

The doctors said they used a heart-lung machine to keep the patient's blood circulating during the operation. It was the first time an artificial heart had been used in New Zealand.

The girl was identified as Helen Arnold of Christchurch. She soon will be able to lead a completely normal life, the doctors said.

Nonstop Flights Mark Torrance Airport Day

TORRANCE—Seventeen private planes staged a nonstop trophy dash from here to Palm Springs and back Saturday to kick off the city's first annual Airport Day celebrations.

The event also featured displays, a crop-dusting demonstration, movies and band concerts.

Winner of the dash was William R. Decker, of West Covina, flying a Cessna 172 at an average speed of 127½ miles an hour.

Other leaders were Harold Corbett, of Hermosa Beach, second at 161¾ miles and hour in a Cessna 180; Myrl C. Rupel, Torrance, third at 126½ miles an hour in a Swift, and Leon J. Jones, Wilmington, fourth at 159½ miles an hour in a Bellanca.

Racers Kill 2, Hurt 11

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (UPI)—Two children were killed and 11 other persons injured Saturday when two cars competing in races at the Lehighton fair grounds ploughed through a fence in separate accidents.

The dead were Dennis Mertz, 11, Lehighton, and Shirley George, 11, Palmerton, R.D. 1.

Mrs. Cora Hawk, 49, Kunkletown, R.D. 2, and Violet Gusick, 17, Summit Hill, were admitted to Lehighton hospital in critical condition.

George Derr, 27, Walnut Port, R.D., was listed in fair condition at the hospital. Eight others were treated there and discharged.

* * * *

MAYOR JAMES Beisel said the Mertz boy and a companion were sitting in a tree watching the stock cars as they competed in a race on the fair grounds half-mile dirt track.

One of the cars skidded and crashed through the fence. The boy leaped in fright from the tree and was pinned against it by the careening automobile.

Dennis was taken to Lehighton Hospital but died less than three hours later.

* * * *

THE SECOND ACCIDENT occurred about 30 minutes later during the closing consolation race of five miles with 14 stock cars competing.

The George girl was among scores of spectators watching the event from behind a wooden fence along one of the sharpest curves on the track.

A racing car ripped through the fence and ploughed into a knot of spectators. Shirley was killed instantly and persons around her were bowled over by the impact as others scrambled out of the way.

The program immediately was called off as ambulances rushed the injured to the hospital. Shirley was pronounced dead on arrival.

Check Pad Stolen

A pad containing 73 blank checks was stolen Saturday from the Credit Bureau of Long Beach, 2183 E. 1st St. The checks carry the bureau letterhead.

Power at Madrid to Star With Gina

MADRID (AP)—Actor Tyrone Power has arrived to play a title role with Italy's Gina Lollobrigida in "Solomon and Sheba." Filming begins in mid-September, with the veteran King Vidor directing, on desert battle scenes near Zaragoza.

'Lovers' Lane' Bandits Rob 2 Men of L.B. Area

Two area men were among victims of two "Lovers' Lane" bandits who robbed four parked couples of a total of $140 in different Los Angeles locations Friday night and early Saturday.

Floyd Cline, 42, a private guard, of 923 W. 134th St., Compton, and a woman companion surrendered $92 to the holdup men.

Harvey L. Rose, 26, an intern at Harbor General Hospital, and a 22-year-old Los Angeles woman were robbed of $24.

The bandits used the same method of operation in each holdup. One poked a pistol through the driver's window as his partner took the money from the opposite side of the car.

Marine Stadium Bridge Work Now a Step Nearer Realization

Negotiations aimed at settlement of problems which have held up completion of the J. H. Davis bridge approach north of Marine Stadium now are under way.

Legal representatives of the Security First National Bank, executor of the estate of the late Warren F. McGrath, have offered proposals to the city for settlement.

The city filed a condemnation suit to acquire the needed property in January, 1956. In January, 1958 a declaratory relief suit was filed.

The declaratory relief suit, scheduled for pre-trial Sept. 29, came about after the state maintained that the city might own the property and could not buy it. This suit, which attorneys believe will take about two years to complete, would settle the rights of the parties as to ownership.

* * * *

THE ATTORNEY general's office meanwhile has announced that it is reviewing a decision that tidland oil money could not be used for Marina facilities such as the bridge approach.

Among the proposals submitted by representatives of the McGrath estate is one wherein the estate would turn over to the city approximately 20 acres of property on the north side of Marine Stadium, including the site for the bridge approach, and the city would remove an 800x200-foot fill from the front of McGrath estate property across from Marina Boat Basin No. 1 and relocate a seawall the city has proposed to build. A further provision is that the city would give up its plan to purchase the block east of Palo Walk.

Other details of the proposed compromise still are being discussed.

After What Burglars Took —It's Sad Sack, Indeed!

Some 150 watches were among more than $1,200 in loot taken in a burglary at Sad Sack Supplies, Inc., 5511 Woodruff Ave., sheriff's deputies reported Saturday.

The watches, two Italian-make carbines and $10 in cash were found missing when manager Lewis Glanzer opened the store about 8 a.m.

Deputies said the burglars entered by drilling a hole in the roof. They tried unsuccessfully to open a safe.

Police Quiz Suspects in Beating Case

ANAHEIM—Police continue to question suspects in the apparent beating of a 27-year-old man found unconscious on a sidewalk here Saturday.

The victim, Helario Martinez of 1134½ Swan St., was admitted to Orange County General Hospital in critical condition with a fractured skull. He was found lying on his back in the 200 block north of Philadelphia St.

Police were questioning several suspects in the case. They said they learned Martinez had been involved in an argument Friday night.

Sweat Box at Florida Prison Told

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Tampa Tribune reported Saturday night that two prisoners, one a teenager, were confined 26 continuous days and nights in hot, filthy "sweat boxes" at a state road prison camp near Moore Haven.

The Tribune said both prisoners were stripped of their clothing and forced to remain naked in the sweat boxes during their entire confinement.

"It was reported," said the Tribune, "that the boxes are approximately three feet wide and six feet long, and contain no running water and toilet facilities. Prisoners are not allowed to come out for showers and are provided with two small pitchers of water—one in the morning and one at night. It was reported that bugs crawl into the water pitcher at night, making the water repulsive to drink."

* * * *

THE STORY said the sweat boxes have no sleeping facilities, the prisoners sleeping on the floor.

The story identified the two prisoners as Robert Z. Yancey, 18, of Ocala, Fla., serving an 18-month term for grand larceny, and James J. Wagner, 23, of Morristown, N.J., serving two years for breaking and entering with intent to commit felony.

The Tribune said both men are now in solitary confinement at the state maximum security prison at Raiford for assaulting a prison camp trusty.

* * * *

THE TRIBUNE said that the Moore Haven camp warden, A. E. Wells, "attempted to block the investigation of reports that he used sweat boxes to unreasonable degrees in punishing prisoners. L. W. Griffith, director of all State Road Department prison camps, backed Wells by also refusing to grant a Tribune reporter permission to inspect the sweat box situation."

Florida has no law against the use of sweat boxes.

Prison camp director Griffith declined to comment. Wells was not available for comment.

THEY'LL ALSO GET THEIR PADS PADDLED

SANTA ANA (UPI)—Two 15-year-old Anaheim boys failed to get into orbit and were left on their launching pad Saturday by police.

The boys were bawled out and released for swiping books on rocket and space fields from the Santa Ana, Anaheim and Fullerton public libraries.

Titles included "Rocket Power," "First Principles of Atomic Physics" and "Exploring Outer Space."

"We took the books, because we wouldn't be permitted to keep them long enough to complete our project," one of them explained. "We were going to make an ion-powered rocket engine."

Gale Fifi Cuts Out Seaward

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Tropical storm Fifi blossomed into a full-grown hurricane Saturday in the Atlantic 450 miles east of San Juan and headed northwestward across open seas.

The weather bureau here said in a 5 p.m. advisory that reconnaissance aircraft circled hurricane Fifi and reported it was centered at latitude 18.4 north, longitude 59.3 west.

Highest winds are about 85 miles an hour over a small area near the center and hurricane force winds extend out 50 miles north and east of the center, the advisory said.

* * * *

IT WAS HEADED toward the open sea at 16 miles an hour on a course that, if continued, would skirt the Bahamas and carry eventually to the south Atlantic coast. Many storms born in this area, however, veer northward and never become a menace to land.

"It is expected that hurricane Fifi will continue moving in the same direction at the same speed during the next 12 hours," the advisory said. During the same period, the hurricane was expected to increase slightly in intensity.

Gale warnings were hoisted in the Leeward islands. Residents of the Leeward group were urged to keep posted on the storm's movements.

BIDDER TURNS PALE

Gulp! You Mean It's $551 for Each Acre?

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI)—Auctioneer Harold Kindred's big western type hat bobbed up and down Saturday as bidding passed the $500 mark on a 40-acre farm.

One farmer nudged his neighbor. "This place is bringing a heck of a lot more than I thought it would."

The bidding went to $525. Then there were just two bidders left. One, an experienced, price-wise real estate man, bidding for a farmer client; the other, a 60-year-old woman.

"Five-fifty," said the professional with a note of finalty.

"FIVE-FIFTY-ONE," was the woman's firm reply.

"Sold!" barked Col. Kindred. The real estate man threw up his mands, "way too much money."

Parties of the sale adjourned to the sheriff's office to complete the details.

"Let's see now," said one lawyer, anticipating the usual down payment, "20 per cent of the sale price of $22,040, will be $4,408."

PARTICIPANTS grew pale when the woman replied, "Why, I only have $551. I'm from Chicago. I didn't get in on the explanation. But, I thought any piece of ground around here ought to be worth $551. You mean it was $551 an acre?"

Everyone will tell it to a judge Monday. Because the sale involves an estate, he's likely to order the whole sale started over.

The embarrassed woman would give only her name, Mrs. Lillian Watson.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Nixon Urges High Income Tax Cut

BOSTON (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon Saturday proposed cuts in federal taxes on business and persons with high-bracket incomes to stimulate continued business prosperity.

He did not suggest any reductions for average wage-earners. But he said they would benefit because "prosperity for the American people is inseparable from prosperity for American business."

The vice president emphasized he was speaking only for himself and not the administration which has been strongly opposed to any major tax reduction at this time. Democratic leaders in Congress supported the administration's position in the congressional session concluded last month.

Nixon outlined his tax relief program in a speech to the 50th anniversary of the Harvard Business School Association.

Sniper Slays Woman in Car

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UP)—A Minneapolis woman was killed in early morning darkness Saturday by a bullet that pierced the back seat of an automobile cruising along a lonely stretch of U. S. 97.

Mrs. Carl Frederickson, 48, asleep in the seat, died without outcry. Her death was not discovered by others in the car until they reached Bend, 148 miles north of here.

Meanwhile police arrested a Klamath Indian, Myron Barkley, 26, on a charge of shooting another Indian, Eldon James Cress, 20, Saturday morning. After learning of the shooting of Mrs. Frederickson, they began questioning Barkley on whether he had any knowledge of it. Sheriff Murray Britton said Barkley admitted being on U. S. 97 about the time and place of the shooting, but denied knowledge of it.

In the past a number of drivers have complained of shots directed at their cars on or near the Klamath reservation north of here.

Rain Floods Iowa Towns

ATLANTIC, Iowa (UPI)—Flood waters rolled on through southwest Iowa Saturday night after a new outburst of torrential rains brought precipitation of a foot or more for the second time within two months.

The latest deluge occurred Friday night and early Saturday with the towns of Casey, Anita and Adair areas getting the heaviest fall.

Unlike the early June floods in which 19 persons perished, the current flooding brought no direct loss of life although two persons were killed in a highway crash in which blinding rain was a factor. U. S. 6, closed at some points last night due to high water, was open again Saturday afternoon.

Fraternity Suspended 2 Years

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass. (UPI)—Phi Gamma Delta, a national colege fraternity with 45,000 white members, Saturday imposed a two-year suspension on its Amherst College chapter which was suspended when it pledged a Negro student last year.

Fraternity President Philip C. Ebeling of Dayton, Ohio, declined to say whether the two-year suspension resulted from the pledging. He said a "sizable majority" of the 225 delegates to the fraternity's national convention approved the suspension.

Olivia Fears Citizenship Loss

PARIS (UPI)—Actress Olivia de Havilland expressed fears Saturday she might lose her American citizenship as a result of testimony before a congressional committee that she once belonged to a Communist front organization.

The British-born actress is now the wife of French journalist Pierre Galante. Her testimony before the House Un-American Activities committee was revealed Friday.

"Naturalized American citizens can lose their citizenship if they reside outside the U.S. for more than five years," Miss de Havilland said Saturday. "In exceptional cases they have lost it before that—and I am just hoping that this will not be considered an exceptional case."

REGIONAL POLITICS

Engle Will Open L.B. Headquarters Wednesday

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Congressman Clair Engle (D-Red Bluff) will cut ribbons, picnic, speak, play roque, bowl and tour the harbor area in a two-day Long Beach kickoff for his U. S. Senate campaign Wednesday and Thursday.

Councilman D. Patrick Ahern, Engle's campaign chairman for the 18th Congressional District, said the Wednesday program will open at 2 p.m. with Engle cutting the ribbon to open officially the new Engle Long Beach Headquarters at the southwest corner of Broadway and American Ave. At 2:45 p.m. Engle will speak at the University by the Sea.

* * * *

BIXBY PARK will be the site of an Engle picnic-rally starting at 7 p.m. with Municipal Band music from 7 to 8 p.m. Ahern said the public is invited to bring a basket picnic. Coffee and lemonade will be served. He said some 40 baskets of groceries will be awarded at the headquarters opening and at the picnic-rally.

Emanuel Gyler, president of the 18th District California Democratic Council, will preside at the picnic program. Democratic nominees Harry S. May for Congress; Joseph M. Kennick for 44th District Assembly, and Tom Griffin for 70th District Assembly will be invited to serve coffee to picnickers.

CLAIR ENGLE

Councilman Gerald Desmond will lead the pledge of allegiance and Vice Mayor Virgil Spongberg will give the invocation. Atty. John Paap will introduce Rep. Engle.

Engle will bowl at Java Lanes at 9 p.m.

* * * *

HE WILL SPEAK Thursday at a meeting of AFL and CIO labor leaders in the Lafayette Hotel at 8:30 a.m. He'll make the traditional campaigners' roque call in Lincoln Park at 10:30 a.m., after which he will go to City Hall to greet city officials and councilmen. After that he plans a harbor tour to inspect subsidence damage.

HOSMER INFLUENCE LOST, SAYS MAY

Harry S. May, Democratic nominee for Congress, 18th District (Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill), charged that Rep. Craig Hosmer, Republican incumbent, "has already lost his fight to keep the Naval Shipyard open. The recent conditional appropriation of funds from the U. S. Navy Dept. for the Long Beach Harbor has shown he has lost all of his influence and strength in representing this district. Rep. Harry Sheppard (D - Yucaipa) has proven that for all men to see."

May said Democratic victory in November will place chairmanships of the appropriations sub-committees in Democratic hands and would render "Hosmer a lame duck." He criticized Hosmer's switch from the Small Business sub-committee to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee as one "for convenience and prestige . . . and he may make the same maneuver in the wake of the subsidence fund debacle by accentuating his atomic advisory post with the already discredited Lewis L. Strauss and his Geneva delegation. Atoms for Peace is vital indeed, but a poor substitute for helping to raise a sinking harbor."

YOUTH FOR TRUTH FOR KNOWLAND

George Milias Jr., State Republican Central Committee chairman, announced that Sen. William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight have joined in support of the newly-formed "Youth for Truth" squad, sponsored by Young Republicans of California.

Milias said the squad of volunteers will monitor all major speeches made by Democratic candidates, "listen carefully to their prepared campaign of words, and then expose . . . any fallacies and innuendoes . . . along with a statement of the true facts."

FUND-RAISING ROUNDUP

Nixon to Open Calif. Tour for GOP Oct. 1

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Vice President Nixon will open his California campaign tour for Republican candidates at a GOP fund-raising roundup in San Diego the night of Oct. 1, Rep. Bob Wilson (R-Calif) announced Saturday.

"Vice President Nixon feels that he can be most helpful to California Republicans by pointing up the issues and pointing up the unity that actually exists within the party organization," Wilson said.

* * * *

"HE HAS agreed to come here to help us with this demonstration. It will be his first October-campaign appearance in California and should attract nation-wide attention."

The roundup—western style—will feature rodeo and other acts by top-name performers.

Wilson said all Republican partisan candidates are to participate either in person or through representatives. He said Sen. William Knowland, Republican gubernatorial nominee; Gov. Goodwin Knight, U. S. Senate nominee, and Rep. Pat Hillings (R-Calif), attorney general nominee, already have said they would attend.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Knight scored Rep. Clair Engle of Red Bluff Saturday night for "gross truancy" in Congress and called on Republicans to make campaign issues known to the public.

Knight, Republican nominee for the U. S. Senate, said Engle, his Democratic opponent, "has shamefully neglected one of the most fundamental obligations that an American public official assumes" by his absences from Congress.

* * * *

HE MADE his remarks in a prepared address before the Republican State Central Committee.

Charging that Engle was absent from Congress for "perhaps the most important final weeks of the session" — Aug. 8 through 23—Knight said Engle was "guilty of an inexcusable dereliction of duty."

Turning to his own record, Knight asserted:

"In placing my name before the people of California as a candidate for the United States Senate . . . I do so on a record of unquestioned integrity, statewide perspective, long experience in federal affairs and, above all, full recognition of solemn responsibility to all the people I seek to represent.

"You have the facts: On the one hand, flippancy, indifference, wisecracks, irresponsibility; on the other, integrity, dignity, and proved performance."

Ike Pocket Veto Kills Claims Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday killed, by pocket veto, a bill to permit heads of each military department to settle damage claims of $1,000 or less for death, injury or property loss caused by members or employes of the armed forces.

As a result of the President's inaction settlement of the claims will continue as before—usually requiring special congressional action.

Truman Kin Runs for Parliament

LONDON (UPI) — Charles Truman, 43, a fruit farmer and a distant relative of former President Harry Truman, has been selected as the Liberal candidate for parliament from the Isle of Wight in Britain's next general election, the Liberals announced Saturday.

Relief Offered Wearers of Thick Lensed Glasses

Thousands of people who are wearing unpleasant appearing, thick lensed glasses can now enjoy improved vision and freedom from the burdensome weight of the spectacles, according to vision authorities. They explain that extreme far- and near-sightedness, astigmatism, keratoconus (swelling of the cornea), and postoperative cataract are conditions for which contact lenses are especially good. The field of vision is much greater, and the vision is keener with contact lenses. The thinness and lightness of the new plastic lenses have tremendous cosmetic and functional value, and the psychological effect on the wearer cannot be overemphasized. With a diameter no larger than an eraser tip, modern plastic contact lenses are easy to apply, and they are designed to be worn around the clock. Easy terms. BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

THE vaguely - identifiable thing known as the "American public" takes a consistent beating.

It is berated, scolded and exhorted to do better on an around-the-clock basis from editorialists, commentators, preachers, and all sorts of pundits.

It is accused of neglecting its children, of recklessly risking life on the highways, of niggardly giving to worthy causes, of superficial consideration of political issues, of failing to ballot in adequate numbers, of a general lowering of moral standards and a vast variety of other sins and shortcomings.

An awful lot of speaking and writing, when it moves beyond the field of private communication, quickly becomes a bawling out for the public.

As an old editorial columnist, I've done my share. Not once but often I've chided "the public" for sins I myself committed on that very day.

IF YOU'RE wondering what I'm leading up to, here it is: I've got some praise today for "the general public."

For once, I'm going to say something nice about it. I'm not going overboard, mind you, because its performance in the field I have in mind isn't perfect, but I claim it's improving.

I detect some definite progress in the cause of preventing litter on the public highways.

The thoroughfares, definitely, are cleaner. I saw as much on a recent run about the state, and others with me confirmed the observation.

It must be that more people are withholding their hands as they move toward the car window, clutching bits of paper or other rubbish. More people are suing litter disposal facilities in cars and more are using the litter cans that may be found beside the highways at convenient turnoffs.

We observed, in fact, that many of these cans were filled to overflowing. Certainly, the stuff couldn't have blown in there.

WHAT is causing this? Supposedly, it's a combination of the anti-litter propaganda campaign, the stiffening of laws and posting of highways with litter warnings, and the program of providing disposal facilities at convenient locations.

Signs now notify drivers that litter cans are a half mile ahead—a neat little reminder, even if the can is not used.

The litter bag for cars is also a fine idea.

Something, apparently, is working, and so this dept., for once, speaks in praise and admiration of the "general public." In particular, the reference is to the driving public. Vacant lots and the beaches still bear evidence that not all of the public is willing yet to rid itself of a dirty habit.

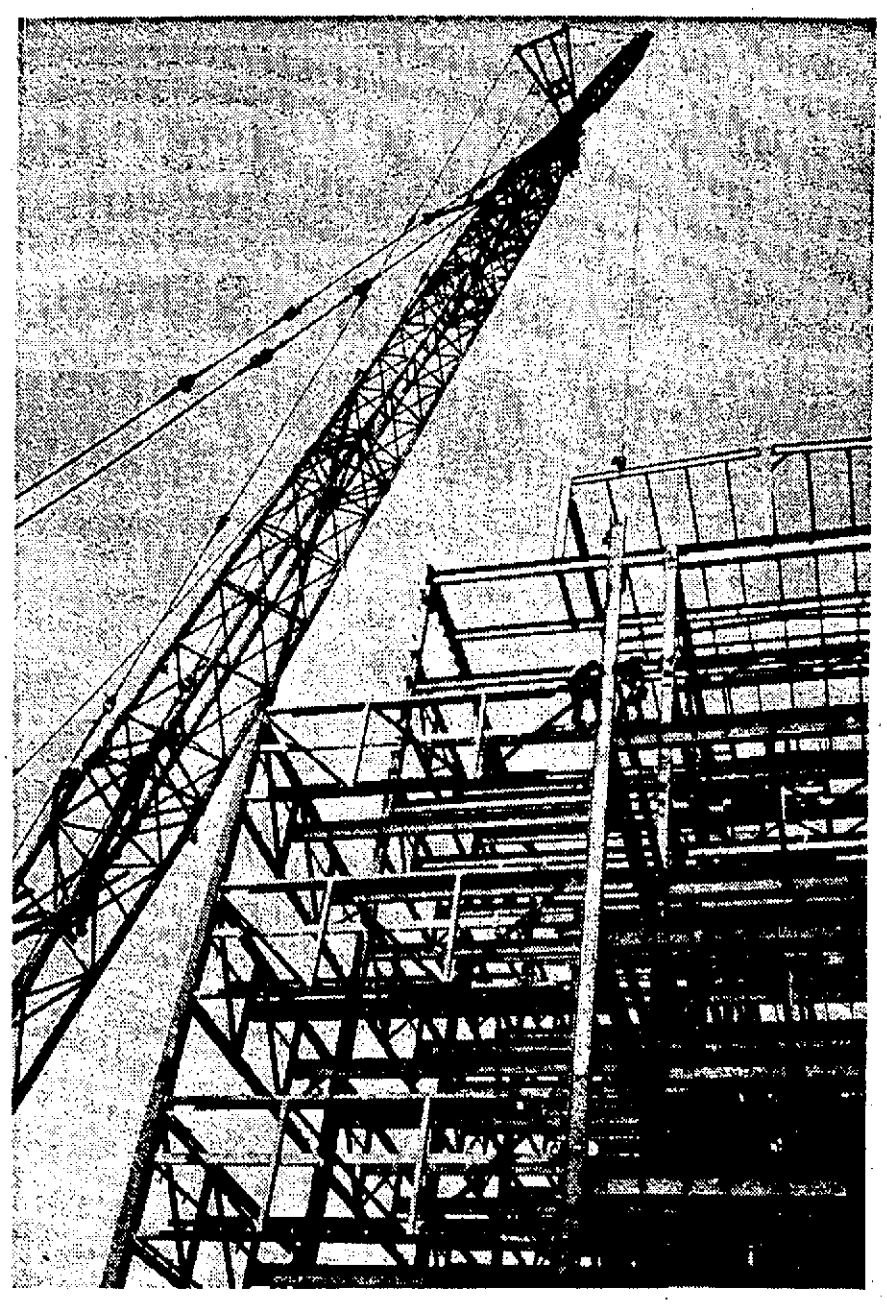

THINGS are bad in spots. The mimeographed membership letter of a Long Beach church carries this item:

"Most churches feel it necessary to pay their ministers in cash, but there are a few in America who pay in grain, turnips, sow belly or greens. Unless our pledgers make up their pledges this month, please bring a turnip or a bit of sow belly for our minister."

THAT brings up a long-dimmed personal memory. My father was a pioneer minister in the western Nebraska prairie country, and I recall his recounting some of his salary experiences in those days.

One year—I think it was the year of a great drought on the plains — he labored for 12 months as a circuit rider, netting $200 in cash, a load of hay for his team, and a barrel of scrawny green apples.

I hope the Long Beach preacher referred to in the bulletin does better than that this year.

'Jobs for L.B.' on Ballot as Props. S, T

By BEN ZINSER

"Jobs for Long Beach," a proposed public improvement program to increase employment, will be identified on the Nov. 4 ballot as Propositions S and T.

This was announced Saturday by Benjamin S. Hite, Los Angeles County registrar of voters.

Hite also disclosed the alphabetical designations for four Long Beach charter amendments to be submitted to the voters.

The letter "X" will precede an amendment that would abolish the special tax from which musicians in the Long Beach Municipal Band are paid. If passed, it would abolish the 49-year-old musical aggregation.

* * * *

OTHER DESIGNATIONS:

U—for an amendment that would give a one per cent preference to Long Beach firms bidding for supplying the city with materials and equipment.

V—for an amendment providing for transfer of tax assessment and collection to the county and removing the $1 tax rate limit on the General Purpose Fund.

W—for an amendment increasing from five to 40 years the maximum term of leases of Harbor Dept. wharves and piers.

Proposition S is a $2,470,000 bond issue proposal that would spruce up Long Beach's appearance in an effort to attract and hold tourists.

* * * *

IT CALLS FOR the widening of Ocean Blvd. between Golden and Alamitos Aves. and the planting of flowering trees in a divider strip down the center.

It would place a similar dividing island down the center of American Ave. from Ocean Blvd. to Willow St.

Also, it would landscape all the off-ramps on the Long Beach Freeway terminus from the 9th St. Bridge south to Ocean Blvd.

Proposition S would also remove rail tracks from Ocean Blvd. and American Ave.

Its companion measure, Proposition T, is a $4,245,000 bond issue proposal that would expand city convention facilities and modernize and glamorize the present Municipal Auditorium.

* * * *

SPECIFICALLY, it would create a pedestrian mall in front of the Auditorium. Beneath the mall would be erected a 100,000-square-foot exhibits building that would connect with the Auditorium. The extra space would enable the city to draw bigger trade shows.

Interior of the Auditorium would be modernized, including a change in color scheme and improvement of acoustics. Dramatic night lighting of the Auditorium's exterior is proposed.

The pedestrian mall proposed by Proposition T would eliminate the present downhill approach to the auditorium. The new approach would be level with Ocean Blvd.

* * * *

THE MALL would become an International Square, decorated with statuary from foreign nations, to call attention the year around to this city's Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Proponents of Propositions S and T say the two proposals would create from 3,000 to 5,000 jobs.

Lions Help Remodel Boys Club

Thanks to the West Long Beach Lions Club, Lady Lions and a lot of other hard-working and generous citizens, the West Branch of the Boys' Club, 1835 W. Willard St., is getting a $7,000 remodeling and face-lifting.

Two rooms have been added —a 10x15 foot kitchen, fully equipped, and a 15x30 foot game room.

And the entire 60x90 foot structure is being painted, inside and outside.

* * * *

MOVING SPIRIT in the enterprise is Harry A. Jaffe, immediate past president of the West Long Beach Lions Club, aided by Councilman D. Pat Ahern; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Opsahl, presidents of the Lions Club and Lady Lions, and Allen Clinkscale, club youth activities director.

Painters Local 256, of which Wayne J. Hull is business representative, with the cooperation of the Masters Painters and Decorators Assn. of America, is doing the entire painting job—free.

STEEL NEARLY COMPLETE

Harbor Building Rises on Pier A

By LEE CRAIG

Erection of steel is nearly complete for Long Beach Harbor Department's $3,000,000 administration building now under construction on a 10-acre site on Pier A.

The seven-story structure, probably the most modern of its type on the Pacific Coast, is scheduled for completion by about Jan. 1, 1960.

ITS EXTERIOR SURFACING will be of ceramic veneer. Feature of the front entrance will be a huge mural on which typical port scenes will be pictured. Before the mural will be a reflection pool.

Suites of harbor executives will be located on the sixth floor, along with the harbor commissioners' board room. A popular feature with port visitors will be a 100-foot long exhibit and sightseeing gallery overlooking the harbor and city.

THE BUILDING WILL FURNISH more than 100,000 square feet of office space for administrative and technical staffs of the harbor department and Long Beach Oil Development Co., the city's oil operator.

Contractors for the building are C. L. Peck Construction and Realty Co., Los Angeles, and Millie & Severson Co., Long Beach, in a joint venture. Architects are Warren Dedrick and James Friend.

Commissioners have made no definite decision on disposition of the present two-story administration building at 1333 El Embarcadero.

WORKIN' FOR THE . . .

Convention Dollar

City after city throughout the nation is pursuing a special kind of dollar nowadays.

It's that spent by the convention delegate or the tourist. It's a special dollar because it turns over rapidly in a community and creates jobs.

A five-installment series beginning Monday in The Independent and The Press-Telegram tells what various cities are doing to improve their position in this competitive market.

The articles, written by staff writer Ben Zinser, will disclose that some communities are making millions by catering to conventioneers and travelers.

Oren R. Cline, City Inspector 39 Years, Dies at Age 101

Oren Ramsey Cline, who moved here from Kansas for his health 51 years ago, is dead at the age of 101.

Cline, the city's gas and electric inspector for 39 years until his retirement at age 93, died Thursday.

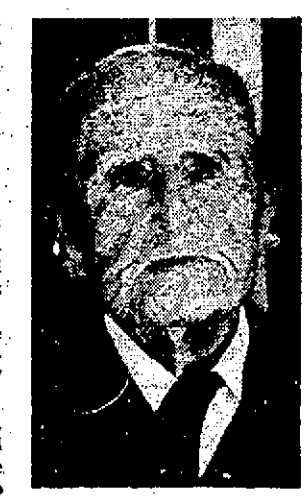

A native of Fulton County, Pa., Cline moved to Kansas as a young man. He worked as a school teacher, accountant and 18 years in the public utilities field in that state.

He and his wife moved here in 1907, a year after he suffered a "breakdown of health."

* * * *

CLINE intended to retire, but four years later he started work for the city, which he saw grow from 7,500 people to more than 300,000.

In 1953, he became beneficiary on two of his own life insurance policies, by outliving the life span covered by insurance mortality tables in effect when he took them out 38 years before.

OREN R. CLINE
Came Here in 1907

Cline was a member of Grace Methodist Church and Long Beach Masonic Lodge.

HE AND HIS WIDOW, Katie, would have celebrated their 69th wedding anniversary next month.

Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Harold Dunn of Laguna Beach, a grandson and three great-grandchildren.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in Patterson & Snively Mortuary. Burial will be in Melrose Abbey Mausoleum.

Guard to Command Long Beach Nike Site

The Long Beach Nike guided missile site next Sunday will become the first in the nation to be commanded by National Guardsmen.

Public ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. will mark the change of command from active Army to California's 720th Missile Battalion. The site is on Spring St. near Long Beach Airport.

* * * *

A SIMILAR program is set for the Torrance battery, on Crenshaw Blvd. near Torrance Airport, four hours later.

Open house will follow both ceremonies, and one at 3:30 p.m. at Playa del Rey at 3:30 p.m.

Although the sites will remain under operational control of the Army's 47th Artillery Brigade, command of the units will remain with the state.

* * * *

THE 720TH BATTALION, training for the past year under schedules designed by the 47th Brigade, has performed a "pilot" role for other National Guard units in the nation.

The program here has been designed to test all phases of the problem of integrating National Guard units into active air defense of the United States. Since it started here, 26 other battalions in the country have begun similar training.

BRAIN DEVICE ACCEPTED—40 YEARS LATE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A device to help avoid brain injury from a stroke, ignored for over 40 years, will be demonstrated at the annual Pennsylvania Heart Assn. meeting here Sept. 18-21.

The instrument, the ophthalmodynamometer, was developed in France in 1915 but soon dismissed because doctors were not sure how to use it.

The instrument indicates blood pressure level in arteries at the back of the neck. When it reaches a certain level, it may mean the carotid artery on the side of the neck is blocked or narrowed. If repaired in time, brain injury from stroke can be avoided.

Four long-time employes of the Standard Oil Co. of California will be honored at a luncheon Monday in Brower's Restaurant.

H. R. Schuttler, division manager of the retail department, will be host.

Nine Saved as Fishing Boat Sinks

A 63-foot San Pedro fishing vessel sank about nine miles off Point Dume at noon Saturday after nine crewmen were taken off.

The Lucretia K., a rebuilt purse seiner, started shipping water about 10:30 a.m. The skipper, Donald Kusar, of 1218 Weymouth Ave., San Pedro, radioed for help. Another San Pedro vessel, the Clarmont, which was nearby, came to the rescue.

* * * *

THE COAST GUARD sent a cutter and a helicopter to the scene, but the rescue was completed before their arrival. The seiner, valued at about $30,000, had a 65-ton cargo for sardines aboard.

The Clarmont was scheduled to arrive at Terminal Island about 5:30 a.m. today with the rescued fishermen.

Kusar and Borti Petrich, also of San Pedro, had purchased the vessel less than two months ago, and had just completed refitting her.

2 Fly Home; Lost $18,000 Still Mystery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stanley Collins and his wife of 18 years, who turned up on a Los Angeles street corner after failing to meet her husband with $14,790 for a new house, started back home to Philadelphia Saturday.

The couple boarded a plane here late Saturday morning for the return flight.

Collins, 42, a welder, appeared stunned and pale as he was reunited with Stella Collins, 43, outside the women's jail. She had been placed in "protective custody" as a possible amnesia victim when found on a downtown street corner last Wednesday.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Collins said he believed his wife banked $18,000 in savings, she had only $2.67 when police talked to her.

On Aug. 27, according to the husband, the couple planned to meet to close the deal for a house. Mrs. Collins, who had charge of banking the savings of the two, was to bring a check for the $14,790. She failed to appear and the following day Collins reported her missing.

Collins flew here early Saturday immediately after learning the whereabouts of his wife. Before he joined her outside the entrance to the women's jail, he murmured over and over:

"This thing has hit me right between the eyes. I don't know what happened."

* * * *

BUT COLLINS also repeated that he came west for the single purpose of bringing his wife home with him.

When he saw his wife, Collins appeared suddenly angry. Before leaving with her he kicked at a television man and swung his small suitcase at several reporters, but hit the side of his wife's head intsead.

Mrs. Collins, also pale, at first did not seem to recognize her husband and walked aimlessly for several seconds in the room where Collins waited with reporters and photographers. Collins walked up to his wife, grabbed her arm and started leading her from the building.

* * * *

WHEN photographers began taking pictures, he shouted: "Can't you leave us alone! Why must we be persecuted?"

As they hurried from the building, Collins pulled his coat up and had his wife put her sweater over her head.

When Collins checked the two banks where he believed his wife had placed their savings, he found $41 in one and $50 in the other.

Red Army Politico Ousted

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet government and the Communist Party have cracked down on the Red army to bring it under better control, it was disclosed here Saturday. The army was warned to beware of "debauchery, indiscipline and drunkenness."

The political chief of the Moscow military district has been fired in a new move to tighten the grip of the party over the army.

Red Star, the organ of the government defense ministry, said that Lt. Gen. A. Dubovsky has been "replaced" by Lt. Gen. D. Yegorov, former political chief of the Red army forces in Hungary, where he apparently proved his reliability.

* * * *

DUBOVSKY'S downfall followed recent Soviet press attacks against him for permitting hooliganism in the armed forces in his district.

But the gravest charge, which apparently cost him his job, was that he had allowed serious shortcomings in the political work in the armed forces under his command.

Other purges were understood to have been carried out in the Red Army following a recent general tightening-up of "discipline."

There have been open charges in the Soviet press of hooliganism, absenteeism and of so-called loose living among the troops.

The latest indication came in a lengthy article in the new issue of Red Star. It attacked drinking in the army as a serious threat to discipline and urged soldiers to keep away from liquor.

It described the dangers resulting from drinking, "debauchery and indiscipline."

Remove Old Mines

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet sappers this week spent four days removing a cache of land mines dating from the World War II Nazi siege of Leningrad. They were located by workmen excavating at a factory near Leningrad and, according to experts, might have exploded with disastrous effect.

U.S. Politely Asks Reds to Return Balloons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has responded to a Soviet complaint about American balloons flying over Russia. The United States politely asked for them back.

The Russians sent a note to the United States three days ago, denouncing the appearance of balloons over Soviet territory.

Saturday, the State Department confirmed that the balloons probably were there. It made public the text of a formal reply delivered to the Soviet foreign office Friday by the U. S. embassy in Moscow.

The American note said the Soviet complaint had been investigated. It was true, the United States said, that the U. S. Air Force recently launched a number of high altitude weather research balloons.

* * * *

THE NOTE SAID these plastic balloons were sent aloft from the West Coast. Attached to them, it added, were cameras for photographing cloud formations and other weather phenomena.

If some of these happened to land in Russia, the note said politely, the United States would appreciate their prompt return through the U. S. embassy in Moscow.

In this way, the note said, "the data collected may be evaluated and made available for use throughout the world scientific community."

The note emphasized there was nothing secret or military about the balloons even though they were part of a U. S. Air Force project.

MODESTO (AP) — Before he knew California-launched research balloons would land in Russia, an Air Force physicist said the balloons might provide information on high velocity wind streams in the upper atmosphere—possibly an important factor in rocket aiming.

Sam Solot explained this at a press conference here three months ago. Solot, atmospheric physicist for the Air Force Cambridge Research Center at Bedford, Mass., directed the start of test balloon launchings from nearby Vernolis Field last May.

Solot told the press conference the polyethylene balloons, inflated with helium, could reach 100,000 feet altitude. He said fragmentary evidence indicated wind streams at 20 miles altitude similar to the well-known jet streams at 30,000 to 40,000 feet altitudes. Such high velocity streams have given transport airplanes tail wind rides to new speed records.

Is the School Year Too Short?

Plans for Longer Terms Involved in Controversy

By G. E. HODENFIELD
Associated Press Educational Writer

Is the nine-month school year as outmoded as the horsehair sofa?

A growing number of Americans think so.

Teachers say they need more time to teach the facts and fancies of today's complex world. Space age education, they say, can't be taught on a horse-and-buggy schedule.

The American Assn. of School Administrators says, "There is now more to teach and learn than can be accomplished . . . in the present time allotment."

Parents and the students themselves seem to be swinging around to the idea. For example:

In Ocean City N. J., there are regular Saturday classes for high school students who want to take courses in calculus, advanced physics, advanced chemistry and analytical geometry.

In Cheltenham, Pa., the top high school students attend a two-hour class in advanced science every Wednesday evening, the year 'round.

In Wilmington, Del., the school system holds a four-week science camp every summer, with field trips and talks by experts on biology, physics and chemistry.

None of these special classes would be worth a plugged nickel if the students didn't want to attend, or their parents didn't want them to.

* * * *

BUT THESE, on the whole, are isolated cases. They indicate an awareness of the problem, but they don't point to any solution.

The idea of having American children spend more time in the classroom is not a new one. It has been kicked around for a number of years. But, like just about everything else in education, it really became an issue last fall when Russia startled the world with Sputnik I.

In Russia, where the schools operate six days a week, 10 months a year, Soviet students spend an average of from 215 to 230 days in the classroom. The traditional U. S. school year of five days a week, nine months a year, allows an average of from 175 to 180 classroom days.

"And how," ask the critics, "are we going to keep up with the Russians on a schedule like that?"

* * * *

THE AMERICAN system, widely adopted at the turn of the century, was designed largely for a rural society. Long summer vacations meant the kids would be home on the farm during most of the busy planting, growing and harvesting seasons.

The changing American scene has long since done away with the need for such an educational pattern. But it's traditional, and therein lies most of its staying power.

Three plans have been advanced to revise the school year: Saturday classes, 10-month school years, and the four-quarter plan. All of them have their advocates, but they have their enemies, too.

And all of them would cost more money.

When Gov. George M. Leader hinted last year that Saturday classes might be tried out in Pennsylvania, you could hear the outraged wails of anger in Timbuktu.

Parents said they wanted their children home on Saturday, to mow the lawn and help with the housecleaning. Students wrote blistering, if sometimes ungrammatical letters to the editor. A retired teacher summed it up this way:

"If the children go to school on Saturday, when are they going to have time for the other things in life — movies, skating, dancing lessons, pleasure reading, sight-seeing . . .?"

A more valid objection was made on religious grounds. Thousands of Seventh Day Adventists and Jews observe Saturday as the Sabbath.

Apparently it's going to take more of a crisis than education has yet faced to bring about a six-day school week in this country.

* * * *

THE FOUR-QUARTER plan is a tricky one. It looks good, if you don't look too hard.

That's a system whereby the school plant is kept open the year 'round, with each student attending three of the four quarters.

Its backers say that under the four-quarter plan, 60 classrooms can do the work of 80. a big capital investment isn't allowed to stand idle for three months, and jobs are easier to find when only one fourth of the student body is on vacation at a time.

But every school that has tried the four-quarter plan has dropped it.

First, it doesn't really lengthen the school year. In most cases, the average number of classroom days drops.

Second, the idea is full of hidden expenses. Atlanta, took note of the hot and humid summer days and figured it would cost nearly 1½ million dollars ...st to air condition the schools. ...s Angeles figured most of ...e maintenance work would have to be done at night, or on holidays and weekends. At premium pay, that would raise costs by more than two million dollars a year.

Many parents don't like the idea. If Susie's vacation is in the spring, and Johnny's vacation is in the fall, what happens when dad gets his vacation in the summer? And, unless the plan is adopted nationwide, there would be the difficulty of transferring from a three-quarter to a two-semester school when the family moved.

* * * *

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS don't like it. The entire school program, now based on two semesters, would have to be overhauled.

And the students, for sure, don't like it. As one high school lad put it: "Boy, would that louse up the football team!"

If anything is going to be done, it will probably be along the lines of a 10-month school year. There are arguments against that idea, too, but they aren't as numerous nor as strong.

Calvin Grieder, a professor of school administration at the University of Colorado, has come up with a plan for a 10-month, 200-day school year, with each school day stretched out a bit. He acknowledges it's going to cost money, but he figures the increase shouldn't run more than about 10 per cent per year. Most of that would be in salary adjustments to the teachers.

Under Grieder's plan, outlined in a recent issue of the magazine nation's schools, there would be a five-hour day from kindergarten through the sixth grade, and a seven-hour day for grades 7 through 12. Actual class time would thus be increased from about 880 hours per school to 1,000 in grade school, and from 1,030 to 1,400 hours in junior and senior high school.

Greider suggests two ways in which the 200-day school year might be worked out. One calls for two 100-day semesters, and the other for four 50-day terms.

ANSWER SIREN CALL

Reds Lure Chinese Youths in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Chinese parents in Pakistan are fighting a problem common to overseas Chinese in many other countries of Asia—how to hold their children at home against the hypnotic blandishments of Communist China propagandists.

Peiping is holding out to Chinese youths the promise of an education, a profession and progress.

Chinese parents here, and in other Asian cities clearly are fighting magnetic propaganda.

"What can we do?" one mother asked. "If they want to go, they go."

And it appears enough of the young Chinese are going to make the problem a major one.

"I want to go back to China for the simple reason that I'm Chinese," said one 19-year-old girl who decided to leave Pakistan for the mainland.

* * * *

SOME FAMILIES are trying to combat the pull of the mainland by sending their children abroad—to the United States or Europe. "There they will have a chance in life," said one family, "and they won't be tempted to go to China."

This seems to be the crux of the problem — "A chance in life." As one Chinese in Karachi said, "We cannot fight this propaganda. It is too attractive for them. We can offer the children a little love, a humble home, a restricted society. The Communists offer them education, a profession, progress."

One Chinese said that in Borneo the Communists, with the help of successful businessmen and shop owners, set up a pro-Communist school and installed a party-liner from Singapore as principal.

Another overseas Chinese said that in Singapore Chinese Communists now dominate the student groups and virtually direct the political thinking of the young students there.

* * * *

ONE MAN who passed through Karachi recently said his foster son had packed up suddenly and left his comfortable Hong Kong home for Red China.

"He had a good job, a good home," the man said. "I was every bit a father to him. He was a good Catholic. And then he just packed up and went. I can forgive his ingratitude, but I cannot forgive myself for my complacency in thinking I had more authority than his insidious friends."

DEAN ACHESON
"Not Worth a Life"

Ike Quemoy Policy Hit by Acheson

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson asserted Saturday the Eisenhower administration is leading the United States toward war with Red China over issues "which are not worth a single American life."

The Democratic Party's leading policy spokesman rejected all the arguments advanced by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for American intervention to help the Nationalist Chinese defend the islands they hold near the Red Chinese mainland.

He said this was a "horrendous decision." The U. S. government, Acheson argued, has allowed itself to be trapped by both the opposing Chinese forces in a conflict it cannot win.

* * * *

IN A LONG public statement, Acheson urged that "cool-headed friends from other countries" be consulted before the United States takes on a fight which could lead to another world war.

The "obvious goal" for the United States now, Acheson said, should be to get the Nationalists to withdraw from the Quemoy islands just off the mainland.

He said it was "incredible folly" to let the Nationalists put about one-third of their armed forces on "untenable Quemoy." In the face of Communist China's present air and rocket power, he said, Quemoy "can be defended only by general war with China—as Mr. Dulles, indeed, asserts."

* * * *

HE SAID NATIONALIST Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is trying "to embroil the United States with his enemies, the Communists;" and the Red Chinese are trying "to drive the United States into conflict over an issue so unimportant as to lose us the support of all our friends, and which can never be finally settled in our favor."

Now, he said, the United States has lost control of the situation.

"Either the Nationalists or the Communists, or both, can at any moment—this is one of them—precipitate us into a war or backdown," he continued. "The attitude of the administration is that nothing will be done to extricate ourselves from this position during periods of quiet, and that nothing can be done about it in times of crisis.

"This is an attitude which ought not to be tolerated."

* * * *

ACHESON, who was President Truman's secretary of state, questioned the wisdom of the basic American policy on which defense of the offshore islands would be based: "Formosa in friendly hands (is) essential to the vital interests of the United States."

"Congress certainly has been led to say so," he said. "But Congress cannot make something true which is not true."

"Four times between 1948 and 1950 our highest military authorities concluded that this proposition was not true and did not justify American military action," Acheson said.

(More recently, the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have held that Formosa must be kept out of Communist hands and that its loss would weaken America's western Pacific defense chain.)

Acheson said the immediate issue, however, is whether the offshore islands — the Quemoy and Matsu groups — are essential to the defense of Formosa. He said they are useful only as offensive bases for attack against the Communist mainland.

Rickover's Troubles Linked to Lone Seawolf Character

Sub Wizard Plows His Rugged Way

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you were searching for a single phrase to summarize the latter-day career of Hyman George Rickover, it could be this: He rocked the boat.

Rocking it, the 125-pound, grey-haired, slightly-built rear admiral — acclaimed as the father of the atomic-powered submarine—has had the Navy chagrined and embarrased. Even, some people say, ready to make him walk the plank.

Many who know Rickover trace his troubles to his dogged determination to get a job done —no matter what. They say he doesn't care whose toes he steps on in his drive for nuclear propelled ships for the fleet.

He has defied protocol, blasted at conformity, pushed projects through over the heads of superior officers. Over the years, he has become a man apart in the tradition-bound Navy, a lone seawolf hard to know and, by many accounts, hard to work with.

Rickover's parents were Russian Jews, and there have been whispers that anti-Semitism has has been a factor in his troubles with authority. But Sen. Jacob Javits (R-NY), himself Jewish, says no—"it's more of a Billy Mitchell case than a Dreyfus case."

And Rear Adm. Albert G. Mumma, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ships under whom Rickover works, insists there's no religious prejudice involved. The Navy has had other Jewish admirals, he points out. "I know several and some are quite good friends of mine."

* * * *

AS FOR RICKOVER HIMSELF, "forget the personal stuff," he advised a reporter. "The real issue is what a man accomplishes."

He wanted no part in explaining why, despite Rickover's accomplishments, it took congressional action and the intervention of two civilian secretaries of the Navy to get him promoted to admiral and keep him from forced retirement.

ADM. RICKOVER . . . He Rocked the Boat

"I can't get involved," he said. "I can hurt my work terrifically. I'm too busy to get involved."

When the world's first atom sub, the Nautilus, cruised under the polar icecap in a pioneering voyage recently, the White House marked the event with pomp and ceremony. Rickover wasn't among the Navy brass invited, and an outcry followed.

The snub—deliberate or, as tthe White House said, unintended — quickly turned into Rickover's favor. "I'm too busy to worry about snubs," Rickover said. But others weren't.

His wife, Ruth, obviously in a moment of pent-up anger, gave a newspaper interview in which she said the Navy's top brass was determined "to hurt my husband for his independence and free spirit." She herself had not been invited to christen any of the atomic subs her husband helped build, she disclosed.

Rickover kept silent. But the incident brought his case to the fore and Congress voted him a special gold medal for his achievements in developing not only the nuclear sub but also the first large-scale nuclear reactor at Shippingport, Pa.

* * * *

HE RECEIVED an official apology from Secretary of the Navy Gates, plus assurance that he would be promoted to vice admiral and stay in the service. (Previously there had been reports that promotion was unlikely and he might be forced to retire in 1960.) Mrs. Rickover will christen a forthcoming A-sub, and President Eisenhower named the admiral his personal representative at the Nautilus' homecoming ceremonies late last month.

Apparently the most important thing to Rickover personally was continuance in active service beyond the 1960 date. He has been offered many lucrative civilian jobs—some paying more than 10 times his Navy salary and allowances of $1,568 a month—but Rickover is intent on doing a job for his country.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) says the admiral told him he had "a monumental work" that would take five years to complete. Kennedy didn't specify what it was. But Rickover's associates suggest that everything in the nuclear power field is "on the brink," including an atomic aircraft carrier.

* * * *

HIGHLY ARTICULATE and eloquent at times, Rickover can withdraw into a wry terseness when he chooses. At the Nautilus homecoming celebration, reporters crowding around the admiral as he stepped to the rainswept dock from the submarine pressed for some words about the memorable occasion.

"It's wet," said Rickover.

And to a reporter trying to get a story from him recently Rickover solemnly suggested: "Why don't you turn in a sheet of blank paper?"

Rickover is no blank paper man himself. Throughout his 40-year career in the Navy—where he trained as an electrical engineer, served on subs and surface vessels and won two Legion of Merit citations—he has been frequently and audibly critical.

From his days at Annapolis (1918-1922) he adopted a solitary role. Neither he nor his wife joined in much of the Navy's stratified social life. Today they live quietly in a Washington apartment. Mrs. Rickover has a Ph.D. in international law from Columbia. The admiral's sole hobby is reading.

He chides the younger generation for failing to do likewise. Young men, says he, are becoming "nest builders and bird hatchers"—spending most of their time puttering around the house and doing little to improve themselves professionally.

"They don't read. They do not study once they leave school," he said in one of his recent critiques of American educational standards. "The product being turned out by colleges these days is no good."

* * * *

THE ADMIRAL LIVES by a rigorous code. "He won't ever keep the pay he gets for a speech or a book he is writing," Mrs. Rickover said. "He turns it over to charity because he figures he learned everything on government time."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) says of him:

"He is a dissenter, a nonconformist in uniform. The man is a scientist and a genius. You would search hard and long to find a good scientist who is not a bit difficult. I was attracted to him 10 years ago because he was like a breath of fresh air."

Some of Rickover's project workers, who have been with him for years, say Rick (they call him admiral to his face) is not a scientific genius but rather an outstanding engineer with mature technical judgment. But they credit him with a sixth sense for anticipating trouble before it gets started.

Rickover, these co-workers say, can size up trends and problems years in advance and saw the potential of nuclear power for the Navy long before other officers did. He put his own staff to work on a wartime schedule nine years ago.

* * * *

THEY AREN'T SURPRISED at the admiral's failure to get along with Navy brass. Many people make friendly compromises and adjustments in working with others. Not Rickover.

Says Admiral Muma:

"Rickover is a pretty tough guy to work with . . . he works like a dog himself, but he's not a happy, pleasant individual. People feel rebuffed by someone exceptionally tough and Rickover makes a fetish of that."

Rickover has given his own interpretation of his problems in testimony before Senate committees.

If a military man wants to push a new idea, he once observed, the first thing he must decide is that "he is going to get his head chopped off ultimately."

He said he was given a free hand to build the Nautilus because "there were so many people who were certain the project would fail and they didn't want to be associated with it.

"I was kept on and I was assigned this job all to myself —and given an office in an exladies powder room."

News Photog Mauled by Georgia Klan

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Jack Young, southern division newspictures manager of United Press International, was attacked and threatened by Ku Klux Klansmen Saturday.

He was held for almost an hour but finally managed to "talk my way out of a jam."

Young was covering a Klan cross burning on Stone Mountain about 16 miles from Atlanta. This has long been a favorite spot for festivities of the order.

• • • •

YOUNG was given permission to take pictures of a burning cross but incurred the wrath of klansmen when he attempted to make other pictures.

He said he was lifted off the ground by several members of the klan. He came out of the argument with his shirt containing a foot-long rip.

The klan threatened Young but he was released without injury.

Young was accosted while E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, the Grand Wizard, was addressing a crowd of approximately 500.

Part of Young's photographic equipment was confiscated and during the incident he lost his glasses and someone stepped on them, smashing one lens to bits.

He said a klansman told him his equipment would be returned "through secret channels."

• • • •

YOUNG HAS been in the thick of trouble many times in his photographic career with United Press International.

In 1956 he was awarded the George Polk Memorial award for a dramatic picture he made at the height of school integration troubles in Clinton, Tenn.

Klansmen from Alabama, Florida and Georgia assembled for Saturday's cross-burning session.

Klansmen spoke from an improvised stage bearing the slogan in large letters: "Remember Little Rock."

Donleys Wed Again, Fix Old Mistake

NORTH HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Robert Morris Donley, 45-year-old actor-turned-author, and Mrs. Ann Margaret Donley, who were divorced 15 years ago, were remarried Saturday.

After the ceremony in the Little Brown Church in the Valley, Donley explained: "We made a mistake and we're correcting it."

The Donleys met in a Cleveland, Ohio, little theater group and were married 24 years ago in Ripley, N. Y. They were divorced in Cleveland nine years later.

After World War II, Donley toured with the "This Is the Army" show. He subsequently teamed with Edward Hutchings in various writing projects, including the recent film, "Andy Hardy Comes Home."

Mrs. Donley, a public relations counselor in Chicago, met Donley again last fall for the first time since their divorce when she conferred with him here on educational plans for their son. The romance blossomed anew.

Their son, Robert Jr., 20, is currently a student at the Chicago Art Institute. He was not present for the wedding.

Theft of a table radio valued at $47.50 was reported to police Saturday by Chester Lee Whitehead, 46, of 1090 Obispo Ave.

MARINES ATTACK

Lebanon Battle in MIDWEST

LEBANON, Ill. (AP)—Marines in full battle gear took over this town Saturday in a mock occupation to the sound of wailing sirens and the rattle of machine guns firing blanks.

The recruiting stunt first was planned as a surprise but this was changed through fear it might panic some of the 3,500 residents. Instead they crowded the town square to view combat exhibits.

The town was selected because its name is the same as the Middle East nation recently occupied by Marines. The Leathernecks here were greeted by signs reading "Yankees Go Home" and "We Like You Yanks."

Blue-Eyed Blonde Bosses Seal Beach Sales Office

By STERLING BEMIS

The business card reads:
GENE HARDING
WALKER & LEE, INC.

This is a cool, professional description of a spun-taffy blonde with blue eyes who is the only woman manager in the roster of a real estate corporation which has charted sales of $19,000,000 in six months.

Gene manages the Marina Shores tract of the Butler-Harbour Construction Co. in Seal Beach.

She was Long Beach Sales Executive Club's salesman of the year in 1957.

Gene is a blunt, business-like name for an alert, intense executive who is on the job up to 12 hours a day, often seven days a week. But her real name is Emogene, which is a curvy cognomen in tune with a 34-year-old mother who will send a 15-year-old son, Jim, to Millikan High and a 5-year-old daughter, Nancy, to Bixby School kindergarten this semester.

* * * *

SHE IS THE WIFE of Dr. H. V. (Ted) Harding, a dietary specialist.

Gene credits Dr. Harding's vitamin therapy for a silken tan 35-24-35 figure, but actually she keeps so busy that an extra pound wouldn't dare tackle her.

In business she takes such an interest in her clients that she often knits booties or sweaters for new mothers in new tracts. She takes a hand in the designing and decorating of the houses she and her staff sell, and handles the paper work on the mysterious procedures of escrow, down to the last whereas.

Yet Mrs. Harding does her own housework. By some strange chemistry of excess energy, it becomes a game with her. She practices posture exercise in rhythm with the sweep of her kitchen mop.

* * * *

SHE AVERAGES 20 in 25 on the skeet range. When the dove season opened she had her limit of 10 by 8 a. m., including one rapid-fire triple from the .12 gauge shotgun with the birds' eye maple stock she carved herself.

Gene used to spar an occasional round with Jim, but that was before he grew a head taller than her 5 feet 4. Now they romp and wrestle on the lawn and Jim's teenage pals call mother Harding "a real cool head."

Gene was still limbered from a bike ride the other day when a door-to-door salesman inquired of Jim:

"Is the lady of the house here."

Answered Jim: "My mother isn't a lady—she's a girl."

The Runhold woman suffered a skull injury and a head wound while Tucker was treated for a fractured right arm and abrasions.

RENTS TO BLUE CHIP FIRMS

Outcast Union Has Plush Temple

By WILLIAM J. EATON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An outcast union which put up the fanciest office building in town is playing landlord to some of the nation's biggest blue-chip firms.

The Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union of America—ejected from the AFL-CIO on corruption charges—has almost completed renting space in its new six-million-dollar, eight-story home here. The rates range from $6.50 to $7 a square foot, the highest in the Capital.

* * * *

THE UNION, which plays down its ownership of the marble-glass-stone edifice on one of Washington's busiest street corners, figures to gross about $750,000 a year from rentals.

Such giants of industry as Bethlehem Steel, Republic Aviation and Standard Oil of Indiana are tenants in the "solar building" near the heart of the financial district.

It is not the first time a union has taken in free enterprise roomers in a headquarters building. The Machinists' Union, which spent $3,200,000 for its own 10-story structure, has leased space on five floors.

* * * *

THE BAKERS' HOME is special, according to Managing Agent S. Fischer. It has custom lighting fixtures, acoustical ceilings, high-speed elevators, ash trays built into the walls, and ultra-modern design throughout.

Many unions are shifting their main operations to Washington. The Labor Department reports the city now has 50 union headquarters—more than any other community. Increasing importance of legislation to the labor movement is given as one major reason for the shift.

* * * *

AT LEAST ONE labor leader objects to this trend. George Baldanzi, outspoken president of the United Textile Workers recently moved his union's headquarters to New York.

"I don't see any point to building these mausoleums," Baldanzi snapped. "It just takes you farther away from the rank-and-file membership." He added that he decided to relocate the UTW in New York when he couldn't find a single weaver in Washington.

* * * *

NEXT TO THE EXPELLED Bakers' dwelling, the most costly labor temple in town is the five-million-dollar glass-fronted teamsters' palace where James R. Hoffa hangs his hat.

The letter carriers, two electrical workers' unions, rail labor and telephone workers also have their own buildings. Even the Hod Carriers and Laborers' Union is building a new structure in the downtown area.

Only at the Bakers, however, can you see a brokers' exchange with the latest stock market prices coming in from Wall Street under a union roof.

New Antennas to Land Planes on Instruments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A new-type antenna to enable pilots to land their planes by instrument all the way in bad weather instead of being "talked in" has passed the initial research phase here.

A team of Ohio State University engineers is developing the antenna which would enable a plane to pick up "glide-path" signals about five miles distant and provide direction all the way to the ground.

At present, the glide-path system at airports is known as the "null reference" type and brings the plane to within only 30 feet of the point of touchdown.

THE EXPERIMENTAL antenna being developed here under the direction of Richard H. McFarland, Ohio State Antenna Laboratory research associate, consists of two trough-shaped structures filled with common salt and placed end-to-end flush with the ground and 160 feet apart.

At least two such antennas are required to form a glide path, but six would be required for an actual installation.

Political Window for $2 Bettors

A BOLD NEW political experiment is under way in the Sacramento and Azusa plants of the Aerojet-General Corp. Its apparent thesis: Charity begins at the grass roots.

The experiment is a fund drive among the two plants' 15,000 employes to contribute at least $2 each for the campaign funds of the political candidates of their choice.

FORMER NAVY SECRETARY DAN KIMBALL, president of the rocket manufacturing firm, said he hoped the drive would net from $30,000 to $40,000 which would be distributed to the political campaign funds of both parties.

Kimball started the kitty with $500 for the Democrats and specified it's to be used in the campaigns of Rep. Clair Engle, nominee for U. S. Senate, and Alan Cranston, Democratic nominee for state controller.

Aerojet Vice President Arthur H. Rude is contributing $500 to the Republican campaign chest. Any contributor may specify a candidate of his choice. Otherwise his contribution will be allocated by either the Democratic or Republican committee in charge to statewide and local races.

President Kimball explained the experiment: "Somebody has to pick up the tab for the ads, TV, radio, billboards and the direct mailing costs of a campaign. It has been my observation that too often the money comes from special interests—people who want something in return."

AS TOUCHY AS candidates are about that term "special interests," the realistic ones often have to compromise to get money to run. It would be an ideal if poor but honest politicians could win without money. Short of political miracles, they can't. Campaign money and how to get it has been the preoccupation for years of those who want to be honest.

Kimball's idea may be a good answer. He admits there will be competition between his plants' two parties to see which committee raises more. But, in any event, the only special interest of $2 contributors will be good government.

WITH ASSURANCE that money is available from a broadly-subscribed kitty of small donations, politics might attract higher-caliber people to whom strings-attached contributions are repugnant.

Nationwide, the bipartisan endorsement of Dollars for Democrats and Dollars for Republicans drives are promise of the same kind of fulfillment.

Aerojet's pilot campaign may fly high in the interest of good government, with many interested stakeholders.

Recession Recovery Seen as Deterrent to Tax Hike

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM

WASHINGTON — Many government economists are taking warnings of a tax hike for next year with a grain of salt. They believe an increase in taxes will be extremely unlikely.

Rumors got their start after Treasury Secretary Bob Anderson testified before the Senate Finance Committee on the Administration's request for lifting the permanent debt ceiling. Anderson said the budget deficit for the fiscal year 1960 would be in the vicinity of $12 billion to $14 billion.

Some experts immediately concluded a tax increase was inevitable. It probably won't be and here's why.

Recovery from the recession is a reality, the economists say. If the recovery picks up steam, tax revenues will increase far above the Budget Bureau's estimates. (Bureau Director Maurice Stans in his last estimate said they probably would fall off $7.4 billion during the current fiscal year.)

With revenues higher, the deficit will be lower and that should put the damper on tax hike talk.

The Administration will desperately try to keep expenditures down, and that could further contribute to lowering the deficit.

IF, AS THE President's press secretary Jim Hagerty said Wednesday, Ike has no plans to campaign in California, two leading Republican candidates will be in for the surprise of their lives. Both Bill Knowland and Gov. Goodie Knight expect the President to speak for them. Knowland believes he has a definite commitment.

AGRICULTURE Secretary Ezra Taft Benson gives this definition of a do-gooder—"The do-gooder professes to have a soft heart. Often he has a soft head."

BENSON, incidentally has made the biggest comeback since Silky Sullivan won the Santa Anita Handicap. Riding the crest of his farm bill victories in Congress, he's much in demand as a speaker at GOP rallies.

In Nebraska, where he once was the target of egg-throwers, Republican congressmen fired off a special request for his assistance.

Benson is also the current favorite of national campaign leaders, who are miffed at the rest of the President's cabinet. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy, Secretary of State Foster Dulles and Treasury Secretary Anderson all have been shy of campaign appearances.

But Benson is willing and available. He stumped the mountain precincts of West Virginia last week before pointing his wagon at Massachusetts for a keynote speech before a national meeting of GOP women.

A DIPLOMATIC traveler, just in from Bogota, Colombia, cites the following as evidence our foreign service is on the ball.

Some weeks ago, a U.S. consular official was awakened at 2 a.m. by the sound of gunfire, shouts and mob noises.

"Aha!" he said to himself. "The long-awaited coup d'etat has arrived."

He hurried into his clothing and sprinted for the Embassy to be the first to message a full account of the upheaval to Washington.

But the revolution never came.

The gunfire and mob noises? They were the exuberant reaction of a happy citizenry at the news a Colombian beauty had just won the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif.

Philippines Ready to Fight With U.S. Against Red China

MANILA, P. I. — Although there is little love lost between them, Philippine President Carlos Garcia added his voice last week to Chiang Kai-Shek's appeal for American intervention in case the Chinese Communists try to seize Quemoy or Matsu.

Any other course, Garcia warned in an interview with this column, would be a severe blow to our Asian allies who have stuck their necks out a giraffe's length to support our Formosa policy. He added that the Philippines are ready to fight on our side if shooting should break out between the United States and Red China.

The Philippines — A shotgun blast of 7,000 islands splattered across the South Pacific — are connected by a short fuse to two powder kegs. To the north, the Formosan crisis is about to explode less than an hour away by jet bomber. To the south, Indonesia is racked by civil war which rages at some points within motorboat distance of Philippine territory.

President Garcia's aim is to discourage the spread of Communism in either area. Despite bitter hassles with Chiang over Chinese refugees neither country wants and disputed islands both countries want, Garcia declared his firm support of the Formosa regime.

* * * *

WON'T REVERSE POLICY—The leader of 20,000,000 Filipinos also expressed grave concern over the Indonesian conflict raging in his back yard. He recalled a private conversation with Indonesian President Sukarno whom he quoted as saying: "I would accept Communism for Indonesia if it were the will of the people."

CARLOS GARCIA
His Voice to Chiang's

In such an event, Garcia commented, "We would have to make a careful review of our relations with Indonesia."

He claimed that the Government had completely crushed the Communist-inspired Huk movement in the Philippines, except for a few fanatics still hiding out in the jungle. He acknowledged, however, that communist China may still be landing infiltration teams in the country. His small navy was patrolling the islands, he said, for submarines that reportedly had landed Red agents.

* * * *

SQUIRMS OVER AID—. The dusky, diffident Philippine president seemed embarrassed about discussing the subject that was obviously uppermost in his mind: his country's economic needs. He told of his efforts to strengthen the Philippine economy by bringing in basic industry. But the capital investment, he complained, was draining his dollar reserves.

He squirmed in his chair and smiled apologetically at the mention of American aid, but acknowledged that he could use more. He suggested that the United States, which invests heavily in troublesome countries, sometimes took her friends for granted.

But he added with a grin that no one could be elected President of the Philippines who was anti-American.

Note — chain-smoking, chess-playing President Garcia is equally at home fighting with guerrillas against the Japanese or writing romantic poetry in his native Visayan dialect. He also goes without eating for two weeks each year during lent.

* * * *

SECRET SHANGRI-LA— Unknown to American authorities, four World War II deserters are happily rearing families on an uncharted tropical isle in the Philippines. A high official confirmed to this column that a Philippine patrol boat once stumbled upon their secret Shangri-La and radioed for instructions.

Apparently the four GI's had declared their own armistice after being reported missing in action. They had married Filipino girls and settled down on an uninhabited island — where, as far as the Philippine Government is concerned, they can live happily ever after.

Who are they? Where is there island? The Philippine official wouldn't say.

Lobbyists Asked to Finance $15,000 Dinner for Lincoln

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Lobbyists throughout California are being contacted to finance and underwrite a $15,000 "testimonial" dinner for Assembly Speaker Luther H. Lincoln (R-Oakland), upon his retirement next January, it was learned today.

The Capitol News Service learned of the Jan. 7 affair, for which industrial, commercial and agricultural organizations are being asked to pony up $300 each, from one of the organizations. The organization asked "how commercial can a speaker get?"

"Invitations" for the affair have been distributed by the public relations firm of Mel Riddle and Associates. Riddle is a former travel secretary of Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and his present clientele includes Assemblyman Francis C. Lindsay (R-Loomis), longtime advisor and supporter of Lincoln.

Lincoln, when contacted by CNS, said he had been asked to keep the Jan. 7 date open. He said some of his friends "indicated they would like to put on a dinner and I said it would be all right, after I was completely out of office."

However, Lincoln said he was not aware of the financial aspects of the engagement and suspected "my friends are getting a little too exuberant."

The letter from Riddle said the dinner, including music and a cocktail hour, would be provided for $12.50 per person, with 1,000 tickets to be sold, at $15 each, "the $2.50 difference $2,500) to be used as expense money and fee to Mel Riddle & Associates."

UNDER THE PLAN, each organization which was a member of the steering committee would be asked to purchase 20 tickets for $300 but would receive only 15 tickets. The remaining five would be used as complimentary tickets for "state officials, members of both houses of the Legislature, and the press."

"Therefore, each member would receive back from the sale of the 15 tickets 83 per cent or $250, of the money invested," the letter said. "The 750 tickets must be sold to those who are well known in their fields . . . they must be committed to attend.

"AND IN this way," it continued, "California's leaders will be gathered in Sacramento breaking bread with the legislators who they usually know only through the legislative advocates."

The invitational letter also said "the promotion of the dinner would be on an entirely non-partisan basis and might serve as the basis for future such salutes to state officials who are retiring from public life."

THE LETTER explains that "a steering committee be formed, made up of members of the 3rd house (lobbyists) who would be responsible for the financial underwriting of the dinner and for the sale of the tickets.

"This is not to imply that the dinner is to be sponsored by the 3rd house," it said. "The implications are that a group of business organizations are putting on the affair."

Q. Has anyone playing a Shakespearean role ever won an Academy Award for best actor or actress?—N.R.

A. Laurence Olivier, who won an "Oscar" in 1948 for his portrayal of Hamlet, is the only one. "Hamlet" also won the Academy Award that year for best motion picture.

Q. When a 9-inning baseball game ends without a score on either side, are the pitchers recorded as winning or losing?—O.B.

A. No. Rule 10.03e (1) states: "All individual and team records of any drawn or forfeited game which has reached or exceeded legal length when ended shall become a part of the official averages except that no pitcher shall be credited with a victory or charged with a defeat."

Q. How much money does the Federal Government derive annually from the sale of alcoholic beverages?—G.Y.

A. The amount varies from year to year, but in 1957 the Federal Government collected revenues totaling $2,943,241,000 from the sale of alcoholic beverages. This was a decrease of 4.6 per cent from the all-time high in 1956 of $3,085,327,000.

Freeway Foe Asks What's the Hurry?

TO THE EDITOR:

What California needs right now is some very potent guided missiles aimed at Sacramento and some state officials. Today's papers quoted C. M. Gilliss of the State Department of Public Works as proposing 12,500 miles of new freeways for California to cost from ten to twelve billion dollars.

I believe that some 60 to 70 per cent of the state is given up to mountains, unfit for cultivation or ranching. Evidently Mr. Gilliss is perfectly willing to utilize the other twenty-five or thiry per cent for his freeways.

Also it begins to look like California, thanks to the freespenders, is about to enter a marathon with the national government on who or which can tax and spend the most.

Mr. J. W. Vickery, deputy state highway engineer, supports Mr. Gilliss and proceeds to tell us that freeways are safer than other roads. Horsefeathers! Freeways are SPEEDWAYS, and really dangerous. Now another freeway or two through Long Beach, and the downtown business district will be finished. Right now, thanks to these busybodies, a freeway is planned and surveyed to cut the business district of Bellflower and Compton in half. And we see our city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives rushing to Sacramento seeking more money for freeways. Speed kills. "Honestly now, what's your hurry?"

Cites Multi-Use Coliseum Policy

TO THE EDITOR:

Thank you for entering my letter in the Independent, Press-Telegram of Aug. 31. However, I regret to state that the editor's notation that "Blair Field is designed for baseball and Park Avenue for softball" is not in conformity with established custom and practice of similar public places.

A tangible example is the Los Angeles Coliseum, which was designed for the 1932 Olympic Games and has since been used for softball, hardball, football, relay-track meets, fireworks displays, boxing, wrestling, religious and similar gatherings.

On Aug. 31, 1958, the Coliseum was used for a Rodeo. Thus, if the editor feels that Blair Field should be used for baseball and Park Avenue for softball exclusively there is logical room for modifying these designs.

Private Schools Don't Rob Public

TO THE EDITOR:

Some of the literature emanating from sources intent on taxing church schools is false to the point of being satanical. These forces are placed in proper light by a Protestant publication "Tax Facts" distributed by Associates for Americanism, Box 6476, Pt. Loma Station, San Diego 6.

After showing how these schools save the California taxpayer over one hundred million dollars a year in addition to many millions of dollars for new schools, the leaflet, in part, states:

"The above figures fully expose the grossly untrue propaganda which claims that private school exemptions are robbing our public schools. The taxpayer should also realize that parents using private schools not only pay for that tuition, but also pay just as much as other taxpayers for our public schools."

LETTER OF THE WEEK

High School Drivers

TO THE EDITOR:

May I take this opportunity to express my surprise at all the apparent efforts which are publicized by your newspaper with regard to the importance that Johnny and Suzie be safeguarded on their way to and from school, as featured in Sunday's paper, Section A-5.

NOT ONE single word is printed about the idiots who use their automobiles for high school transportation, who drive them regardless of safety rules and pledges and who use 8th St. and Belmont Ave. and other nearby thoroughfares as their private race tracks.

How are younger children expected to be safe on the streets of Long Beach, so long as these older people are unhampered in their wild and reckless driving in the same areas where the younger children pass on their way to and from the lower grade schools—regardless of whether or not they have taken the safety pledge?

THE UNIFIED School Board has refused to take any action about this situation, other than referring such inquiries to the individual school. Why then don't ALL students observe the safety rules? So long as the streets are used for speed starts no child is safe, regardless of how often the younger child take or repeats the safety pledge.

New Discovery for Hard-of-Hearing

To all readers of the Independent Press-Telegram the Diagnostic Office will give the first treatment for only $3.00.

According to the Basic Diagnostic Office it is now possible for many people who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, "We have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else." Once they try this new and proved method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment.

The treatment is simple, it consists of three steps, and takes about 45 minutes, if the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition a special treatment is given; if the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given; if it is a bone condition, the Tympanic Oscillations treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing people will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a discovery as insulin was for diabetes.

We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment, including an ear examination for only $3.00 providing you bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

Diagnostic Office in Southern California Since 1936. 927 E. Broadway. Dr. S. J. Anderson. D.C., Dir. Long Beach — HEmlock 6-4603. Hours: Mon., Wed., Fri., 9 to 8 P.M.; Tues. & Thurs. 9 to 5—Sat. Till 1.

L.B. Nurse Group in Fall Meeting

The Long Beach Licensed Vocational Nurses Assn. will hold its first fall meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, in the Mottell's and Peek Garden Room. All licensed vocational nurses in the arear are invited to attend, according to Mrs. Catherine Elstone, program chairman.

Perry B. Maxson Jr., of Long Beach, has been named a speaker for the Master Photo Dealers' and Finishers' Assn. Western States convention, Sept. 30. The convention will be held Sept. 29-Oct. 2 at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles.

A one-day appraisal conference for real estate dealers will be held next Saturday at Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., under the joint sponsorship of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

Members of the Alpine Court Memorial League will discuss pros and cons of Proposition 18, the so-called "Right to Work" bill, at a meeting in their clubhouse at 8 p.m. today.

"There are two schools of thought among our members," said Elroy Roamer, league president. "One is that voluntary unionism is a good thing, the other that voluntary unionism is a bad thing. We shall attempt to maintain strictest impartiality in our discussion—since champions of the opposing camps, Sen. Knowland and Atty. Gen. Brown, are unable to attend."

Actually, said Roamer, right-to-work is a moot issue as far as the Alpine Court Memorial League is concerned. Most of the members are retired, and a few are drawing unemployment compensation.

Two-way trade now amounts to 12 million dollars a year, he said, and could jump to 39 million next year and to 100 millions within a few years.

VACCINATION 'PRUDENT MEASURE'

Flu Shots Advised for Key Personnel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Public Health Service Saturday recommended flu shots for persons the disease might affect seriously and for professional and service groups wishing to guard against absenteeism.

Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney said there is no indication at present that widespread attacks of influenza—similar to last year's Asian flu epidemics—will occur this fall and winter. But he said there will be some influenza around and he prescribed a vaccination as a "prudent measure."

* * * *

DR. BURNEY POINTED out that ample supplies of influenza vaccine of the polyvalent type are on hand. This type builds immunity against all the important strains of flu, including the Oriental. He said any mass vaccination program should be planned before the flu season gets under way.

He stressed that practising physicians should be the judges whether a vaccination should be given.

He added that groups which should be considered for vaccination include hospital staffs whose services are needed to care for the sick; groups living in close proximity where flu could spread rapidly, such as institutions and industrial or service groups in occupations where a sudden jump in absenteeism would cause serious disruption of work.

* * * *

DR. BURNEY SAID that special consideration for vaccinations, under the guidance of private doctors, should also be given to the special health "risk" group such as the aged, the chronically ill, and pregnant women.

The Public Health Service said that while nothing like the 1957 Asian flu killer is expected this year, a new flu strain usually stays around for several years. It said some 70 million persons in this country were stricken with the "Oriental" strain last year and early this year.

TOY ROUTE BUSINESS

We are highly respected toy brokers rated by Dun & Bradstreet, selling toys nationally. Now expanding in your area.

Our distributors' toy recorders are pouring in because our toys are not "average rack merchandise." We have the largest assortment, widest price range, best packaging.

Since there are some choice territories available in this general area, a few sincere individuals will require a profitable self-service "TOY SHOP" route in grocery, drugstores, etc. WHICH WE WILL ESTABLISH FOR YOU. Cheap toy racks are rapidly being replaced in thousands of stores by the sensational "TOY SHOP" merchandising display. The stores make money. So do you, but this is

NOT A GET-RICH-QUICK SCHEME

This may be your chance to get into a profitable year-around business of your own. Simply replace toys on regular schedule and collect your money. Start in spare time and still leave room for full-time expansion.

AVAILABLE SOON

Our representative will arrange appointments soon in your vicinity to present complete details. Must have car and $497 cash for toys, displays and store accounts. Airmail fully about yourself, give address, phone number to:

AND WHERE
HOW to BUY A USED CAR
WITH SAFETY AND SATISFACTION

(1) Deal with a concern with a reputation over the years for fair dealing. Be sure the title is clear.
(2) Buy a car with only one previous owner. Original owners invariably take better care of their cars. See the maintenance record.
(3) Put the car on a hoist and examine it in, out and under for signs of wreck or flood damage.
(4) Have the car tested on your dealer's Dynamometer. Get a written and signed report of its condition.
(5) Consider the difference between your present car and the one you are thinking of buying rather than only its price or the appraisal of yours.
(6) Figure the interest and insurance charges. Be sure they are not exorbitant.
(7) Remember, the guarantee is no better than the reputation of the dealer you are buying from.
(8) See the dependable values listed herewith. Because of condition, guarantee, price, etc., they are, every one, a plus value!

LISTED BELOW ARE 7 PREMIUM CARS THEY ARE OUTSTANDING BARGAINS

It must be pretty confusing for Lassie, this changing of cast members for her TV series. First there was Tommy Rettig as his master and Jan Clayton with George Cleveland as the adults.

Then Rettig was replaced by Jon Provost and the adults were Cloris Leachman and Jon Sheppod with George Chandler in a new role of "Uncle Petrie."

Starting the fifth year on TV tonight, "Lassie" (2) will still have Jon Provost and Chandler, but the new parents of Timmy are June Lockhart (who played with Lassie in "Lassie Come Home") and Hugh Reilly. Also added is Todd Ferrell, of Garden Grove, as Boomer Bates and his "best $1.50 dog in America," Mike.

A cyclone roars down on the farm and Mike is out chasing rabbits so Lassie goes to save him and both dogs mysteriously disappear.

CARMEN GIVES I, P-T READERS HIS POST-FIGHT VIEWS . . .

Pleasure Next on Basilio Slate

By CARMEN BASILIO
(Written exclusively for the I, P-T)

Well, now that I've got the important business behind me, I'm going to start enjoying Southern California during the next week.

I'm taking my wife, Kay, and my little nephews, Eddie and Freddie—one's six, the other 11—to a lot of places around here. One we're going to hit right off the bat is Disneyland. The kids and my wife have been driving me nuts to go there, so I'm outnumbered.

When I finally leave Long Beach, I'll rent a U-drive car and hit both Las Vegas and Yosemite before I drive back to good, old New York.

I'm going to miss California—and, especially, Long Beach—but you know when you've got deep roots in a place, like my family has got in New York, it's plenty tough to pull 'em up. I sure like California and I've a hunch I'll be back here soon. They tell me Ray Robinson wants to try his luck with me again.

I guess you want to hear about the fight. From reading the newspapers Saturday, I don't know what I can add. Those boys printed every quote I made, but I'll see if I can come up with something new.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH I DON'T care much for the people around him, I've got to give Art Aragon a little credit. For all his popping off, the guy has guts. He hung in there real good and I'm not fooling when I say I landed some sweethearts on him, particularly a couple dozen hard hooks to his body.

He'll go down in my book as one fellow that can take it.

On the other hand, Aragon wasn't the puncher I thought he was. He hit me a couple of times with stingers, but none really hurt. I expected him to belt me good now and then, but he didn't.

I could see his blows coming and I rolled with them. Maybe that's why they didn't have any steam. From the third round until the ref stopped it in the eighth, I felt like I was back in the gym again, hitting the big bag.

Another thing about this fight was the fans. I was sort of worried the week before the fight, because I think Southern California boxing fans are the most rabid anywhere. In the East, the people get excited, naturally, when some real slugging starts, but out here they go crazy over anything.

I got some ideas about that in my workouts at the Lafayette Hotel and mainly at the Olympic Auditorium last Sunday. Those people would make noise at the drop of a hat.

Al Silvani, one of my trainers who knows a lot about California boxing, told me I may have to fight the crowd. I mean if a crowd starts yelling at everything one guy does, the referee and the judges sometimes get influenced.

* * * *

I KNEW THE PEOPLE would be yelling for Aragon and I hoped if the fight was close that I wouldn't get a raw deal from the officials. Sure, they booed the guy when he came into the ring, but they sure screamed for him more and more as the fight went on. If the fight would of been close, I'd have been plenty worried about a decision in my favor.

I wrote earlier that I didn't care for the guys in Aragon's corner. I've been around a few years, but I've never got the treatment like those characters gave me. When I had to retape my hands because their man pro-

MATSON'S RUNNING WRECKS RAMS

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

The State of California's inability to cope with big-time sports events or organizations was displayed once again Friday night just prior to Carmen Basilio's demonstration of how a meat grinder operates. (The hamburger, of course, was Arthur Aragon.)

This state operates like a backwoods rube whenever its people are called upon to cope with something of major importance in the sports realm.

The best example is the Dodger situation. We invited the team here, then buffeted it around in its search for a permanent home until this portion of California became the laughing stock of the whole nation.

ART ARAGON
Bruised, but Lauded

Incidents preceding Friday night's fight were right in character for our country boy commissioners. But, let John De John, Basilio's co-manager and one of the nation's most respected ring personalities, tell you.

"I wouldn't have believed it," declared De John in a fight post-mortem early Saturday. 'Somebody ought to straighten out this boxing commission for its own good. This is a bad situation.

"Anyway, the thing is this. Twenty or 30 minutes before every fight, as you know, a member of an opposing fighter's group goes to the other boxer's dressing room to observe the taping of hands, etc. Just to keep everything on the up-and-up.

"I went to Aragon's room, while Boren (Lee) went to Carmen's quarters. But, when I walked into Aragon's room, his guys hustled me right out. I got my foot in the door, but they almost tore it off when they slammed the door.

"This commissioner, Frye (Clayton), comes by and I yell to him about what happened. 'They just don't want Aragon to get upset,' Frye tells me, 'but I'll let you in before the fight.' For all I know, they're loading dynamite sticks in Aragon's glove by this time.

"Finally, when I get into the room Aragon has his hands all taped and he's ready to go. How do you like that? Of course, his man is in Carmen's room all the time and we're not making a fuss."

De John made quite a point of checking Aragon's taped hands and the gloves themselves in the ring moments before the fight.

"It's an easy thing to 'load' a glove and I wasn't taking any chances," explained De John, who pointed out also that he didn't blame Aragon for creating any of the pre-fight fireworks.

"The characters operating in his corner are the ones I blame," De John said. "For Aragon, I've got plenty of respect. The kid had lots of guts and didn't quit. He really took some bombs from Carmen, too."

BASILIO'S CONNECTIONS were pleased with the fight, because they felt he proved beyond any doubt that he had shaken off any possible ill effects from the two rugged Ray Robinson brawls.

"Carmen was hitting as good as he ever has," claimed co-manager Joey Netro. "In fact, he was much more accurate against Aragon than he usually is. We were well pleased with his performance."

Yet, Don Dumphy and Win Elliott, the radio broadcasting team, could only whisper between rounds that "this isn't the old Carmen" and "Basilio has lost his big punch and his zing."

I don't know what those fellows call a "big punch," but the things Basilio was crashing into Aragon looked like blockbusters to me. And they came often, too.

Why, in one round, intrigued by the rapid-fire attack being generated by Carmen, I actually counted the blows. Aragon tosed 16 punches to Carmen's 83!

That's like pitting a B-B gun against a machine-gun!

CARMEN AND HIS HANDLERS were amused over the concern of many Southern California sports columnists about Basilio's pre-fight weight of 148. I believe Bob Kelley's column originated the fear that Carmen was sadly overtrained because he was down to 148.

In fact, Ole Kel even remarked that ". . . if Aragon beats Basilio, you know where you read it first," because he had the idea Basilio wasn't prepared this time.

I was dead certain Basilio would come in well over 150 pounds, even though he did weigh 148 two weeks ago. The climate change was responsible for his loss of a few pounds, but De John and Netro remedied that by prescribing one bottle of ale daily after the workout.

When I learned the ale was stopped three days before the bout, I knew Carmen wouldn't be at any 148 figure for the Friday weigh-in.

But, Ole Kel was dead serious. He believed those publicity department handouts!

IF ANY DOUBT was entertained about Basilio routing Aragon, it would have been erased at the noon weigh-in. Arthur was as frightened as Pete Rademacher before the Zora Foley match.

He didn't laugh nor joke. He looked as if he were about to cry. When Basilio got on the scale, Aragon sneaked a quick "size-up", look at his foe and his eyes told the whole story. They read:

'How in hell did I get myself into this situation?"

I'll bet he won't again.

Cards in 27-26 Triumph

SEATTLE (Special) — Ollie Matson's 94-yard kickoff return for a touchdown highlighted a furious second half here Saturday as the Chicago Cardinals defeated the Rams, 27-26, to gain their first preseason exhibition football victory of the year.

Matson's thrilling dash was the longest run seen in the University of Washington Stadium since 1951 when Hugh McElhenny returned a kickoff 100 yards against Southern California.

But the Cardinal star's touchdown sprint was far from the only thrill that excited 31,500 fans.

* * * *

LAMAR McHAN and Gern Nagler teamed up with a 61-yard pass-run combination to start the second half fireworks.

Bobby Joe Conrad then kicked a 42-yard field goal to put the Cards ahead 13-10. They never were behind again.

Matson, who gained 101 yards in 11 carries from scrimmage, in addition to his kickoff return, set up another Cardinal touchdown in the third period when he broke loose for 54 yards to the Rams' 17. McHan then passed to Conrad for the score.

* * * *

BILL WADE warmed up in the final period to get the Rams back in the ball game. He hit Joe Marconi for 15 yards and Lamar Lundy for 25 to lead the Rams to the Chicago one. Tom Wilson bucked over for the score.

Then came Matson's long run and the Cardinals lead of 27-17 seemed insurmountable. But Wade hit three straight passes to lead the Rams to another touchdown. The score came on a 15-yard pass to Leon Clarke.

Los Angeles scored first in the opening period when Paige Cothren booted a 36-yard field goal.

The Cardinals' turn came a few minutes later when the Rams' Will Sherman fumbled a punt on his own 35 and Dean Philpott recovered for Chicago.

* * * *

PHILPOTT'S 11-yard run sparked a Cardinal advance to the Ram five, but an illegal motion penalty stopped the drive and Conrad kicked a 15-yard field goal to tie it up.

The Rams went ahead 10-7 when Lundy made a spectacular running catch of Wade's 32-yard pass in the end zone to climax an 80-yard drive.

The Rams had Chicago backed down to their one-yard line just before the game ended but Bobby Gordon took an automatic safety and McHan punted 60 yards.

ALTHEA HAD AN ACCURATE DAY

Accurate drop shots by Althea Gibson led way to convincing victory Saturday over Long Beach's Beverly Baker Fleitz in semifinals of U. S. Championships at Forest Hills, N. Y. She scored 6-4, 6-2 triumph, meets Darlene Hard in today's final.—(AP Wirephoto.)

L.B. Girl Lauded for Play

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (Special) — The upset string ran out for petite Beverly Baker Fleitz Saturday and she was beaten by the queen of tennis in the semifinal round of the United States Championships.

Considered the only possibility to dethrone Althea Gibson, Miss Fleitz was extremely nervous and showed none of the confidence that marked her quarterfinal triumph over high-ranked Maria Bueno of Brazil and the Long Beach, Calif., housewife was toppled, 6-4, 6-2.

The finals in both the men's and women's division will be televised on KRCA (4) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Defending champion Mal Anderson and Wimbledon king Ashley Cooper, both from Australia, hammered their way into the final round of the men's division.

* * * *

MISS FLEITZ had beaten Miss Gibson in three previous meetings and had been the surprise of the tournament, playing the best tennis Forest Hills has seen since the days of Helen Wills Moody just one day before. So the crowd of 10,000 was expecting a torrid battle.

But, after making a brief fight out of it against the stringy Miss Gibson on the famed center court, she came apart at the seam and went down to swift defeat.

The 31-year-old Althea, shooting for her second straight U.S.-Wimbledon slam, gave an indication of what was to come when she went to the net on return of service in the fifth game of the opening set to smash through and take a 3-2 lead. Mrs. Fleitz hammered right back with passing shots which shattered Althea's service and squared it at 3-3.

* * * *

BUT IN the seventh game, eighth-seeded Mrs. Fleitz lost service on a doublefault and Althea's charge to the net for winning volleys. That put Miss Gibson in front, 4-3, and she ran it out from there.

The loss of that first set completely unsettled Mrs. Fleitz. She lost service in the first game of the second set on extremely bad overdrives and lost service again in the fifth game as Althea broke through once more, not even bothering to charge the net but letting the upset Beverly make her own mistakes from the baseline.

Drysdale's String Ended by Cards

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—Don Drysdale's bid for a seventh straight victory blew up on one pitch in the eighth inning Saturday night.

After Drysdale had stretched his streak of shutout innings to 16, doubles by Stan Musial and Irv Noren broke the ice. Then Joe Cunningham belted the next pitch for a two-run homer to give the St. Louis Cardinals a thrilling 3-2 triumph over the Dodgers.

Drysdale's defeat was a heartbreaker. He held the Cards to four singles in the first seven innings and owned a 2-0 edge via homers by Carl Furillo and Gino Cimoli.

The homers were two of the five hits allowed by Redbird rookie Bob Mabe, who matched Drysdale in a sizzling pitching duel and was credited with his second win in a row. Until last week, when he beat Cincinnati, 4-2, Mabe was winless in the majors and had lost five.

* * * *

MABE STRUCK out 10 Dodgers, seven in the first three innings, while Drysdale registered seven whiffs.

Musial, batting for shortstop Eddie Kasko, led off the eighth inning with a double to the left field corner and thereby regained the lead in the tight National League batting derby. His sixth two-bagger of the year against the Dodgers tacked two points onto his average for .341, while Richie Ashburn of the Phils was hitless in four trips and slipped to .340.

Ruben Amaro ran for the sore-legged Musial and took third as Hobie Landrith grounded out in a pinch-hitting role for Mabe. When Drysdale fanned Gene Freese for the second out, Dodger stock rose a notch, but Noren and Cunningham, two dangerous left-handers, were still waiting in the wings.

Noren drove a shot off the right field screen that just missed being a home run and Amaro trotted home to cut the Dodger lead to 2-1.

Manager Walt Alston went out to talk to Drysdale. There was a lot of head-nodding and everything appeared to be under control. No sooner had Alston reached the dugout steps, when wham! Cunningham parked his ninth homer of the year in the right field seats and the game was all but over.

When Drysdale followed by walking Ken Boyer, Johnny Klippstein relieved and retired the side without facing a batter. Boyer was caught attempting to steal second and now the Dodgers had one final shot.

Jim Brosnan was assigned to hold the Redbird lead and he made Gil Hodges ground out to open the top of the ninth. Junior Gilliam, batting for Don Zimmer, ran the count full and then lined to Noren in right. Charlie Neal walked on a 3-2 pitch, but Steve Bilko, batting for Klippstein, lined to second to end the game.

* * * *

FURILLO led off the Dodger second inning with his 16th homer of the year that gave him 30 runs batted-in in his last 27 games. Mabe, however, quickly regained his touch and struck out the side.

That was all the scoring until Cimoli led off the Dodger eighth with his ninth circuit swat.

The Dodgers pushed a runner to third with one out in the fourth inning, left one at third with two down in the sixth and missed still another chance when Neal doubled with two out in the seventh.

LION ROOKIE
'Sing, Dance or Act?'

COCKY CASSADY FOUND ROOKIE LIFE RATHER 'CRUMBY'

Hoppy Survived Lion Vets' Hazing

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (NEA)—The freckled kid separated himself from the tangle of bodies and limped back to the huddle. A sneer crossed his face as he half-knelt, hands on knees, shouldered in among the awe-sized Detroit Lions.

"Why," snarled Hopalong Cassady, "I got better blocking at Ohio State than I get from this gang."

Bobby Layne winked at big Lou Creekmur, who gave the high sign to the other boys.

"Polly Parrot," they cackled in unison at Cassady, then a fresh-faced rookie getting an exhibition game baptism with the Lions in late summer of 1956.

And for the next six months, every time he stepped on a field, the ex-Buckeye chatterbox was greeted with parrot-like squawks. All through training camp he had to filter crumbs from his bed sheets before hitting the sack. Every time he opened his mail box he had to clear away the debris of crumpled crackers.

IT WASN'T UNTIL the Green Bay game late in the season, when he piled his slight frame into the formidable Packer front wall play after play with a whimper that the Lions gave him a passing grade. "Now," one of the big linemen wrapped his arm around Hoppy's shoulder, "you're a pro."

Cassady took longer coming around than most of the college heroes adjusting to professional football. The Lions seven years ago recognized the unique problems they face and inaugurated the first pro grid rookie schools. They were the brainchild of Nick Kerbawy, the general manager of the Lions until he deserted to pro basketball this year, and ex-coach Buddy Parker.

WHEN THE LIONS' full squad assembles to prepare for the regular season in swank layouts like the Cranbrook School here, the first question asked a rookie is: "What do you do? Sing, dance or act?"

The talents, whatever they are, are incorporated into a rookie show held late in the training grind. Best bit of this year's extravaganza was an imitation of Kerbawy making the grand entrance, flourishing his ubiquitous cigar, dribbling an imaginary basketball.

At meal times, the kids are required to stand on their chairs, hands over their hearts and sing their alma maters.

"Louder, louder," the Lion vets roar them on.

Just how much of a requisite is this rookie entertainment towards making the team?

"SOME OF our best entertainers," Kerbawy grins ruefully, "didn't last more than three or four weeks."

Injuries Mar First Vike Scrimmage

By JEROME HALL

A half hundred grid candidates at Long Beach City College buckled down to serious contact work Saturday and a half dozen of them promptly buckled over from injuries.

Surveying the prone pigskinners, head coach Jim Stangeland observed there were "way too many injuries" for only a 20-minute contact drill.

It was the first scrimmage of the season for the Vikings and in spite of the casualties, it was a highly enlightening sessions. There were several standout performances.

One was by Johnny Amos, a freshman from New Jersey who has been switched from fullback to halfback. Amos unreeled some crisp running, but it was his defensive work from a halfback "corner" spot that had the coaching staff beaming.

* * * *

THE scrimmage produced only one touchdown. It was set up by Charlie Miller, a defensive specialist last year who will play both fullback and halfback. He boomed up the middle for 20 yards to the two-yard line and Gary Griffin, who played on the LBCC Junior Rose Bown team of 1950, plunged over.

The day's injury list included probable first string tackles Jim Smith (twisted ankle) and Earl Finney (elbow injury); second string fullback Kim Line (knee injury) and letterman end Ray Gilbert (shoulder separation.)

Only Line's injury is believed to be serious, however, among the "regular" personnel.

Quarterback candidate Dave Groff turned in an impressive performance, bringing praise from Stangeland. Groff was injured most of last year at Millikan. Saturday he took control of the offensive unit and ran it like a veteran, though it was the first grid combat for him in a full year.

* * * *

GROFF faces a formidable task in unseating letterman John McDonald and beating out newcomer Don Glasscock for the No. 1 QB spot.

Glasscock, the transfer from Baylor U., missed several workouts during the week because of a minor ailment so was not ready for his best performance. But from all indications, the Vikings are wealthy at quarterback.

There were some heartening performances by interior linemen in the brief workout. Doug Brown, who didn't play high school ball but came on fast as an LBCC frosh last season, gives every sign of developing into a terror. He's near 230 pounds. Another tackle, Keith Cordes, drew applause from Stangeland for his work.

There were a half dozen beefy interior linemen rambling across the field who appear capable of filling the deficit in last year's club.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Now that the boxing world has seen that Los Angeles can consistently draw gates of over $200,000 with mismatches, it is quite possible that Southern California will get a few legitimate headline fights in the near future.

Los Angeles fight fans have been "pigeons" long enough for "in the bag" matches. They deserve a real top attraction such as the rubber go between Sugar Ray Robinson and Carmen Basilio.

While it may fizzle as a classic brawl . . . it nevertheless is the No. 1 attraction left on the ring books at the present time and which undoubtedly will take place sometime next spring.

Wrigley Field has now been the scene of four fights in the past 10 months that have drawn over $200,000.

In each case, it has been, as I described it, "90 per cent buildup, 10 per cent fight."

Basilio and Art Aragon established a new all-time California gate record Friday night by luring 22,500 fans and a gross of $236,521.

Three weeks ago, Floyd Patterson and Roy Harris drew $234,183, the state record until Friday night.

On April 1, it was $215,047 by featherweight champion Hogan (Kid) Basey and Pajarito Moreno despite heavy rains.

And last November 6, bantamweight king Alphonse Halimi and Raton Macias drew $209,848.

ARAGON, HARRIS, MORENO and Macias were all badly outclassed. Of the four, Macias was the only one who figured to have any kind of a chance and although he was the only one who went the distance, he was badly beaten by Halimi.

All four bouts were "sold" to fight fans with classic buildups. Nowhere else in the country could these four fights have drawn nearly as much.

For instance, it is doubtful if the Aragon-Basilio bout could have drawn as much as $40,000 on Carmen's home grounds around Syracuse or in New York City proper . . . and I may be pegging that figure far too high.

Their tremendous gate Friday night was additional proof that Southern California sports fans are eager for topline fistic attractions.

It would be most interesting to see what would happen in Los Angeles if a headline bout was staged that figured to be 90 per cent fight instead of 90 per cent buildup.

In all of the above four fights, we told readers beforehand that they figured to be one-sided affairs.

Of the four, however, we thought all along that the Basilio-Aragon bout would be the best . . . and it was. For five rounds it was a rousing crowd-pleaser. In fact, during that time it was as good a scrap as you would want to see before Art finally absorbed such a brutal beating that Referee Tommy Hart stopped it in the eighth round—one stanza less than we called it. We had it tabbed for nine heats.

I HAVE NEVER BEEN an Aragon fan. I have recognized his limitations for many years and have openly said so on several occasions.

But I must admit that when I walked out of Wrigley Field Friday night, I did so with a new respect for the Golden Boy . . . and he still is the Golden Boy in my book.

Art has never been and never will be more than a second-rater. But he showed he had plenty of guts in his stand against Basilio and we need more like him to inject a little more life and color in the sordid beak-busting business.

It was Aragon who "made" the fight . . . financially speaking. And Basilio paid him a backhanded compliment when he said in the dressing room after the bout "I'd much rather meet a 'talker' than a real good fighter."

And Art did plenty of talking before the fight as part of the buildup. Not even Aragon figured he actually had a chance to win. But he knew he could draw a tremendous gate with Basilio and that's what he's in the game to do—make money.

Actually, the whole affair amounted to little more than an all-expenses-paid "vacation trip" to the West for Basilio than a major fight.

But he became co-holder of the all-time gate record in California thanks in part to Art's personal publicity campaign.

AS BASILIO NOW POINTS for another match with Robinson next year, the big question here in Southern California fight circles concerns Aragon. Is he through?

I don't think so. In fact, I think he has a few more $200,000 gates left. As I said before the fight, Art had everything to gain, nothing to lose. He certainly didn't lose any prestige in being beaten by a man who has held both the welterweight and middleweight title. Whats more he was still on his feet when the bout was stopped.

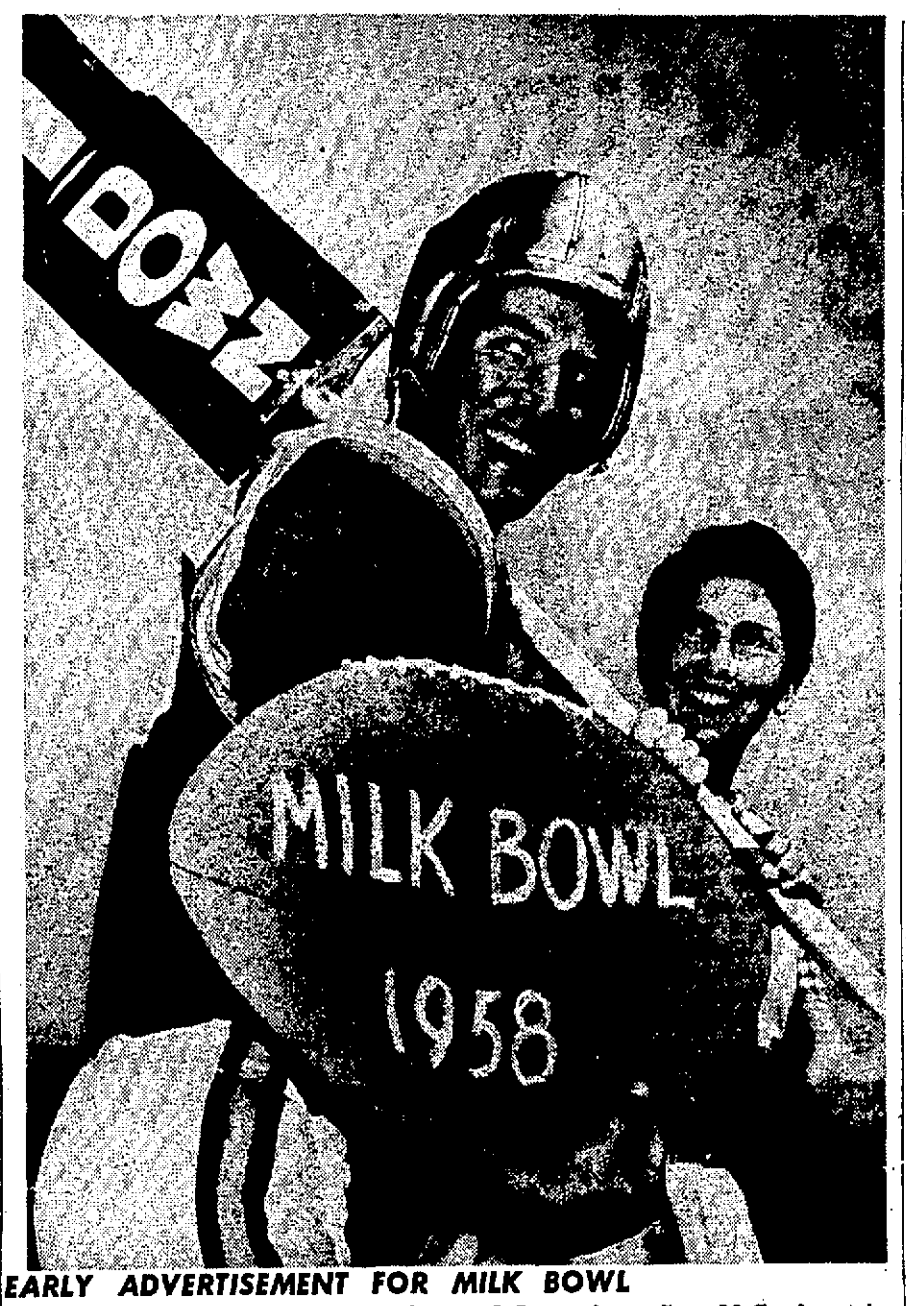

A couple of easy marks for buildup purposes would set the stage for another big-money bout for Aragon with one of the top welters . . . perhaps even Champion Virgil Akins. After all, the whole fight world is anxious to get a shot at this California money.

No, Aragon is far from being through as I see it. I think a lot of people who went to see him get murdered Friday night left with a new respect, as I did, for the Golden Boy . . . the greatest box-office draw in California ring history.

Fans would have been touched by a scene in the Aragon dressing room before the fight when Art received a telegram from his three children which read "Good luck, Daddy, we know you can do it. Lots of love and kisses."

It brought tears to Art's eyes!

Friday night, Aragon became a human being again in the eyes of many. And, strangely enough, the beating Art took may have produced the strange phenomenon of making him a "hero" instead of a "villain" with Los Angeles fight fans in future appearances!

EARLY ADVERTISEMENT FOR MILK BOWL
Poly High footballer Chick Hastings and flag swinger Sara McComb get in first warning to Long Beach football fans that annual Milk Bowl charity game, featuring five Moore League teams, is slated for Sept. 27. Moore teams begin workouts Monday.

Moore League Schools Begin Practice Monday

Moore League teams break out the grid gear Monday, with first practice sessions planned at all five schools — Wilson, Poly, Jordan Millikan and Lakewood.

The teams have three weeks to prepare for initial action. The annual Milk Bowl charity "carnival" type game is scheduled for Sept. 27.

* * * *

DEFENDING champion Wilson and senior-studded Poly are co-favorites.

Injury already has played a large part in the season. Wilson fullback Jim Burchfiel broke an ankle during the summer while skin diving and is lost for at least the first half of the season.

According to recent calculation, the giant powerhouse may be back in action "in four to six weeks." That would mean shortly before the big game with Poly, which is scheduled for Oct. 31. The Bruins are coached by Skip Rowland, Poly by Dave Levy.

With Buchfield sidelined, the Bruins' "inside, outside" punch of big Jim and halfback Larry Sather is cut in half.

But if there's a pre-season edge for the top spot it must go to Poly because of its late-developing and fast-rising club of last year which is, in large part, returning.

The Rabbits will be led by jackrabbit-like Dee Andrews, a champion sprinter-hurdler. But he will have plenty of help from halfback Willie Brown and fullback Lonzo Irvin.

Jordan coach Bob Parke is on the lookout for some lanky, fast ends—they seem to be his specialty—to go with the veteran backs and interior linemen. Jordan has lost a lot of talent from a year ago.

The experience problem also faces Tom Kinkade at Millikan, where Bees and jayvees will be pressed into service.

Lakewood will field the league's darkhorse team. The Lancers managed just one win in its initial season but have a host of returning regulars, spearheaded by Gil Mendoza, an excellent passer and a swift ball carrier.

MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

L.B. Jr. Football Loop Issues Call

The Long Beach Jr. Football League, which has developed some of the top football players in the city's grid history, will begin preparing for its 11th season Tuesday night when candidates for the four league teams report to coaches.

The league consists of four teams, the North Long Beach Bulldogs, Los Altos Lions, Belmont Shore Bears and Lakewood Cougars.

Players will be divided into two groups according to size and each area will field an "A" and "B" team. Boys from 95-125 pounds will play on the "B" teams and boys over 125 pounds on the "A" team.

All Long Beach boys between the ages of 11 and 15 are eligible to play on the teams, according to league publicity chairman Bud Oberg.

Candidates should report at 6:30 Tuesday night to one of these four locations: 1. North Long Beach, Houghton Park, 2. Los Altos, Stanford Jr. High, 3. Belmont Shore, Wilson High, and 4. Lakewood, Pan-American Park.

* * * *

THE LEAGUE will furnish all equipment except shoes for players. Each boy must have his parents' consent to play and parents are requested to accompany the boys to the first meeting if possible. Physical exams will be given each candidate.

League games will be played on Sundays with practices on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Kickoff Fete to Honor Vikes, 49ers

Long Beach Century Club's Second Annual Kickoff Banquet to honor football players and coaches at Long Beach State College and Long Beach City College will be held Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave.

Don Callan is program chairman, while Jim Crooker will be master of ceremonies and Jack Dilday is in charge of tickets. The evening's principal speaker will be Mike Pecarovich, former college football coach and currently an instructor at St. Anthony High School here.

Actually each ticket-purchaser "sponsors" a football player, for with each $7.50 dinner ticket sold an athlete's dinner also is included.

Tickets still may be purchased from the Century Club office, 121 Linden Ave., or from Dilday (HE 2-5901) or Callan (GE 8-7557).

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Quarterback Lee Grosscup, Utah University's ace passer and a candidate for all-America honors, suffered a cracked rib in scrimmage today which Ute officials said may result in his loss for the first two games.

After One Week: 49er Line Strong, Offense Problem

By JERRY WYNN

How much stronger is "considerably stronger than last year?"

That is the major question on the Long Beach State College practice field as the 49ers head into their second week of practice for the season's opener at San Francisco State, Sept. 19.

The above quote is the first summation of his team by new head coach Don Reed, and reflects the general feeling of the staff and returning players. The 1958 squad is much stronger over-all than its predecessor which had a 3-5 record. The 1958 squad is the strongest in school history.

BUT . . . will this mean a successful season against a painfully (for L. B.) tough schedule of nine games. At this, heads shake and words are left unspoken. Wait and see.

* * * *

"THE EMPHASIS in practice is being put on defense," says Reed. "Last year, we could give a team a good first half, and then were physically worn out to play a decent second half. We became pushovers. That shouldn't happen this year."

And as one veteran lineman commented after taking punishment in a contact drill Thursday:

"This line will be two to three times better than last year's. We had one thin line last year. We'll have two good ones this year."

* * * *

LAST SEASON the line was handicapped by lack of size. This year weight should be an asset. A look at probable candidates for starting line berths shows this beefy crew:

Ends—Carl Evans, 200; Bob Pinkerton, 195; Cliff O'Grain, 220. Tackles—Stan Guzy, 215; Welo Vasquez, 245; Kirk King, 215; Roger Hall, 240. Guards—Don Davis, 185; Tom Tracy, 210; Warren Wardlow, 215; Larry Miller, 185. Centers—Dick Keelor, 195; Dick Duty, 200; Jerry Gregg, 205.

"Our big problem will be offense," Reed shrugs. "More specifically, how we are going to replace Gouyd (Mickey) and Rodriguez (Gil)."

* * * *

ONE HALF of the 49er backfield appears well manned.

In John Pembrook, Larry Manley, John Nicholson and Jim St. Amour, the team has four top-flight quarterbacks whose battle for the starting position should be the highlight of preseason practice. Returning starter Dick Van Voohris and Don Radford, a Santa Ana JC transfer, are both capable flanker backs.

A first-week analysis of the 49ers could read:

Line — strong; backfield — questionable; team — wait and see.

The Colts' only touchdown also came in the first half on a 23-yard pass play from John Unitas to Ray Berry.

At Boston Green Bay swamped the New York Giants in the second half to run up a 41-20 triumph, using a well-mixed air-ground attack. Babe Parilli threw a 56-yard pass for one touchdown.

At Jacksonville, Fla., the Redskins edged the Philadelphia Eagles 35-31.

Greens Win, 48-8, in Irish Practice

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—The "Greens" defeated the "Whites," 44-8, Saturday in the initial intra-squad scrimmage of the Notre Dame football training season.

The Greens scored the first two times they had the ball; first on a 31-yard pass from quarterback Bob Williams to end Bob Wetoska, and next on a four-yard plunge by halfback Jim Crotty.

In the extra point department, Coach Terry Brennan had the teams concentrate on getting two points on pass plays and runs.

JOHNNY KLIPPSTEIN . . . Late-Trade Dividend

Klippstein in Line for Pay Hike After Some Fine Relief

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—One of the few raises at Dodger contract time next spring is certain to go to relief pitcher Johnny Klippstein, a most pleasant surprise since he was obtained from the Redlegs in an 11th hour trade.

In a recent discussion with manager Alston, one writer remarked, "I don't know what they're paying this guy. But whatever it is, it's not enough."

Alston has enough problems without worrying about next year's salaries and leaves that department to veep Buzzie Bavasi. But he agrees that Klippstein has been a lifesaver. "He deserves a lot of credit. He's done one helluva job for us."

Since Klippstein joined the Dodgers, an hour before trading deadline on June 15, he has appeared in 35 games, all in relief. He has had a hand in nine victories, saving seven and winning two, while compiling the second lowest earned run average on the staff. Johnny Podres is the ERA leader with 3.74 and Klippstein has a 3.88 mark.

* * * *

KLIPPSTEIN, who has had only one winning season during eight years in the majors, reached his peak in the last month. Since Aug. 12, he has appeared in 12 games, pitched 20⅓ innings and has allowed only two earned runs. In his last 21 appearances he has given up only six earned runs in 31⅓ innings and four came on homers in one of his few unsuccessful performances.

"The only time Klippstein hasn't done the job for us is when he's been overworked," Alston said. The home run barrage unleashed by the Giants was one of those times. It was Klippstein's fifth rescue role in a week during which he had saved three games by allowing only one hit.

The 30-year-old Klippstein came to the Dodgers along with first baseman Steve Bilko in exchange for pitcher Don Newcombe and an undisclosed bundle of cash. He had toiled five seasons for the Cubs and three for Cincinnati, but showed a winning record only in 1956 when he won 12 and lost 11 for the Redlegs.

* * * *

"I'VE ALWAYS liked Klippstein's fast ball," Alston said when asked why he had picked up a pitcher whose lifetime record in the majors was only 60-83 before this season. "He's always pitched well against us, so when Buzzie had a chance to get him I told him to go ahead."

Klippstein gives a lot of credit to Dodger pitching coach Joe Becker for improving a curve ball that was only a "wrinkle" before he joined the Dodgers.

"I didn't like his slider," Becker said," and his curve came off a three-quarters delivery that rolled off his hand. Now he's throwing the curve from the same position as his fast ball and it has a lot more snap."

Even with the improved curve, the fast ball is still the Klippstein trade mark. His fast ball is what is known as a "live" one; it moves, up and into right-handed hitters. He has given up on the slider and uses only an occasional change-up.

* * * *

SINCE HE is known as a fast ball pitcher, batters often have the advantage and are set for his best pitch. But that doesn't bother Klippstein. "Some days I have enough stuff on the fast ball to get 'em out even if they're waiting for it. And I surprise them with the curve more than I ever did."

This is the first season that the 6-1, 175-pound righthander has been used in relief exclusively. He started four games for Cincinnati and beat the Dodgers once before he was traded and given a permanent seat in the bullpen.

"It's tougher to be a relief pitcher. Physically, you're working three days out of four instead of one out of four. And mentally, your attitude is changed entirely. You go to the ball park every day knowing that you may get into the game.

"The hardest job of all, though, is starting and relieving," Klippstein says. "I'm surprised that my arm responds the way it does after the change in routine."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH HE appears strong on the mound, Klippstein would make a better "before" than "after" ad in a physical culture magazine. Stripped to the waist, the dark, wavy-haired Klippstein just doesn't look like an athlete. His chest is downright conclave and gives him an almost frail appearance.

Still, he has the stamina of a bull and demonstrated it in San Francisco last weekend when he worked in both games of a doubleheader. He pitched two hitless innings in the morning game, then after hurling more than half a game in the bullpen he came back with a one-hit job in 4⅔ innings during the afternoon.

The game that Klippstein remembers best is the clutch relief effort he turned in two years ago against his ex-teammates, the Cubs. Chicago had the bases loaded with none out in the 14th inning, then Klippstein struck out Don Hoak and Hobie Landrith and forced Eddie Miksis to ground out. The Redlegs won the game in 15 innings.

Harry Minor Pilots Wellsville to Flag

The Wellsville Braves, managed by Harry Minor of Long Beach, won the New York-Pennsylvania League pennant by defeating Geneva, 5-1, in a playoff.

It was Minor's first year at the helm of the Milwaukee-owned Class D team. In addition to managing, the former Wilson High football and baseball star played first base and hit .290 with 17 home runs and 77 runs batted in.

Set October All-Star Tilt at Blair Field

It will be Homecoming Day and Dedication Day on Oct. 12 when a major-minor league all-star baseball game is played at Blair Field.

Park Commissioner Bill Feistner announced the date which will mark the formal dedication of the new stadium and at the same time welcome the flock of professional ballplayers residing in this area.

A partial list of players expected includes Dick Stuart, Pirates; Gus Zernial and Hank Aguirre, Tigers; Lee Walls and Bobby Adams, Cubs; Lou Berberet and Billy Consolo, Red Sox; Rocky Bridges, Senators; Hank Sauer and Eddie Bressoud, Giants; Bud Daley, Athletics; Jack Harshman, Orioles; Ray Boone, White Sox, and the Cards' Irv Noren, if he doesn't go on the St. Louis barnstorming trip to Japan.

* * * *

MINOR leaguers expected to participate include Harry Minor, Bill Wilson, Dick Cole, Gene Mauch, Paul Pettit, Roy Smalley, Rudy Regalado and many others.

Feistner stated that he will meet with Red Patterson, Dodgers' publicity director, Monday in hopes of obtaining several Dodger players remaining in the Los Angeles area after close of their season.

Bob Kelley Says---

SEATTLE—About 10:30 Friday night, the phone in my hotel room rang.

"Mr. Bob Kelley?" sang the operator.

"Yes."

"One moment," she said. "Los Angeles calling."

"Am I all through, buddy?" said a new voice (which I recognized instantly.)

"Why should you be washed up?" I replied. "You've been beaten before, and by fighters not as good as Basilio."

"How did I look?"

I hedged. "What do you expect me to say? You didn't look good. I'm not trying to second-guess you when it's all over. But you would have been better off to go out and slug with the guy, either knock him

BOB KELLEY
Phone Buzzed and . . .

out or get knocked out yourself."

The caller changed the subject—to money.

"What will I draw with Akins?"

"For the title?"

"Yeah."

"Oh," I mused, "it ought to draw pretty good, but not as much as you drew with Basilio tonight. Besides, Akins will knock you out."

"JUST A MINUTE, just a minute," the voice ranted. Slightly off phone range, I could hear him saying: "Aileen (Eaton), I want you to talk to Kelley. He says Akins and I won't draw."

I yelled into the phone. "Wait a minute, Art, I didn't say that! I just said you wouldn't draw as much as the Basilio fight."

Aileen came on the phone. "Hello, Bob. Listen, we're all proud of our boy here. I thought it was a great fight, didn't you?"

I cleared my throat. "Frankly, Aileen, as long as you ask me, I didn't. In fact, I thought it was a lousy fight."

"Oh," she replied, in a tone indicating she'd been fooling herself, and sort of agreed with me.

"Well," she went on "Here's what we're going to do with our boy. I want him to take a nice vacation, then come back and have one fight—then Akins for the title in January."

"AILEEN," I interrupted. "I'm up here to broadcast a football game and I don't want to nose into your business. But Akins will knock Art out. It might be a good payday for you, but two bad beatings in six months will just about finish the guy at the box-office.

"Why don't you just bring in the Chica Vejars four or five times a year for a $40,000 gate and be happy? Art can fight and win and draw for another three years if you do it right."

I didn't get through. "But Art can beat Akins," she insisted. "Wait a minute . . . here's Art."

"Sure, he can beat Akins," I mumbled. . . . "With a club."

"Did I look bad, buddy?" the voice said.

"Don't ask me. By the way, what slowed you down — the body punches, or did you have trouble seeing?"

"It was my nose," said the voice. "I couldn't breathe."

"I could see on TV you were having trouble. But that wasn't what made you run out of gas. Was it the body punches? He was really digging, wasn't he?"

"MY NOSE," came the repy. "I couldn't breathe."

"Oh, great," I said disgustedly. "I can see I'm getting a lot out of you. But it didn't look like you took too bad a beating. You're cut, and you'll have a few sore ribs for a week—but he didn't rattle you in the head. You aren't hurt too much, right?"

"Only when I laugh."

Same jokes, same Aragon. He'll be back in four months—to take your money again.

Dodgers Dis 'n Data

DODGERS DIS AND DATA— Junior Gilliam, the Dodgers ironman who has appeared in 172 of 136 games, was out of the lineup Saturday night for a rest. Gilliam said he did not feel well, but went through the regular pre-game workout. . . . Stan Musial, bidding for his eighth NL batting title, hopes to return to the Cardinal lineup for the series finale this afternoon. Musial has missed three games because of a charley horse in his upper left thigh and now trails NL batting leader Richie Ashburn .340 to .339.

"I want to play, but the injury has bothered my running," Musial said. "I don't know if it affected my hitting, but since I aggravated the leg I haven't been able to hit with power. I can't put my full weight on the leg, and since I'm a lefthanded hitter, it's the left or back leg that gives me my power." Musial has a .332 average (25-for-47) against the Dodgers this year, including three homers and five doubles.

Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale was fined $25 by NL President Warren Giles for last week's run-in with plate Umpire Augie Donatelli. Drysdale beefed too long and loud about a called third strike in a pitch-hitting role against the Giants. . . . Cardinal center fielder Curt Flood will leave the club this week to enlist in the Army's six-month training program. He will drive home to Oakland Thursday or Friday and is to report for induction in mid-September. He will be released by mid-March, which would give him a month of spring training before the start of the '59 season. Flood's average has dipped from .330 in June to .282, but the 20-year-old rookie is regarded as a star of the future. He has hit 10 homers and driven in 41 runs, mostly from the leadoff spo

Johnny Podres (12-12) will oppose the Cardinals' Larry Jackson (12-10) this afternoon. Jackson has two wins over the Dodgers this year, including a five-hit 12-strikeout job here Aug. 4. He had an eight-game win streak against the Dodgers until he lost, 4-3, in 11 innings Aug. 15. Podres is 2-2 against the Cards this season. . . . Thundershowers are predicted this afternoon for the Dodgers' last game in St. Louis. They fly to Philadelphia tonight and are off Monday.

Duke Snider left the game in the second inning when he aggravated his ailing left knee. Elmer Valo was sent to left field and Gino Cimoli moved from left to center. . . . Snider has hit .352 (31-for-88) since July 15, raising his average from .289 to a club leading .307. . . . Saturday night's crowd of 11,505 put the Dodgers over the million mark in road attendance. They have played before 1,005,840 fans in 64 road games. . . . The Dodgers led the league in road attendance during the last 12 years, but will be displaced by either the Braves or Giants this season. . . . Last year the Dodgers drew 1,539,988 away from home.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP:

Braves, Yanks Lose Again

United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates kept the barest flicker of life glowing in the National League pennant race Saturday when they beat the Milwaukee Braves for the second straight time, 7-6, on Johnny Powers' pinch-hit homed in the eighth inning.

The victory at Pittsburgh moved the Pirates into undisputed second place, 7½ games behind the league-leading Braves who have 18 games left to play.

* * * *

IN OTHER National League day games Saturday, the Chicago Cubs followed the pitching of rookie Johnny Briggs to a 6-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants to drop the Giants to third place, and Bob Purkey's five-hit pitching led the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 10-2 win over Philadelphia.

Bob Friend, Pittsburgh ace bidding for his 20th victory, was rocked for five of the Braves' six runs, including fifth-inning homers by Johnny Logan and Ed Mathews. Relief Pitcher R. G. Smith gained the win by holding the Braves scoreless the rest of the way except for Del Rice's eighth-inning homer. Rice's blow tied the score at 6-6 and set the stage for Powers' winning homer.

At Chicago, rookie Briggs blanked the Giants for eight innings and held them hitless for six. But then he gave up three runs in the ninth on three walks with two out and Willie Kirkland's double. Don Elston relieved to get the last out. A four-run rally in the second inning and Jim Marshall's two-run homer in the seventh accounted for all the Cub scoring.

Purkey's victory at Philadelphia was his 16th and he missed a shutout only when Harry Anderson hit a two-run homer in the third inning. Homers by Frank Robinson and Walt Dropo led the Redlegs' 13-hit attack as they handed the Phillies their fifth straight loss.

Roy Sievers slammed his 36th home run with two on in a six-run sixth inning that paced the Washington Senators to an 8-3 victory over the sluggish New York Yankees, who dropped their 17th game in their last 29 starts.

The Senators' run total might have been even higher were it not for a ninth-inning triple play by the Yankees. With runners on first and second, Clint Courtney lined to second baseman Gil McDougald, who tossed to shortstop Tony Kubek, who in turn relayed the ball to Bill Skowron at first for the triple killing.

Sievers' blast, off loser Art Ditmar, brought his runs-batted-in total to 100 for the season and helped fastballer Camilo Pascual to his eighth victory.

Kansas City beat Detroit 6-2 before a crowd of 5,756 at Detroit that swelled the Tigers' home gate over the million mark for the 13th time in the last 14 years.

Jr. Golf Trials On Wednesday

Junior golfers take their final tournament fling of the summer this week in the annual Long Beach City Championship at Recreation Park.

A field of about 70 is expected to battle for 32 match play berths in qualifying Wednesday. Double rounds are scheduled for Thursday and Friday with 18-hole finals Saturday.

Since advance entries are not being accepted, the makeup of the field will be unknown until tee-off time. However, the tourney has always attracted most top Southland juniors and all Long Beach area aces.

THE TITLE IS BEING vacated by Gerald Zar of Palos Verdes, also the 1956 winner, who is now too old for junior competition. Zar defeated Dennis Murphy, another "graduate," in last year's finals.

The probable favorite should be Richard Martinez of California CC, the reigning state champion and recent victor of the Lakewood Junior tournament. Among Long Beach area hopefuls, the Lakewood trio of Mike Blackmore, Bob Clark and John Berkhoel stand out. Host club threats include Jeff Lake, Larry Griggs and Phil Wittenburg.

Miss Wright's round tied the competitive course record set a year ago by Marlene Hagge, who had a 32 on the incoming nine today.

JIM FERRIE
Draws 1st Round Bye

NEIL WHITE
Faces Kentuckian

Ferrie and White in S.F. Classic

By JERRY WYNN

Jim Ferrie and Neil White, two tried and true Virginia Country Club veterans, will represent Long Beach in the 58th United States Amateur Golf Championship opening at San Francisco Monday.

Ferrie, former Southern California and Long Beach City champion, has drawn a first round bye. He will face the winner between John Penrose, Miami Beach, and Henry Wysong, Dallas, on Tuesday.

White, the reigning Virginia champion who won the California State crown in 1943, opposes George Stigger of Henderson, Ky., Monday. If successful, he will battle another former State king, Eli Bariteau of Santa Cruz, Tuesday.

The tournament will be played on the famous, beautiful and treacherous Lake course of the Olympic Country Club that was the scene of the memorable 1955 U. S. Open in which Jack Fleck pulled the upset of the century by beating Ben Hogan in a championship playoff.

Par proved a veritable monster then, and Fleck and Hogan ended their 72-hole journeys tied at 287, seven over regulation figures. Although the rough won't be as high for the Amateur, the narrow, cypress-lined fairways will invite just as much trouble to an errant tee shot. The 6,680-yard course will play to a par 35-35—70.

All of the nation's best amateurs are entered, but one in particular will be in the spotlight. He is home-town favorite Harvie Ward, whose suspension by the USGA last year for accepting illegal expense money denied him the opportunity of seeking an unprecedented third straight title.

If the handsome transplanted Tar Heel wins his first two matches this week, he will surpass Lawson Little's record of 15 straight match victories. Ward has a bye Monday.

★ ★ ★ ★

DEFENDING champion is Hillman Robbins of Memphis. Robbins beat Dr. Bud Taylor of Pomona in the 1957 finals largely because Taylor wilted under the Massachusetts humidity after playing brilliantly throughout the tourney.

Taylor will head a powerful 16-man Southern California contingent at San Francisco that includes former National Public Links champion Gene Andrews, NCAA champion Phil Rodgers, U. S. Seniors champion Johnny Dawson, collegiate stars Al Geiberger (SC), Bill Seanor (Stanford) and Bill and Dick Foote (UCLA), Don Keith, Sandy Mosk and the aforementioned Ferrie and White.

★ ★ ★ ★

Wynn at National, State Tournaments

Jerry Wynn, I-PT golf writer, will be in San Francisco this week to report on the National Amateur Tournament. From there, he will go to Pebble Beach for the State Amateur, Sept. 15-21. For the finest golf coverage, the I-PT is the winner!

Among the flashy performances were a 6 feet, 5 inch high jump, Dr. Steve Seymour's 228-7 javelin toss, and Bob Humphreys double win in the shot put and discus. Lis Josefsen of Long Beach was a double winner in women's competition.

Matthews 2nd in Bowling Ballot

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —Don Carter of St. Louis and Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., were named bowlers of the year Saturday by the Bowling Writers' Association of America, the second straight year the two gained the top honors.

It was Carter's fourth such title and Mrs. Ladewig's seventh. She received 899 points on 79 first place ballots and 11 seconds, while Carter had 902 points, including 80 first place votes and eight seconds.

Miss Merle Matthews, Long Beach, Calif., who won the national all-star crown when Mrs. Ladewig's No. 10 pin failed to go down on her second delivery in the last frame, was voted runnerup in women's voting with 727 points. She had 13 first place votes and 47 seconds.

He just hurt his own boy, though, because I went into the ring pretty mad.

I didn't know until after the fight that one of my managers, Johnny De John, had been given the treatment in Aragon's dressing room. In the East this stuff isn't allowed, but I guess California goes for anything. Especially if the Golden Boy is involved.

U.S. Games Bid Goes to Detroit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Detroit was chosen Saturday to represent the United States in a bid for the 1964 Olympic Games.

The United States Olympic Committee said it picked Detroit over Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Chicago after two hours of deliberations.

"It was a very close decision," site committee chairman Robert J. Kane said. "We really felt each of the four cities would be a worthy representative but Detroit had the edge."

• • • •

DETROIT'S bid now will be passed on to the International Olympic Committee's Lausanne, Switzerland, headquarters. The international group is scheduled to meet next May in Munich, Germany, to select the 1964 site.

U. S. Olympic committee president Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson said he believed only Tokyo, Japan, already has entered a bid for the 1964 games.

"I feel Detroit has a very excellent chance of landing the games. It has tremendous facilities," Wilson said.

L.A. County Fair Uncorks 14-Day Meeting Friday

The Los Angeles County Fair opens its 14-day race meeting next Friday, and officials expect another banner year. The 1957 meeting was the most successful in history.

C. B. Afflerbaugh, president-manager of the fair, announced that the same trio who served as the official racing staff last season would again handle the reins.

Returning to the steward's pagoda are Chester C. Jones, presiding steward, Andrew Lee Ferguson, associate, and James C. McGill, representative of the California Horse Racing Board.

Lane Decisions Cuban Zulueta

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI)—Methodical Kenny Lane, the NBA's No. 1 lightweight contender, Saturday night decisioned Cuban Orlando Zulueta in a 10-round overweight match in Muskegon to keep alive his hopes for another crack at lightweight king Joe Brown.

Zulueta opened up several cuts, one around Lane's right eye, and the Muskegon southpaw bled profusely but he carried the fight all the way and won by 49-42, 48-42 and 47-43 margins.

SHOEMAKER ABOARD

Tomy Lee by 3 in Rich Futurity

DEL MAR—Undefeated Tomy Lee strengthened his position as one of the three top juveniles in America Saturday by racing to a decisive victory in the 11th running of the $90,090 Del Mar Futurity.

The English-Bred colt, although he had not raced since the Hollywood meeting two months ago, demonstrated his class by running down the pacesetting Djebah in the backstretch and then fighting off the mild challenge of Royal Orbit in the stretch as he pulled away to victory by some three lengths for his sixth straight win since he came to the races last winter.

ABYC Continues Action in Summer-Fall Series

By BOB RUSKAUFF

In what looms as a major meet of 1958, inboard racers will settle two national class championships and possibly snare a world record or two, next Saturday and Sunday at Newport.

Event is the annual regatta on the N. Lido Channel of Newport Bay, conducted by the So. Calif. Speedboat Club.

Titles up are those in the E-Racing runabout class with Cream Puff (ex-Egad), defending, and in the gaudy Cracker Box class.

The E's will go in title heats on Saturday, the Crackers on Sunday.

* * * *

A TRIPLE array of major action is on today's sailing agenda:

1—Return sail of PC-Rhodes sloops from Avalon to Newport in the two-leg channel race which started Saturday off Balboa.

2—Conclusion, on ocean courses off Balboa, of the unique one-of-a-kind series, for picked skippers in some 25 different types of boats. They range in size from 12-foot Penguin dinghies to the Midget Ocean Racers and Rhodes-PC classes.

* * * *

ONCE AGAIN the fleets of Alamitos Bay YC break out canvas today in skirmishes of the long summer-fall championship series. The action will continue almost up to time of the ever-big Turkey Day Regatta—about the only event which lets sailors know that summer is over.

Hoover in Pin Lead

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dick Hoover of Akron, Ohio, jumped into first place in the George London $50,000 invitation bowling tourney Saturday night with a 12-game total of 2,513 pins.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Today's subject—fishing off the wharves in Long Beach Harbor—is highly controversial and certainly requires delicate handling by all concerned. Before you finish reading this column, some of you may want my scalp, along with the scalps of workers in the Harbor Department who have a difficult job to perform.

But let the chips fall where they may and, as the saying goes, pigs is pigs and can never grow into anything except hogs. That is not to infer that all fishermen are pigs—just some of them! Enough, I might add, to bring about regulations that affect all of us!

If you have been in the inner harbor area recently, you must have noticed the NO-FISHING signs in considerable numbers. When those signs first appeared, the telephone on my desk began to ring far more than I normally like. The callers—almost all of them—wanted those signs removed.

Once before, three or four years ago, I wrote a column in which I said that the docks were public property and that no one could rightfully prevent anglers from pursuing their sport even in the inner harbor. But that was before pigs!

THE ORIGINAL LAND GRANT transferring the harbor lands to the city contained a provision which read:

"Reserving, however, in the people of the State of California the absolute right to fish in the waters of said harbor, with the right to convenient access to said waters over said lands for said purpose."

That 1911 grant made it rather clear that any angler could go to the harbor and fish wherever he pleased.

Conditions in 1911, it must be admitted, were slightly different than those of today. In 1911, the harbor consisted of a few sand bars; now it handles great volumes of world trade over a network of docks.

Even so, up until just recently, harbor guards were winking—or looking the other way—when they found fishermen on the docks, even though those persons were endangering themselves and hampering workers loading or unloading ships.

It was at that point that the pigs took over. The vandals, although they might have been few, had to have their fun.

SUDDENLY GUARDS DISCOVERED that windows in warehouses were being broken, restroom locks pried off and debris scattered on docks. Some of the fishermen got the idea—as they seem to do everywhere—that they could drop their litter and hurry homeward, leaving the cleanup to others. Smelly bait, dead fish, papers and pieces of sandwiches were left and even the seagulls didn't want any part of it.

Even so, the guards still might have winked at that, too, except that fishermen were parking their cars on rail tracks, in private lots and generally interfering with harbor traffic.

The Harbor Department received letters from steamship operators, who complained of delays in sailings, in addition to numerous instances of vandalism. So the Harbor Department asked for a ruling.

"It shall be unlawful for any person to fish from or otherwise use in any manner, or for any vessel, or any owner, agent or operator thereof, to use in any manner any berth, wharf, wharf premises, or other area under the jurisdiction of the board without first securing an assignment so to do from the general manager."

That is substantially the same law which has been in effect in Los Angeles Harbor for many years.

SO WHERE DOES THAT LEAVE the angler who wants to try for mackerel, bonito, perch or other species off a dock? The law is very plain and it is going to remain that way because persons actually have endangered themselves and others by venturing into loading areas.

I looked up Thomas Thorley, assistant general manager of the Harbor Department. Briefly, here's what he said:

"We do not wish to stop people from fishing recreation, but the growth of the harbor has brought about so many changes that the city can not take chances with people's lives.

"If anything, we want to create more places where people may fish. It's a natural relaxation that is good for all of us.

"Please explain to your readers that while the inner harbor docks may be closed to them, there still are more than two miles of fishable wharves from Pierpoint Landing stretching to the east and even around toward Pacific Landing.

"Even along that shoreline, however, there may be times when guards will have to ask people to move because of constant maintenance operations connected with our harbor development and land subsidence.

"We hope with the eventual extension of Pierpoint that more space may be provided for the sportsfishermen."

ONE THOUGHT IN CLOSING: Meat hogs and vandals seem to be a small part of the general outdoor picture, but it is that small minority that brings trouble to all. In every instance where lands have been posted, it has been because the selfish few pursued their game without respecting the rights of property owners.

And getting back to the inner harbor law: What is written here won't change it, but I fervently hope that all fishermen who use what remaining wharf space we have left in such a way that the city officials will be happy to keep it set aside for such purposes.

Let's not be litterbugs on the highway, or on the ocean. Some boat operator could use that advice very wisely. Debris washing against our shores certainly is not any prettier than that along the shoulders of our highways.

OCEAN FISH SUMMARY

New schools of yellowtail that broke loose on the Horseshoe Kelp last week saved the fish count for Long Beach and kept the anglers happy. Just at a time when fishing interest generally slackens—it's always that way when Labor Day ends—the yellows whooped up the fever again and both Pierpoint and Pacific Landings reported increased passenger loads.

Prior to Saturday, the two main Long Beach landings reported these totals for five days: 2,378 fishermen, 628 yellowtail, 3,512 barracuda, 3 white sea bass, 1,047 bonito, 1,805 kelp bass, 8 bluefin tuna and 1,947 miscellaneous species. Jim Griffin, Compton, topped the list with his 45-pound yellow.

Other ports reporting:

SEAL BEACH—A four-day total showed 222 anglers catching 43 yellows, 385 barracuda, 3 white sea bass, 231 bonito, 47 kelp bass and 31 miscellaneous.

SAN DIEGO—Yellowtail were on the rampage at the Coronado Islands, with anglers getting more than $60 per day for almost three straight weeks. Five-day totals showed 2,044 fishermen catching 4,525 yellowtail, 1,407 barracuda, 4 white sea bass, 2 marlin, 1 bluefin tuna, 1 black sea bass, 1,087 bonito, 909 kelp bass and 38 miscellaneous.

SAN PEDRO (Norm's Landing)—Skippers here seemed to have the golden touch, accounting for 65 bluefin tuna at Catalina Island. A marlin hooked from a regular sportfishing boat also enlivened the week. The five-day totals: 879 anglers, 172 yellowtail, 2,521 barracuda, 5 white sea bass, 1,185 bonito, 2,132 kelp bass and 286 miscellaneous.

NEWPORT (Davy's Locker)—Three large black sea bass added to the excitement here. Other totals for five days: 729 anglers, 159 yellowtail, 1,342 barracuda, 103 white sea bass, 374 bonito, 361 kelp bass and 160 miscellaneous.

REDONDO—Five-day totals: 1,100 anglers, 97 yellowtail, 1,729 barracuda, 1,014 bonito, 367 kelp bass and 250 miscellaneous.

OCEANSIDE—Here again there was a good catch of white sea bass, plus more than 200 halibut. Five-day totals showed 915 anglers catching 34 yellowtail, 659 barracuda, 377 white sea bass, 2,702 bonito, 1,942 kelp bass and 554 miscellaneous.

FRESH-WATER ROUNDUP

Interest in fresh-water fishing declined considerably following the tremendous pressure put on all waters by the Labor Day weekenders. But fishing per angler continued to yield about the same in trout, bass, crappie and bluegill. In fact, with the pressure valve blown off, angling really seemed better.

Here's the way it looked:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—One of the best spots is Isabella Lake, now dropping rapidly, but yielding plenty of bluegill, crappie, bass and some trout. The Kern River above the lake continues fair to good for trout. Pinkerstone Reservoir still hot for catfish, with catches ranging from 3 to 11 pounds. Silver Lakes Ranch, a fish-and-pay resort north of Corona, yielding four or five trout per angler. Bluegill fishing remains as good as ever at Henshaw Lake, with bass, crappie and catfish rated as fair. Wohlford Lake's crappie just as inquisitive as ever and many partial limits found their way into the frying pans. Trout were on strike, but the bass and cats were rated fair to good. Irvine Lake, due to close at the end of the month, produced some nice bass catches ranging from 2 to 4 pounds. Crappie being taken by drifting method on Vee-Bee flies. Big Bear slowing down, but some limits still being taken by the smart anglers.

INYO-MONO—Comparatively speaking, many sections of the Sierras appeared almost deserted after Labor Day, but those who stayed had fair to excellent luck. Bridgeport Reservoir yielded its largest trout—a 7½-pounder—to a Los Angeles angler. June Lake was excellent for pan-size rainbows. Hot Creek very good for late-afternoon fly fishermen. Ditto for Rush Creek, but it took worms and eggs to take the big ones out of Robinson and Huckeye Creeks.

Another large trout was caught in the Upper Owens River by Lynn Adams of Eagle Rock, fishing with good old reliable worms. It weighed 12-2.

Near Bishop, Sabrina, North and South Lakes were excellent all week, with some 2-pounders being registered. Muriel and Upper Lost Lakes were good for limits of golden. Brookies were hitting well in Granite Lake.

A late-season slump seems to have hit the western slope of the Sierras, with few fish and warmer water everywhere.

MOTOR SPORTS ROUNDUP:

Catalina Swim Mark by Dr. Slater

Dr. Wilfred Slater, 51-year-old Long Beach surgeon, Saturday lowered his own Catalina-to-mainland amateur swim record by churning the 22-mile route in 14 hours 39 minutes.

It was the fourth consecutive year the veteran distance swimmer has successfully attempted the crossing. Army Capt. Robert Evans, trying the same route at the same time, was forced out of the water with severe cramps after nine hours.

Slater's time knocked a full hour off the record he set last year even though the water was described as "terribly rough." His time is one hour off the professional record for the route, which is held by Tom Park.

Slater plunged into the water at Catalina Island about 10 p.m. Friday and landed two miles east of Marineland at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Five Marks Fall in Jr. Olympics

Five more National Junior Olympic records went by the boards Saturday in the second day of competition of the Southern Section meet at Lakewood's Mayfair Pool.

After Saturday's activity, Kris Kristenson Swim School held first place with a 56½ point spread over second place Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Defending Champion Dolphin Swim Club trailed the field with 114 points.

Boyer Fidgets Over Reputation as Lover

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If change of pace is an actor's life blood, then Charles Boyer is the healthiest thespian alive.

Within one month Boyer played an aging general in "The Buccaneer," a role that has no romantic interest, and a torrid love scene on a beach with a Bikini-clad Brigitte Bardot.

That he was believable in both is a tribute to one of the most professional craftsmen in the business.

Boyer, as the middle-aged roue prince in "La Parisienne" who has an extra-marital affair with Bardot, is the Boyer best known to the public.

* * * *

BUT BOYER CRINGES at his great lover reputation.

"I never liked that reputation," he says with a smile, "and at my age I can't live up to it."

His role in "The Buccaneer" is more the way Boyer thinks of himself—a serious character actor. Anthony Quinn, the director, thinks so, too.

Quinn, in his first directorial job, urged Boyer to take the role of the aging general.

Since returning from the Bardot film, Boyer has become something of an expert on the subject of Brigitte.

* * * *

BOYER SAYS Brigitte is a very shy girl with a cultured background. She seldom talks to reporters, he says, because, quoting her:

"No matter what I might say, they'd all write that I greeted them with only my hat on. So what's the use?"

"Brigitte is a very nice girl," he adds.

Bringing Up Papa Gable

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable became a father when he married Kay Spreckels who had two children by a previous marriage. Now he is finding out the effect of movies on children.

"Our nine-year-old started pouring his milk all over his face the other day. I asked him 'How come?'

"He explained that he saw Kirk Douglas drink that way in 'The Vikings.' The next time he goes to a movie, I'm going to see it first."

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

OLD SOLDIER

NEW YORK—"That was a pretty tough war I was in," Red Buttons cackled the other day at Sardi's like some old Civil War vet.

Red wasn't speaking of the Oscar-winning war he fought with Marlon Brando in "Sayonara," nor of being a corporal again in "Imitation General." Red was speaking of the funniest war which he started fighting in a Broadway Air Force show called "Winged Victory," which eventually led him to Germany where he distinguished himself by selling Mickey Mouse watches to the Russians.

BUTTONS

"The things I did were ridiculous," he said, thinking back to the middle 1940s.

"Imagine picketing a captain because we wanted a weekend pass and he wouldn't give it to us!

"Henry Slater and I actually built picket signs which read 'UNFAIR TO PRIVATES!' and picketed him. Capt. John Gabriel was his name and he's now a big real estate man in New Jersey.

"That's when we were on location in Santa Monica making the picture. Did they punish us? Nah," laughed Red. "Everybody broke up. How can they punish idiots?"

Peter Lind Hayes, Lee Cobb, Ray Middleton, Edmund O'Brien, the Stroud Twins and several others were in that company.

"For maneuvers," Red recalled, "we had to capture the zoo."

* * * *

RED SAID that there was some opposition to actors' being put into shows, even for morale purposes, and that they had to go through the motions of having "basic training."

"They wouldn't issue us guns—we'd have killed somebody. But we had to capture the zoo all the same. We used peanuts and grapes at first. Then we came in with the heavy stuff—oranges and bananas."

One morning Red remembers very vividly—he remembers it more vividly each year.

"It was early in the morning as we swung marching down the street singing 'Off We Go!'" he said. "Old women came crying out of skyscrapers yelling 'God bless you and keep you alive.' Crowds on the curbs waved farewell to us. One old man who had the wars mixed up yelled 'Kill the Kaiser!' We marched bravely on—for we were going to Boston to open the show there."

* * * *

LATER RED WAS SENT to the Potsdam Conference to entertain. He met his first Russian soldiers.

"We found out you could put red-ink spots in the back of watches and make them look like jewels. The Russians were buying any watches from us they could get. I sold them one watch with 136 jewels."

Red looks forward to doing some TV this year with both Milton Berle and Jackie Gleason, as a guest.

"I think it's time to get a little fun back in the business," he said. "I hope both the boys are a smash."

He wants eventually to attempt another Red Buttons TV show—though he can't work on it now because he's become such a big hit in movies.

"I just got in from out-of-town," he told me, adding, "It's quite a trip down from the Bronx."

What is his next picture? He couldn't discuss it.

"But I think I'll ask for Marlon," he said.

Film Stars Ottumwa, Ia.

"Ottumwa, Iowa—USA," film telling the story of a typical Iowa community from pioneer days to the present era of modern living will be shown at the meeting of the Iowa Assn. of Long Beach Monday evening at Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. The program will follow a covered dish dinner at 6:30 p.m.

The film, sponsored by the United States Army Recruiting Service, has been shown over 385 television stations and has been nominated for the Freedom Foundation award of 1958. All Iowans, former Iowans, and relatives and friends of Iowans are invited.

What's Baker Doing There?

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The long-time international hit, "The Miracle," is getting an international cast.

The top talent in the multi-million-dollar Warners production includes Katina Paxinou from Greece, Walter Slezak from Austria, Vittorio Gassman from Italy, Gladys Cooper and Roger Moore from England and Carlos Rivas from Mexico.

The star: Carroll Baker, American.

Admission Day Program Set

Observing Admission Day, County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy, a California native, will address Methodist Men of Grace Methodist Church at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the church. His subject will be "California, Then, Today and Tomorrow."

His talk will deal principally with California's water problem. President Lorne Middough will preside.

Jimmy's Hooked This Time

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jimmy Stewart made a fisherman out of his wife—and it's very embarrassing. She's getting all the big ones.

The lanky actor interrupted a deepsea fishing trip this week to start production on "The FBI Story."

"For once I was glad to quit fishing and start a picture," he says. The reason: While Jimmy was hauling in puny mackerel, Mrs. Stewart was hooking giant marlin.

"Last year we were in Acapulco," Stewart tells, "and Gloria hooked a 12-foot sailfish, fought him for awhile—with no assistance from me—and then landed him all by herself.

* * * *

"WE DOCKED and she had her picture taken with the big fish while I held mine behind my back so no one would take a picture of me. Then to really rub it in, she said she wanted to have the fish stuffed and sent to our house in Beverly Hills.

"I told her you can't have that sort of thing done down in Mexico but some local character spoke up and said it could be done with a down payment and the rest paid on delivery.

"I handed him $80, with a wink, and figured that would be the last time I would see him, the money or the fish—and it was worth it. But six months later, I come home one night and find a package as big as a house in my front yard.

"We had to take the door down to get it in. It was the fish all right, stuffed and ready to hang. So far we haven't found a wall wide enough to hang it—and the fish, thank heavens, is down in the basement where I'm not reminded of it.

"But Gloria is talking about adding a trophy room onto the house so we can hang that fish on the wall. And I taught her how to fish."

Rock and Wry

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Red Skelton has his own definition of an alcoholic.

"It's a guy you don't like who drinks as much as you do."

He had lived in Long Beach and the surburban area intermittently since 1933. Service for Varney was held Saturday in Dilday Chapel.

10,000 STUDENTS EXPECTED

State College Adds 57 to Its Faculty

Long Beach State College will employ 57 new instructors for the fall term opening Sept. 22, swelling the full-time faculty ranks to 330, executive dean David L. Bryant announced Saturday.

In addition, some 60 part-time persons will be called upon — all necessary to provide adequate instruction for the whopping 10,000 anticipated enrollment.

Last year State met its 8,438 student body with a full-time staff of 282 and 70 part time.

Instructors hail from hither and yon.

California leads the roll call with 24. Twenty states and four countries outside the United States are represented.

Glenn H. Stewart, professor of business, is leaving his consultantship with the U. N. in Ankara, Turkey.

From the Paris American High School, France, comes Mary Kefgen, assistant professor of home economics.

The University of Manitoba, Canada, will supply Jagdish Mehra, assistant professor of physics.

Keith A. Dixon joins the group as an assistant professor of anthropology, leaving the New World Archaeological Foundation of Orinda, Calif., and Chiapas, Mexico.

Thirty-two have their PhD's or Doctorates or Education; the remainder have their advanced degree in progress.

WHY BE A TENANT? Many excellent home-buys at easy terms in the Classified ads.

Jewish School of Traditions Opens Rosters

Keeping Jewish cultural traditions alive is the aim of the Long Beach Children's School which is accepting registrations for the fall term. Mrs. Milton R. Beychok, 2725 Nipoma Ave., is in charge of registrations.

Classes will begin Saturday. Children from 6 to 12 are welcome, according to the group's president, Mrs. Edith Beychok.

Songs, dances and history of the Jewish people are taught at the school. Students from Lakewood, Bellflower, Los Altos and other communities in the Long Beach area may attend.

Plan Four Concerts in Season

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent-Press-Telegram Women's Editor

If you not only like good music but also enjoy seeing the world's finest musicians in action, then you'll make plans right now to attend the four concerts in Long Beach this winter and spring by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Some of the world's finest conductors will be on the podium and some of the world's greatest artists will perform in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium.

Concert dates as set up with Miss Alice Taylor, orchestra manager, by our Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Assn., of which Mrs. William P. Ellery is concert chairman, are: Nov. 23 with Eugen Jochum, conductor, and Rudolf Firkusny, pianist; Feb. 15, Sir John Barbirolli conducting; March 22, Erich Leinsdorf, conductor, Nathan Milstein, violinist; and April 26, Georg Solti, conductor, Nan Merriman, mezzo-soprano.

The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, considered one of the finest in the world, is composed of 100 musicians who perform over a period of 24 weeks each season throughout Southern California. Season ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Ellery, 31 The Colonnade, or Mrs. Howard Coy, 36 Virgil Walk.

* * * *

THE CONDUCTORS this year, each of a different nationality and musical background, will show diversification of repertoire and interpretation that should please the most discriminating music devotee.

Eugen Jochum, who will conduct Nov. 23, is considered one of Europe's foremost conductors and is at present music director of the Munich Orchestra and Opera. Appearing the same evening will be Czechoslovakian pianist Rudolf Firkusny, who, since 1941, has made an annual tour of the United States. A student of Artur Schnabel, he has performed with almost every major symphony in America.

Sir John Barbirolli, conductor for the Feb. 15, 1959, concert, has been music director of the famed Halle Orchestra in Manchester, England, the past 15 years. He left a long engagement with the Los Angeles Philharmonic to accept this post and prior to that was conductor of the Scottish Symphony Orchestra. In the mid-30s he was invited to succeed Arturo Toscanini as conductor of the New York Symphony Philharmonic.

* * * *

CONDUCTOR Erich Leinsdorf, scheduled for the March 22, 1959, concert has been prominent in opera and symphony for many years. From the Met (where he currently is one of the leading conductors) Leinsdorf went to the Cleveland Symphony. After service in the Army, he became music director of the Rochester Philharmonic.

The Austrian-born maestro has conducted the Los Angeles Philharmonic a number of times. On the same program will be the Russian-American violin virtuoso, Nathan Milstein, who made his concert debut at the age of 10 in Odessa, Russia, playing the concerto by Alexander Glazounoff with the composer conducting. In his late teens Milstein formed a team with pianist Vladimir Horowitz and together they toured Russia and Europe. Later they joined with Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, and toured as a trio. History shows that they emerged from this ensemble playing as three of the world's foremost artists.

Milstein, a naturalized American citizen, remains at the pinnacle with the great instrumentalists of the present day.

For the fourth concert on April 26, 1959, Georg Solti will conduct. He is known in this area through his appearances with the San Francisco Opera, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in both the winter and summer Hollywood Bowl concerts. After conducting three bowl concerts this summer, he returned to his post as music director of the Frankfort Opera and symphony season. He will be back for 15 concerts during the 40th season.

NAN MERRIMAN, mezzo soprano, will appear with Solti at this final event. She is another Californian who has been acclaimed internationally as an artist of the first rank. Her singing career began in Los Angeles and after several minor roles in bowl opera performances, her career moved upward rapidly. Now her name is known around the world for she has appeared with marked success in concerto, oratorio and opera in leading music centers of Europe.

Miss Merriman has been chosen by Eduard Van Beinum, music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic and Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestras for important solo engagements in Holland.

It's time now for music lovers to plan on an outstanding season of great music right here in Long Beach.

Style Show at Luncheon

A "Memory Book of Fashions" will high light the fall opening of Long Beach Chapter, Council of Jewish Women, at noon luncheon Tuesday in the Cavalier Room, Lafayette Hotel.

Mrs. Jack Ross, program chairman, will narrate high lights in the life of Hanna Solomon and will present the fashion show. Participating will be Mmes. Robert Feldman, L. R. Altman, Reuben Golub, Max Siegel, A. J. Laitz, Louis Wechsler, J. S. Lebovitz, Robert Abraham, Alvin Morrow, H. M. Stein, F. D. Rogovin, Edward Kramer, Howard Amos and Miss Diane Ross.

Mrs. Morris Freedland will preside at the session. Members and guests may make reservations with Mrs. Freedland or Mrs. George Feldman.

SELLING TICKETS to concerts in Long Beach by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra poses no problem for these industrious members of Southern California Symphony Association, Mrs. Betty Benwell, left, roster chairman, Mrs. William P. Ellery, concert chairman, and Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker, president of Long Beach Auxiliary to the Association. The orchestra plays four concerts here each season at Municipal Auditorium, beginning this year on Nov. 23.—(Staff Photo.)

SIR JOHN BARBIROLLI, music director of the famed Halle Orchestra in Manchester, England, will be guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in concert here on Feb. 15, 1959, in Municipal Auditorium.

ASSISTING THE Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Association in setting up the four concerts scheduled in Long Beach this season by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra is Miss Alice Taylor, left, orchestra manager. She is shown with Mrs. Howard Coy, assistant concert chairman for the local group. Season ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Coy, 36 Virgil Walk, or Mrs. William P. Ellery, 31 The Colonnade.—(Staff Photo.)

Junior Leaguers Vacation

Enjoying a change of pace at various vacation spots around the country this summer are members of the Junior League of Long Beach.

Lake Arrowhead has been a popular spot and among those who enjoyed the beautiful scenery and had a wonderful time were Shirley and Chuck Planting and their Susie and Scott, Barbara and Tom Rowan with Diana and Susan, and Caroline and Bill Wagner with Billy, Caroline and Willis.

Some of the "lucky" ones to have spent time in Las Vegas include Rosemarie and Jim Frew, Joanne and Dick Barry, Jane and Bill Began, Bev and Dick Matlock, and Waula and Siebert Pearson.

Marie and Ed Platz took Peggy and Jimmy to Sprucedale Ranch for two weeks. This popular spot in the White Mountains just out of Springerville, Ariz., was also the first stop on a trip for Eleanore and Harold Nissen and Andy and Carolyn. Then they continued to Grand Canyon, Bryce and Zion National Parks.

* * * *

LIZ AND Don Wallace have been visiting her family in their lovely summer home at Idlewild. Jo Ann Parks left in August for Flagstaff, Ariz., where she has been a counselor at Camp Tocaloma. Dorothy Deatherage spent a month south of the border really seeing Mexico.

Barbara and Chester Moore started the summer with a trip back to Baldwin, Kan., locale of Baker University, to help celebrate the 100th anniversary of that school and to visit relatives in Kansas City and Creston, Iowa. Since their return, localities have seen very little of them for they are gone to Catalina

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

OUR TRUSTY little feathered tattler who tells all claims he got caught in a swinging cage door last week and that's why he was late with some of his news. Personally we think he stopped off for a long birdseed hour with some canary. At any rate a couple of his scoops were pretty good so we'll overlook the time element and tell them just as he repeated them to us. For instance. . . .

"Birdseed, Extra Dry"

THIS IS THE kind of story that keeps you awake nights with jealous insomnia. Seems Gladys Vyverberg went over to Las Vegas the other day for a little Nevada recreation. She was in the Fremont Hotel just ready to walk across the street to meet Fran and Jack Hott for dinner. Her last silver dollar was resting heavily in her purse so she just plopped it in the nearest $1 machine and practically without pausing started for the door. A witness called her attention to the four silver companions which had dropped into the cup so she scooped them up and put one more back in. Bingo! $100 jackpot. Whew! Try once more. Bongo! Another jackpot for the same amount.

Then, caught in the spirit of the game for sure, she dropped two or three more into place before the impossible happened and she made solid connection with the $200 jackpot. Yep; all from the same machine, now resting, undoubtedly, on some windswept boothill for careless one armed bandits. Taking her cue from the generous slot machine, Gladys shared her winnings and, before she ever left the hotel, sent a goodly portion to a favorite nephew in San Francisco paralyzed with polio.

ANOTHER wish-we'd-known-earlier newsaroo concerned "Smitty" Smith who was here on business from Mexico City, Juanita didn't come up this trip but will be here when they both return for a visit in December. All was not keeping the home fires burning, however, for Mrs. Smith who had the pleasure of entertaining Diane Steveson during the absence of Mr. S. Diane stopped off after summer school sessions at Guadalajara before returning here in time to welcome husband, Jim, back into civilian life after the Army's version. They're busy getting into the swing of housekeeping now at 214 Roycroft Ave. before school bells bring an end to Diane's full-time homemaking and she begins her first year as a school ma'rm.

WATCH FOR a new blue Mercedes (with upholstery as red as a Gabor's lipstick) now bringing a razzle dazzle look to Long Beach streets. Owners Engle and Neil Randolph may have a little trouble keeping their continental garage guest on the right side of the white line; having driven it all around Europe on the left for more than two months during their summer tour with son, Julian, and Johnny Glover (he dispenses Spanish lessons at Millikan Alta Escuela). The Randolphs were on hand Tuesday to meet their German-born petrol burner when it arrived by ship at the local harbor and immediately put it in a merchanitarium to recuperate from freighter bumps before sallying forth with it this weekend.

"IF YOU'VE never been over there you should really go sometime. They have six swimming pools, five different type restaurants, one snack bar, 38 shops, a theater and many other attractions." Now we ask you, is a guy who talks like that just before returning to Honolulu (the Hawaii Village Hotel, to be specific) for the second time in one summer—is he practicing to become a press agent or a fomenter of rebellion among the working classes? That was the gist of Barrister Bob White's "cheery" farewell Wednesday night as he enplaned for the sands of Waikiki to join wife, Loyce, and the children who have all been over there since July 20 (rubbing elbows with Tony Martin and Tennessee Ernie Ford and their families). The idyll ends Sept. 16 when they come back to earth, mainland style.

WAY-WE-HEARD-It-Dep't: When Alma McFarland, president of L. B. Children's Theater, and Sally Nesmith, a charter sparkplug of the group, returned Sunday from national conference in Seattle of such civic children's theater organizations, they had a death grip on first prize, won by the Long Beach unit, and smiles on their faces as radiant as if they had just heard St. Peter say, "Come on inside, girls!" The silver trophy, most prized of the national meet, has previously been held only by Seattle and Omaha.

THE "DON'T TAKE My 'Jack', I Promised Mother I'd Never Gamble" Bridge, Lunching and Chatting Society met at the University Club last weekend as guests, this time, of Beth Williams. Among the "Queens" competing for kings that day were Beth Carey, Nancy Lough, Lucille Garver, Virginia Faris, Rosie Belcher, Noel Hodges, Gladee Jewett, Betty Clark, Gladys King and Betty Barden. And after 12 years of getting together for this sort of thing, what they don't know about each others' kings isn't worth the booby prize.

THE TEN merriest days of summer ended for Betty Ann and Gene Kirkpatrick and their children when they returned to regular labor days on Labor Day from the Kirkpatrick family aerie on the shores of Lake Arrowhead. Lots of company added to the fun. During the week guests included Carol and Jim Hoagland and their daughters, Betty Ann's father, S. G. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart of San Mateo, and Doris and Dr. Dick McCoy, Diane and Doug, of Newport. Last Sunday the gang really "rolled in" for an all-day picnic on the beach with plenty of water skiing to heighten appetites. Picnickers included Sandy and Don Gill and Kim, Jean and Ed Conrady and their two, Lahoma and Bill Smith with their two, Veronica and "Marv" Tincher and their three (up for the weekend at the Tincher cabin) and Mary and Bob Lintz with Susan.

THERE WERE a couple of times when we don't see how being in the middle of a shootin' war could have tingled spines belonging to Ethel Severson, son "Corky," or her parents, "Artie" and Al Stevenson much more than during their four-month tour of Europe this summer.

"Part of Tour?"

Take, for instance, the week they stayed at the Grande Bretgne Hotel in Athens, occupying rooms adjoining those of exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus, whose life is constantly in danger. There were soldiers lurking everywhere to guard him—mirrors placed strategically so assassins, attempting to come near any entrance could be spotted from any angle—and always a glowering ex-Cyprian commando sitting at a grand piano by the elevators ready to "play" a secret warning if some fool attempted to enter by conventional means. See such a scene in the movies and you'd laugh your head off at the phony scene. But, according to Ethel, it didn't feel very phony at the time.

Another incident to disconcert the most stalwart was when they were stalled on the one and only road (high in the Pyrenees between Spain and France) connecting the tiny Republic of Andora with the rest of the world. So remote there's just no traffic to speak of which accounts for their 2½-hour wait in blizzard weather until help could be summoned. Lots of other times, though, interesting and gay, to offset eerie ones.

IF THIS year's new batch of Dames Club members don't feel welcome after last night they just aren't the kind of dames who enjoy parties. With their husbands they were guests at the second party of the summer in their honor, this one taking place at Mary Edna and Floyd Williams home, 1121 Claiborne Dr. Cocktails at 5 and lawn games until dinner. Maurice Giffin, present with husband, Glen, chairmanned the informal affair. Among those being catered to (literally and figuratively) were Marge and Harry Stafford, Gerry and Don Hazard, Prexy Caroline and Sterling Blakeman, Ginny and Bob Hall, Betty and Bob Frankenfeld, Madeline and Glen Horrie, Millie and Bill Berry, Gwen and Dean Jones, Ann and Bob Croxson, Camilla and Jim La Gregs, Beverly and Jim Gardner, Barbara and George Powell and about that many more.

ACROSS THE channel deeps for a boating rendezvous at Emerald Bay, Catalina, went members of the Long Beach Outboard Club last weekend. A few of the gang we heard followed in the wake of Commodore Bill Winston and wife, Nance, were Kadey and Harry Kemp, Peg and Bud Sjolund, Florence and Paul Fillinger, the Kelly Williams, Dottie and Frank Bartha, Nellie and John Cataldo, Edna and Fred Cleary and Evelyn and Robert Cox. Yo-ho-ho and a barbecued steak on the beach.

They Feed Fussy 'Family'

By JEAN B. MOORE

Wonder how you'd like to feed a family, practically every member of which demands a different diet. One gets butter on his potatoes; another wants margarine; one has to have her meat cut fine, another doesn't want it at all.

Pride in your work won't let you consciously repeat a menu, ever.

Multiply the average family of four by 15 and you have 60 persons whose likes and dislikes you're expected to cater to.

Enough to make a person throw up her hands and head for the tules, never to return, isn't it?

* * * *

BUT IT'S WITH a quiet efficiency born of long experience that Leatrice Muirhead does just that, even to serving truffles on request.

The unruffled Miss Muirhead is chief dietitian for Harriman Jones Clinic and Hospital, and has been for almost 25 years. In the early days of the young establishment, she had plenty of time to market personally for the patients. Nowadays, she admits she really doesn't have the time, but she can't give up the habit of selecting the finest and freshest foods herself.

She shops for the 45 patients and 15 staff members every Tuesday and Saturday. "I can do it in two hours if I rush," she says, adding emphatically, "and I do."

Her '57 Chevrolet takes her on a wide circuit in her semi-weekly quest. From a responsible farmer she gets garden-fresh produce; a wholesale house is another call; so is a fresh fish market. Meat for the day is selected from another market. (On non-market days it is delivered).

The groceries, piled high in her car, ride to the clinic parking lot in style and are carried to the kitchen by attendants.

* * * *

IF THE PROOF is in the eating, then all the efforts of the dietitian are worthwhile. Patients rave over the meals. Many ask for recipes. Most sought after is the French dressing recipe that Miss Muirhead got from a little old lady on a train. It was specialty of a Minnesota inn.

Only rarely does a person complain. A wealthy Reno man became ill on his yacht and was hospitalized here. Nothing, absolutely nothing, satisfied him. Observers believed nothing, absolutely nothing, ever would!

One woman patient craved mushrooms under glass, like she'd had in England. Miss Muirhead couldn't come up with the glass dome, but the mushrooms were tastier than the British version, the patient declared.

Another patient was accustomed to having a sandwich every day with each meal, and being hospitalized wasn't going to change that, she insisted, so she had her sandwich, along with the full meal.

* * * *

CATERING TO ALL these whims-within-reason requires a file system studiously kept by Miss Muirhead and her assistant, Rowena McLean. Each meal is written down for each individual every day. A scribbled "ch fine" may indicate to the Muirhead-McLean combination that a patient's dentures are poor and the meat should be chopped fine.

Such personal attention to preference pays off in an economic way besides giving gastronomic pleasure to the patient and inner satisfaction to the dietitian. There never are any leftovers.

Diet consulting and menu preparing is the dietitian's job; the cooking is done by four women who came from or reared large families and love to cook. Seven other helpers have kitchen duties other than the actual cooking. Their chief pleasure is arranging and serving the patients themselves, then returning to the kitchen with comments from the sickroom that often verge on the ecstatic. Often during mealtime Miss Muirhead and Miss McLean visit patients to answer requests—and get in a bit of the praise themselves.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH THE dietitians do most of their work from a small office, they are thoroughly familiar with the kitchen operation. Miss Muirhead sighs wistfully and expresses her dream—to have a bigger kitchen with all shiny new equipment.

The Misses Muirhead and McLean are enthusiastic exceptions to the theory that dietitians often dislike cooking. The Canadian Miss McLean interned at the Mayo Clinic (yes, dietitians intern too). This is her first job. She loved to cook at home, especially desserts, and is building a file of recipes.

Her "chief" makes a hobby of collecting cook books and recipes from here and there. Gourmet foods are her specialty when cooking for friends.

Before serving a new dish at the hospital, both she and Miss McLean give the recipe a whirl at home.

Before you get the impression their life is one round of testing, tasting and eating, remember these two women are first, last and always dietitians, smart enough to take their own medicine (i.e. sensible diets!)

Trophy Dinner for Yachters

Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's Penguin Fleet's annual trophy dinner will be held at the clubhouse, 5437 E. Ocean Blvd. at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. (Fleet Capt.) Arthur J. Beland and Mrs. Beland's home at 5615 Naples Canal will be the locale for a cocktail party preceding the dinner.

Skipper and crew, boy and girl Penguin figures, will top a huge decorated sheet cake, which also will carry the fleet's initials, done in frosting, and will center the buffet table.

Mrs. James V. Shirley is dinner chairman, with Mrs. Stanley Hunter in charge of reservations. Mr. and Mrs. Roland Shutt are co-chairmen of decorations and trophies.

A battery of blazing barbecues will line the deck, where steaks will be cooked for the main course. Assisting in the dinner preparations will be Mmes. Hal Ewing, Max Smith, Frederick C. Tebbetts and Palmer Wentworth.

Kind of Tonic It's a Pleasure 'to Take'!

Best tonic for tired spirits is a party like the one Helen and Edson Davis will host Thursday — a cocktail buffet from 6 until 9. Just ask any doctor—especially one who will be there—and if they prescribe it for themselves the other guests can expect to end the evening feeling like a million.

"Beats Penicillin"

Assisting dispense party medicine to the approximately 150 guests bidden will be Haldis and Dr. Francis Hertzog, Sally and Dr. Dick De Golia, Bettye and Decatur Mitchell, Dr. Milton Van Dyke (Sallie will be present but taking it easy, her broken leg still not quite ready to carry her mingling-walking) and Virginia Mitchell.

Yep. That's the kind of medication that would be marvelous any night just before bedtime!

Plan Mass as Silver Year Fete

The silver wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. John Victor Malouf of Long Beach will be observed Saturday at a Silver Anniversary Wedding Mass in Our Lady of the Lake Catholic Church, Lake Arrowhead. The prominent local pair was married by Fr. Robert Lucey, now Archbishop of San Antonio, in 1933. He is planning to attend the celebration.

Attending Dr. and Mrs. Malouf at the mass will be their daughter, Mrs. Betty Jane Rodecker, widow of Maj. Rodecker, and Dr. Victor S. Zahn Sr. Altar boys will be Wallace Rodecker Jr., their grandson, and Victor Zahn, great-nephew, while flower girls will be Tina Rodecker, granddaughter, and Valerie Zahn, great-niece.

Among the many family and friends planning to attend will be Mr. and Mrs. Jubert G. Malouf and family of Hollywood, Fla., brother of Dr. Malouf. All the relatives, including 32 grand-nieces, nephews and grandchildren, between the ages of 1 and 15, will be guests of the Maloufs at Arrowhead Inn for the weekend.

Paula Chace Honored

Among the year's gayest medley of pre-wedding parties concluded last evening with the wedding rehearsal dinner party at Virginia Country Club for Miss Paula Chace and Ralph Irwin Jr. who are to exchange marriage vows in a late afternoon ceremony today at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Chace, 4160 Country Club Dr.

Among affairs which have preceded today's nuptials was a tea and lawn party given by Mrs. Milo Dick at her home, 1061 Burlinghall Dr., with co-hostesses Mrs. Ralph Webster and Mrs. Harold Johnson. Decorations in an exquisite bridal motif were carried out in white and gentle shades of pink. Guests and the hostesses presented Miss Chace with place settings in each of her chosen patterns in china, crystal and silver.

* * * *

ON THE evening of this same August day Miss Patsy Ziegler of Los Angeles and Steven Dewey (her fiance at that time; now her husband since their marriage last week) entertained at a barbecue dinner for both Miss Chace and her fiance at the Ziegler's home. Guests, all sorority sisters and fraternity brothers of the honorees, presented the couple with a barbecue set and incidental equipment. The new Mrs. Dewey, who asked Miss Chace to serve as one of her bridesmaids at her wedding, will, in turn, join the bridal entourage today.

Another in the potpourri of beautiful parties honoring the popular bride-elect was a luncheon and miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Francis Heusel and Mrs. Lowell Hill at the latter's home in Rolling Hills. Guests were seated at tables in the garden, canopied from the bright sun, with its panoramic view of coastline and ocean. While Paula opened her many gifts each of the approximately 50 guests was given a tea towel to hem and embroider with the honoree's initial—an activity that added a fillip to the afternoon and will keep the newlyweds provided with tea towels for a long time to come!

* * * *

A PARTY for family members in honor of both Paula and Ralph was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Chace in their Rolling Hills home with co-hosts Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Chace, Mr. and Mrs. Mertroe Hillinger and Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Sigworth. The informal garden barbecue dinner was mirrored in the clever decorations. Each table was centered by a bride and bridegroom, completely sculptured in vegetables.

Wednesday Mrs. V. Ray Townsend, the bride-elect's sister, honored Paula and her bridesmaids by hostessing the bridesmaids' luncheon at Balboa Bay Club. Present were members of the wedding party, Mmes. Steven Dewey, Robert Wells (nee Mary Calderwood), Melvin Rowan (nee Judy Rupert), Donald Wells, Miss Barbara Tuohy of La Canada and Miss Lois Baker as well as Mrs. Jerry O'Malley, Mrs. Al Sassower, Mrs. Donald Withers and Miss Beverly Davis, who will be assisting hostesses at tonight's reception.

Tuesday Luncheon

Women's Auxiliary to the Typographical Union will combine Charter Day and Union Label party on Tuesday at a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth West, 5980 Stearns St. Mrs. Ruth Sharts, delegate to the international convention recently in San Francisco, will give her report. Charter members will be special guests.

Grace M. Hoffman

Plan Gala Affair for OES Grand Matron

For Mrs. Grace M. Hoffman, 601 Terraine Ave., now nearing the end of her year's term as worthy grand matron, Order of Eastern Star, for the State of California (the first Long Beach woman ever to attain this high post) the next few weeks will find her showered with honors.

Among the most gratifying will be the fourth and final reception given by her own Esther Chapter at Millikan High School Auditorium, Snowden Ave. and Spring St., next Saturday at 8 p.m. All Eastern Stars, guests and friends are cordially invited to be present.

* * * *

MRS. HOFFMAN, who estimates she has driven 150,000 miles on official OES business during the past five years, will climax her year on Oct. 20 when she presides over 8,000 delegates who will convene in Sacramento. She was elected associate grand conductress in 1955 and progressed through the line to her present post as leader of 165,000 members in the 601 Eastern Star chapters of California.

* * * *

ONE OF Mrs. Hoffman's most treasured memories of her year in office was attending the General Grand Chapter in Philadelphia and reporting California OES work which includes maintenance of a home for their elderly members; donation of 25 regular scholarships annually plus five scholarships for religious training; give around $40,000 annually to benevolent projects; and are extremely active in aid to cancer victims including an average expenditure of $75,000 annually to members and their immediate families who are stricken with the disease.

Miss Cottrell Bride

Catherine Cottrell, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John C. Cottrell of Long Beach, was married to a University of Colorado classmate, Robert Anthony Salerno, in a late-afternoon ceremony Aug. 25 in picturesque St. Thomas Aquinas Chapel in Boulder, Colo.

Dr. and Mrs. Cottrell traveled to Colorado for the ceremony, with Dr. Cottrell giving his daughter in marriage. She wore for her wedding a bouffant ballerina-length gown of candlelight chiffon designed with round neckline and jabot of the same fabric. She wore a tiny crown of satin encircled with pink roses and velvet leaves, and carried sweetheart roses.

Miss Linda L. McKinney was the bride's only attendant. She wore a waltz-length gown of bachelor button blue peau de soie with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of champagne carnations.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Salerno of Trinidad, Colo., had Norbert Shew as his best man.

Friends and family members gathered following the ceremony at the Matterhorn to toast the newlyweds at a champagne reception and wedding supper. Hostess was Miss Janet E. Cottrell of San Francisco.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Glenwood Springs, Colo., and will reside in Boulder while both continue studies at the university. The bride, a graduate of Wilson High School here, is a Gamma Phi Beta at U of Colorado. Her husband received early schooling in Trinidad and is a letterman on the university's varsity football team.

Lakewood Village Community Church was the setting when 400 guests attended the afternoon wedding of Miss Mona Kay Haberman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry E. Haberman, 4420 Hazelbrook Ave., and Walter Ray Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Babcock, 5802 Parkcrest St.

White satin rope was garlanded from candelabra to baskets of flowers in peony pink tones, matching the rope garlands and flowers on the aisle.

Pure white imported French lace was worn by the bride. The empire bodice of the princess-style grown was accented by velvet which formed a back bow and streamers falling gracefully beyond the chapel train.

Her fingertip-length gown of illusion was caught to a lace double crown adorned with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white butterfly orchids and stephanotis interspersed with velvet leaves and ribbon.

* * * *

FOR HER maid of honor, the bride chose Miss Charlene Anthony of Sidney, Neb. Bridal attendants were Mrs. James P. Nielsen and Misses Judy Cochran, Lynne McColloch, and Betheen Smith.

They were attired in pink satin empire-style gowns with full skirts gathered to a bow at the front hemline. The maid of honor's gown was identical in a vivid peony pink. Velvet and tulle hats trimmed with pearls, and pink baskets of roses in harmonizing shades complemented their gowns.

Little Lida Lockwood, flower girl, wore a frock of white organdy over pink.

The groom asked his brother, Jon, to be best man. Guests were seated by Messrs. Robert Good, Monte Haberman, William Kleese and Robert Mallory. Candlelighters were the bride's young brother, Merrill, and Robert Chaffee.

Solemn wedding vows were recited by Hazelle Gytri Borgerson and Richard Franklin Enarson in a recent double-ring ceremony witnessed by 125 guests in Trinity Lutheran Church. The Rev. Orval Awerkamp officiated.

The bride was escorted to the altar by Fred Lugenbehl. She selected for her nuptials a ballerina-length dress of Chantilly lace over French net. Her shoulder-length veil was caught to a small pearl tiara and she carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white Bible.

Preceding her down the aisle were her matron of honor, Mrs. Marshall Stonestreet, and her bridesmaid, Mrs. Hank Groff. Both were gowned in mint green taffeta with matching headpieces and shoes and carried white carnation bouquets.

* * * *

THE BRIDEGROOM asked Dr. Marshall Stonestreet to serve him as best man and Jerry Syverson, Dr. Dean Syverson and George Smith to usher.

Others whom we will miss for the next few months are Dottie and Willie Chapman who are leaving in early September for six months in Honolulu and the islands. Salley and Dick are most enthusiastic about this plan and so glad that Daddy found a way to combine business and pleasure.

Peg and Dave Hart are moving to New York and their many, many friends are sorry to lose them, but saying goodby with good grace and gala parties.

Among the campers this year were the Merrells, Shirley and John, who picked the Redlands area, Margaret and Bob Mahanna who covered Northern California, Mary and Tom Kiddie who spent two weeks at Yosemite with their children, and Dick De Golia who took Ricky on a pack trip.

PANHELLENIC PLOTTERS

Half circle of Panhellenic members is expected to blossom into a full contingent of members and guests Sept. 20 at a fashion show and luncheon in the ballroom of Lafayette Hotel. Advance preparations are made by, from left, Marilyn Ankrom, Polli Hoard, Marilyn Wells, Marcia Arnold, Mrs. Jack T. Gentry, show chairman; Barbara Shira, Mrs. Richard J. Hoard, in charge of junior hostesses, and Jacki Sosic.—(Staff Photo.)

'Fanfare of Fashion' Set by Style-Conscious Women

Although Septembers in Southern California often are sizzling, fashion-minded women look with interest to fall apparel, knowing that cooler breezes lurk ahead. Heralding a "Fanfare of Fashion," Long Beach City Panhellenic aims to answer fashion queries at a luncheon and fashion show Sept. 20 in the grand ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel.

Newest fashions from Vinson's will be modeled by both professional models and members of Panhellenic, including Mmes. Jack W. Knowlton, Joseph Kellogg, John Dillard and Weldon H. Long. Wilma Hastings' informative commentary will add a touch of glamour.

An additional fanfare will be initiated at the annual event—the first model of each group of fashions will be escorted by a handsomely attired model from John Norman's Store for Men.

* * * *

FUNDS RAISED by the event, the only Panhellenic money-making project of the year, are used for scholarships given each year to Long Beach-area girls attending Long Beach State College.

Mrs. Jack T. Gentry, general chairman, is being assisted by Mmes. Fred A. Wright, program and music; Joseph Kellogg, ticket distribution; James Shively, reservations; Jack W. Knowlton, awards; John Dollard, decorations; Robert Day, favors, and Richard J. Hoard, junior hostessess.

The junior hostesses, undergraduates of Long Beach State College, are Misses Polli Hoard, Carolyn Hauer, Marilyn Hauer, Marilyn Ankrom, Becky Downes, Paula Turner, Pat Worden, Judy Hamner, Cecilia Moore, Marilyn Wells, Arlene Crowley, Carol Sue Swepston, Marcia Arnold, Barbara Robertson, Rosellnd Schilling, Barbara Shira, Shirley Graham and Nancy Synisky.

UN Night for Pythian Sisters

"Ambassadors" from groups throughout District 23 have been bidden to the United Nations night celebration of Pythian Sisters 63 at 8 p.m. Monday in Machinists Building.

Expected are delegates from Temples in Tustin, Wilmington, Bellflower, Redondo, North Long Beach and Lakewood.

Community Hospital Group Makes Another Big Donation

The Long Beach Community Hospital Auxiliary has donated $1,500 to the hospital. The gift completes the auxiliary's pledge to pay for the furnishings of the lounge and lobby of Community's new convalescent wing.

The auxiliary, organized less than two years ago, has given the hospital more than $6,500 for new equipment and furnishings, says Mrs. Charles Mutter, treasurer. Funds are raised through the operation of a gift shop in the hospital and a Christmas decor tour of four Long Beach homes.

This year's homes tour will be Dec. 4. Mrs. John Worthington, chairman of the tour, announced that three homes have been selected for this year at the present time.

Mrs. Howard Dumm's home, 1052 Andrews Dr., will be the setting for a traditional Christmas. Christmas decorations arranged to blend with an antique setting will be shown at the W. A. Nesbitt home, 4315 Myrtle Ave. A modern Christmas will be portrayed at home of Mrs. Hal Moore, 1105 La Dera Ave.

All of the decorations shown on the tour will be for sale as well as a large number of handicraft gifts made by members of the auxiliary.

Your Best Friend May Tell You . . .

¶ "So-and-So has amazing bargains in furs!" That is your moment for great caution. Your best friend may be well-intentioned, but is she a fur expert? Remember, it takes long years to know furs. Often fur names are the same, but workmanship differs. Concealed details make all the difference.

As Fur Specialists, we often are able to offer true "bargains," but first we insist on high quality skins, superb craftsmanship, and fashions . . . not fads. We are sure you'll profit . . . when you see what we have to show you.

Something for the Boys

Ol' Ted Finds Ally in Tourist Battle

By TED KREC

Every time I have devoted this space to scholarly remarks about tourists, I have been brought under fire via the U. S. Mail. Great literary violence has been heaped upon my head by members of the sunglasses - and - flowing - shirt - tail set.

The latest episode was different in only one respect. If you will recall, a few weeks ago I remarked about hideous appearance of so-called sports who travel to Catalina Island. As usual, many of my fans here at the paper stuck their heads inside the door to give me Bronx cheers and other forms of invective, but this time the mail brought a pleasant departure.

A charming lady named Grace Seiger Walton took the time to write a letter and say that she agreed with my viewpoint. I'd like to share parts of her letter with you today.

"My husband and I had just returned from four days over there across the channel and were just fascinated by the variety of 'sport' attire. My good spouse took a sport coat (and wore it) in spite of the fact that I kept warning him that he would look like a freak to the rest of the visitors. So you see—your article brought us much mirth and we immediately recalled the couple coming into the little bar at the St. Catherine in their swim suits. Boy — times have changed over there!"

* * * *

MRS. WALTON continued: "But my real purpose in writing is to mention—if you think the people in Avalon look like a bunch of ill-dressed clowns — you evidently have not been to Disneyland lately!

"That by far is the most complete array of sartorial disgust that I have ever seen gathered in one community. It would take a ream of paper to commentate on the combinations we saw over there last week. But, one couple (dames) fattish - forty-ish-giddyish-dressed in short-shorts with more showing than Sally Rand ever let show beyond her fans."

You are correct in your assumption, dear lady, that I have not been to Disneyland yet. I've been saving that for a time when my spirits are at a low ebb. Usually, I can pick out enough sloppy attire on the streets of Long Beach to fill this column adequately.

However, I would add that I HAVE been to Knott's Berry Farm several times. The most recent trip was a few weeks ago when my wife and I went there for dinner with our two small nieces.

All I can say is that I KNOW what you MEAN! I haven't seen such a collection of apparitions in one spot since the Allied forces burst into the concentration camps in the waning years of World War II.

It seems to me that the management at Knott's used to frown on women frequenting the establishment while attired in shorts—but those days evidently are gone forever. Women of all shapes and sizes stroll the area showing much more skin than sense. And the men? Well, most of them look like they've just been rescued from a sinking at sea!

We ate in the big dining room—where they serve the chicken dinners — and I am forced to admit that the state of dress of most of the patrons reminded me of pictures I have seen of meal time at Devil's Island!

* * * *

I REALIZE that by saying this I am making myself a target for more jibes by the dirty-fingernail-and-uncut-hair set, but I can't understand how people with an ounce of pride in their make-up will be seen in public in such ratty attire.

I'm all for comfort — I don't think you have to wear a business suit for a visit to Disneyland or Knott's or Catalina, There are clothes made expressly for such trips — they are called sport clothes. There's nothing wrong with them, they look wonderful under these circumstances. And most bona-fide sport outfits include a coat for men!

This isn't a quirk on my part — it's just common decency, good manners.

"But this is California!" the alibi artists will wail. To which I reply, "So WHAT?" There isn't a separate etiquette book for California. We're part of the human race, too. And I stand by my guns — I don't care WHO a man is, if he isn't dressed neatly, I know WHAT he is—he's a SLOB!

Newlywed Couple at Home

At home in Woodside this week are Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Johnson (Marguerite McNair). The newlyweds honeymooned in Santa Barbara and Carmel following their recent marriage in St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church, Lakewood.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. McNair, 1641 Marshall Pl., the bride was escorted to the altar by her father where she was met by her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Johnson of Boulder, Colo., for the double-ring rite read by the Rev. Hiram B. Crosby.

* * * *

SHE WAS attired radiantly in a gown of mirra mist taffeta and Chantilly lace styled on empire lines with lace bodice enhanced by Sabrina neckline. The full skirt swept to a chapel train. A French cap of lace and tulle trimmed with pearls held her fingertip-length veil of imported silk illusion, and she carried a cascade of stephanotis surrounding a pair of white orchids. Completing her costume were Oriental pearls and an antique lace handkerchief.

Carol Crosby, childhood friend of the bride, was asked to be her maid of honor, and Diana Ellerbrock, Cecily Carter and Marjorie Coblentz were bridesmaids. They were gowned in pink lace over taffeta in sheath style. Their hats were tiny bands of velvet holding eye-veils and they carried miniature pink roses.

Duties of the best man were performed by the bridegroom's cousin, George Nelson of Longmont, Colo. Ushers were the bride's brother, Martin McNair, Gerald Baden and Frederick Bean.

Among guests at the reception which followed in the church social hall were the bridegroom's parents. His mother selected a gown of powder blue taffeta with lace bodice, while the bride's mother was attired in rose lace with chiffon shoulder drape.

HOSTESSES TO the 200 wedding guests were Miss Kay Corlew who presided at the guest book and Miss Marilyn Tower, Mmes. Waldo Moore, W. H. Carls and John Hueneryager.

Her husband was president of the Phi Kappa Psi at the University of Colorado. He also is a member of Phi Beta Kapp.

East Discard Tip-Off to Opponent

Take a look at the South hand only and put yourself in the place of John Faricy who held it at the Saint Paul Athletic Club.

Mr. Faricy chose to open two diamonds and received the expected two no-trump response. He rebid to three clubs and when North bid three diamonds Mr. Faricy went to seven.

His partner had to have some diamond support and might well hold a doubleton club; or he might have that all important queen of clubs or almost anything else that would make seven diamonds a spread.

West opened the five of hearts and now if you will take a look at the dummy you will see that the North hand was just as bad as the South hand was good.

John took two rounds of trumps and the suit broke. He led his seven of trumps and overtook with dummy's nine and East dropped the three of clubs. John decided that East would not have discarded a club if he held either or both of the club honors and that the only play for the hand would be to drop the queen and jack from the West hand. He led a club and went up with the king. Down came the jack! He led the ace! The queen dropped; Eureka!

Fall Tailoring Course Ready

Modern tailoring techniques for the home seamstress — both the woman who wants to learn to tailor and the dressmaker who would like to streamline her methods — will be offered by May Co. Lakewood in a Fall Tailoring Course opening Sept. 19.

Slated at 1 p. m. and 7:30 p. m., and continuing for six consecutive Friday afternoons and evenings, the lecture-demonstration course is designed to cover all phases of tailoring, from pattern selection to custom finishing details. Each class member will complete a garment of her own choosing during the course.

* * * *

INSTRUCTING the class will be Miss Elizabeth Chapin, nationally recognized sewing authority, who has conducted similar schools in Southern California for many years. Acclaimed for her ability to present sewing techniques in a simplified manner, her methods embody the shortcut methods of the garment industry and the couturier tricks of the professional tailor. She is the author of "Adventures in Sewing," a monthly column of McCall's Fashion Digest and a regular feature of McCall Pattern fashions.

Registrations now are being taken in the pattern dept. of the May Co. Fee for the six-lesson course is $1.50, and early enrollment is advised.

L. B. Story League

First meeting of the club year for the Long Beach Story League will be Monday in the home of Mrs. Earl Heise, 6516 California Ave. The hostess will serve a noon luncheon.

Dear Abby

The Reluctant Bridesmaid

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am in a spot and don't know what to do.

My friend (we grew up next door to each other) is getting married in November and she asked me to be a bridesmaid. She's been engaged to this fellow for three years and all the time she went with him she has been sneaking out to go with others. I don't respect her and really don't want to be a bridesmaid at her wedding because I know too much about her. She says she is marrying him for security and will learn to love him after they are married. How can I get out of being her bridesmaid after I said yes?

ABBY

—ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Merely "growing up" with someone doesn't constitute a friendship. Tell her you have changed your mind—and tell her why.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a very irritating habit of reading in bed before going to sleep. If you've ever tried to sleep with the light shining in your face you will realize my problem. In my job I am on 24-hour call and I could use the extra sleep. Should I burn the magazines or sleep in the doghouse?

—SLEEPY IRENE

DEAR SLEEPY: Neither! Get a bed-light that shoots a beam of light, or buy eyeshades for yourself. Goodnight, Irene!

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: We have a very stingy aunt who accepts dinner invitations from all the relatives, but never invites anyone to her home. Last Christmas she won a turkey in a raffle and it only weighed 12 pounds and she had the nerve to invite 36 people to her house for turkey. All she served with it was cranberry sauce and garlic bread. She has been the talk of the whole family ever since. My husband says we should invite her anyway and overlook her stinginess. Do you think he is right or not? I say she should stay home if she can't entertain others like they entertain her. She is in better financial shape than any of the rest of us, so that's no excuse.

—A NIECE

DEAR NIECE: Life is too short to bear a grudge over anything so insignificant as what was served at a party. Next time offer to "help" her and talk enough "turkey" to her to feed everybody.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 17 and I think I have a problem. I have been seeing this guy who is 19 but he says he doesn't want to go steady. He told me he loves me and I know I am in love with him. He told me he didn't want to see too much of me because he doesn't want to get sick of me. After telling me this he put me on a bus to go home and didn't say when he would call me. Do you think he meant it when he said he loved me? I want to know what to do.

—LOSS OF WORDS

DEAR LOSS: If this fellow loves anything—it's his own freedom. Don't take him seriously.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed for six years and now have an opportunity to remarry. I understand that there is a new state law which gives the husband half his wife's assets. My husband's insurance, holdings and properties add up to about $30,000. This is a lot of money and all I have in the world. I am not saying this man who asked to marry me is marrying me for my money but I know he isn't as well off as I am. I like this man, but I am not sure I like him $30,000 worth. Should I talk it over with him and ask him if he is counting on this law or what? —QUESTIONING

DEAR QUESTIONING: Talk to a lawyer about drawing up a prenuptial agreement. If your husband is not marrying you for your money he won't mind putting it in writing.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EXHAUSTED": Prosperity is just around the coronary. Slow up.

Knit Fashion Show Slated

Knitting is no longer just a useful way to pass the time of day, but a clear road to fashion 1958. In fact, knitwear is such a vital part of the fall fashion picture that one of the country's leading yarn firms will have a special representative at Bufums' department store Monday and Tuesday.

Bernat yarn stylist Charlene Moynahan will present a collection of the latest and smartest hand-knit fashions and give tips on new ways with color and yarn.

* * * *

YOUNG KNITTERS will receive encouragement in the handicraft with a special group of styles designed for what Bernat terms the "Almost Teens," girls from 8 to 14 years.

Mohair blends and quick-and-easy bulky knits in high fashion shades also will hold a prominent place in the display.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

The Hollywood Bowl season of 1958 has come and gone. In its 37 years of existence this has been the most successful season of them all, both in attendance and in the outstanding musical quality of its programs.

Thirty concerts were given with a total attendance of 335,000. (It is interesting to note that the symphonic programs greatly outnumbered the popular programs in attendance!)

It has been a season uncommonly rich in glorious achievement. This must mean that there has been on the board of directors this year an unusual group of men and women with an uncanny ability for selecting the very finest of musical material, for the finest it has been.

* * * *

WE HAVE HAD some of the greatest conductors—Georg Solti, William Steinberg and Andre Kostelanetz whose performances were notable.

For variety and tremendous undertaking I must hand the palm to Eugene Ormandy. Steadily his great ability unfolded. His is a talent not at first appreciated. But his conducting of the Brahm's Symphony No. 1 was one of the most stirring performances of the whole summer. And he climaxed a brilliant season with an electrifying performance of Verdi's "Requiem" in company with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, the Roger Wagner Chorale and four great singers.

The two soloists who filled the Bowl to capacity were Jascha Heifetz, violinist, and Van Cliburn, pianist, the latter filling it twice. These two artists possess in common that rare gift, GENIUS. And although she did not fill the Bowl, Guiomar Novaes, pianist, belongs also in that category for she, too, is a genius. There were memorable performances by Rudolf Serkin, pianist, and John Browning, pianist.

* * * *

OF THE SINGERS, we had several who thrilled the vast crowds. George London, basso, made us live again the glories of the great days of the past when Chaliapin, Plancon and Edward de Reszke thrilled with their great voices.

Leontyne Price in two performances showed herself to be not only an operatic singer of great ability but as an oratorio singer she displayed a voice of unique beauty and a reverent understanding of the oratorio style. Her singing in the Verdi's Requiem will never be forgotten.

Jennie Tourel, soprano, gave great pleasure with a magnificent voice, superbly handled. Hers is singing in the grand manner.

Of the coloratura's, Erika Koeth stands high in our musical regard. She not only sings beautifully, she is a great artist.

The Opera Night with Wilfrid Pellitier conducting, brought out an amazing mezzo-soprano, Irene Dalis, whose opulent voice flooded the great amphitheater.

* * * *

AS I HAVE SAT through the beautiful summer nights listening to this gorgeous music, this thought has often come to me. With an average attendance of 15,000 people, with such a magnificent orchestra as the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, with a chorus, unsurpassed as is the Roger Wagner Chorale, with singers and conductors of the caliber we have been hearing, WHY oh WHY cannot Los Angeles have a regular opera company? Not for a six-week season and not in any auditorium. But for a six-month season and in a magnificent new opera house worthy of our Southland.

Certainly it has been proven with our summer Bowl concerts and with our short opera season that the people of this area are hungry for good music. And they are willing to pay for it too, judging by the huge audiences we have witnessed.

If politics or apathy stand in the way, why do not our rich, civic-minded citizens form a private organization, buy a site and build an opera house? The Hollywood Bowl now is a going concern, a great success. It should be a forerunner of an even greater undertaking. It is not an impossible idea. All the European cities manage it and they are not rich as we are rich. With such an opera company there would be opportunity for our young talent, employment for many and cultural outlets for us all. Los Angeles might well lead America in a grand new way of achievement.

Classes Begin at Theatre

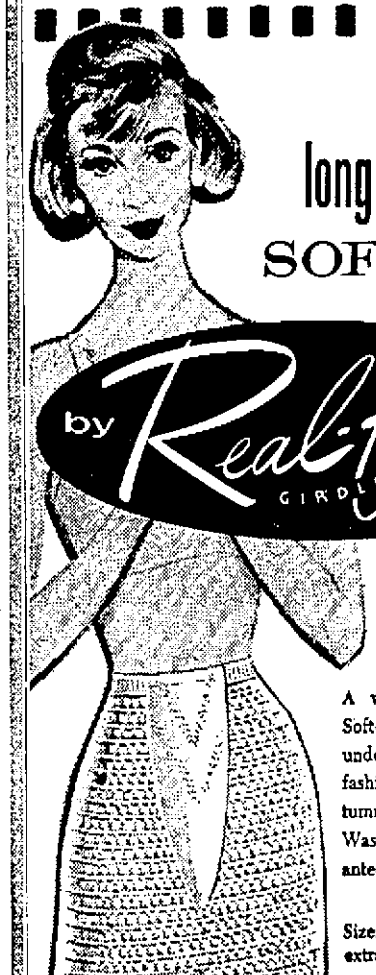

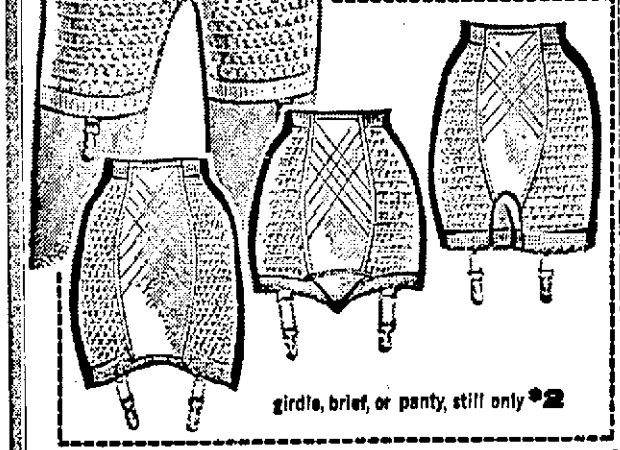

Enrollments for the fall semester of The School of the Magnolia Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave., is now open to young people from 6 to 19 years old. Classes meet weekly for an hour after school and on Saturdays. Each class is limited to 10 students.

According to Ridge Walker, director, the school helps young people develop imagination and express ideas clearly. Beginners learn poise, diction and creative dramatics, while advanced students receive knowledge of characterization, stagecraft and play participation.

Students learn how a complete production is formed, from boxoffice to set. Periodically productions will be presented that will give each student "on stage" experience.

Further information may be obtained by calling The Magnolia Theatre.

AMONG CAREER WOMEN

Spotlight Activities of 'Women in White'

By ANNE GILCHRIST

"Women in white" capture career women news interest this week with announcement of a pair of important meetings.

California State Nurses' Assn. members of District 42 will begin their fall and winter season with a major business meeting Monday to be conducted at Alamitos Bay Sportsman's Club. Barbara Bostwick, first vice president, will conduct in the absence of vacationing president, Mary Stanley. The board of directors will meet at 6:30 p.m., one hour prior to the general meeting.

Selection of delegates to the CSNA state convention, convening Oct. 6 at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, San Francisco, will be one of the main items on the agenda. The six-day conclave will be held concurrently with that of the California League for Nursing. Speakers of national prominence are scheduled including the new executive secretary of the American Nurses' Assn., Judith Whitaker. In addition to official delegates, many local registered nurses are planning to attend the professionally rewarding convention.

Medical Assistants

A real "program plum" will highlight the first meeting of the new fall season for Long Beach Medical Assistants' Assn. when members meet at the Victor Hugo Restaurant Monday at 6:30 p.m. The program will consist of a special presentation of, "The Mute," by Robert Board of Long Beach, a masterpiece in amateur cinematography which was the unanimous choice of the judges as top winner in the U.S. Cine Circle contest at the Cannes Film Festival in France.

Producer Board, a Polytechnic High school graduate, will be present to discuss the production of his prize-winning film which reveals the simple, touching story of a deaf mute who works as a ship handler aboard a nondescript vessel in San Pedro. "The Mute" is being shown to various audiences all over the world and has been selected to be shown at the Brussel's Worlds Fair.

Hostesses for Monday's meeting are Bunny Raffety, Rebekah Rimpley and Pat Bollovich.

Labor Topic for Meeting

Evening Division, Long Beach Council of Republican Women, will hear a discussion of "Right to Work" when they stage their first dinner meeting of the season at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at 3350 Olive Ave.

Frederick A. Potruch, leading labor relations attorney who has practiced law before the U. S. Supreme Court, will be guest speaker. He is a graduate of University of Michigan and active in political and civic groups including the Republican Central Committee Speakers' Bureau, Lions International, University Club and Michigan Club.

Members are invited to bring guests.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Adm. Long Brings Recipe for Filet

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.P-T Home Economics Editor

He's known as the SOPA. To you landlubbers, that means Senior Officer Present Afloat. Today's Chef of the Week, Rear Adm. Victor Dismukes Long, also is Commander, Mine Force, Pacific Fleet, Long Beach-Los Angeles areas.

Never having been at the Naval Academy as a student—only as a tourist—this writer is not sure if one can major in the "department of screening." But if you CAN, he DID. His success at "operation screening" of fast carrier and escort groups during World War II, saved the lives of hundreds of our Navy men. In fact, Long is the proud possessor of a Silver Star, a Gold Star and the Legion of Merit for his work as screen commander in planning and directing operations against the enemy in various Pacific areas.

Not only was he lauded for "operating efficiently and effectively for extended periods of time in dangerous hostile waters . . . ", he rendered outstanding service in rescuing 348 men from a sinking escort carrier and from planes which had been forced to make water landings.

Eastern born, the admiral attended Central High School and Columbian (Schadman's) Preparatory School in Washington, D. C., prior to his appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy from Mississippi in June 1921.

* * * *

AS A MIDSHIPMAN, he played class football and soccer, and was a member of the varsity crew four years.

Since leaving Annapolis, he has guided the destiny of battleships, destroyers and minesweepers, and has executed behind-the-desk terra firma operations in the Office of Naval Communications. He has had a tour of duty in the executive department at the Naval Academy, and has served as aide to the commander in chief of the U.S. fleet.

Long's background is rich in other Navy lore, too. In October 1945, he was designated assistant chief of staff (administrative) to the commander in chief, U.S. Pacific Fleet. He served in that capacity until ordered to the National War College, Washington, D. C., for instruction.

Graduating in 1948, he assumed command of the USS Macon, but came ashore in 1951 as assistant director for Joint Staff Matters, Logistic Plans Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Logistics), Navy Department. He later became director of this operation.

Following his command of an amphibious group in the Eastern Pacific, he assumed his present command as senior officer at the U.S. Naval Station, Long Beach.

* * * *

WHEN THE admiral is not "at sea," he likes to exchange sea breezes for land breezes . . . the "hot air" of the golf course. When he does have a few stolen moments, he'll invariably go for a boat ride, though he is also a devoted winter sports enthusiast. He also finds time to be active in the Long Beach Rotary Club.

Our "Chef" indulges in the usual masculine domestic puttering, but is purely the amateur when it comes to repair maintenance. Possessor of a rare humor, he's also a top-flight diplomat. He'll admit readily that he's a spoiled husband and Dad, and that Mrs. Long is the best cook ever. His (or her) recipe today is for Charcoal Broiled Filet Mignon.

CHARCOAL BROILED FILET MIGNON
Choice beef filets, at least 1½ inches thick
Butter
Garlic salt
Onion salt
Salt and pepper

Place steaks on grill over charcoal fire which has been lighted about one hour previously so that all the charcoal is gray. Sear for 2 or 3 minutes, then turn. Immediately season the side which has just been seared, working rapidly as follows: Take small pat of butter and spread evenly over whole surface as it melts; sprinkle salt (rather liberally) and pepper; sprinkle garlic salt and onion salt to taste (I prefer to use sparingly). Then immediately turn the steaks, and similarly apply the above seasoning to the other side. About 5 minutes AFTER TURNING, turn again and broil for 4-5 more minutes. If you like, your steaks other than rare to medium rare (heaven forbid!) increase the last-mentioned cooking periods, but NOT the searing time.

Serve immediately. (Note to amateur chefs—the above is practically foolproof, because it's almost impossible to spoil a really good piece of beef!)

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Togetherness Has Gone

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is very busy. He works nine hours a day. He is good as gold. He brings home a pay check every week, and I take care of the bills. We go to church every Sunday — the church of his choice, but I like it, too.

I can have the car when I want it. We've bought a house and remodeled it. I think we've done very well to be only 20 years old.

My worry is that he is getting "settled." He doesn't care for a dimly lit room, or romantic settings. He used to have a big kiss for me when he returned from work. Now I get a peck. Is he taking me for granted—or am I being foolish?

We've always done everything together until now. Now I stay home. What's the answer?—MRS. C. W.

DEAR MRS. C. W.:

You've answered your own question. You simply aren't doing enough things together. One of the strongest bonds between husband and wife (even 20-year-old ones) is mutual interests.

Can't you have a card club you both enjoy, or a bowling group, a square-dance group, a potluck party club—oh, it doesn't matter what it is, just so it is interesting and exciting to both of you.

Keep this in mind, won't you?—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been going steady with Bob for two years now—ever since he was 19 and I was 16. We plan on marriage when I graduate, but we argue over little things. For instance, if he wants to go some place and I don't want him to, he gets furious.

He calls every night, but recently we disagreed, and he hung up. I told him later that he'd better NEVER do that again.

Last night he did. What would you do in my place NOW?—HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN:

This is one case where a dose of his own medicine wouldn't hurt him at all. He'll probably call you back—probably he already has—so the next time there's an argument show him what it feels like to be hung up on.

And stop being "heartbroken" over little arguments. You'll find that some of the little ones turn to "big ones" after you're married.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

A friend of mine has a 14-year-old brother who was accidentally shot in the leg last spring and will be getting a wooden leg soon. If some of your kind readers would drop him a card, I know this would cheer him. He is Jerry Rahlf, Binford, N. D. — A READER.

To Build 313 Homes Here on Part of Bixby Ranch

FOR LONG BEACH COLLEGE ESTATES

Shown is an artist's rendering of the recreational park to be reserved for the exclusive use of the residents of Long Beach Estates, S. & S. Construction Co.'s residential project to be constructed at 7th St. and Studebaker Rd.

A new prestige residential subdivision of 313 custom-styled homes, all in the city of Long Beach, will be developed on the historic Bixby Ranch, it was announced Saturday by officials of the S. and S. Construction Co.

A spacious, private recreational park, reserved for exclusive use of residents of the development, will be included.

To be known as Long Beach College Estates, the homes will be on the acreage north of 7th St. running to Anaheim St. and east of Studebaker Rd.

* * * *

THE ENTIRE development will be enclosed by a block wall, 6 feet high, and the park land alone, with its facilities, represents an expenditure of over $100,000, it was noted. Plans also include a proposed future bath house and swimming pool to be reserved for the community's residents.

Located on one of the last remaining sections of the Bixby Ranch, Long Beach College Estates is situated close to where one of the new Garden Grove Freeway's major cloverleaves will be placed at the junction of 7th St. and Studebaker Rd. Studebaker is to be widened, officials said, and to become one of the area's major thoroughfares.

The S. and S. development was purchased from the Bixby Ranch Co., which retained, for future development into a large community center for shopping, professional, medical and business structures, a portion of land located at Anaheim St. and Studebaker Rd.

This building firm brings to Long Beach College Estates experience gained through construction of more than 3,000 attractively styled, substantially built homes in the Norwalk, Whittier and Long Beach areas. Almost without exception, S. and S. Construction communities have sold out even before completion.

Spacious residences in this new development will offer VA, FHA and conventional financing, officials said.

Immediately west of Studebaker Rd. is the huge new Long Beach State College.

The site was sold with restrictions which will assure lasting values, the spokesman pointed out.

14-Mile Road Is Set for Gruelling Test

OTTAWA, Ill. (UPI) — A group of soldiers this fall will start driving 60 trucks 16 million miles—all on a 14-mile-long test road.

Taking turns, they'll be behind the wheels of their fully-loaded trucks 17 hours a day, six days a week, for two years.

By the time they're finished, the trucks will have accumulated enough mileage to have traveled to the moon 66 times.

And highway officials hope they will have compiled data which will have a "tremendous impact" on the future design and construction of roads and bridges.

* * * *

THE TEST, complete with an electronic computer to record its findings, will be sponsored by the American Association of State Highway Officials and administered by the Highway Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

The soldiers—about 300 of them—will be from Fort Eustis, Va.

Their trucks will be loaded with up to 48,000 pounds of concrete blocks in order to give the test strip an unprecedented beating that will uncover its weak and strong points.

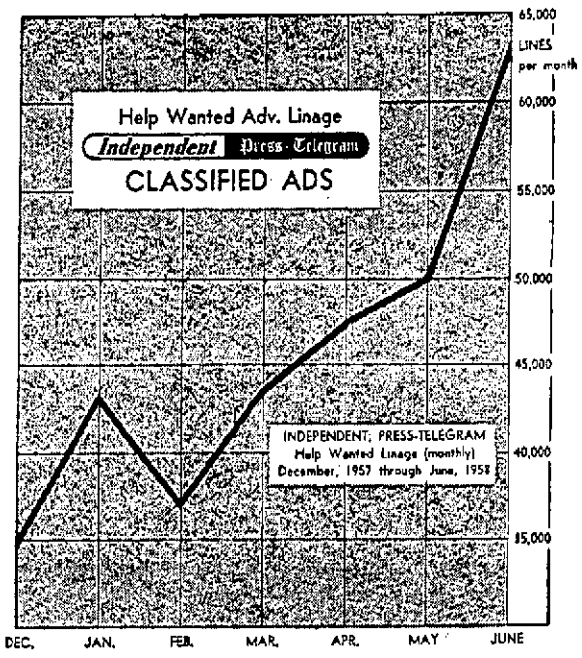

* * * *

MORE THAN 8,000 measuring devices will be on, in, or under the pavement to provide detailed information on the day-to-day behavior of such a road under heavy-volume traffic.

Ironically, the electronic brain being used in this monumental project is one of the tiniest of the electronic marvels. It's the Bendix G15D general purpose digtal computer, comparing in size to two filing cabinets.

But without this computer and other electronic devices being used, the test would produce staggering quantities of records and the money and time required to figure them out would be prohibitive. As it is, the project will cost 22 million dollars.

Help Wanted Ads Show L. B. Economy

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM help wanted ads are a barometer of business conditions in the Long Beach area. An economic letdown means help wanted advertising slumps and when conditions improve, the advertising climbs. This graph shows the steady improvement in conditions here since last December, with the exception of February. In May alone there was a great upward swing with nearly 64,000 lines of help wanted ads in the I, P-T. And, the trend is continuing into the fall months, department officials report.

Throngs of Viewers at Windsor Greens

Announcement of its new $28,750 price brought throngs of new home buyers out to Windsor Greens according to James Pelton, builder-developer. Luxury-minded families were greatly appreciative of the value offered by the new price.

On sites appraised at $10,000 Windsor Green homes boast a picturesque city-suburban location immediately adjoining the park-like grounds of Lakewood Country Club Estates at Carson St. between Lakewood Blvd. and Cherry Ave.

* * * *

ENCHANCING the exterior of these luxury homes is the enclosed private entrance court containing a secluded garden. The interior decor boasts such features as stone or brick floor-to-ceiling fireplace, fully panelled living room walls, and sliding walls of glass. A kitchen fully equipped with over $2,000 worth of the latest in modern built-ins is carefully designed for the leisure loving. Included are an electric range and oven in color, automatic dishwasher and disposal, coppertone range hood and fan, natural wood cabinets.

* * * *

These 3 and 4-bedroom luxury homes offer either a family room or a convertible den and all have 2½ baths with colored fixtures, marble pullmans and ceramic tile.

The builder will cooperate making immediate occupancy available for those who wish to be settled before school starts. Windsor Green homes may be purchased for as little as $3,975 down.

Larry Miller, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, announced that Steve Spindell, program chairman for September, has engaged Emerson Smith, field executive of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, to be the speaker at the "Early-Bird" Breakfast meeting Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel.

EMERSON SMITH

Prior to his service with the association, Smith was an active realtor in Kingsport, Tenn. New N. L. B. Industrial Tract Getting Fourth Big Building

CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY

Construction has started on this 14,000-square-foot, tilt-up concrete, light manufacturing plant in the Familian Industrial Tract on 59th St. at Downey Ave. in North Long Beach, which is offered for lease by Bill Brooks, Industrial Realtor, exclusive agent.

Construction has started on the fourth light manufacturing building in the $2,000,000 Familian Industrial Tract, located on 59th St. and Downey Ave. in North Long Beach, according to Bill Brooks, industrial realtor, exclusive agent for the tract.

This tilt-up concrete building of 14,000 square feet will be similar in design to the three already completed and occupied. It is located on a one-acre site with attractive landscaping in front and the entire property will be paved and fenced. It is offered for lease to light manufacturing firms.

TWO OF THE completed buildings are occupied by Omega Design Associates. One building is used for the manufacture of tools, dies, jigs, fixtures and machine parts for aircraft and other industries. The second building, which has just recently been completed, is used for special machinery design and automation.

The third building is occupied by Scholle Long Beach Corp., a division of Scholle Chemical Corp. of Chicago, and is used for the packaging of battery fluid, which is distributed throughout Southern California.

* * * *

WHEN the Familian Industrial Tract of 17 acres is completed it is planned to have 15 buildings which will have an investment in plant and equipment in excess of $2,000,000 to add to the Long Beach tax rolls, Brooks pointed out.

The buildings are being constructed by Svend Birklund, contractor, and the leases are being negotiated by Brooks, agent for the owner, George Familian.

Pollen Count

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—During the hayfever season, about one million tons of ragweed pollen is in the air over the United States, according to Prof. Warren H. Wagner, Jr., botanist at the University of Michigan. He estimates that ragweed accounts for about 90 per cent of all pollen in the air.

Build Model for Marina Tower Apt.

First public preview of luxurious Marina Tower display model residence at 3055 E. Ocean Blvd. will be held next Sunday, it was announced by E. T. Moore of Moore Realty, sales agents for the ocean-front cooperative.

Containing nearly 3,200 square feet of living space, including spacious patio-terrace, the residence is an exact duplicate of one of the 44 units that will comprise the $3,000,000 Marina Tower. The model occupies half of the frontage of the 155x200-foot lot on which the 12-story tower structure will be built; the display residence will be moved from the property when construction of the tower begins.

Designed by the architectural firm of Killingsworth-Brady-Smith, the residence features a 36-foot living room with a double-exposure of sliding glass exterior walls for an unobstructed panoramic view of the ocean.

Q: Why have we reduced Windsor Greens homes $2,000?

A: No one just recklessly gives away money. Then why have we posted a new price sign on Windsor Greens homes, more than $2,000 under the original figure recently announced in these pages? And how honest was the original price to begin with?

The original price (from $31,000) was an eminently honest one. It was based on the impartial appraisal by a very fine lending institution, which is actually making loans to Windsor Greens residents on the basis of that appraisal. What's more, a later appraisal indicated that these homes had actually increased in value with the continued development of the Lakewood Country Club Estates, in which Windsor Greens is located.

My decision to lower the purchase price, effective immediately, to $28,750 for the same model is simply a wise business move on my part. I am a builder. Where you pay interest money on your one home, I must pay interest on all homes I build, from the day construction starts until the day they are sold. True, property surveys indicate that rather than lowering my prices, I could command five or six thousand dollars more for my few remaining Windsor Greens homes in the near future. But it just isn't good business to let completed homes wait for buyers, even for a few weeks. To continue my building activities, both in this area and elsewhere, it is to my advantage to forego future profits for instant cashout.

Strangely enough, experience proves that home buyers who take quick advantage of a profit situation like this are persons who need the savings least. I feel certain that I could run this ad in the Wall Street Journal and dispose of the few remaining homes quickly to investors in search of potential profit. This I have no desire to do. The many Windsor Greens residents, who paid me full price for their homes, selected this community for its lovely, pleasant living values — not for quick speculation. I respect this trust. I prefer to be the one — not some speculator — to decide what families qualify to be their neighbors.

So I address this message to families who seek the finest home and the nicest suburban environment possible. I invite you to select a Windsor Greens home for these most important reasons. Let the $2,000 you save be a happy windfall, to make your family's living at Windsor Greens all the more pleasurable.

Ball Manor Homes Are Selling Fast

Laramore Construction Co. announced that Ball Manor in Anaheim, near Disneyland, is over three-fourths sold. Company officials anticipate that increased sales will complete the full occupancy soon.

Frank H. McFarland, sales agent, reports that recent buyers find excellent commuting facilities via Santa Ana Freeway and year-round family advantages at this new suburban location. Neighborhood schools and Broadway shopping center are nearby; driving distances are easy from metropolitan areas; beach and mountain playgrounds are within minutes.

Three family-planned models emphasize spaciousness and home-economy. It is stated that average income families prevail throughout these $12,950 homes which offer over 1300 square feet of modern construction plus double garages. Open perspective living rooms display a choice of adjoining studies or dining areas. Efficiently designed kitchens contain snack bars or nooks, hardwood cabinets, Formica sinks with disposals and compact utility space. Three to 4 large bedrooms and 1½ or 2 baths complete the plans.

Fourteen different elevations are examples of provincial or contemporary architecture with brick wainscotting and planters, garden-patio areas. Terms are as low as $195 down and $90 move-in costs with no due dates or balloon payments.

Visitors are welcome from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and will find Ball Manor homes are an easy drive from Long Beach by taking Carson-Lincoln to Santa Ana Freeway south to Ball Rd., turnoff and west to the models.

$195 DOWN NEEDED
Magnolia Manor Unit 7 is offering homes such as this to non-veterans for as little as $195 down and $90 move-in costs. They are built by Laramore Construction Co.

Magnolia Manor's Unit 7 Terms Low for Non-Vets

Two miles south of Disneyland, and a few blocks west of Harbor Blvd. in western Orange County, is a planned community of rare provincial style homes, set on wide lots, well back from the street. This community is Magnolia Manor No. 7, and one of many such developments designed and built by the Laramore Construction Co.

Here, according to Frank H. McFarland, sales agent, hundreds of families have found the relaxed pleasure of semi-rural living, close to the business districts in both Santa Ana, Garden Grove and Westminster. Through a unique financing plan, calling for a down payment of just $195 for non-vets and only $90 move-in costs with no balloon payments or due dates, families have been able to transplant their future into a new environment.

IT IS SELDOM that home buyers can find large, spacious, conventionally constructed homes of more than 1300 square feet of living space and as many as 4 bedrooms and 2 baths, at these terms, McFarland points out.

Magnolia Manor Unit 7 was designed with growing families in mind. Close to schools, recreation and shopping, the homes also boast a location convenient to year round employment.

Driving from the Long Beach area go east on 7th Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Huntington Beach Blvd., south to Westminster then east to models.

Lemon Heights Homes Finding Market

Spacious, custom designed residences at Lemon Heights West No. 2 Schwartz-Yedor's community in the exclusive Lemon Heights District of suburban Santa Ana, are well over 50 per cent sold, according to Tom Yedor.

Winners of the "House and Home" 1958 Merit Award Schwart-Yedor has also been awarded McCall's "Congress on Better Living Certificate" for good design and ease of family living. Luxury appointments and custom detailing that won the firm such awards have been incorporated in this distinctive group of custom homes.

Encompassing an actual living area of 2,200 square feet, spacious residences offer an unusually wide selection of diverse architectural stylings and family-flexible plans, all designed by George Vernon Russell, AIA, and available with 3 and 4 bedrooms and 3 baths.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH PRICES will increase on Sept. 10, at present they are fully priced from just $32,750, Yedor explained.

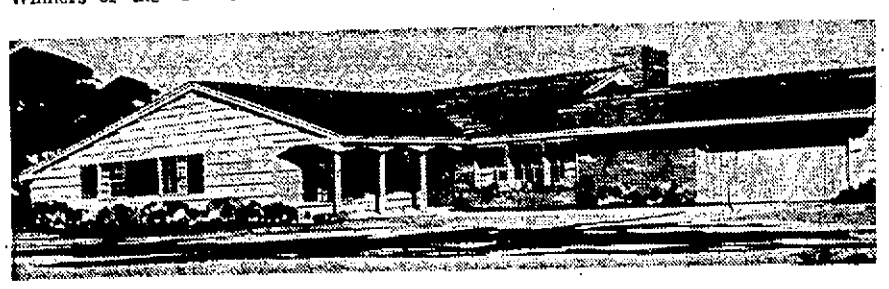

In this "Custom Series" are to be found such unusual appointments as sunken playrooms, separate dining rooms as well as dining areas, family rooms, powder rooms and master bedrooms with private baths.

Built-in appliances, each selected from the tops in their field, and all included in the price of the homes, list such convenient attractions as built-in wall oven, tabletop range, automatic dishwasher, waste disposer, combination refrigerator-freezer, washer, dryer and a built-in Hi-Fi intercom system.

* * * *

OTHER ATTRACTIONS include magnificent custom-style fireplaces, Hi-Fi-wiring and properly engineered heating and air conditioning.

Furnished models with decor by Newton S. Leichter, are on display. From Long Beach, the homes are reached by driving Pacific Coast Hwy. to Bay Blvd. (at Seal Beach), north to Westminster Ave. (becomes 17th St.) and east through Santa Ana to Hewes Ave. Then north on Hewes to Spaulding and west to the homes. Or, take Garden Grove Blvd. to Main St., Santa Ana. Jog right, then left on 17th St. as above.

IN LEMON HEIGHTS WEST NO. 2
Pictured is one of the many highly individual exterior stylings at Lemon Heights West No. 2, Schwartz-Yedor's new prestige community of custom residences. Spacious residences encompass 2,200 square feet of actual interior living area, and offer three and four bedrooms with three baths.

They will be: John Goeglein, loan consultant and instructor in real estate appraising; Gene Hoffman, appraiser and instructor; Oliver Speraw, sales manager and teacher of real estate procedures and building construction, and Keith James, coordinator of City College and member of the California Real Estate Education and Research Committee.

Low Monthly Payments on Artesia Park Homes

No down payment is necessary for qualified veterans to move into Artesia Park Homes, it was announced by Jim Young, vice-president of Bright-on-Bilt Homes.

"A low down payment will cover necessary costs and impounds while low monthly payments from $72, principle and interest, make owning these quality 3-bedroom, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes less expensive than paying rent for an apartment," ocmmented Young. Artesia Park Homes are also available on attractive FHA terms for non-vets.

Over $256,000 worth of homes were sold in the first two weeks at Artesia Park as a result of the strong combination of low monthly payments, luxury features and extra-large lots, in a convenient location.

* * * *

COMBINING a feeling of spaciousness with a minimum of wasted movement, the all-gas "Freedom-Kitchens" feature built-in range and oven with quiet exhaust fan over the range, deluxe silent garbage disposals and natural finish cabinets.

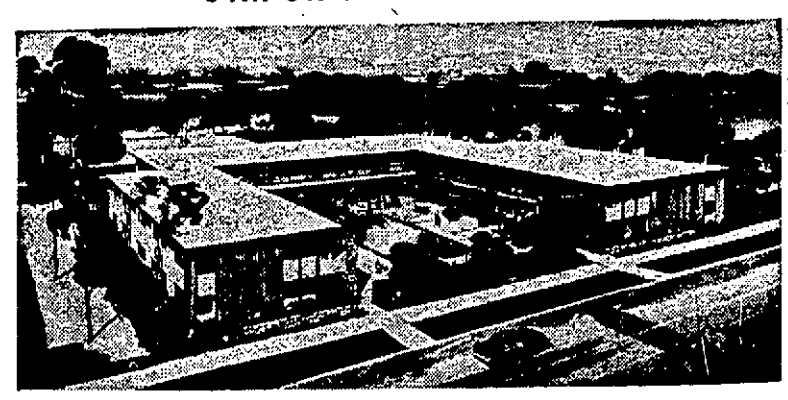

Extra large lots allow more than adequate room for swimming pools, play areas and extensive landscaping. All walks, streets and improvements are in and paid for.

Conveniently located in the Artesia-Lakewood area, Artesia Park is close to major shopping centers, schools, freeways, recreation centers and minutes from the beach.

To reach Artesia Park, drive north on Lakewood to Carson, right on Carson to Pioneer then left (north) on Pioneer to Del Amo and furnished models.

I beat her, so she took me to lunch at the Country Club. Then after a couple of sets of tennis at the Recreation Center, we both had diving lessons from Pat McCormick, Director of Diving. Then I went swimming, while Sis walked home to get prettied up for the Country Club dance tonight. And I've got a date at the Teen Center, where the gang and I are gonna dance to a name band. Sis and I are sure glad Dad bought us a house in Bellehurst. Ours is the prettiest home you've ever seen, and are the rooms huge! Would you believe it—Dad paid only $500 down and we moved right in. Shown are the new officers of Associated Property Owners of Long Beach, recently chosen. Left to right are Jerry S. Jacobs, treasurer; John A. Krancus, vice president; George Baumgardner, president; Oscar Ady, vice president, and Paul B. Wilcox, executive director and secretary.

Officers of Associated Property Owners Named

New officers of Associated Property Owners of Long Beach were announced yesterday as the organization looked forward to celebrating completion of 25 years of service to Long Beach taxpayers in a few months.

The new president replacing Jerry S. Jacobs is George Baumgardner, manager of J. A. Hogle and Co. The vice presidents are Oscar Ady, Travelers Insurance and John A. Krancus, accountant and apartment house owner. Jacobs is the new treasurer and Paul B. Wilcox continues as full time executive director and secretary.

A.P.O. is the local taxpayers' association which opposes unnecessary or unjustifiable public expenditures. Baumgardner, who was Mayor of South Gate for 4 years, announces a membership drive will be one of his first efforts. He stated that among the men on the A.P.O. present board of directors are 22 present and past presidents of other civic organizations.

OUR COVER

Brilliant hues of autumn dramatize the vista looking north at Lake McDonald in Glacier National Park in the full-color scene on today's Southland cover. Ironically, national park travel dwindles in the fall, just when the reservations of natural beauty are bedecked in their finest tones. Officials of Glacier, Yellowstone, Yosemite, Sequoia and Kings Canyon Parks, among others, this year have hung out a special welcome sign for autumn travelers. These visitors will find many park improvements completed or under way as the National Park Service pushes ahead with its "Mission 66" program. An article on Page 7 will bring you up to date on dramatic plans to make your stay in the out-of-doors more enjoyable.

NEXT WEEK

While taking a few days off from a special writing assignment in Europe, former Independent, Press-Telegram newsman Jim Phelan visited a group of islands off the coast of Spain. He was amazed when a barber there charged him 15 cents for a haircut, positively flabbergasted a few minutes later when he paid the same price for an excellent dry martini with TWO olives. He spent the next day or two looking into these people and their way of life. Next week he will tell you about them in a most absorbing story called "The Improbable Islands." Whether you do your traveling in a modern jet plane, a ship or an armchair, we bet you'll enjoy it!

Glamour Garb for Adam's Apple

By Jack B. Kemmerer

DOWN through the ages man has glamorized his Adam's apple and, Hollywood informality to the contrary, no gentleman's ever really dressed, sir, until he has knotted a hunk of something or other around his neck.

Necktie history goes as far back as man himself, running the gamut of teeth and bones of savage beasts, bits of metal, swathings of linens and brocades, lace and pleated ruffs, strips of silk, rayon, nylon, wool, leather and fabric blends —some somber black, some pure white and some brilliant with color.

Tracing the path of the ordinary necktie spans many years of world history.

THE CROAT TROOPS, who came to France as mercenaries in 1600, brought the first bright colored fancy neckpieces with them. During the Thirty Years War their neckpieces were adopted and called cravats after the Croats. The cravat was introduced into England by Charles II in 1660 after his return from exile at the French court. Charles II loved ties so much that he was known to have paid as high as $600 for a single tie.

The fashion of wearing cravats was brought to a sudden end by the French Revolution. Wearing of a cravat then was enough to make one suspected of being an aristocrat. Only Robespierre and his friends were allowed to wear ties.

According to Byron, the undisputed leader in London fashion in the early 17th century was Beau Brummell, who dressed as if it were a sacred ceremony, climaxed by the knotting of his white tie. The Prince Regent, later George IV, would often come to witness the ceremony.

Napoleon, who always wore a black tie, went strictly formal to the Battle of Waterloo in 1815 for he is said to have worn a white tie.

During the Napoleonic wars in the late 18th century, red faces were considered an indication of great health. Frequently ties were pulled tight to make the face flush. It also made the wearer's eyes protrude like a frog's. This is reputed to be the origin of the name "Frog" as applied to the French.

In 1823, the French had a special type of tie for the heavy eaters which was called "gastronomical." It was loosely arranged and unstarched so that it would not interfere with the enjoyment of dinner. The color was pink like a boiled ham.

COLLARS AND TIES made of steel were issued to officers of the U. S. Marines in the early 1800's as a protection in warfare. At the same time, enlisted men were issued leather collars, and that gave the nickname, "Leathernecks," which still persists.

During the late 17th century the cravat worn with several windings around the neck was credited with saving many officers from sabre cuts.

The polka dot is the earliest known design to have been used in neckwear. It is supposed to have been a tribute to the Sun God. During the reign of Louis XIV bow ties made of lace were popular, the larger the better.

THE CRAVAT was still enormous in 1800 and covered the chin in the manner common at the time of the "Incroyables," a fashionable set of British dandies. It usually consisted of a square piece of cloth folded in triangular fashion and passed around the neck several times. About 1815 the high-peaked, starched-shirt collar, the ends of which stuck up around the wearer's cheeks, was worn with a white cravat lightly folded. Neckties were either arranged by the wearer or were made up; in the latter case they were fashioned at the back. George IV introduced the first ready-made cravat in 1829. It became known as the "Royal George" tie.

Long ties began to be worn about 1840. They were passed around the neck twice, and hung down in broad expanse which sometimes completely covered the shirt front. They were either arranged with pins or purchased ready made.

In 1850, turned down collars became fashionable and were worn with neckties tied in a loose, broad bow in the manner which has been affected by artists, but by 1860 the necktie was very much reduced in size, becoming no more than a narrow band with a tiny bow, which was usually made up. And then, about 1890, neckties reverted to a flowing artistic appearance.

Dandy of 1850 enjoys cup of chocolate. He's wearing comb'nation of stock collar and tie of the era.

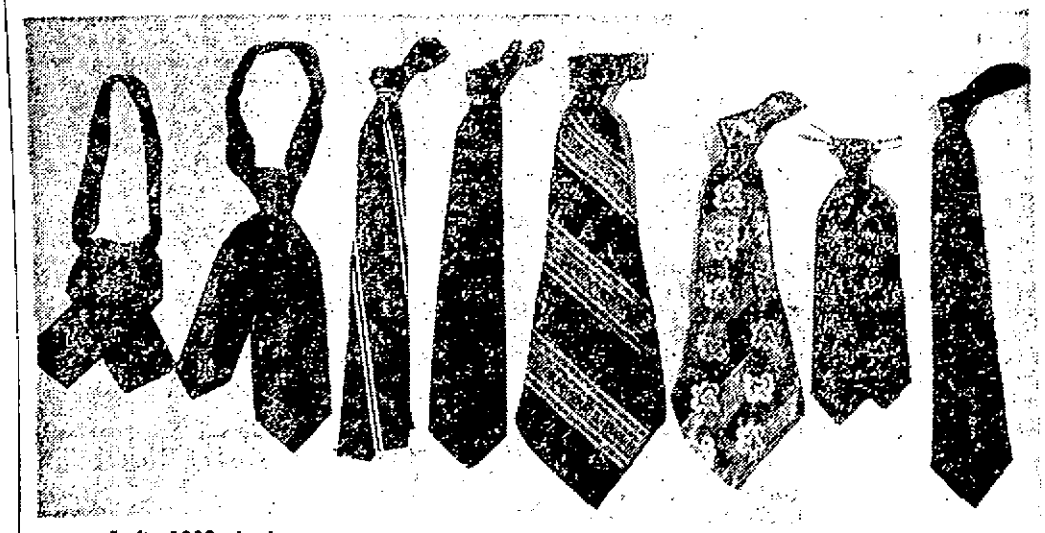

THE LONG TIE worn in the Nineties was similar in character to that customary today.

Two of the most important forms of ties were introduced in 1914; the butterfly bow and the long tie with the sailor's knot, both of which are still worn.

As late as 1865 there were practically no neckwear manufacturers in the United States, the largest percentage of ties being imported. But, in 1951, the American tie industry manufactured more than 200 million dollars worth of ties, using 37 million yards of tie fabrics, 500 million yards of thread, 10 million yards of lining and 171 million labels. The new crop of ties for this year includes 100,000 color combinations and 40,000 different patterns.

One of the most important inventions concerning ties came in 1920 when Jesse Langsdorff worked out a resilient construction using a floating stitch which permits the tie to spring back into shape after knotting. It also reduced the hazard of tearing the tie when pulled out of the collar.

Hence, each man who steps before the mirror to knot his tie in the morning is following an ages-old precedent, and his action is passing tradition along to future generations.

Left. 1880 tie known as the "flat"; next, band-teck of about 1898; narrower ties in vogue in early 1900s; flowing end, four-in-hand and fancy brocade of World War I; shield-teck of 1919, and, last, narrow four-in-hand of 1921.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: We secretly hope you never run out of requests for name origins. Our name is FOX.—Mrs. F.W.F.

MRS. F.W.F.: Eight hundred years ago in ancient England, some inns were individualized by brightly colored signs. One inn owner became known by his popular trademark "At the sign of the Fox." Consequently he eventually took Fox for his surname. John Fox, descendant of the first Fox Inn owner, resided in 14th Century Yorkshire. The Fox lineage became noblemen at that time and were granted a coat-of-arms, three gold fox heads on a blue chevron centered on an ermine-covered shield. Thomas Fox, an early settler of Concord, Mass., died there in 1690, leaving many descendants.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like your analysis of HAMLYN and HAMELIN.—MRS. A.E.H., Long Beach; MRS. J.M., Midway City.

A.H., J.M.: HAMLYN and Hamelin were from early English nicknames for Hamon, meaning "ruler of the home." The family is traced to Hamelin, a nobleman of Cornwall who was included in the 11th Century English Domesday Book. Hamelin owned 22 estates. This baron's descendants are still residents of Cornwall and Devonshire. The family coat-of-arms has a rampant, gold-crowned lion centered on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give history on BUSTAMANTE. —S.A., Paramount.

S.A.: The Spanish surname BUSTAMANTE has an unusual significance, "man with his chest covered with a blanket." This either depicted a forebear who wore a blanket of very striking colors, or it may have described a rock formation near the ancestral home, a cliff that looked like a blanket enshrouded figure. The Bustamante coat-of-arms has 13 blue circles on a gold shield. Anastasio Bustamante was an early 19th Century president of Mexico.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like origin and coat-of-arms of HUNT. — B.H., San Pedro; A.R., Paramount.

B.H., A.R.: The medieval English term for a professional hunter of wild game was "Hunte." This became the surname HUNT. The family resided in Derbyshire in the 1200s. Their coat-of-arms has a black buglehorn on a silver shield, an emblem symbolizing the hunter. William Hunt, a settler of Rowley, Mass., shortly after 1620, is believed to be the first American Hunt.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give origin of the Scotch name STERLING. — E.M., Long Beach.

E.M.: The surname STERLING, taken from the city of Stirling in southern Scotland, is a modern spelling of the ancient Celtic word "Ystrefelyn," meaning "yellow house." This archaic word was shortened to Strivelin in the 12th Century and later changed to Stirling. A historic battle between the Scotch and England was fought at Stirling in 1297. The Stirlings are a division of the Scotch Clan Murray. Their coat-of-arms has three gold belt buckles on a diagonal blue stripe across a silver shield, with the motto "Forward."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell genealogy on HANCHET and HANCHETT.—P.H., E.W., Long Beach.

P.H., E.W.: The French name, HANCHETT, from the old German warrior name "Hanno," means "little rooster." The rooster was an ancient symbol of pride and determination. Hanno, joined to the nickname suffix "-quet," produced Hannequet which was altered to Hanchett and Hanchet. Descendants migrated to England and were 17th Century settlers of Connecticut.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of SHEEHAN? Mrs. E.H., Long Beach.

MRS. E.H.: The Gaelic Irish name SHEEHAN was once O'Siodacain, meaning "sons of the peaceful man." The family resided in the Irish counties of Limerick, Cork and Kerry. Many descendants migrated to America in the 1700s.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

You'll Fall for the Parks in Autumn

By Sterling Bemis

"Most tourists," said the ranger, "see the park under bad conditions—crowded with people. The time to see the park is in the fall, when there's nobody here but us animals."

IN 1870 A LADY VISITOR to Yosemite National Park complained it was "too crowded." That year it had 1,735 visitors.

This year Yosemite expects 1,100,000 visitors. The total for all national parks will exceed 50,000,000.

In the last decade a tremendous surge in touring has resulted from the increase in leisure time and the shorter work week. To meet the challenge, National Park Service in 1956 launched a crash program to expand facilities, called "Mission 66." Its goal is to establish by 1966, the 50th anniversary of the service, facilities for 80,000,000 visitors. Key items will be 300 miles of new roads, 1,500 miles of additional trails and an increase in campsites from the present 12,000 to 28,000.

An unofficial goal sought by park officials and concessioners is to extend the park season, primarily by attracting fall visitors. Decked with autumn's kaleidoscope of colors, the parks—rangers agree are at their best in September and October.

ANOTHER TREND WHICH BRIGHTENS the outlook for park tourists has gained a firm foothold only this season. It is a novel system of recruiting talented students for the summer staffs of park lodges. The system promises not only more and better entertainment for visitors, but a higher grade of young waiters, bellboys, maids and clerks.

Canyon Village in Yellowstone Park is the first major project of Mission 66. A new lodge, supermarket and 500 cottage units have been completed by McNeil Construction Co. of Los Angeles as part of a $5,000,000 outlay by Yellowstone Park Co. and concessioners. The government is spending an additional $3,000,000 on the village, with a new Park Service center virtually complete.

Yosemite, which expects 1,800,000 visitors a year by 1966, is concentrating on preserving the beauty of the valley by removing buildings which clutter it. Warehouses, storage and repair shops will be centered in the El Portal area. Rebuilding of a 21-mile section of the old Tioga mining road will be completed by 1961. Big Oak Flat Road will be brought from stagecoach standards to modern capacity. The 800 campsites outside the valley will be tripled. Trailer courts are planned at Wawona and El Portal.

MAIN BUILDINGS OF THE NEW Yosemite Lodge and Cedar Cottage have been completed for $1,100,000 and further building will bring the outlay by Yosemite Park and Curry Co. to $2,500,000. Work on a merchandise center and grill will start this fall.

National Park Service will spend $22,000,000 for roads, trails, buildings, utilities, etc.

The Yellowstone and Yosemite programs are typical of the face-lifting promised for all parks by Mission 66.

The California climate encourages late-season touring at Yosemite and the twin parks of Sequoia and Kings Canyon.

Yosemite Lodge and the Ahwahnee are open all year. Glacier Point Hotel and Big Tree Lodge are open through October. Camp Curry reopens for skiers on Dec. 22 and Wawona Hotel is open during Christmas and New Year's holidays.

THE AUTUMN SEASON at Sequoia begins Sept. 15 when the lodge dining room closes at Giant Forest. Giant Forest coffee shop serves all year and rustic cabins are available until Oct. 26. Camp Kaweah is open all year. At Grant Grove in Kings Canyon the lodge and Meadow Camp close Sept. 15, but the coffee shop remains open.

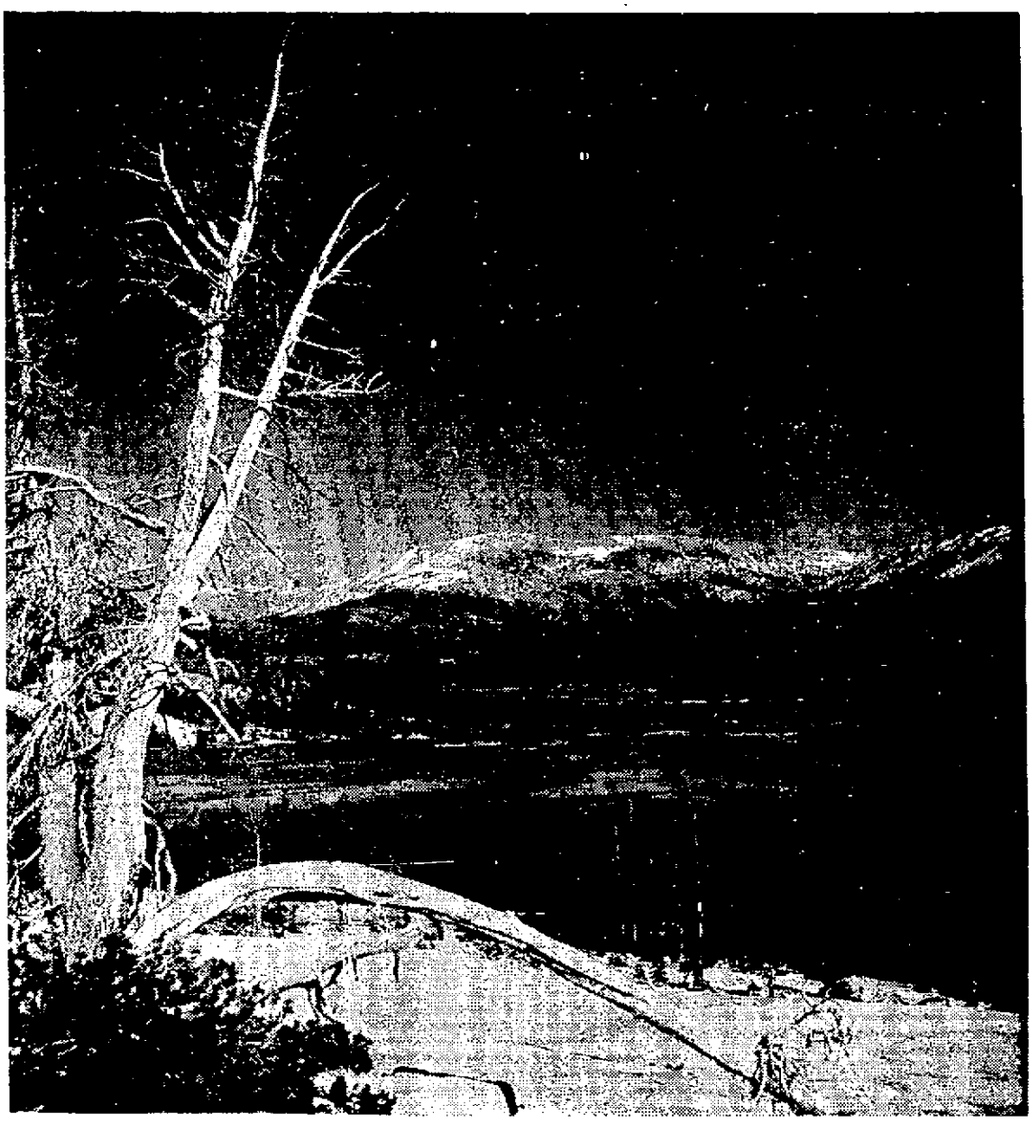

In Yellowstone, Old Faithful Inn and cabins with cafeteria service at Fishing Bridge are available until Sept. 15. Mammoth Hotel closes Sept. 20 and cabins are open at Old Faithful Lodge until Sept. 30. Canyon Village cottages and meals are available until Oct. 1 and cabins with cafeteria service at Old Faithful are open until Oct. 15.

KEY PERSONNEL, including the chairman of the board and the president of Yellowstone Park Co. and a staff of 10, maintain winter headquarters in La Jolla.

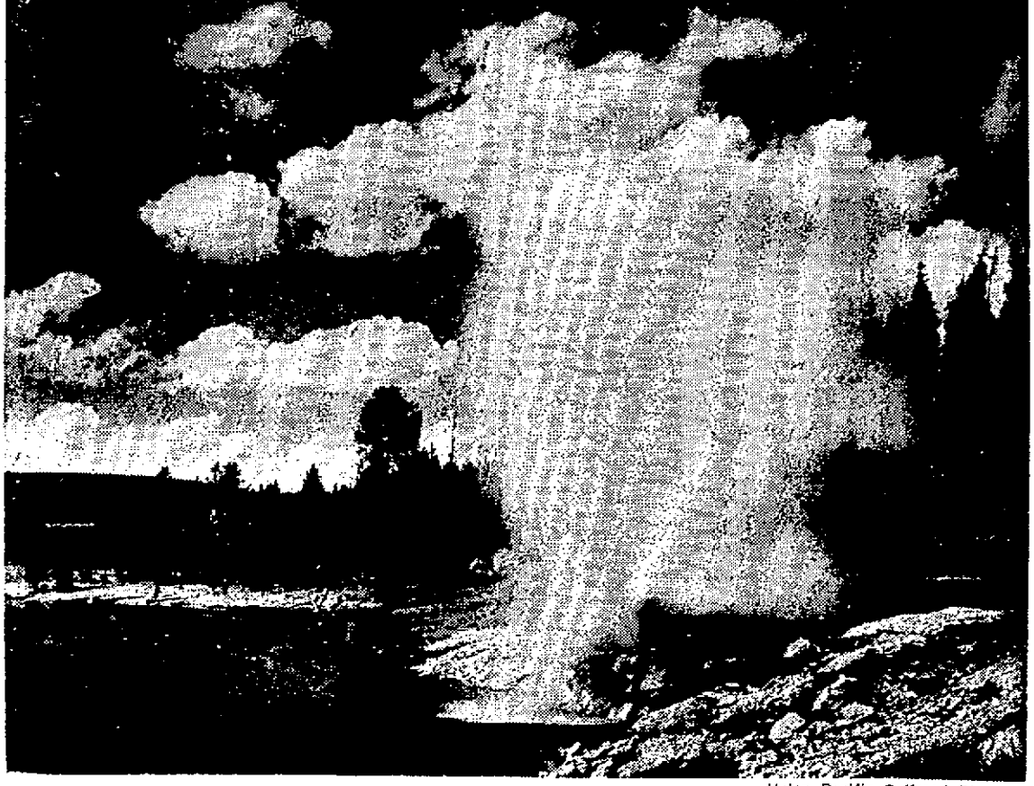

Another note of interest to Southlanders is the fact that Yellowstone this summer used for tours 10 buses owned by the City School Bus System, which will lease them this fall to Los Angeles School District. Nine school drivers manned the buses in the park. For park touring, they sent 41, for school use, 79. Next year 28 school buses will be supplied to the park.

At northerly Glacier Park, hotels close Sept. 10, motor inns on Sept. 15. But autumns are "warm, colorful and beautiful and profitable for the motels all around the park which remain open for a pretty busy October season," William O. Carlson, public relations director reports. Going-to-the-Sun Road is usually open until Oct. 15. "Actually, there is very little more chance of snow in the park in September

Decked with autumn's kaleidoscope of colors, the parks are at their best in September and October. Tuolumne Meadows, in Yosemite, is fall beauty spot.

Judo techniques are practiced by two 12-year-olds, Billy Johnson, Dave Ogden, having some fun as they train. Health, sportsmanship are among claims for judo.

THERE'S an old Japanese art being practiced just a few paces off the busy street at 1929 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach. Inside, the atmosphere is calm and quiet except for the soft scuffing of bare feet, as white clad judo students of all ages, exercise on a thick, white mat.

On the walls are large charts. They state the various rules for attack and defense, and the most important of these are the basic judo techniques, as follows: 1. Keep relaxed. 2. Every movement must have a purpose. 3. Keep alert. 4. Get opponent off balance. 5. Maintain your own balance. 6. Change timing. 7. Strength vs. strength is without success. 8. Learn attacks and defenses. 9. Abdominal breathing. 10. Think of opponents possible moves; simplify your own moves.

"MOST PEOPLE DON'T understand judo. They're afraid of it," says John Ogden, instructor and owner of the school. "Judo is much more than the ability to throw a person over your shoulder. It is an art, a sport, a system of physical exercise and self defense; but most of all it is an education in training your mind, body, emotions, and spirit to work together. Judo develops character and clean habits, and each student is rewarded with self-confidence, poise, balance, timing and agility."

Ogden should know! He's made judo his life's work, with a combination of 25 years training and instructing. During World War II, he taught judo in the Navy. One of the best instructors in the country, he wears the Black Belt, 2nd rank. (Black Belt, 10th rank, is the highest award attainable, and only three men, now living, hold this rank.)

In the dojo, or exercise hall, Ogden's students sit quietly on the mat until they are told otherwise. Each wears the traditional judo-gi, a costume composed of a white cotton jacket, trousers and belt. When Ogden calls "Hajime" (begin) the contestants rise and bow to each other. This salutation is a custom showing respect for each other's ability. Then they begin their bout, putting to use the judo techniques they have learned. They engage in contests with other judo schools in Southland cities, and give exhibitions for various clubs and P-T.A. groups.

STUDENTS ARE 6 to 60 or older. Age, sex and strength are of little importance. But young or old, male or female, the students have two things in common; they all enjoy judo and they take their training seriously.

They can not wear rings, bracelets or fancy gadgets. Finger nails and toe nails must be kept clean and cut. Breathing is done through the nose with the mouth closed. The costume must be kept clean and mended, and when not in use, it must be folded neatly. As for conduct, there is no place for show-offs or braggarts in judo.

Achievements are classified by colored belts, and each belt carries a series of ranks. Promotions have to be earned through the progress the student makes. They start with the White belt, Green is next, then Brown and Black. The higher the color, the more difficult it becomes to win the various degrees of rank. The instructor can give up to a 3rd Brown in his own school. From then on, it's left to the Promotional Tournament's Governing Board to decide, and tournaments are held every six months.

HIGH STANDARDS, CUSTOMS, and rules of judo are followed with esteem in all countries. The modern Kodokan judo is a cultural, impressive sport, compared to the old, violent jujitsu from which it stemmed. It came about when a small, timid 18-year-old Japanese boy, Jigoro Kano, grew tired of being shoved and bullied by his stronger classmates. He decided to try a jujitsu school, where he understood strength was not an important factor in protecting oneself.

Jujitsu was rough and at times dangerous with malicious throwing, twisting, poking and jabbing. Injuries were frequent, and Kano was disturbed about it. After years of extensive training, he found by combining the good qualities of jujitsu, (art of attack and defense) with his own higher aims and techniques, he had a new, effective exercise. He opened his own school and called it Kodokan judo, (principal of maximum-efficiency with minimum effort.)

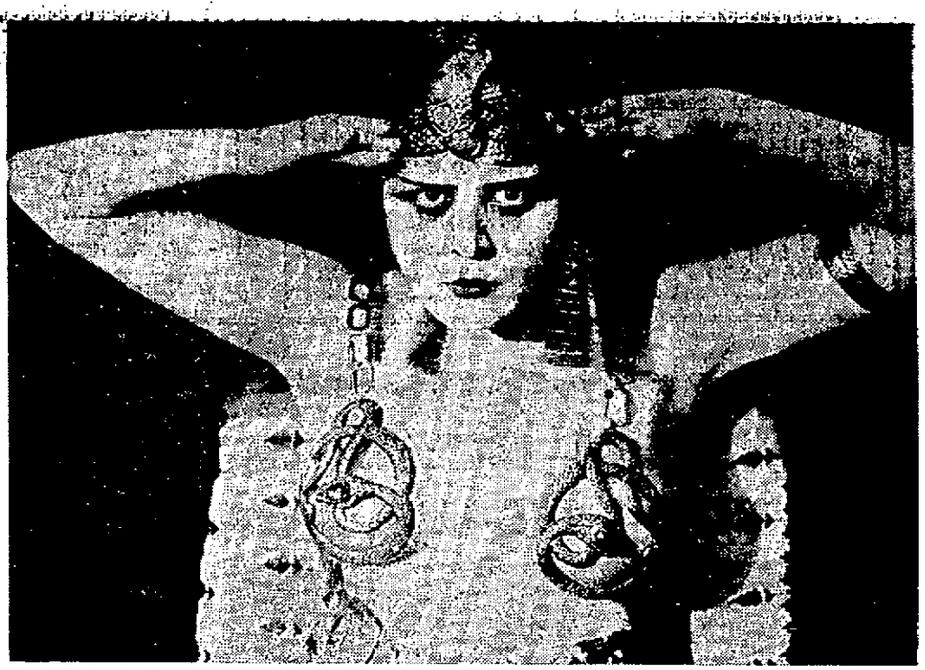

The Japanese public approved the new method, but doubted that judo could stand up to jujitsu in actual conflict. A show-down resulted between the best judo students and the masters of jujitsu. Kodokan judo won all but two bouts, and these they tied. From then on, judo spread throughout the world and jujitsu became all but obsolete.

When judo was first introduced in America at the turn of the century Theodore Roosevelt had a room in the White House converted for judo training. He practiced diligently, and became an avid student in the art.

Now it is popular in many large universities such as Purdue, the University of Chicago and the University of California.

Bara to Bardot

In 1914, when the world was ablaze with war, the then flickering motion picture screen was flaming with the exotic image of Theda Bara who was making granddaddy's heart palpitate joyously as she slithered through "A Fool There Was." She was the first of the movie vamps and set a new style for femmes fatale. A succession of glamour gals has followed the raven-haired, dark-eyed beauty, each in her own manner. Recently, Marilyn Monroe hit the suave modern movies with startling impact, only to find that a new queen is threatening her reign: Brigitte Bardot, national sex symbol of France and star of the upcoming United Artists-Lopert release, "La Parisienne." So, from Bara to Bardot the glamour parade has spanned more than a half century. Each new queen, in her own manner, has been the personification of sexy emoting. As you scan the lovelies presented here, try to remember that standards of glamour are always changing—don't be too critical of yesterday's stars. They, too, had fan clubs of swooning admirers.

"Father! Come here!" mother used to say when Theda Bara, in next to nothing, turned on her burning look — as she did (above) in role of "Cleopatra."

Greta Garbo hasn't made a movie in years, but is still remembered with awe for her mysterious beauty, talent.

Blonde Bombshell in Repose: Platinum-tressed Jean Harlow skyrocketed into fame with a pyrotechnical brand of all-American emoting in movies of 1930s.

Marilyn Monroe, whose nude and near-nude posing, lifted her to prominence, is the modern film siren of U.S.A.

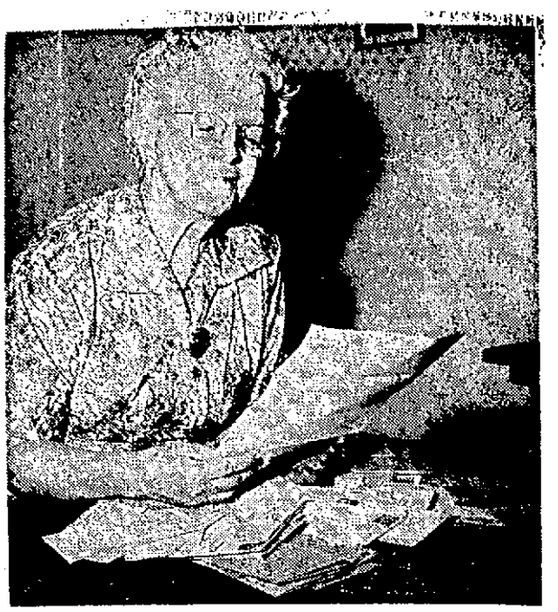

And now Brigitte: Purring like a romantic kitten, Brigitte Bardot cuddles up to Henri Vidal in this scene from United Artists' "La Parisienne."

Mrs. Blanche Phillips looks over some of letters sent by famous persons in answer to her birthday greetings.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Happy Birthday to All!

By Jane Johnson

BELIEVING that people, no matter how rich or famous, appreciate approbation, Mrs. Blanche Phillips of 229 W. 6th St. began writing birthday letters to famous folks more than 40 years ago. The response has been more than 70 per cent and the replies always joyous.

There was the hand-written letter from Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India. He wrote: "I am grateful to you for the good wishes on my birthday. The affection I re-

There's a little bit of villainy in every one, says Lee Van Cleef, one of TV's most despicable villains.

TELEVISION

Villainy Is His Business

By Terry Vernon

Independent, Press-Telegram Television Columnist

NEXT TIME you watch a television villain smile as he pumps bullets into a helpless victim's back, check your reaction.

There's a small part of you that might enjoy doing the same thing.

Lee Van Cleef, an actor who has made a business out of being disliked, feels that everyone has a bit of sadism in his nature. But most people, he says, have successfully suppressed it to the extent that they don't realize it exists.

VAN CLEEF doesn't get much chance to suppress his.

"I've pretended that I enjoy shooting people in the back so often that I've found myself smiling without meaning to. There have been times when I've had to suppress glee at someone else's despair," he says.

This can be brought out in almost anyone, Van Cleef believes. The more pleasure a villain seems to derive from his evil deeds, the richer the vicarious thrill for the viewers.

Villains usually get their come-uppance, on or off film, and it makes for a short life for Van Cleef.

"I get my licks in during the first part of a show, but always wind up getting killed in the last act."

Little Lawn ornaments have own personalities.

Little Lawn Ornaments

By Steve Ellingson

WHENEVER you get unhappy with our streamlined, 20th century, fast way of life, consider the poor chicken. Now there's a creature that has reason to complain.

There was a day, when a mother hen with her family of chicks, gave a pastoral touch to many a yard. She laid her eggs, sat on them until they hatched and then taught her family how to scratch for food. But that's all gone now. Chicks, in this mechanical age, are incubator-hatched, and mechanically brooded. Poor old mother hen has become almost as useless as roller skates on a fish—at least, where raising a family is concerned. Her cackle has given way to the monotonous clack of computing machines at the checkout counters in the hatcheries.

LAWN ORNAMENTS came into existence because people like to be reminded of the pastoral scenes of days gone by. Since it isn't easy or practical to keep a calf or duck or other living things in our yards we've developed simulated animals. The lawn ornaments pictured above with Evelyn Rudie, whom you have watched on NBC's television shows, will add sparkle to any yard. Each little animal has a personality all his own. And what is more, they are lots of fun and easy to make, when you use the full-size patterns.

Here's how you do it; you trace the full-size patterns on wood, then paint over the tracings and finally saw them out. It's that easy, any child from 8 to 80 can do it. The patterns tell what materials to use.

To obtain the full-size lawn ornament pattern assortment No. C-3 shown here, send $1 by check, currency or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, 15155 Salticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

House of 'Wall-To-Wall Charm'

Photos by Joe Risinger

Small game table and chairs stand before the living room window wall that surveys terrace and pool of the interesting home of the H. M. Bower family.

By Eileen Ball

IT'S SHADED by benevolent old trees, skirted with velvety lawns and backed by a pool . . . it rings merrily with the sounds of a happy family of four. It's a house on the corner at 601 Ultimo Ave. and it's the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bower and their two active teenagers, Dayle and Jeff.

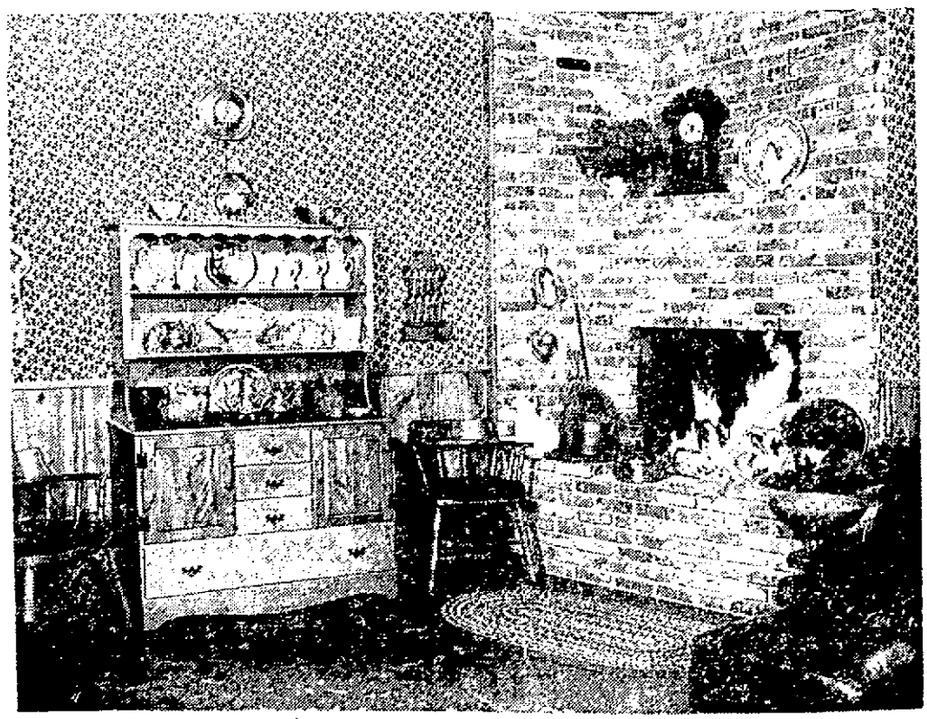

It's a home of "wall-to-wall" charm, with 3,000 square feet of floor space in two stories. It's strictly an one-family house, devoting itself wholly to the special tastes of its occupants, and each room does something special for the Bowers' relaxed mode of living.

Brown shingles and colonial styling mark the exterior. The white-paneled front door opens to an entry pretty as a picture with its cut-crystal chandelier, its beige, rose and soft green medallion wallpaper, and its amusing old Victorian hat rack and marble shelf.

TWO COLOR schemes prevail, each carefully coordinated and carried throughout. The entry and all living areas borrow their schemes from a trio of robust colors: red, green and gold. All the bedrooms are in shades of blue. Smart planning, this. As Mrs. Bower pointed out, the living room chairs, for example, may be used harmoniously in the family room. And vice versa. Ditto for accessories, all of which are as at home in one spot as another, thanks to this closely planned color coordination.

Green walls decorate the living room, located to the right of the entry. Beige carpet and butterscotch-gold casement draperies contribute two major neutral areas to the room. Basically, the room presents a somewhat subdued background for appointments in ruby reds and deep greens that give the area a cheery, perennial Christmas sort of atmosphere.

THE SAME COLORFUL and richly patterned fabric used for the sofa is repeated in wide ex-

Family room of the Bower home is dominated by a barbecue-fireplace of used brick. Patterned paper in red and black echoes the tones of the fireplace.

Raised terrace of brick serves for outdoor dining in the Bower home, offering most pleasant surroundings.

panses of pleated window valances. This linen material employs the exuberant and traditional Indian tree motif interpreted in full tones of red, gold and green against a neutral, off-white background.

Over the sofa is an interesting arrangement—an old fruitwood planter flanked by a pair of very old baroque brass sconces. Each one is centered with a small beveled mirror which reflects the twinkling light of a ruby trio of hobnail, votive candle cups. The sofa is gaily sprinkled with gold, red and green pillows.

Across the room, two cherry-red wing chairs, tastefully quilted, stand at either side of the open fireplace. Between them is a Victorian oval table that primly but prettily serves as a cocktail table.

THE BACK WALL of the living room is one large, square-paned window that frames a view of the bricked dining terrace, the lower level garden and the pool beyond. Standing before the window is a small, round game table that has been fitted with a quilted, red-and-green plaid gingham pad edged with a perky little ruffle. Four petite game chairs accompany the table, their seats upholstered in the same plaid fabric.

The family room, located toward the back of the house, is two levels lower than the preceding area. This room encourages the family and their guests to gather around its open fireplace that doubles effectively as a barbecue. Sharing the area is the kitchen.

The warmth of natural wood lends a special provincial kind of charm to the family room. Walls are wainscoted with mellow, waxed knotty pine paneling. The same material was used for the high-pitched, exposed-beam ceiling. Above the wainscot, a provincial paper combining dark red and charcoal-over-white colors echoes the tones of the black and deep red vinyl flooring. Close to this same color tone is the diagonal, raised hearth fireplace of used brick.

FURNISHINGS ARE casual, early American pieces that lend a special, rustic charm to this all-purpose area. Included in the grouping is a round dining table and captains chairs, an open hutch and several occasional tables. A forest-green Lawson sofa is over patterned with red plaid and accessorized with red pollows.

Kitchen cabinets are knotty pine, and all electric appliances are built in. The drop level ceiling of knotty pine terminates over the open serving bar that adjoins the family area. At this point, the ceiling takes an important upswing in pitch.

Located off the entry to the left is Jeff's bedroom which is all, and more, than any 15-year-old boy could wish for. Republic blue wallpaper patterned with small white geometric motifs provide the background for natural wood window shutters, maple furniture and a large red leather chair and ottoman. One touch of elegance is seen in the carpet of solid Republic blue.

UPSTAIRS, A PAIR of completely charming bedrooms and two baths complete the plan.

Brown-shingle, two-story residence contains "wall-to-wall charm" within its pleasant and inviting confines.

Sign of the Flying

By Betty Hardesty

THE Imperial Valley wildlife refuge—stopping place for untold thousands of waterfowl—extends along the southern end and eastern shore of Salton Sea. Part of the refuge is marked by rustic wooden signs bearing a flying goose and lettered with "U.S. Dept. of the Interior Fish & Wildlife Service Salton Sea Refuge."

The refuge comes as a surprise to autoists who turn off the main road near Westmoreland to visit Obsidian Mountain. Some buildings of the California Fish and Game Commission are also located on the road leading to the black peaks which loom up in the otherwise flat land, watered by irrigation ditches and the Alamo River. Green crops are cultivated by these governmental services to provide food for the wild ducks and geese, especially.

This section of the game refuge, designated as the "Pumice Unit," was the first portion opened for public hunting. In 1945, when the State Fish & Game first participated in the Imperial waterfowl management, public shooting was limited to 160 acres where 16 ten-acre ponds were developed and one double blind provided at each pond.

THE ACTIVITIES of this department date back to 1931 when the refuge was purchaspd for $85,000. This 2,000 acres had been occupied by two commercial duck clubs but it was kept inviolate as a refuge until 1944 when it became necessary to relieve duck depredations on Imperial Valley crops. At that time, interested farmers, the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the State Fish & Game got together to work out a plan. Their objectives remain in effect today: The waterfowl management area was to include sub-marginal lands along the south and east shores of the Salton Sea, to provide feed and resting areas as well as areas with food and water where depredating waterfowl might be herded and kept to prevent agricultural crop damage, and to provide public hunting areas.

Development and farming of green crops has continued with additional purchases of acreage but the steady rise of the Salton Sea water level curtailed some plans (it also sometimes covers the mud pots marked on maps). In 1956, however, the new 5,000-acre Wister unit, acquired for $1,000,000, was made available to the California Wildlife Conservation Board from the state's share of horse pari-mutuel betting.

REGULATED PUBLIC shooting is available to hunters at the Salton Sea Refuge for both ducks and geese during the waterfowl season. A $2 fee is required with reservations but no blinds are furnished as hunters are expected to disperse themselves. Some blinds remaining from early days can be used, however, as well as a few constructed by hunters. Makeshift arrowweed blinds are also useful when hunting on the refuge.

You Make It

Shutters lend style and are useful when it is time to close a house or mountain cabin. Pattern 389, which shows how to make a number of different kinds and gives actual-size guides for a variety of applied and open-work decorations, may be obtained for 25 cents. This pattern also is one of five in the Homestead Improvement Packet No. 30—all for $1. For orders under $1, add 10 cents service charge. Address orders with money to Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, New York.

Sandwiches and Salads to Go!

Peanut butter sandwiches can be varied to appeal to all summer appetites. Onion rings on rye, bacon, tomato, lettuce and cream cheese beckon eaters.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

SANDWICHES and salads to go! That's one meal call sure to win votes and influence appetites.

It's also an answer to warm-weather meals which often are skipped or skimped. Families are busy—lucky to muster a quorum for even one planned meal a day. Too often, unrewarding refrigerator raids and soda fountain shops fill the gaps.

So why not serve Saturday lunch and Sunday night supper straight from the refrigerator? Clear a shelf and post a menu that's an eye-and-appetite catcher. Make it self-service, but quick and easy to pick up on the run: nutritionally sound, but so tempting that kids (and grown-ups) can't resist. Plan foods that will keep their flavors and freshness till everybody and his pal is fed—and likely re-fueled on his next swing past home base.

ON THAT refrigerator shelf stack a tray with sandwiches—two kinds at least—each in its own plastic wrap. Or offer choices of breads and spread all set to combine.

Next on the menu, a bowl of crisp salad greens under snug cover, with snappy dressing ready for solo toss-ups. For special appeal, take a tip from fastidious gourmets and make your French dressing with peanut oil. It's delightfully bland, with the surprising talent for holding seasoning extra close to each crinkle of salad greens without wilting them.

Next day, mold favorite fruits or vegetables in bright gelatine and firm up in chubby paper cups for the salad.

CARROT STRIPS and celery keep their fresh-cut color and crispness in a tight plastic bag or refrigerator dish. Fresh fruits and milk take front seats. Pickles and olives, peanut butter and mayonnaise, mustard and catsup line up for quick action. Cupcakes, candy bars and cokes operate on the honor system — yours if you've taken on a real meal to back them up.

On a counter close by stack those Mom-savers — plastic forks and spreaders, paper plates, napkins and cups, plus lap trays for toting. So load when ready, folks, and pick your own eat spot — study table, back yard, TV corner or away on the run.

Heart of these refrigerator-ready meals are sandwiches. So make them rib-stickers, loaded with protein foods and energy-packed spreads that offer more than just calories.

PEANUT BUTTER combos are most children's first love. Meat, cheese, chicken and tuna are favorite fillers. Protect bread slices from moisture by careful crust-to-crust spreading with butter, margarine or mayonnaise. And fill right up to those edges so every last bite will be enjoyed.

One more thing about sandwiches. If you've a houseful of inveterate "just-make-mine-peanut-butter" enthusiasts, don't worry about it — nutritionally you're in luck! Balanced with other good foods—especially for these fast-galloping juniors — there's just no such thing as too much or too often when it comes to peanut butter. It's packed with protein, loaded with fast-action energy, and rich in important B vitamins. So, don't hesitate to go along with the crowd. Keep it front and center for weekend snackers, and—swirled in your prettiest spread server —on the table any day of the week or meal of the day.

Swiss Steak 'Quickie'

Dot the center of 2½ feet of heavy duty aluminum foil with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Shake half the contents of 1 envelope onion soup mix on the foil. (Use the soup mix dry and mix the ingredients so the concentrated bouillon and dehydrated vegetables will be evenly blended.) Over this place 1½ pounds chuck steak, without bone, cut 1 inch thick. Top steak with remaining soup mix and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Add ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced around steak. Bring foil up over meat and double fold edges to seal tightly. Place in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 1 hour.

SERVE WITH: Fruit Juice, Au Gratin Potatoes, Asparagus, Rye Bread, Spiced Peaches, Cress and Radish Salad, Baked Custard.

WHEN THOR HEYERDAHL, after 101 days at sea, sailed his raft Kon-Tiki to Easter Island more than a decade ago, he found gigantic stone figures (above) scattered everywhere. Who made these 50-ton monoliths, dragged them across country and erected them on huge stone terraces? Delving deeper into the mystery, he discovered the activity had suddenly ceased, because tools were left lying with many figures unfinished. Why? Heyerdahl organized a new expedition and sailed again for the remote Pacific island to get the answers. Accompanied by archeologists, he dug deeper into the mysteries of these long-lost people, whom he is now convinced came from South America and were forerunners of the Incas. His story, told in "AKU-AKU: THE SECRET OF EASTER ISLAND" (Rand, McNally, $6.95), is perhaps the most remarkable adventure tale of the year. Endpapers are a map of Easter Island, and there are 62 full-color photographs which prove Heyerdahl's tale is more than an exciting dream.

Peril in the Pacific

THE S. S. SILVERSPRAY beats her way out of San Francisco, Manila-bound. By the time the merchant marine freighter reaches Honolulu the cargo in her holds is shifting and an unlisted cargo of fear, hatred and bigotry begins to show among the ship's personnel.

So begins "S. S. SILVERSPRAY" by John Langdon (Macmillan, $3.95). The captain's wife finds herself in the middle of a brewing shipboard storm over treatment of a colored scullion suffering a mental breakdown. The captain is a good sailor, but his prejudice against any pigmentation other than white is strong and deep-rooted.

Continuing on from Honolulu the Silverspray finds herself in a great typhoon that threatens to destroy her. At the beginning of the blow the captain exhibits brilliant seamanship by maneuvering his ship to rescue a man washed overboard. When the ship finally limps into Manila the tensions and hates built up on the voyage snap into violence. The author, a Southern Californian, in this, his second novel, writes of ships and the sea with knowledge and love.

"THE HARD BLUE SKY" by Shirley Ann Grau (Knopf, $5): The setting for this novel is somewhat new — one of the three long, narrow islands at the mouth of the Mississippi. The characters are not so unique—a 16-year-old girl in need of a man, a marooned sailboat captain, and a score of others who weave in and out of the pages; only Miss Grau's pen makes them appear so. The action is not unique — life among the people of the swamps, storms, suspense over a lost one—but again the author's inventiveness comes to the rescue. The "feel" or atmosphere is superb for Miss Grau is a New Orleans resident who knows these swamplands in-

Birthdays

ceive from my countrymen and others is so generous that I feel overwhelmed by it."

The Lady in Waiting to Charles, Duke of Cornwall, wrote a note of thanks from England. Mamie Eisenhower acknowledged a tatted handkerchief with great joy. These famous personalities have the same birthday as Mrs. Phillips.

J. C. PENNEY wrote (in 1955): "I am 80 years old but my wife insists that my mother made a mistake, and that I am but 70. Your kind words regarding the standards of the Penney Company are most gratifying to me."

To Princess Margaret, she wrote: "You will receive many good wishes, but the best gift of all is a statement of friendship." Her Lady in Waiting answered: "Her Royal Highness is touched by your expression of good wishes on her birthday. It is much appreciated."

The late King of Sweden and his son, the present King, requested their secretaries to send letters of appreciation.

THE QUEEN of The Netherlands sent a card of thanks. So did Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio, Edgar Guest of Detroit, Sen. Richard Russell and Gov. Averill Harriman, who wrote: "Your warm birthday wishes were most welcome to me."

Winston Churchill sent a hand-written note saying: "I am so much obliged to you for your kind token of good will on my birthday."

To Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Phillips wrote: "I honor you for your contributions to our laws and organizations. I wish that the lovely lady who assisted you in the White House were present to eat cake and drink the 'wine of gladness.' She was outstanding in the list of personalities who reigned as First Lady." He replied with a hand-written letter. "I want you to know I am grateful for your birthday greeting."

SHE WROTE to Pope Pius at Rome: "Let us cease setting new year-posts and turn about to straighten those that show some lack of balance from the storms of time. Thus we may capture some of the joy and loveliness experienced in former years."

His card of reply expressed an appreciation, and invoked heavenly blessings upon the sender.

Her Fingers Taught Her Feet

By Aubrey B. Haines

WHEN Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch danced "Giselle" at the Greek Theater in Los Angeles' Griffith Park recently, ballet patrons witnessed a veritable phenomenon. Mrs. Alonso learned to dance the title role not on her toes but on her fingers.

Soon after joining Ballet Theater Alicia noticed that she frequently bumped into things and was uncertain where her partner would be. Once she complained to her husband, Fernando Alonso, about it. They began testing how far they could see to the side when looking straight ahead.

Alicia found that—instead of seeing in a semicircle as people with normal vision do—she saw in a triangular pattern. A physician's examination revealed that she had detachment of the retina. "This was especially tragic to me," she recalls, "for a ballerina learns to dance with her eyes, watching other people dance."

THEN SURGERY BEGAN. Two operations, performed in New York, traced the difficulty to her tonsils, which were removed. Back in her native Havana, Alicia underwent her third and most crucial operation. This, however, was only the beginning. The doctor told her that she had only one chance to get well. For an entire year she must lie in bed, completely still, with eyes bandaged. She must not move, cry, nor laugh. At the end of the year she might be able to see well enough to perform simple household tasks, but the doctor doubted that she would ever dance again.

Lying alone in a room in her family's home, Alicia realized that this was a real test of her faith. "It was such torture for me to lie still," she recalls, "feeling my muscles lose their power and learning that I was gaining weight and becoming flabby. Then I realized that dancing must still be the most important part of my life. Having lived for it always, I couldn't give it up."

LYING FLAT on her back, the young dancer began to visualize ballet for the first time as the audience sees it. "I saw all the steps that I had done," she remembers, "and how often I had done them wrong. I side and out. All in all, a book to be read for its quality and its power to entertain as few books can; and the satisfaction it gives for having read it.

Late Books

"HOMESPUN AMERICA," edited and with an introduction and commentary by Wallace Brockway and Bart Keith Winer (Simon and Schuster, $10): This handsome 831-page anthology is a book of many moods, a mixture of sense and nonsense, solemnity and levity, whimsy and wisdom. The writings are by some of America's most famous men of wit and wisdom, among them Ben Franklin, John James Audubon, Andrew Jackson, Davey Crockett, Henry David Thoreau, James Russell Lowell, Brigham Young, Artemus Ward, Louisa May Alcott, Mark Twain, Ring Lardner and Robert Frost. Also contributing are such distinguished English writers as Charles Dickens, Peter H. Burnett, Oliver Wendell Holmes and P. T. Barnum. Read any page and you'll enjoy it: It's all very down-to-earth and very American.

A thumbnail look at some other new books:

"AN APACHE CAMPAIGN IN THE SIERRA MADRE" by John G. Bourke (Scribners, $2.75): One of two writers who actually penetrated the Southwest during Indian days, Mr. Bourke describes as only an eye witness can the United States Army campaign in 1883, which brought together Geronimo and Gen. George Crook. Introduction to this chronicle, which has been out of print for many years, is by J. Frank Dobie.

"THE KATE SMITH 'COMPANY'S COMING' COOKBOOK" (Prentice-Hall, $3.95): Kate Smith is a past master at the art of entertaining informally. Here she offers 300 recipes which have delighted her guests. A separate chapter contains tempting recipes she has received from her fans.

"CLAUDINE IN PARIS" by Colette (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $3.75): Claudine—half-child, half-woman, impetuous but chastely sensual—explores Paris in this entertaining sequel to "Claudine in School." Only one person could write such a novel and that person, of course, is France's own Colette.

"A DOCTOR SPEAKS HIS MIND," by Roger I. Lee, M. D. (Little, Brown, $3): A happy and devoted doctor for more than a half-century deplores some of today's medical practices, particularly the specialists who know "more and more about less and less," and concludes that the general practitioner always will be the backbone of the medical profession.

"THE BOOK OF THE SEA," edited by A. C. Spectorsky (Gossett & Dunlap, $4.95): This reissue is a complete, unabridged edition of the magnificent original that cost $12.50—an anthology of dramatic writings, from earliest times to the present, with 64 pages of beautiful illustrations in halftone and gravure, and many line drawings. Worthy of the finest libraries.

"JACOB" by Jean Cabries (Dutton, $4.95): After developing first the theme of Jacob's flight, this novel by a young Frenchman follows closely the story told in the Book of Genesis — his sojourn in the house of his uncle Laban, his acquisition of wealth, his wives and his concubines, and, finally, his return at the head of a multitude.

Fingers

danced in my mind, and Fernando showed me my mistakes." When in the evening he came to see her, she would show him with her fingers the dance she was practicing, and he would correct any errors. Blinded and motionless, she taught herself to dance Giselle.

"It's my favorite role now," Alicia says, "because, I suppose, I learned it under such impossible circumstances." When the year of seclusion ended, Alicia's troubles were not over. Afraid that she might once more jar loose her retina, the doctor still forbade her to practice dancing. She still had to guard her eyes and had to learn to walk again.

MORE WEEKS passed, and Alicia resolved that she had been obedient long enough. She pretended to take walks with her parents' Great Dane but in reality visited a ballet studio two blocks from her home for daily practice.

Then a Caribbean hurricane howled down upon Havana, and Alicia ran to the patio to get the dog, which had recently given birth to puppies. A strong gust blew the glass out of the door from which she had just come, and the splinters hit her on the back of the head. She fell screaming on top of the dogs. Fernando rushed out to find her lying bleeding on the pavement.

An examination by the doctor revealed that the blow had done her retina no harm. "If your eyes can withstand such a shock, you can dance again," he said. She cabled Ballet Theater her readiness to return. Back she went as a soloist, arriving in New York with her head still bandaged. One night she got her chance to dance Giselle when Alicia Markova, at the time prima ballerina of the company, became ill.

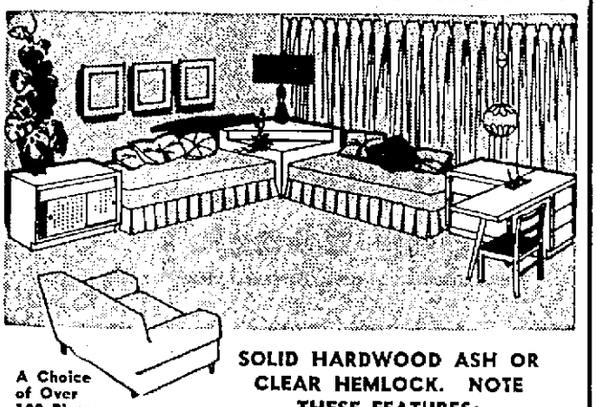

"When asked if I could do it, I said, 'Of course,'" Alicia recalls. "For a moment I really thought that I had danced Giselle on the stage. I knew it so well. Yet the only way I had danced it was with my fingers when I was sick." Her performance was a triumph, as it has been ever since. So a critic recently said of her interpretation of the role, "Alicia Alonso is the reigning Giselle of the present day."

Diet's Important to Begonias, Too

For an abundance of lush growth and a profusion of blooms in a single season, be sure to provide tuberous begonias with a complete balanced diet. According to the Belgian Begonia Growers Association, the two common problems in handling these aristocrats of the summer garden are over-feeding and over-watering.

Tuberous Begonias like to be moist and cool. A mist spray is highly beneficial during the hot dry summer months. These plants have shallow roots and for that reason must not be allowed to dry. On the other hand, a waterlogged condition will cause rotting of the roots and stems.

Tubers can easily be saved from year to year. Just as other tender bulbs, tuberous begonias need a rest period over the winter. In most areas, tubers are taken out of the ground with a digging fork after the plant has died. They are washed and allowed to cure in the sun for two or three weeks. When thoroughly dry, the stem can be pulled out easily. Store in a cool and semi-moist place over the winter, often in dry peat or dry sand.

Plan Ahead

The wise gardener looks well ahead. Plant perennial seeds now for bloom next spring. Carnation, gerbera, hollyhock, delphinium, many more. Consult your nurseryman about which seeds will do best in your soil and climate.

Answered

No one knew exactly how it happened, but one of the Sunday School teachers injured her hand during class and medical attention was necessary. Filling out the insurance claim posed no problems until she came to this: 'What were you doing at the time of the accident? Examples: Laying bricks, driving truck, etc.'

After some deliberation she wrote, "working to beat the Devil!"

Danny Riehl displays his sister's 3-tiered parasol which he discovered was not kite, rocket or chute.

Not a Rocket, But a Parasol

By Edna Hicks

DANNY RIEHL, an enterprising youngster of four summers who lives in Orange, found the strange contraption in his sister's clothes closet.

It was paper, bright and figured, and it looked something like a parachute and something like a kite.

Danny took it outdoors to investigate.

He pressed little latches and found that it opened in three tiers.

IT WASN'T A KITE because it didn't fly. It wasn't a rocket because it didn't shoot up into the clouds. It wasn't a parachute because it did not come down from anything.

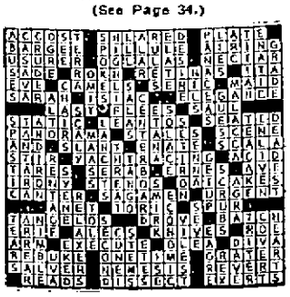

"Just girl's paper stuff," said Danny.

Around the corner darted his sister, Barbara Lee, 7, and she retrieved—HER PARASOL.

Shoyu Will Add Flavor to Old Standbys

Have you discovered shoyu? If not, hurry to the grocery and get a bottle. You'll give your family a new taste thrill.

Northwest Orient Airlines stewardesses, who have been enjoying shoyu in Japan and Hawaii, are passing the word along to their passengers. Also known as soya, soyu, and soy, shoyu is the "salt of the Orient." It's a fermented liquid made from roasted corn and steamed soy beans mixed with malt-mould and salted water. Caramel is added for color and flavor.

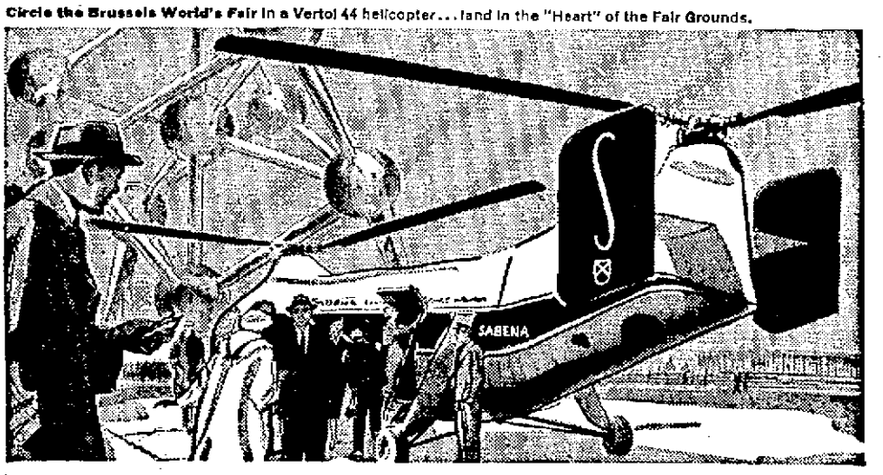

Nutritionists say it's healthful. And it's a gourmet's delight at a price anyone can afford. Originated in Japan, it found its way to Honolulu and now is available everywhere. It brings out the special flavors in various foods.

A few drops of shoyu give an extra tangy flavor of old standbys. A few drops over steak, hamburgers or chicken add oomph." It's fine for marinating beef, lamb or pork. Good cooks turn to it when broiling or barbecuing, using two parts of shoyu, one of white wine and one of vegetable oil, with a little garlic and ginger. It adds flavor to cream cheese and other snack dips. It improves gravies and salad dressings.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"How do we make arrangements for the Rhine steamer trip from Wiesbaden to Cologne while we are in Germany?"

JUST LIKE a ferry ride. You take a taxi down to the dock and buy a ticket at the little window—for a dollar or two as I remember. You can have lunch on the boat and take the train back if you like.

Better ask at your hotel if there is apt to be a crowd. I got on this trip over a three-day holiday and, believe me, it was fierce. But worth it.

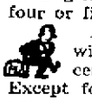

"We are driving to Mexico in October. Can you suggest towns that are not overrun with tourists?"

THAT'S A GOOD off-season month. But for nontourist towns—the problem is that such towns usually have no tourists because they don't have hotels. Mexico is not like the U.S., where you can always find a motel.

Best bets are off the major highways: Guanajuato, off the El Paso highway; Patzcuaro, off the Guadalajara-Mexico City highway; far-south towns like Tuxtla Guitierrez or Mitla or the area around Oaxaca.

"How many cigarettes can you take into European countries? What is the best way to buy them in Europe?"

MOST RULE BOOKS say 200, that is, one carton. However, this is a rule aimed at imports for sale. Customs officers usually don't push you on it. I generally take in about four or five cartons.

American cigarettes will cost you roughly 50 cents a pack in Europe. Except for Spain, where they are smuggled in from Tangier and sold quite openly at 25 cents.

Best buy is at the duty-free airport at Shannon, Ireland, if you stop there. Untaxed American cigarettes run around $1.50 a carton.

"Are there good antique buys in Vienna?"

I UNDERSTAND the government pawn shop called "The Dorotheum" is very good.

"We plan to go to England for a month next summer and would like to prepare with some reading material."

IF YOU SEND $3 to the British Travel Centre, 336 Madison Ave., New York City, you get a year's subscription to the excellent magazine, "Coming Events in Britain." Many good articles on places to go and see.

". . . some unusual, not-too-expensive place for dinner one night in New York?"

Vacation Shots Take Planning

By the Shutterbug

TOTING up my just-back from-vacation photo experiences, with its lessons learned from mistakes and successes, could be helpful to those camera fans with vacation time still ahead of them.

Definitely on the plus side was a day-by-day pocket notebook and diary. This gives the date and name of every place we stopped in orderly fashion. Whenever we stopped to take pictures, a few brief descriptive notes were added to make later identification easy and positive.

Any snapshooter who has conscientiously written down names, dates and other data on a menu, map or other handy scrap of paper will appreciate a bound notebook because there seems to be no way to prevent those scraps from disintegrating by the time they're needed for reference.

IN HINDSIGHT, I'd add one further recommendation. About my recent pictures, my written record tells who, what, where and when but not how.

Since my wife kept the records (and here's a tip of my sunshade for her good work) she didn't report any of the off-beat exposure data because I never relayed them.

Yet today, in going over the results from 25 rolls of black-and-white film, I wish I were more certain as to when I used a green filter and when the red.

I am glad, though, that I took along more than one camera. Most of the time, I had three slung around my neck. I wanted color and stereo slides besides the black-and-white. Trouble came after a visit to a beach.

YOU KNOW how shifty sand can be and how defenseless cameras are unless they're covered or hidden. Well, one camera inhaled a little more flying sand than was good for it and was rendered momentarily hors de combat.

For the next couple of days there was a shift to the new 35mm Kodacolor film. The latest development of this versatile film is that 35mm color transparency slides can be made from it as well as black-and-white or color prints.

Later, after some hefty blowing, vigorous shaking and some careful cleaning, the "black-and-white" camera was returned to duty pending more expert checkup now that we're back home.

THE MATTER of enough film tripped me up also, in two ways. There were times when I had an ample supply, but it was in the wrong place. Like the time we took a cable car ride up a mountainside and the cameras devoured all the film in the gadget bag and called for more. The reserve remained remote and unobtainable in the car at the bottom of the mountain. It also happened when we took "short" walks which turned out to be major expeditions with more photogenic sights and situations than we anticipated.

SECONDLY, despite my annual warnings in these columns, I ran out of film altogether. For some reason I can't explain, the last rolls of film always seem to zip through cameras at greater speeds and more opportunities to shoot crop up than normal. And it always happens between cities, at spots where your particular size or type of film is not easily obtainable.

In retrospect, I wish I hadn't passed by some of the people, places and events because I was sure I'd get around to taking better pictures of them later. Some of them never got taken at all and some of the first views were the most impressive, after all.

It makes better sense to shoot first and then seek improvements later. It's good insurance and allows greater selectivity later.

than in July," says Jack K. Anderson, management assistant for National Park Service.

IT WAS GLACIER PARK which pioneered this summer the new system of providing talented student helpers. Nearly 40 colleges were culled for musical talent. From 12,000 applicants, 550 young singers and instrumentalists were selected. After serving the soup, your waiter may step back and sing with, for instance, a dozen other members of the famous St. Olaf's Choir of Northfield, Minn.

Park officials report that the earnest, dedicated music students are more reliable in their other duties than the general run of college students.

Assigned to Glacier Park Lodge, for example, was Joyce Anderson, an alto soloist from Wittenberg College. Joyce will teach sixth graders in a Garden Grove school this year.

PET PARADE

A Day in the Life of a Canine Star

By Eleanor Avery Price

TELEVISION serials featuring dogs as important members of the cast pull a large number of viewers. These dogs are alert, well-trained, and bright-eyed with good health. Much can be learned about what makes them this way from the care and training they get.

Take Asta, as an example. Asta, registered with the AKC as Kilary's Kan Doo, is the wire-haired fox terrier who soared to stardom with his first television appearance as the personality pet of Nick and Nora Charles, played by Peter Lawford and Phyllis Kirk, in "The Thin Man." He is owned by movie dog manager Halleck H. Driscoll, who placed him in the care of William Koehler of Pomona to learn the art of performing in dramatic situations.

DRISCOLL SAYS that, although Asta's daily schedule is necessarily different from most home dogs, his sensible diet and care could easily be adapted for almost any canine.

Asta's working day begins at 6 a.m. when he is placed in a board-floor run for a light breakfast of shredded wheat and milk. Arriving on the set at 8:30 a.m., he gets his first of several daily brushings.

Asta, wire-haired terrier, featured on TV 'Thin Man' show, shares secret of all top stars—good grooming.

Throughout the day, he walks—and visits fire plugs—four or five times, is offered clean fresh drinking water frequently, and is sometimes rewarded with dog candy for a job well done.

WHEN HE RETURNS home around 7 p.m., Asta is allowed to exercise in his run for an hour and then is given his second, and large meat of the day. His food consists of cooked meat mixed with kibble and cottage cheese. A vitamin supplement is also given.

By 10 p.m. Asta is ready for a night's rest, bed being a sleeping box inside the house.

On Saturday, Asta is taken to a dog beauty parlor for a stripping, shampoo, and whisker trim. Thanks to these beauty treatments, daily brushings, and nourishing food, Asta's beautifully formed head and wiry-coated body are always in top condition for each episode of "The Thin Man."

Koehler, trainer of Roy Roger's Bullet, his own Wildfire, and many other dogs over a 20-year period, was a member of the wartime K-9 Corps. He says Asta easily assimilates instruction, and his retentive power is excellent. He is emotionally stable with a restless but not hysterical quality that makes him want to play into the picture, not just look at the trainer. He photographs well because most his coloring is light.

THOUGH NOT all dogs possess all the above qualities, Koehler believes almost any dog can be at least a canine headliner in its own home. Koehler highly recommends obedience training of the dog, but he also thinks the owner should obedience train himself.

He believes one cannot shout angrily at a dog and expect it to interpret anything but disapproval, and one cannot glare at it without the dog feeling guilty.

In fact, Koehler feels one usually cannot even think unpleasant thoughts about one's dog without it tuning in like a radio receiver.

So, if you want your dog to have a well rounded pattern of good behavior, keep yourself in hand and remain consistent at all times.

ENTRIES FOR Maria Obispo Kennel Club's unbenched show, Sept. 28, at Santa Maria Fairgrounds, will close Sept. 15.

HOW TO Apply New Pliable Plastic Sink Top

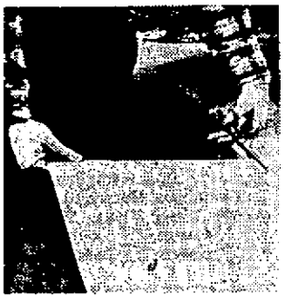

1. AFTER REMOVING old counter-top material and sink, sand counter top smooth or recover with plywood or hardboard. Fill the screw holes, joints with wood putty, sand smooth.

2. AFTER FASTENING hardboard or plywood in place, cut out hole for sink. Apply special plastic counter-top glue to entire counter top. Use grooved applicator to spread glue uniformly on surface, in corners, along edge.

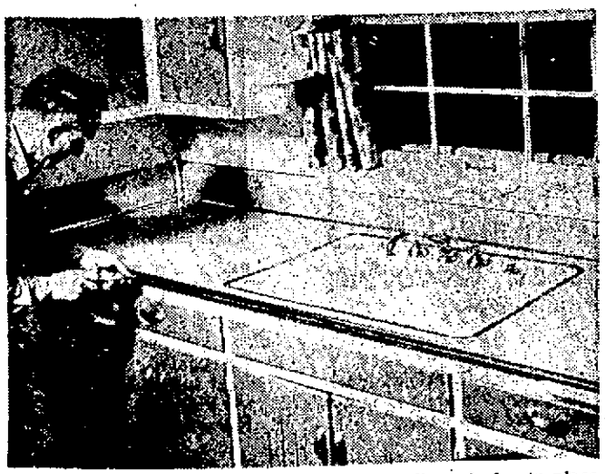

3. CUT PLASTIC to fit lengthwise and roll into place. Make sure counter-top material butts against backwall. Use damp cloth to press material firmly on counter-top surface.

4. TRIM EXCESS counter-top material along front of counter. Plastic material is easily trimmed with scissors. A sharp knife works best for trimming the corners, curved edges.

5. AFTER TRIMMING off front edge of material flush with the counter, use a sharp knife to cut hole for sink. Use knife with a sawing motion, but cut only on the downward stroke.

6. CUT STRIPS FOR BACK and side walls and glue in place. Metal molding and corners cover joints and front edge of the counter top. Install sink and tighten down securely.

Mums Steal the Fall Show

By Joe Littlefield

MANY GARDENERS prefer to grow the huge, commercial-exhibition type of chrysanthemums, even though lots of loving care has to go into the development of these spectacular autumn blooms.

True, these flowers steal the show in fall, but less ambitious growers find just as much pleasure in the "run-of-the-garden" blooms that require less attention — and herein also lies some of the affection of some for the pompon type of mum.

To gain giant blooms of show quality, care must be taken in every detail of culture. Emphasis must be placed on disbudding—removing all but the few desired buds. This diverts the strength of the plant into a few blooms which then must be carefully groomed to maturity.

Disbudding won't result in large pompon mums, but larger blossoms will result from such treatment of the plants.

Here's a little trick with pompon mums: Decide about how many flowers you want to pick for table decoration. Disbud the selected branches from which you pick the flowers, leaving only one flower to a branch. This leaves flower clusters on other branches that will remain small, continuing to bloom. Thus, you make the plant serve a twofold purpose

Continue to give the plants generous amounts of water. If the buds haven't started to show color, fertilize them with a complete plant food.

Disbudding branches of chrysanthemum produces larger blooms than if buds were not removed.

YOU'LL ADD MORE fall color in your sunny flower bed by planting some mums, right now. Your local nurseryman has them available in tin can containers. Plant some mums in the garden, leave the others in the containers and place them in the patio for spots of color, or plant them into larger containers.

Blossoms aren't the only form of floral decoration for indoors. There are a number of shrubs that flower arrangers list as "musts" for their gardens. They grow the plants for their decorative foliage uses.

Jessie Black, a well known floral arranger and active in California Garden Clubs, Inc., has her favorite foliage shrubs she grows to use for decorative purposes. Shrubs she recommends are Ternstroemia, Chinese Photinia, Nandina, small leaf bamboos, Correa magnifica, purple leaf plum; Viburnum suspensum, Chamaelaucium, small and larger leaf Myrtle for the blackberries that follow the blooms, geranium, saxifrage, billbergia, smoke tree and shake grass.

TERNSTROEMIA HAS the most colorful foliage. In the sun the leaves turn almost blood red. In the shade, the leaves stay a green color. Topping the plants several times forces them to grow bushy instead of tall and upright.

Chinese photinia serves a three-fold purpose. The mature foliage is stiff and handy for decorative uses. The masses of creamy-colored flowers look like billows of smoke hovering over the plant. New growth looks like hammered copper, and old-

Black spot on roses is a very serious fungus disease, but many people make the mistake of thinking the black specks that appear like pepper on top of the leaves is genuine black spot.

Actually, the fungus disease known as black spot starts on the underside and usually rots through to the top of the leaves.

The black spots appearing on top of the leaves are due to soil deficiency — lack of the necessary trace of mineral elements in the soil in which the roses grow. This can be corrected by the use of a proper trace element product used two or three times during the season.

Fuchsia Society

Report of the nominating committee and nomination of officers by delegates of some 30 branches and the board of directors will be major items of business at the bimonthly meeting of the California National Fuchsia Society at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Richard Henry Dana School, 135th and Aviation Blvd., Hawthorne. William L. Taylor, Anaheim, is president of the society.

Fuchsia Society branch awards in the Blue Whale word contest, in which hundreds of garden clubs from the coastal states and British Columbia participated, will be presented. First place, a $100 award, goes to Santa Barbara branch; second, $50, to Long Beach branch.

est leaves turn rich red in the winter.

Nandina, "heavenly bamboo," has attractive fall foliage coloring. Bamboo leaves are distinctly different from most other ornamental plants.

Correa magnifica has dark green foliage with a furry brown beneath. The long chartreuse flowers in the spring are an added attraction to the plant. Be careful not to overwater this plant.

PURPLE LEAF PLUM has to have plenty of space to grow, and seemingly doesn't mind growing in a lawn. White or pink flowers bloom in the spring; reddish, colorful foliage occurs in the summer.

Viburnum suspensum has green foliage and is a welcome addition for floral decoration. The small clusters of white scented flowers add color to the plants in winter.

BOAT TALK

Back to Sea School

By Bob Ruskauff

SHIP'S BELLS won't be ringing, but if you are yearnin' for learnin'—about the sea and for free—get ready to enroll.

Which is by way of saying two organizations that have done a tremendous job of providing boat and water savvy for the boating masses (and they now are masses) are about to begin fall courses throughout the Southland.

Courses are free, open to all, but also on first-come, first-served basis until the classes are loaded. Then, no more until spring.

Lt. Cmdr. Rubin Young, director of the auxiliary program for the U. S. Coast Guard, said opening (enrollment) classes will begin in this area the week of Sept. 15. Instruction will take 12 weeks, 2½ hours one evening per week.

In Long Beach, the site will be Dewey High School, 235 E. 8th St., starting Sept. 16, 7:30 p.m. (that, lubbers will soon learn, is 1930). In Torrance, Fern School, 1314 Fern St., Sept. 15, 6:30 p.m. In the Newport area, Balboa Yacht Club (for details call Oriole 3-0120).

ART RUDD, for four years now Educational Officer of Long Beach Power Squadron, announces enrollments and first classes at two Long Beach schools (among 16 Los Angeles-Orange County communities with similar programs).

These will be at Jefferson Junior High School, 750 Euclid Ave., Sept. 15, 7:30 p.m., and at Hamilton Junior High, 1016 E. 70th St., Sept. 17, 7:30 p.m. These classes in piloting and small boat handling, will be for 13 weeks, two hours each night.

The Monday classes of LBPS will handle about 170 persons, those on Wednesday, 125. As for USCG auxiliary, though under 50 per class is preferred, one spring enrollment had 100.

INSTRUCTION methods differ slightly, but in the main the two organizations proceed on similar basis, beginning with the basic objective which is sea safety, which can be gained only through knowledge.

Anyone, whether or not a boat owner or club member, may enroll. Those completing the course, then taking and passing examinations (some 60-70 per cent do so, others just complete the courses), receive certificates.

All instruction time is donated by ardent, seasoned Corinthians. Specialist experts present occasional features. USPS breaks its classes into smaller groups, under charge of a monitor to expedite instruction.

JOHN OLGIN Back From Alaska

SINCE CALIFORNIA is a healthy distance from Florida, not everyone out here knows what a Florida pompano is.

So perhaps the following information is pertinent. A pompano is a Florida fish which attains a length of 18 inches. It has a deep thin body, a rounded head and is golden, silver and blue in color.

It is also extremely delicious, especially the way it is prepared at the redecorated Harbor House Restaurant, 701 E. Ocean Blvd. Chefs Jack Richardson and Andre Foure saute their pompano with sliced almonds. The result is food fit for the Queen of Sheba. The fish is white and flaky, falls apart at the touch of a fork and has a delicate unfishy flavor.

In addition to its expert chefs, the Harbor House—owned by Ron Deardon and Ernie Moore—features the talents of Maitre d' John Olgin, a gentleman who is sometimes referred to as Ageless Johnny. The name is fitting because Ageless Johnny, who is a handsome grandfather, has looked 28 years old for the last 20 years.

LONG KNOWN to Long Beach restaurant-goers, Olgin recently returned here from Alaska, where his maitre d' talents at Anchorage's Chart Room won that restaurant Holiday magazine's 1957 award for achievement in cuisine. Olgin has gathered a competent staff at the Harbor House, including such waiters as Rocky Malone, who is superbly professional.

The large menu at the Harbor House offers extensive complete dinners which include a remarkably creamy clam chowder, large salad, potatoes, beverage and dessert. Among the entrees: pompano, $2.50; red snapper, $2.25; grilled deep sea bass, $2.25; halibut steak, $2.25; crab legs Florentine, $2.85; abalone, $2.75. Specialties include handsome, live Maine lobsters, $5.50, and the Gourmet Plate ($5), a spectacular affair which includes lobster, broiled chicken and assorted sea foods.

The Pat Blakely models stage luncheon fashion shows at the restaurant Tuesdays at 12:30 p.m.

Special report on Lance Reventlow:
World's richest baby grows up
by LLOYD SHEARER

September 7, 1958
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Lance Reventlow and Jill St. John page 6

Pin the name on the donkey the elephant

Enter Parade's election-year contest— you may win a trip to Europe

During the upcoming election campaign, you'll see these animals everywhere and know what they symbolize. Everyone knows the donkey stands for the Democratic Party, the elephant for the Republican. Both have been in politics since the 1870's — but neither, strange to say, ever has had a name.

Here's your chance to name these two symbols.

To stimulate interest in the great American privilege of voting, PARADE is sponsoring a contest to choose names for the party mascots. If the name you suggest is best, you (and a companion you choose) can win a 10-day, all-expenses paid trip to the French Riviera, or — if you prefer — a skiing holiday in the Alps. There will be two first-place winners — one for the best donkey's name and one for the elephant's.

But more important, this can be your chance to contribute to history. The national party chairmen expect the names to stick, and in the future the names will turn up in campaign literature, posters and speeches. And you'll help to make free government work. Voting is the cornerstone of democracy — but too many Americans still shirk their responsibility. This year, the parties and the non-partisan American Heritage Foundation will launch great get-out-the-vote drives. By entering PARADE's contest, you can support their purpose and make a vital patriotic contribution.

And you can help. The names you suggest can be short or long, symbolic, historic or just catchy. Maybe your inspiration will come from the mascots' history. You'll find some of that history at right. Next week PARADE will offer more hints from the past.

The prizes for the two cleverest choices are well worth aiming for. Winners will fly in a DC-7C Scandinavian Airways System airliner to Copenhagen, then on to the French Riviera (or to Switzerland or Austria, if you choose) for 10 days, with all bills paid. You and your companion can make the trip any time between December 1, 1958, and February 1, 1959.

And there will be 118 more prizes. From readers of this newspaper will come winners for a donkey's name and an elephant's name. These runners-up will receive a handsome pen desk set, specially designed by Arlen Trophy Co., Inc., plus a parchment scroll from the American Heritage Foundation, commending them for help in making democracy work.

The contest closes September 29. Judges will be Democratic chairman Paul Butler, Republican chairman Meade Alcorn and John C. Cornelius, president of the American Heritage Foundation. Winners will be announced in PARADE November 2. Read the rules and get out your pencil now. Remember, all entries must be on the contest entry blank. Send your suggestions to: Name Contest Editor, PARADE, Box 1640, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y.

With this issue the San Jose Mercury-News joins the family of fine newspapers that distribute PARADE. Welcome!

On Parade: Almost since the U.S. began, political parties have rallied around symbols — or used them derisively against opponents. The Democratic donkey and the Republican elephant — which you can name in our big contest — are the best-known, but are latecomers.

Back in Andrew Jackson's 1828 campaign, his opponents used the coffin as his symbol. It dramatized their claim that Jackson was a butcher who had killed his own militiamen. Later anti-Jacksonites used a spittoon to represent him.

Best-known symbol in the early years was the log cabin and cider barrel, representing the Whig, William Henry Harrison, in 1840. First used by his opponents, the log cabin was taken over by the Whigs.

Four years later, a coon represented the Whigs; the opposing Democrats called themselves "Coonskinners." In Lincoln's campaigns, a rail was the symbol—as in Lincoln the railsplitter.

The elephant came along in 1874. Cartoonist Thomas Nast of Harper's Weekly invented it, then used it repeatedly until other cartoonists adopted it. Nast also fathered the donkey, a few years later. Before that, Nast, a Republican, had tried a fox as the Democratic symbol, but the fox implied cleverness.

The donkey and elephant first appeared together in 1879. They've been together ever since.

Give you any ideas?

Jack Paar's Bouncy Buffoons

Ping-pong balls inspire TV humor

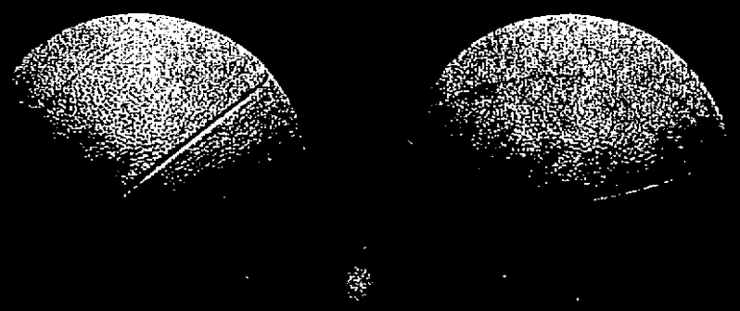

"You've got to think of them as little people who live in a happy world of their own," explains television star Jack Paar, as he arranges a Ping-pong ball and a baseball on a strip of black velvet. Paar is shown in a conference at left. He introduces his oddly assorted cast of spherical chums to the world at stay-up-late on his NBC-TV Tonight show. On stage, they behave with mad logic. Brainfather of this twist in abstract humor is Paar's chief writer, Jack Douglas.

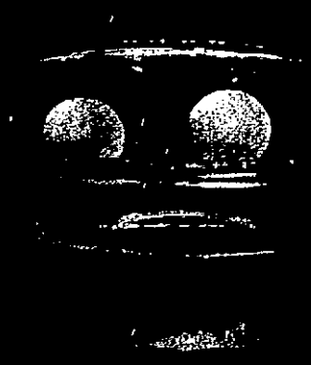

"Fritz! You've been dueling again!"

"Look, Mommy — an angel!"

"I'm sure you guys are familiar with the rules of the New York State Boxing Commission."

"Do you think it will rain all week end?"

"Take me to your leader."

"Mabel, you've really got to give up sweets."

OLD-FASHIONED RICE PUDDING

—the quicker Minute Rice way

⅔ cup Minute Rice • 2¼ cups milk • ⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter • ½ teaspoon salt • ½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon nutmeg • Cinnamon • Sugar

Combine Minute Rice, milk, sugar, butter, salt, vanilla and nutmeg in a greased 1-quart baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour, stirring after 15 minutes, and again when pudding is done. Then sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Place under broiler a few minutes to brown. Serve warm, or chilled.

Pudding thickens as it stands, because Minute Rice continues to absorb the milk and flavors as pudding cools. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

GLORIFIED MINUTE RICE

A dream dessert that's double-quick

⅔ cup Minute Rice • ⅔ cup water • ½ cup pineapple juice
½ teaspoon salt • 1 cup diced marshmallows • 6 diced maraschino cherries • ¾ cup drained canned crushed pineapple

Combine Minute Rice, water, pineapple juice and salt in saucepan. Mix just to moisten all rice. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat. Cover and simmer 5 minutes.

Remove from heat, let stand 5 minutes. Add marshmallows, cherries, pineapple and nuts. Cool to room temperature. Fold in whipped cream and chill 1 hour. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Cool, happy desserts for company—for family—or just for fun

- A bright and beautiful 18-year-old actress girl friend named Jill St. John;
- The knowledge that you were sole heir to a fortune ranging from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000?

With these assets, what would you do with your life? This is the problem today confronting Lance Reventlow, the tall (6'), well-built (170 lbs.), handsome (brown eyes, blond hair) son of Barbara Hutton, heiress to the tremendous Woolworth fortune.

Sensitive, asthmatic and intelligent, young Reventlow is faced with several alternatives. Should he become a playboy like some of his relatives and other scions of wealthy American families? Should he enter politics like the Roosevelts and Rockefellers? Should he dedicate himself and his money to the betterment of humanity? Or should he satisfy his every whim, spending his money as he sees fit?

These are the questions which today course through Lance's mind. As yet, he has found no answer.

No Store Manager

"If I were connected with a family business," he says, "it might be easy for me to follow in my father's footsteps. But the truth is that I haven't talked to my father [Count Haugwitz Reventlow, an ex-German soldier who became a naturalized Dane] in ten years, and I'd sooner be caught dead than follow in his footsteps. My mother hasn't owned any Woolworth stock for years. And besides, I don't have the temperament or the desire to become the manager of a five-and-dime store. If I did, I'd become one."

Right now, Reventlow is interested in sports cars. "I like to race 'em," he explains, "and I like to build 'em. I've finished three Scarabs this year, and eventually I'd like to build custom jobs for sale. I've got a company, the Reventlow Automobile Corporation, a few good friends in the business, and I think we can make a go of it. Unfortunately, it's tough in America for publicized people of inherited wealth to make a go of things. You've got to try doubly hard."

As Jill St. John, explains things: "When Lance wins a sports car race, as he did at Riverside not too long ago, the scoffers say, 'Who couldn't win with a car like that?' When he loses they say, 'He's a bum.' Either way, he can't win."

Lance Reventlow is sharply aware of the envy and antagonism his inherited wealth arouses in people ("Americans openly scorn but secretly admire royalty and the sons of the rich," wrote de Tocqueville, the noted French observer, more than 100 years ago) and as a result, the young man tries his best to be self-effacing and polite. He rarely throws either his weight or his wallet around.

A few weeks ago, for instance, he appeared for his Army physical in Beverly Hills. Many rich boys here try to avoid service by presenting fake medical histories and dossiers of imaginary ailments. Lance, who scorns such behavior, showed up and took his exam like any other draftee, was turned down as an asthmatic.

Lance has suffered from asthma most of his life. He was born "an almost blue baby" in London and delivered by Caesarean section on February 24, 1936. The delivery nearly killed his mother. As a boy he suffered seriously from one respiratory disease after another and eventually was sent to the Southern Arizona School for Boys in Tucson, a school especially prepared to educate asthmatics. Lance still wheezes when he gets excited. He also has difficulty breathing the night air, and both his lungs are damaged.

Keepsake Giver

For a young man who suffered the strife-torn childhood of the "poor little rich boy" — Lance was constantly fought over by his parents — Reventlow possesses a surprisingly good sense of humor and sense of values. A few years ago he was dating Dawn Addams, an English apprentice actress who later latched onto an Italian prince. "How come," Dawn asked one day, "you never gave me a keepsake of our friendship?"

Lance smiled. The following afternoon Dawn returned to her apartment to find a 50-pound bag of Bandini fertilizer smack in the center of the living room.

Recently Walter Winchell carried an item to the effect that Barbara Hutton would give her son a check for $5,000,000 the day after he got married. Jill St. John phoned him. "Why don't you marry me for your money?" she asked. Lance laughed. "For that much dough," he cracked, "I'd do almost anything. But marriage is too much."

Like most young rich men, Reventlow views people, especially attractive marriage-minded young women, with a wary eye. "How do you know," he asks, "whether they're interested in you as a human being or your money? That's the trouble with being born rich — it's both a curse and a convenience."

For his age, Reventlow is studiously cautious, reserved and unusually mature. He also is intelligent enough to learn from someone else's experience.

Lance feels his mother, the much-maligned Barbara Hutton whom he loves and admires deeply, is a sensitive, warm-hearted woman of kindness and ethereal beauty. She never has hurt anyone in her life but herself. European fortune-hunters have duped her year after year, because she is an incurable romantic who believes in the essential goodness of human beings. Married six times, first to Alexis Mdvani, then to Count Court Haugwitz Reventlow, actor Cary Grant, Prince Igor Troubtezkoy, Dominican playboy Porfirio Rubirosa and finally to tennis-playing Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Barbara Hutton still refuses to believe that many of the men who move and have moved in her circle are devious, grasping rascals.

BABY GROWS UP

CLEAN-CUT and handsome, Lance has a passion for sports cars, a wariness of Hollywood phonies and fortune hunters.

But Lance Reventlow sees these men with a clear eye. He can go through the list of international society types and chop them down with a few sharp adjectives. Others he speaks of good-naturedly, but always with a perceptive objectivity his mother lacks. Unlike many young people of strong conviction, he is not without sympathy or compassion.

"I've read your mother's poems," I told him, "two slender volumes of fragile, beautiful and moving poetry. How could so sensitive a woman marry the guys she did?"

"It's not too hard to understand," Lance said, "when you realize that there are men in the world who specialize in women. They learn everything there is to learn about them—how to flatter them, how to spoil them, how to charm them. They make a career of it, and frequently they're irresistible. It takes a strong, tough-minded woman to withstand their onslaughts, and my mother isn't one of these. After she marries, the romance seems to vanish. The husbands seem to change. My father talked to my mother about giving up her American citizenship. In Denmark they have a community property law. The husband owns half of his wife's property. That's one of the reasons I'm not particularly fond of my father."

For years Barbara Hutton and Haugwitz Reventlow fought a bitter, no-holds-barred legal battle for the custody of Lance. This at a time when the boy desperately needed love, affection and guidance. Instead there were headlines, recriminations, emotional traumas, law suits. At 2, Lance first was awarded to his father, then to his mother until he reached school age; then he was made a ward of the court. In 1944, when his father was scheduled to relinquish him to his mother's custody, Lance was hustled off to Canada. Of these early years, Reventlow understandably refuses to talk.

Magnificent Fortune

When Lance was awarded by the court to his father, Barbara Hutton created a trust fund of several millions for her son. Haugwitz Reventlow was permitted to control the fund until Lance came of age. After that the residue of the fund was to be returned to the boy (which is how Lance came to pick up his million dollars last year when he was 21).

Stories to the effect that he inherited $25,000,000 at the time are not true. Nor is it true that he lives in a half-million dollar mansion equipped with an indoor swimming pool and all the latest mechanical gadgets.

The house (which he helped design) cost $200,000. It stands on a knoll overlooking Beverly Hills and contains six rooms and a swimming pool, a small portion of which edges into the living room, a merging of outdoor and indoor living not too unusual in California.

The truth about Lance's money is that he does not come into the lion's share until his mother dies or alters her will. His mother is only 46. Upon her death Lance will inherit all her holdings, none of which consist of shares in F. W. Woolworth & Co. These were disposed of many years ago after Barbara Hutton came into outright possession on her 21st birthday, November 14, 1933, of her $40,000,000 share of the Woolworth fortune.

Barbara Hutton's father, Franklin Hutton, a broker who had married Edna Woolworth, daughter of Jessie and Frank Woolworth, founder of the five-and-ten chain, invested his daughter's money so shrewdly that today, according to conservative estimates, it has doubled in value. Barbara Hutton, however, has given a good deal of it away to sundry husbands and charities.

Mother Writes Poetry

She is passionately devoted to Lance, however — her books of poetry are dedicated "To my son Lance Haugwitz Hardenburg Reventlow" — and the sports car racer will never be in need of money. Lawyers estimate his minimal inheritance to be $50,000,000 on which he can draw in advance, if he so desires, $500,000 a year.

This is all owing to a circumstance of birth for which Lance sensibly refuses to apologize. "Some people are born with blue eyes, I was born with money." He realizes that inherited money is frequently a handicap to a man's character, but he hopes to compensate for it by making himself a useful, hard-working, law-abiding citizen.

The life he currently leads is certainly above criticism. He reads omnivorously, everything from novels to scientific tracts, and is amazingly well-informed on a great variety of subjects.

Young Reventlow went to Pomona College for two months but quit in 1953 and embarked on a course of self-education. Nervous and restless by nature, he finds that reading and chain-smoking calm his nerves.

He spends hours at his drawing board working up new car designs — his knowledge of automotive engineering is extensive — and more hours in a Beverly Hills garage constructing motors. He races cars in meets every few weeks and is considered by fellow competitors to be "a good driver." Dr. Alan Kerns, a well-known racer who's driven against Reventlow, says, "He's got brains, which a lot of these kids don't have. He's afraid when he loses control of his machine, which hasn't been too often, and he knows how to judge the risk between winning and getting killed."

Socially, Lance is a conservative who has seen through the illusion of both high and Hollywood society. "Hollywood society," he says, quoting his mother, "is like going down a sewer in a glass-bottom boat." Lance attends relatively few parties or social functions, but when he does he can size up phonies quickly and instinctively. He doesn't care for actors as close friends, but he has dated such young actresses as Cathy Crosby, Natalie Wood, Kim Wadsworth.

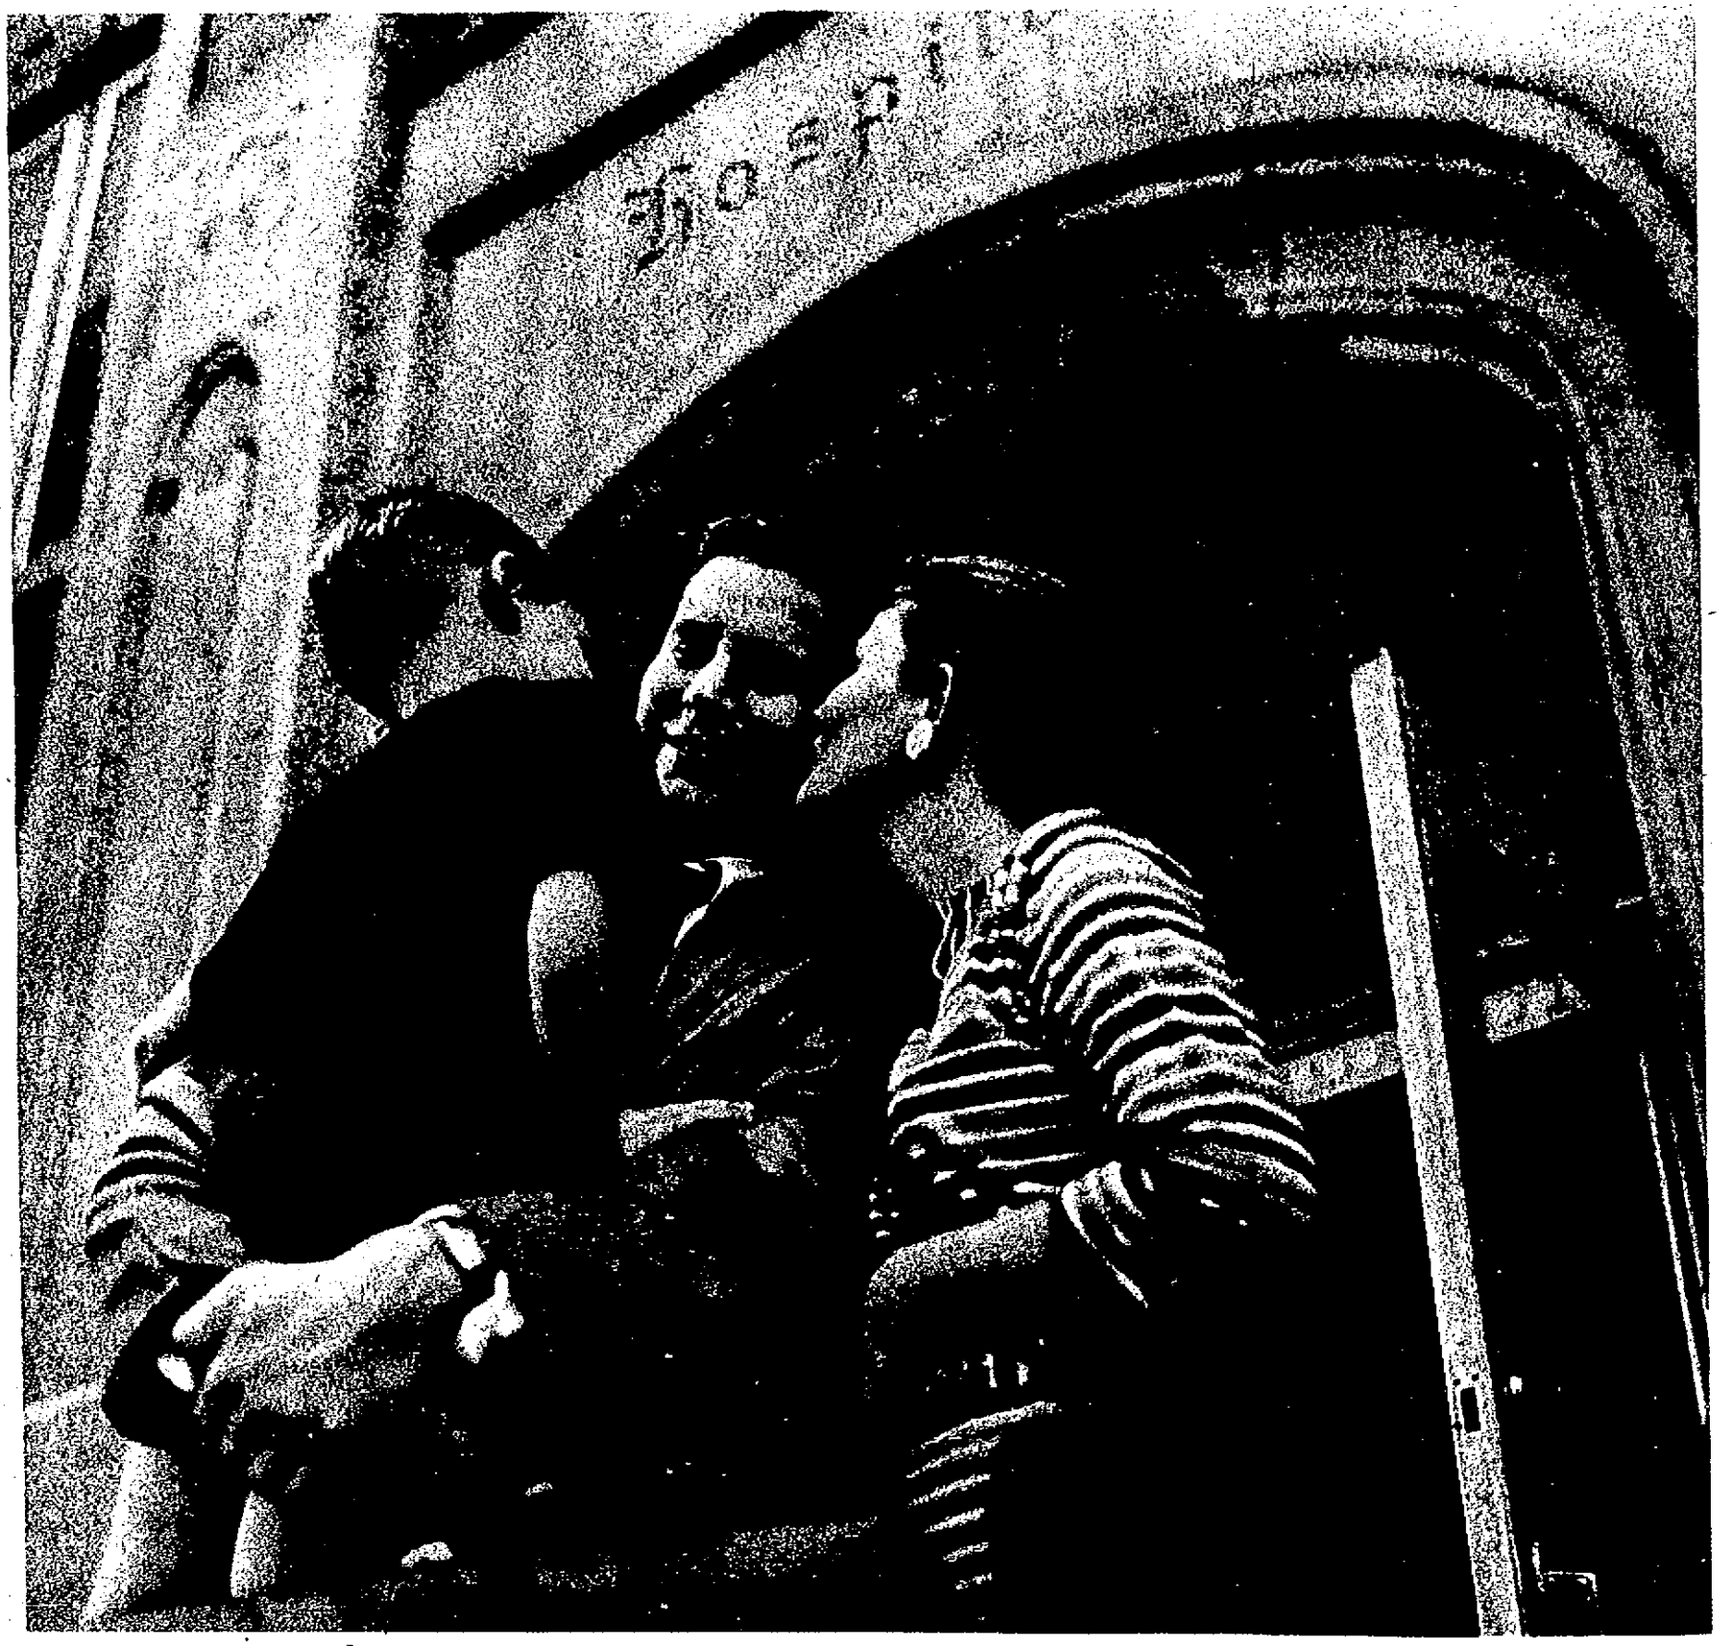

He Can Cook, Too

"I found great difficulty in sustaining a conversation with an actress," he says, "until I met Jill St. John." Jill is a pert starlet with a genius IQ of 162. The two have been dating steadily for six months.

"What I like most about her," Reventlow jokes, "is that she doesn't want to become an actress. She just wants to become a movie star."

Having been married at 16 and divorced at 17, Jill claims she has no marital designs on Reventlow. "I like to be with him," she admits, "because he's cultured, intelligent and brilliant. He knows books, art, music and how to cook. He can also laugh at himself which is the trouble with most young men these days. They consider themselves part of the 'beat generation.'"

For a young millionaire who was born "the world's richest Baby" and whose whole youth was lived in the dark shadow of unhappy headlines, Lance Reventlow has turned out to be a nice normal guy. Money has yet to corrupt him. ■

Eight betters tell Parade...

WHY THEY GAMBLE

Pictured below are eight of the millions of Americans who gamble, betting between $15 and $20 billion a year. How much is this? Billions more than we spend, for instance, on medical care. Because we bet so hard, far more than any other nation, behavior experts are searching our subconscious to find out why.

Out of their probing have come new explanations for gambling, reported on page 11 by University of Connecticut psychologist Dr. Maurice L. Farber. But to get the other point of view — why betters themselves think they gamble — PARADE went to New York's Jamaica race track for these frank interviews.

JEAN KLEMPNER

"I don't think I am gambling. I come out only two days a week, on my days off. Those people who put $50 or $100 on a horse that's a longshot — they're the gamblers. Putting down $2 or $5 on a horse with a chance — provided you can afford it — is just a good, clean way of having fun."

LOUIS J. MOFENSON

"It's not the money. Nobody is so foolish to think they can make money here. You just try to stay even. In doing that, you forget anything troubling you. You don't think about getting older. You look forward to every day. Betting is a challenge that helps keep a fellow young."

ELIZABETH STONE

"Gambling is my only opportunity to be myself — to do what I want to do. I can be as uninhibited as my money will let me. Here's what I mean: On my way out here I study all the tips. But as soon as I get here, I ignore the tips. That makes me happy — even though I lose."

JAMES SHANAHAN

"There's no thrill in sports like having your horse pounding down the stretch in the lead. He's your horse because you bet on him. That thrill is something you come back for, again and again. It becomes a habit so bad, people let everything go for it — their clothes, their health, everything."

JACK BRIER

"Gambling is a science that I enjoy studying. I have been betting on horses for 42 years. You pit your knowledge against the public's, and if you come up with a better opinion than the average fellow's, you make yourself some money. But you can't get rich; you just try to make expenses."

MITZI PAYO

"I'm betting just to get even. If I ever do, I won't come anymore, except rarely. I've been betting five years. At first it was fun. I hit a longshot for about $100. Now I usually bet longshots but they don't win. And when I bet the favorites, longshots always win. I'm almost cleaned out."

JOHN CASE

"When you win a bet, you get a wonderful and exciting feeling that's hard to describe. I just bet small amounts — usually only $2 — but I couldn't watch a race if I didn't have a bet down. There would be no thrill, no kick, because if you don't lay a bet, you can't root for a winner."

CAROLLE FUQUA

"Gambling gives people a chance to compete with each other, to see if they can outpick the next person. Mostly, though, people who gamble have a void in their lives. They're usually lonesome and they feel themselves unfulfilled. Betting gives them that sense of being fulfilled."

The real reasons you gamble

by DR. MAURICE L. FARBER
Department of Psychology, University of Connecticut

Just for a fast buck? 'No' says an expert

In some African tribes, a man may wager his wife and children. Ancient Teutons bet themselves into slavery. And Chinese have been known to gamble their right hands — cutting them off in payment.

Americans, of course, don't go that far, but few of us can honestly say we never have gambled. For there is something fascinating about gambling — irresistibly fascinating.

What is the allure of gambling, even the moderate gambling in which most of us indulge? To make fast money? Yes, but that's only part of the reason. The excitement, risks, passions all indicate that there's more to gambling than money. Here are six vital factors, in my opinion, that answer the question: Why do you gamble?

1) To relieve boredom. Many people feel desperately bored and empty. Gambling offers excitement, an antidote to boredom. Playing the game makes the hours go by like minutes.

2) The challenge of a battle. To many, gambling is a "war," a battle of wits between the gambler and his opponent or "the system." While gambling, we can attack, conquer or retreat without the deadly effects of real battle. Money adds interest to the battle. If the stakes are not too high, no one is really hurt. Thus, gambling can be a way of having your cake and eating it, too.

The Long-Shot Hope

3) You can dream a little. Gambling often is related to the secret wish of many of us that something wonderful will happen, solving all our problems. Our ship will come in. Gambling small stakes for large winnings is a manifestation of the wishful day-dream aspect of gambling. It may explain why so many sweepstakes tickets are sold and why there is so much long-shot betting. Undoubtedly, there are people who never really expect to win, who know that the odds are heavily against them, but gamble only so they can dream luxurious dreams.

4) The feeling of power. The cravings people bring to gambling sometimes involve an unconscious or conscious magical belief that they are all-powerful and cannot lose. They believe the horse they bet on is sure to win, the speculative stocks they buy sure to go up. This is a complicated emotional side of gambling and even may be related to deep unconscious sexual feelings. Perhaps to the extreme gambler, the excitement of winning is something akin to sexual experience; to this gambler, losing becomes associated with sexual punishment.

5) The "family enemy" explanation. To some gamblers, the opponents stand for family members against whom the gambler feels hostility. For instance, an opponent may symbolize the gambler's father, who for various reasons may be resented by the gambler. Or the opponent may be seen as the brother who the gambler believes was favored by his parents.

Thus, the gambler seeks to "defeat" family members against whom he has harbored ill feeling since childhood.

Some Like Losing

6) The desire to lose. Perhaps the most curious paradox about gambling is that some gamblers really have an unconscious desire to lose. These gamblers seem so controlled by hidden guilt (which may arise from childhood experiences) that they actually play to lose as a means of relieving their guilt. People who persistently bet on very long odds often are of this type. They may protest long and loud about losing, but unconsciously they are deeply satisfied.

As you can see, betting can involve really complicated emotional string-pulling. But are gamblers themselves emotionally unhealthy?

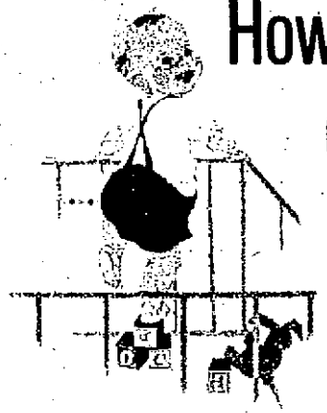

Occasional social gambling for small sums is not likely to be harmful and may even benefit the player by relieving his tensions.

However, if gambling dominates a person's life, if he risks sums he cannot afford, if he cannot stop, he is likely to be mentally disturbed and in need of treatment.

At all times, you must consider the question of whether the man controls the gambling, or the gambling controls the man.

How to help baby enjoy his playpen

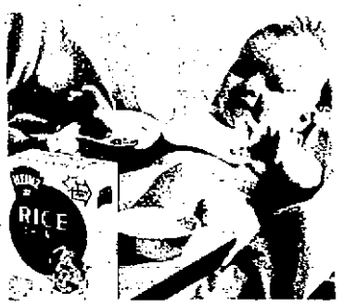

Secrets of happy spoon feedings—
What about rough-house with baby?

TO get more use and more fun from baby's playpen, try these ideas: Start early, between 3 and 4 months. Before baby's creeping, the pen will seem like a big new world—not a coop. Move the pen to different spots indoors and out, so little Bright Eyes can see new scenery, new faces.

• A few toys at a time, subject to change, are better than a big pile all at once. Besides, too many toys leave no room for learning how to creep, sit up and stand.

• Remember: the older your cherub grows, the less he'll stay put in a pen without protest. If you lift him out before he cries, he'll likely go back later with better grace. (P. S. Of course you'll never use his pen as a punishment!)

• It's a gift you'd love to give or get—Heinz silverplated spoon and fork set. The bite-size spoon is the right size for baby's mouth. The long handle lets you get clear to the bottom of the jar so no food is wasted. For this handsome spoon and fork set, just send your name, address, 50¢ and 6 labels from Heinz Baby Foods to Heinz Baby Foods, Box 28, D-9, Pittsburgh 30, Pa. For the spoon alone, 25¢ and 6 labels.

• The #1 secret of happy spoon feeding isn't really a secret, but it's reassuring to remember: Most doctors start solid food before baby urgently needs it. There's no hurry about how much he eats, so you can relax and let him learn to enjoy eating. Heinz Strained Applesauce—smooth, sweet—is a good starter.

• Baby can't suck solid food, which will surprise him! Each bite must be rolled back by his tongue. To help, brush the food off the spoon on his upper lip. Babies love Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals: High-Protein, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereals—fortified with active iron.

• Heinz new screw-top baby food jars are just what you've wanted! An important Heinz "First", these screw-top caps make glass jars even more convenient. Available now on 4 favorite Heinz Desserts: Fruit Dessert, Custard Pudding, Strained Bananas, Strained Apricots and Oatmeal.

• Fun with Daddy is a fine thing for a baby. Although it may get strenuous at times, try not to break it up—unless the roughhouse gets too rough, lasts too long, or starts too soon after a meal or before bedtime.

High climber Chuck Davidson checks antenna which signals test missiles.

They watch the missiles go by

In the sunny Bahamas on the U.S. test range this family is leading a new frontier life

by JACK LONG

At work: technician Chuck Davidson watches his control panel during "countdown." In radar-topped headquarters (r.), 25 men work.

At home: Betty Davidson sees husband off outside their cottage. During the day, she listens to a Miami station (r.) for test news.

At play: the Davidsons sit on the Bahaman sand and watch the waves come in. The Davidson family is expecting a third child.

ELEUTHERA ISLANDS, BAHAMAS.

A FEW YEARS AGO, jobs like Chuck Davidson's didn't exist. But today, with the U.S. and Russia racing to perfect intercontinental weapons, Chuck and men like him are vital to U.S. security.

Chuck is a missile tracker on the U.S. missile test range, which stretches 5,000 miles from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic. And as a result, Chuck and Betty Davidson and their sons lead a life that is part utopian and part pioneering on this 90-mile-long, half-mile-wide Bahaman coral strip, 250 miles southeast of Miami.

A sunswept beach is only minutes from their door. Coconuts and tropical fruits are theirs for the taking. But they also must contend with chameleons, a balky water supply and a kerosene-powered refrigerator. And life is built around countdowns and launchings at all hours.

Chuck is listed as an electronics technician by Radio Corp. of America, which is in charge of tracking, guidance, safety and communications systems on the range. To the other employes of the tracking station, the 50 RCA men are "twidgets." Chuck and a co-worker, Bill "Snake" Donohue, are in charge of four tall racks of complex secret equipment.

There's Incentive — Money

When America fires a missile from Cape Canaveral, Chuck and his fellow-workers all down the range swing into action. Their equipment focuses on the missile, gathering by electronic eyes and ears millions of bits of data — altitude, speed, course, fuel consumption, skin temperature. All this is vital to the designers of the Thor, Atlas, Jupiter and other missiles that are the U.S. answer to Russia and the U.S. hope for exploration of space.

For living in the semi-tropics, Chuck draws 30 per cent additional salary. (Farther downrange, at remote Ascension, the incentive is 40 per cent.) In base slang, Chuck is a "brown-bagger" — meaning he lives off-base and carries his lunch (actually, he eats in the base mess hall).

The Davidsons' home is a four-room frame cottage, which costs $75 a month. Another $20 go for utilities — electricity, bottled gas for the range, kerosene for the refrigerator, and bottled water. It cost Chuck $67 to ship his car from Miami. Gasoline costs 40 cents a gallon.

Life is far different from Bradenton, Fla., where the Davidsons came from. Water must be heated. Table legs must be "planted" in water to discourage ants. Donnie, 8, and Jerry, 11, attend a one-room school. (But Jerry, a sixth-grader, already is studying Latin and Algebra.)

Fortunately, Betty is a self-reliant young woman who does not mind doing without TV, supermarkets, beauty parlors and telephones. Others among the two dozen wives here are less enthusiastic. Most men leave their families behind, live in bachelor barracks two to a room, save money and wait for alerts.

The Drama of the Countdown

When the word comes down the submarine cable from Canaveral that a launching is scheduled, tension begins to build. A voice on the intercom announces the minutes to firing time — as "T minus 90," or 90 minutes to the zero hour.

In the cluster of buildings, men check their radar gear, their computers and plotting boards. Chuck tunes his guidance circuits. Head technician Dan Kaylor mounts the magnetic tape that will record the missile's messages. Another technician mans a telescope on the roof.

As the minutes tick away, the men concentrate on their panels. Finally the intercom voice crackles, "She's gone." Receivers record a low hum, building gradually to a grinding roar. Wave patterns on oscillographs leap and dance as the missile goes by. And then, just as gradually, the waves subside, the hum dies. At last the intercom voice announces the end of test.

Chuck Davidson tears a length of paper from his recording unit, ending the day's work. Back home, Betty has been keeping the radio tuned to the Miami news bulletins. To her, a successful test means another advance for U.S. rocketry — and also that Chuck will be home for dinner. ■

BEAUTIFUL

by PATRICK DALTON

LAGUNA BEACH, CALIF.

"You have no idea what it means for a girl to be born with a handicap," says Dorothy Funk. "I was born with bowed legs, and it made my life miserable. I never wore a bathing suit in public. I used to wear long skirts and slacks. I'd come into a room whistling so that people would look up at my face, and not down at my legs. I was so self-conscious that when I had to meet a date I got there first so he wouldn't see me walk in. My whole youth was a nightmare of regret and tears."

Because of this, eight years ago Dorothy Funk founded her present business, a company called Beauti-Legs, Inc.

Beauti-Legs offers new leg shapes to girls handicapped by bowed or thin legs. So far, about 600 women have subscribed to the service, which now is run completely on a mail-order basis.

The new leg-shape relies on two devices: pads which give them attractive contours, and special stockings to cover the pads and hold them in place. The pads sell for $150 a pair and the stockings for $55 a pair.

Determined Woman

Sounds simple? Well, it cost Dorothy Funk five years of heartache, $10,000 and thousands of painstaking experimental hours to come up with the solution to her problem.

"Back in 1950," she confesses, "I didn't know a thing about chemistry, mold-making or plastics. I had no money to speak of and no one to give me any. All I knew was that I had to have a more pleasing pair of calves. And I was determined to get them."

Dorothy began her experiments by mixing raw rubber in her cake mixer. She used her kitchen as a laboratory and her hair-drier to dry thin rubber hose. In a year's time she developed a skin-colored stocking. Her next step was to develop a foam rubber pad with edges so thin that they would not show through the stocking. She learned how to make plaster reproductions of badly-shaped legs, to sculpture new contours, to mix raw foam rubber and force it into molds.

"I almost called it quits dozens of times," she says. "But every time I looked at my legs in the mirror, I said to myself, 'Dorothy, you've just got to keep going.'"

Too Soft-hearted

After three years Dorothy came up with a pair of foam-rubber pads that clung neatly to her thin calves plus a pair of flesh-colored stockings to hold them.

After another year of research and experiment, she opened up shop in Burbank. A demonstration on televisinn of the pads and stockings brought a tremendous flood of mail. Soon customers were beating a path to Burbank. Dorothy Funk had more business than she could handle — but she wasn't making money.

"What happened," she explains, "is that I was visited by many victims of infantile paralysis. The legs of these girls had withered because the calf muscles had atrophied. Their cases were heart-breaking, and I didn't have the heart to turn them down. I had to hire assistants. The overhead became enormous. Every case was a custom job. I spent every cent I made. I took in two partners for further financing, but eventually both of them pulled out because we weren't showing enough profit. They said I was a sucker for every sob story that came along. And I guess I was. When a girl wrote that all she could afford to pay was two dollars a week for some pads and hose, I let her have them."

Leg forms are kept in racks by Mrs. Funk, shown selecting one for a mail-order customer.

LEGS TO ORDER

A year ago Dorothy Funk moved here and opened a mail-order business. "Mail," she says, "helped eliminate the personal approach and for the first time put me on a business-like basis. This way I can make a living."

Women who write requesting information about Beauti-Legs are sent measurement charts to fill in. They also are asked to send snapshots. Mrs. Funk then mails out two or three sizes of pads and stockings. After trying them, the prospective customer can decide whether or not Beauti-Legs will help her.

The Funk files are jammed with letters of gratitude. "You may not believe it," writes a woman from Oak Park, Ill., "but I would never have gotten married if it weren't for your Beauti-Legs. Sh-h-h. To this day, my husband still doesn't know."

"I lived in darkness," says a girl in San Diego," until I learned about your pads and hose. They've made a whole new life for me. I'm no longer socially backward."

Of late, Dorothy has been receiving requests from men in South Africa. Seems they're thin-calved golfers who wear knickers. Dorothy has turned them down: "Men have no right to be as vain as women. Let them stand on their own two legs."

Today Dorothy Funk stands proudly on hers and helps other women to do the same. ■

SHAPELY PAIR (above) are artfully padded to transform thin, bowed legs at right. Padding is virtually impossible to detect, because of special stocking. Mrs. Funk's biggest booster: Mr. Funk.

New taste–Chocolate Cinnamon Bars

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

HERE'S SOMETHING new in the pastry world. Chocolate Cinnamon Bars combine the best qualities of cookies and cake. Easy to serve, neat to eat, good travelers, they have that good cake texture beneath a crunchy self-frosting. In addition, the blend of cinnamon and chocolate produces a delightful, different taste that harmonizes well with other things.

Chocolate Cinnamon Bars are quite perfect as an accompaniment to afternoon tea or coffee. They hold up well when tucked into a lunch box that goes to school or office. They're neither too rich nor too sweet to nibble for an evening snack with a glass of milk or cola beverage. And right now, with two beautiful autumn months ahead for picknicking, these cookies are wonderful to eat with fruit, as a picnic dessert. Carry them along in the baking pan and cut when ready.

CHOCOLATE CINNAMON BARS

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1⅓ cups sugar
- 4 teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ cup softened butter or margarine
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 egg
- 1 egg, separated
- 1 6-oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, 1 cup sugar and 3 teaspoons cinnamon. Add butter or margarine, shortening, 1 egg and 1 egg yolk. Blend well with wooden spoon, or on low speed of electric mixer. Turn into a lightly greased 15"-x-10"-x-¾" jelly-roll pan; spread evenly with spatula. Beat egg white slightly; brush over mixture. Combine remaining ⅓ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, chocolate pieces and walnuts; sprinkle over top. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes. Cool. Cut into bars.

HOPE BENNETT talks with teenagers

When you move

THE PROBLEM — "I am 16 years old and my family is moving to a new town. I am simply miserable. How can I make new friends?" — Betty T., Fargo, N.D.

At Betty's age, nobody wants to move, at least, according to teens I talked with in Roanoke, Va., Greenville, S.C., and Jackson, Miss. But many of them had moved, and found tried-and-tested ways of adjusting to new homes, friends and customs. Here are some of the suggestions they make:

BE FRIENDLY — Murray Van Leer, 15, who moved to Roanoke a year ago, says, "Don't reject any offer of friendship at first. You can't afford to."

BUT BE WARY — Sue Daniels, 18, also of Roanoke, warns: "Don't make exclusive friendships at first. It's better to have an unorganized circle of friends than to be chosen — too soon, anyway — as a member of a closed clique."

MAKE A CHOICE — Michael Faulconer, 16, of Greenville, advises: "Circulate among the type of people you like. You'll make mistakes, but if you go slowly, it won't be too hard to steer away from somebody who's not congenial."

VOLUNTEER — Robert Scott, 16, of Greenville, suggests that a good way to find friends is to "go out for activities. If you're good at football, go out for the team. The same applies to dramatics and music."

ADAPT YOURSELF — "Do as the Romans do. That's a good rule," says Kent Stark, 18, of Jackson. "However," adds Harry Burns, 17, of Jackson, "don't try to be a carbon copy of the typical guy in the class."

BE YOURSELF — "But don't overdo it. And, especially," warns Bobby Scott, "don't act like a big wheel if you're not. You're sure to be found out."

DRESS CAREFULLY — Jill Simpkins, 17, of Jackson, advises (the girls particularly): "Avoid loud, too casual or too dressy clothes. You are judged first on appearance, not on athletic or intellectual prowess."

LET OTHERS HELP — Sandra Aldridge, 18, of Jackson, who has attended eight or nine different schools, says, "Going to church has always helped me in a new place." And Karen Moseley, 16, of Greenville, adds: "Persuade your parents to let you ask your new friends to drop around for record playing or homework." ■

More answers please. Moving is a perennial problem-maker, and certainly the panel members quoted here don't have all the answers. Write me on how you see, and have solved, the problem. Address Hope Bennett, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

Hay Fever Patients now open Nose-Sinus Zone with New 3-Layer Tablet

Clear, free breathing restored in minutes as congested nasal zone is decongested—stops sneezing, watery, itching eyes

Chicago, Ill. (Special) Observers here are hailing a remarkable new advance against the most unrelenting misery of hay fever—congestion in the nose-sinus zone.

A way has been found to decongest this congestion. This is the central fact which has aroused so much interest on the part of hay fever sufferers who have never found satisfactory relief from other medications.

Up to now, nose drops, eye drops, inhalers, sprays and antihistamines have given some measure of relief. But today you can expect much more complete comfort. This new compound reaches all the congested nasal areas from all sides, through the blood stream. It opens stuffed-up, blocked nasal passages. Free breathing is restored in minutes. Stops unpleasant sneezing; watery, itching eyes are cleared.

New Tablet Discovery

It took a new kind of tablet—made in three separate layers—to combine the special ingredients which make this formula so amazingly effective. Among them is a new decongestant substance so effective it has become the single ingredient most prescribed by doctors for relief of congestion in the nose-sinus area.

Available without Prescription

Now available without prescription—this new 3-layer tablet is called Dristan®. Its unique combination of ingredients—(1) opens up blocked breathing, (2) stops unpleasant sneezing, (3) clears red, watery, itching eyes. At the same time, Dristan helps the body meet the great demands put upon it by the stress and strain of hay fever, and bolsters the body's resistance to infection.

Hay fever sufferers who want faster, more complete relief than they have ever before obtained are advised to try Dristan Decongestant Tablets—satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.

Don't analyze your

Marriage experts can't even agree with each other,

by ARTHUR GODFREY

From all sides these days, the American wife is being bombarded by advice from well-meaning psychologists and so-called marriage experts. Books, pamphlets and lectures are aimed at her, each with a neat set of rules. They tell her how to manage her husband, how not to manage him, when to kiss him, when not to, how to fight with him, how to get the most mileage out of him, what to do in every blamed situation that comes up.

Now do-it-yourself is a fine idea and I'm all for it. But when they start giving women a do-it-yourself marriage kit, complete with charts, graphs and blueprints, brother, it's time someone started to yell.

And I'm yelling.

The women, bless their hearts, eat up this sort of advice because the subject is important to them. In fact, a woman's whole world centers right around her man and those kids. She's desperately anxious to do anything that will hold them together and keep them closer around her.

For example, I heard about one woman who kept reading those warnings about the need to be a companion to her husband. She went to boxing matches with him, played golf with him, even tried to help him build a garage. She couldn't stand doing any of these things, of course, and you can imagine how bored he got. Finally, she saw the light and let the poor fellow alone. But she still kept worrying that she wasn't being a companion.

Another woman accepted the advice that she ought to cook breakfast for her husband each morning. So she gets up at 5 a.m. She's grouchy, frowsy and terrible company. But the book says a good wife gets up and that's what she's going to do. Naturally, it would be much better if she stayed in bed and let him whip up his own breakfast in peace. But you can't tell her that. She'd worry she wasn't being a good wife.

A Man's No Machine

Nor are wives the only ones. Even the lovely young girls who are about to step into matrimony now take the rule books to heart. Maybe your own daughter is like the sweet little girl of 18 I met recently who is mapping her marriage with infinite care. She's trying to figure out her guy as if he were a washing machine — use this kind of soap, don't overload, turn the dial up to there, call this number if repairs are needed.

Now please get me straight. I certainly think a girl should know what marriage means and what her responsibilities are. She should have long, serious talks with her parents. I have a daughter of 16 myself, and I want Pat to be a serious-minded and well-informed adult.

But the kind of detailed blueprint handed to girls nowadays is too much. A mountain of advice is not only unnecessary but even dangerous.

Why? Simply because no matter how you look at it, a man isn't a machine and a marriage isn't a kind of cake that you can bake from a recipe.

A marriage is built out of the stuff that comes from the spirit and the soul and the heart. Two people live, love, squabble together, and it's a wonderful union. Try picking it apart to see why and it's like taking the leaves off an artichoke one by one — you wind up with nothing.

Psychology Be Hanged

Is there an alternative? Certainly, and it's simple. Don't psychoanalyze your guy, just love him. Give him plenty of good, old-fashioned devotion, laugh with him, talk with him, have fun with him and don't worry about whether you're pleasing the psychologists. If you're loving, kind and just plain natural, the psychology will take care of itself!

Our grandmothers didn't know a complex from a water pump and they did all right with grandpa. They didn't worry about frustrations and traumas and such. They were just too busy taking care of the old man.

Why are women mixed up about marriage advice? Mostly because of the contradictions. The experts don't seem able to get together and, as a result, the women are confused.

For instance, one rule book tells you never to reveal all your innermost thoughts to your husband because it would serve no good purpose; it would just make him sore and hurt the marriage. Another just as convincingly argues that there should be no secrets at all between husband and wife. One says it's extremely unwise to marry out of your religion while another points out that religions as well as cultural differences can be bridged.

And take the question of going steady. One side says it's a bad idea and offers all the reasons why. Another side says it's not so bad. A third advises kids to decide for themselves. (There's a smart cookie — he's not taking chances!)

One bunch of experts hammers at the notion that a wife or a husband should never try to reform each other. They lean on the old saw: "Marriage is not a reform school."

husband–just love him

says a noted husband. His advice? Ignore them all

A HUSBAND and father of two teenagers, Arthur Godfrey urges common sense in family matters.

But other psychologists feel there's no reason why you can't try to change some of your partner's annoying, everyday habits.

There are many more contrary pieces of advice, but perhaps the worst headache for wives today is the partnership question. Who's supposed to be the boss? Or is anybody? Here's what's happening:

A whole school of thought tells us that marriage has got to be a 50-50 proposition, with Mom and Pop sharing the work and the responsibility. That means the guy should pitch in with the housework, while the gal has an equal vote on all the important details of running the family.

But wait a minute. Other experts want their innings, too. They're saying that father should be the head of the family. They argue that women are getting to feel their oats too much and are making too many domestic demands on the poor tired breadwinner. Is it any wonder that the poor wife is completely confused?

The experts are giving us a hard time in another area — romance. Here is where I see red. They will say: "No marriage is soundly built until married love has taken the place of the romantic illusion." Well, I'll go for some of that. Certainly, romance alone is not enough on which to build a lasting union. But this kind of advice is being taken much too literally by women as well as men. Nobody's going to propagandize me into believing that moonglow and June-night romancing are reserved exclusively for the youngsters.

I once asked the wise and wonderful Bernard Baruch the question: "When is a man too old for romance?" Know what he answered? He said: "Arthur, you'll have to ask someone older than I am!"

A guy, no matter what his age, wants to — and should — do crazy, romantic things to please his girl. And a gal of any age wants to be romanced — don't you ever forget it!

What a heck of a life it would be without romance in a marriage. I don't mean just the dutiful flowers on an anniversary either, but the real stars-in-the-eyes stuff.

No, you don't need a road map for marriage, or for bringing up children either. Read the books and you're likely to fall for some cockeyed ideas about the kids, too. There's the theory that says you're supposed to let the youngsters swing from the chandeliers if they wish. It gives free rein to their creative imaginations, and you're not supposed to stifle their self-expression.

Too many mothers are swallowing this and, as a result, we have far too many pampered kids. They're over-protected, over-privileged, over-fed, over-dressed and underworked. They're given all they want and they feel the world owes them everything.

Chores for Pat and Mike

Mothers worry about security. Mollycoddling the kids won't give them security. Giving them chores, hard work and plenty of it — that'll do it. Why? Because real security comes from having confidence in your ability to take care of yourself.

My own kids get chores; they always have. I didn't let Pat and my son Mike get soft, mentally or physically. Pat rode a stallion bareback when she was 7. Last summer, Mike, who is 18, worked long hours as a grease monkey in a gas station.

I say to all wives and mothers: Please don't construct a marriage as if it were one of those erector sets, out of little bits and pieces of rules and advice. Just be a woman, girls, not a civil engineer. Be the same kind of woman who stopped the guy in the first place. Be the same gal who made him maneuver you in the corner that first time to steal a kiss.

The most important thing in a marriage is being natural, being yourself and giving love — and not all the professors in all the universities in the whole blamed world will ever be able to come up with a better formula. ■

How Phenylium medication gets rid of corns from underneath...

NEW CORN develops when skin grows tough and horny under constant pressure.

FIRST DAY—Blue-Jay relieves pressure, while Phenylium penetrates to base of corn.

SECOND DAY—Phenylium starts growth of new cell tissue underneath. This loosens corn, pushes it up.

THIRD DAY—Corn now lifts out easily. Stubborn, long-established corns may require second application.

Medical science has found a fast and effective way to relieve the pain of a corn, and get rid of it at the same time.

This treatment works by getting to the base of the problem. It actually gets rid of your corn by pushing it up from underneath.

The secret is a wonder drug from the Blue-Jay laboratories which took years to perfect. That wonder drug is called Phenylium.

How BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters relieve pain, remove corn

The Blue-Jay plaster consists of a felt ring surrounding a pad with Phenylium. The felt relieves the pain of the corn by removing the pressure and friction which causes it.

Simultaneously, the Phenylium goes to work to remove the source of the pain—the corn itself. It penetrates through the tough, horny skin of the corn to its base, where it stimulates the growth of new cell tissue.

In most corns, by the end of the third day this new tissue has grown to the point where it can be lifted out.

SIR, WHY ARE YOU SHAVING IN THE RAIN?

CRISIS ON NOTTING HILL

Britain's Conscience Plagued by Race Riots

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP)—For years they said it couldn't happen here. Little Rock in the United States, apartheid in South Africa—these were other people's problems.

Now, with teenage gangs terrorizing the fading suburbs where Negroes live, Britain is worried and divided.

Part of the worry focuses on London's Notting Hill, the center of night riots in the past week.

Like most inner suburbs, it's a mixture of decaying mansions broken up into tenements alongside streets bright with coffee bars and the new supermarkets.

It's a mixture of peoples too—young couples from the provinces carving out a career; political exiles like the Hungarians and Poles.

In the tiny terraced back streets, the working people who have lived there all their lives now have new Negro neighbors.

Statistically, there's no color problem. Negroes in Britain total 190,000, or roughly one in 250 of the population. That compares with 1 in 10 in the United States.

They started coming five years ago. The pioneers were mostly Jamaicans who had flown with the Royal Air Force. They came back to Britain to find a better life.

THEY FOUND WORK, many of them as bus conductors or guards on the subway. A man and his wife together could earn maybe 20 pounds ($56) a week.

If they lived quietly they could save, and in a year or two buy a house and bring over a brother or cousin or even a whole family of brothers and cousins. And that's what they did.

Every day the charter planes and ships bring more, from the West Indies, from Africa and now from Pakistan. All hold British citizenship and the British have no law to keep them out. But in midweek the government hinted it is considering for the first time some curbs on the unfettered movement of law-abiding immigrants.

Along with honest and industrious settlers have come another type, peddling dope and vice.

Dusk-to-dawn basement parties keep the neighborhood awake with blaring music and yelling drunks.

In 40 vice prosecutions in Notting Hill this year—mostly for brothel keeping or living off prostitutes—all the offenders were listed as Negroes.

NOTTING HILL'S 6,000 colored citizens are as much disturbed by this kind of lawlessness as the 70,000 whites.

"They wouldn't get away with it at home," said a 21-year-old colored girl stenographer. "They bring the rest of us a bad name no matter how quietly we try to live."

And a colored woman social worker, employed by the London County Council to advise immigrants on race relations: "There's no doubt that there are bad ones among the West Indians like any other people.

"But that's for the police to deal with—not Teddy Boy gangs."

In the spate of soul-searching set off by the rioting the big question is why it happened. Three answers crop up again and again.

First, sex.

"It's the blacks after our women," said the middle aged man.

Second, work.

"If employers could take on colored people on their own terms, white workers would be finished," said Mrs. Mary

U.S. Accepts China Bid for Parley

'Chiang's Rights Come First,' Ike Note Tells Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday welcomed Red China's decision to discuss the Formosa crisis at the diplomatic bargaining table. But it emphasized that "we will not be a party to any arrangement which would prejudice the rights of our ally"—the Nationalist Chinese led by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The U.S. position was set forth in a 300-word statement issued at the White House following an extraordinary three-hour meeting of the National Security Council convened by President Eisenhower.

The President had interrupted his Newport, R.I., golfing vacation to fly here for the conference and to handle other urgent affairs.

Ex-Premier Bulganin Ousted From Soviet Party Top Leaders

Radio Moscow Tells Decision by Committee

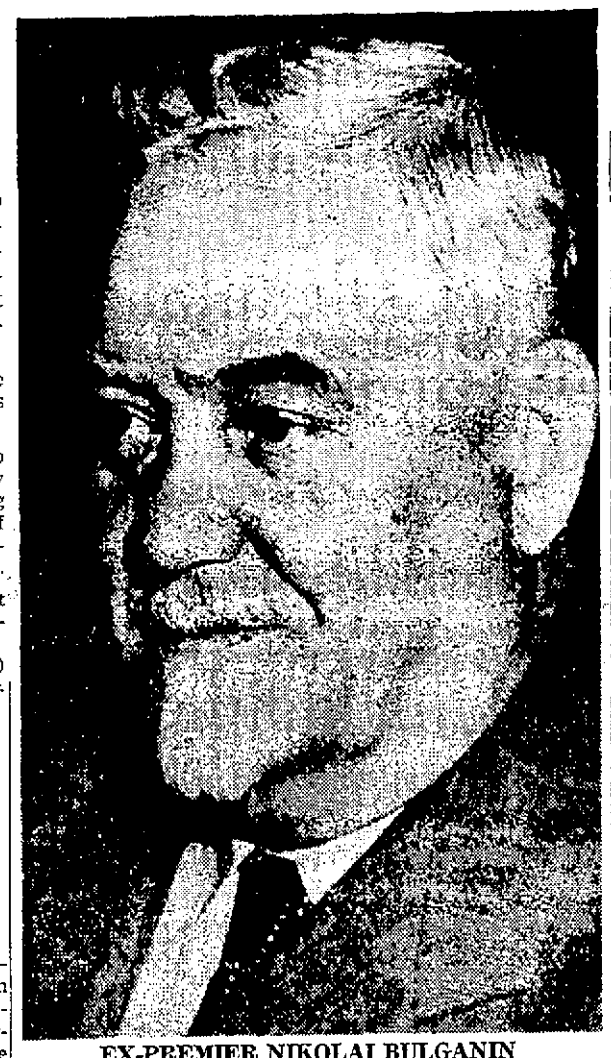

LONDON (AP)—Radio Moscow said Saturday former Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin had been removed from the Soviet Communist Party Presidium.

The broadcast also said the 21st Communist Party Congress will be held Jan. 27, 1959.

The two decisions—to drop Bulganin and to hold the party congress—were reached during a Central Committee meeting of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the broadcast said.

Bulganin was ousted last March 27 as premier and re-

Achieve Missile Mobility

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army said Saturday that a field type mobile launcher is being developed which soon will eliminate the need for permanent emplacements for Nike Hercules anti-aircraft missiles.

A report on recent test firings at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., said the giant missile capable of carrying an atomic warhead was shown to have "the mobility essential for the support of Army operations in any part of the world."

There are operational Nike Hercules sites now defending New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and the Washington-Baltimore area. The Army said others will be operational at Philadelphia in the next 10 days and in "many additional metropolitan areas" in the next six months.

The Florida tests were conducted by an Army task force from Ft. Bliss, Tex., commanded by Brig. Gen. John T. Snodgrass. The Army said the tests included the first successful firing of anti-aircraft missiles at target drones flying in formation.

Flash Floods, Heat, Hail in Weird Show

Lightning Starts 20 Brush Fires, Cuts Off Power

Sweltering heat, thunderstorms, flash floods and lightning-caused brush fires plagued Southern California Saturday in the year's weirdest weather display—and more of the same was forecast for today.

In Riverside, hail pelted down from thunderclouds while the thermometer read 102 degrees, deputy sheriffs reported.

Electrical storms started more than 20 brush fires in mountain and foothill areas.

* * * *

Meanwhile, 600,000 persons swarmed to Southland beaches to escape muggy 95-degree heat in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area.

The U. S. Weather Bureau reported a deep low pressure area over Southern California, with warm, moist and unstable air bringing thunderstorms and humid high temperatures through Monday.

* * * *

IN SATURDAY'S storms, large areas of Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties were without electrical power for 30 minutes when lighting struck a 220,000-volt transmission line near Saugus.

Some 350 men were still battling a 650-acre brush fire near Hemet, and another fire burned more than 50 acres in mountains northwest of Riverside.

Heavy showers dumped more than half an inch of rain in the Palmdale area within an hour,

Miss. Girl Wins Title of Miss A

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Miss Mississippi, Mary Ann Mobley, a brown-haired southern belle from Brandon, Saturday won the Miss America title for 1959.

An 18-year-old senior at the University of Mississippi, the new queen hopes for a career in television. She beat 51 other beauties to win scholarships and prizes worth $150,000. She measures 34¼-22-35.

Second place went to Miss Iowa, Joanne Lucille MacDonald, 20, of Ames who received a $3,000 scholarship.

Third was Miss Oklahoma, Anita Bryant, 18, of Tulsa, who won a $2,500 scholarship.

Fourth place went to Miss California, Sandra Lee Jennings, 18, of Riverside, who won a $2,000 scholarship.

The fifth place winner was Miss North Carolina, Betty Lane Evans, 18, of Greenville, who won a $1,500 scholarship.

4 TIMES THICKER

San Francisco's Smog Beats L.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The smog in San Francisco Saturday was four times thicker than that in Los Angeles.

The San Francisco smog condition abated sharply in early afternoon, however, as temperatures fell off swiftly from a year's record high of 88 degrees.

The peak smog reading was 0.40 parts of oxidant per million of air.

The Los Angeles smog reading was 0.05 parts of ozone per million of air.

Pilot on Global Hop in One-Engine Plane

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 39-year-old airline pilot took off from Idlewild Airport Saturday in an attempt to become the first man to fly solo around the world in a single-engine plane since Wiley Post did it in 1933.

"I would say that I am completely frightened at the thought of this flight," said Capt. Charles F. Banfe Jr., married and the father of four.

Banfe hoped to reach Rome, first leg of the flight, Sunday night in his 180-horsepower Mooney Mark 20A plane. The plane carried 350 gallons of fuel enough for about 48 hours of flying time. For nourishment, he had a bottle of fruit juice, vitamin pills and chocolate bars.

* * * *

THERE was no parachute aboard because, Banfe said, it "requires too much weight."

The Pan-American pilot, who lives in Palo Alto, Calif., took off at 10 a.m. EDT. He said he hoped to complete the global flight in eight days, arriving back here a week from Sunday.

Post completed his solo flight in a Lockheed Vega named "Winnie Mae" in 7 days, 18 hours, 49 minutes and 30 seconds. Post and humorist Will Rogers later were killed in a plane crash.

Banfe said his wife, June, was startled when he broke the news about the flight.

"When I told her about it, her mouth was agape," he said. "When I left home, her mouth was still agape."

Ike Vetoes 'Depressed' Area Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower Saturday pocket-vetoed a bill to provide federal aid to chronically depressed areas on grounds the $279,500,000 measure was "unsound."

The legislation cleared Congress in the final days of the recent session.

The veto was expected to have political repercussions in congressional campaigns in several states.

The President did sign into law 16 other measures to clean up the last of a stack sent him by Congress just before adjournment.

One of these sets up a one-and-a-half year $2,250,000,000 continuation of the Agriculture Department's authority to sell surplus farm crops overseas in exchange for foreign currencies.

100 Hurt in Mexico Rioting

MEXICO CITY (AP) — About 100 persons were reported injured Saturday in fighting between schoolteachers and police in downtown Mexico City.

Two hundred persons were said to have been arrested.

The disturbances came a week after university students and workers staged a series of violent disorders and strikes in Mexico City.

In his state of the union message last Monday, President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines warned that the government will use force if faced with any more riots and what it terms illegal strikes.

Police apparently acted on that order Saturday, moving to break up a teachers' demonstration that started shortly before noon.

Neighbor's Shot Hits Housewife

NORWALK — A 33-year-old housewife was critically wounded Saturday when she was struck in the face and chest by a bullet fired from a gun held by a neighbor across the street from her home.

Mrs. Clara Lorraine Hiller, of 11941 Lowemont St., was taken to Carobii Hospital, where she underwent surgery.

Sheriff's deputies booked the neighbor, Loy Hart, 41, of 11944 Lowemont St., on charges of drunkenness and suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. Hart, a butcher, told officers he had cleaned and loaded the .38 caliber revolver and slammed the cylinder shut when the weapon fired accidentally.

* * * *

MRS. HILLER, the mother of three children, was leaning over working in her front yard some 100 feet away. She was struck in the face and the bullet passed through her jaw and into her chest.

Detectives said it was impossible for the bullet to have struck Mrs. Hiller from the location where Hart said he was sitting in his living room without the bullet's going through the wall or window. Officers said they could find no bullet hole.

Airline Sets Schedule for Jet Plane Flights

American Airlines Saturday announced tentative schedules for its Boeing 707 Flagship flights which will launch the jet age in the U.S.A. next year.

First service with the huge 600 mile-an-hour 707 jets is scheduled for January nonstop between Los Angeles and New York in both directions.

Tentative jet schedules:

New York to Los Angeles 5½ hours, or more than 3 hours faster than the fastest present piston schedules.

Nonstop Los Angeles—New York 4½ hours.

Nonstop Los Angeles — Chicago 3 hours, 10 minutes.

Nonstop Chicago — Los Angeles 3 hours, 50 minutes.

Nonstop Chicago—San Francisco 4 hours, 5 minutes.

Nonstop San Francisco—Chicago 3 hours, 25 minutes.

San Francisco to New York, with a stop at Chicago, 5 hours 30 minutes or 2½ hours faster than existing nonstop San Francisco-New York schedules.

Last Year's Queen Crowns New Beauty Winner

MISS AMERICA of 1959, Miss Mary Ann Mobley of Brandon, Miss. (left) is crowned Saturday night by the outgoing queen of American beauties, Marilyn Elaine Van Derbur, as the climax of the annual Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J. Runnersup include Miss Iowa, Joanne Lucille MacDonald of Ames (center), second; and Miss California, Sandra Lee Jennings of Riverside (right) fourth place. (AP)

L.A.C. Says:

Add Them Up

On one page of the paper last week were three separate tax stories. Each one told of bad news for the average property taxpayer. One told of a 7-cent increase in local school taxes. Another told of a 4.82-cent increase in county tax rates. A third story told of the $12-a-year charge for home collection of rubbish in Long Beach.

It is argued that the rubbish collection charge is not a tax rate increase. But the fact is, heretofore it has been paid for from the general funds provided by taxes. Then the city budget ran behind and city councilmen found they were a million dollars short of raising enough money to finance the city. Their answer to this problem was to start charging for services formerly paid for by general property taxes. On that basis it is hard not to consider this new charge as another new tax.

Most other cities already have a charge for rubbish collection. It is a good method of financing the service because in theory it is paid for by renters as well as property owners. But in practice most of the bills will go to property owners who will be liable for the charge whether or not they pass it on to renters. After a few months taxpayers will absorb all these new charges and be ready for the next tap on their incomes made necessary by the constantly increasing costs of local governments.

On the average, each man, woman and child in this country pays $530.80 annually for taxes. Of this amount 70 per cent is for federal and 30 per cent for state and local taxes. This is over $2,000 for the average family of four. It is true most families do not pay this amount directly. But they pay a portion of it in the high income taxes of corporations. The products they buy have those taxes included in the price they pay. The executive who pays 80 per cent of his income in taxes is part of the cost of things or services included in the normal bills you pay each month.

These are factors the general public fails to keep in mind as they calmly accept each tax increase. They do not take the time to ask what can be done to stop this steady spiraling of local taxes. Since the pressure groups are vocal, and the mass of taxpayers silent, expensive projects are approved which benefit the average taxpayers not at all.

The voters of Long Beach are going to be given the opportunity of cutting down on city taxes. This can be done on the November ballot when two propositions involving over $400,000 a year will be voted on. They are the elimination of the Municipal band, and consolidating the assessing and collection of taxes with the county. The saving from these two projects would be equal to about 5 per cent of local city taxes on property the past year.

Taxpayers should also keep in mind that land purchases by the City Council are responsible for most of their financial pains. The purchase of beach lots, and more to be purchased, is the reason why the budget called for a rubbish collection charge. The only use for the lots is a view of the beach for a three-block area and parking which can well be placed on the wide beach. These are just some of the reasons why taxpayers should add them all up and see what is happening to their cost of government.—L. A. C.

Boy Saved from Death in Dirt Fall

GARDEN GROVE—An 11-year-old boy, covered by dirt which fell on him at a flood control channel construction job here, was rescued Saturday afternoon by playmates.

Donald L. Piersen of 11292 Flynn Lane was unhurt after being pulled from the cave-in near Dallas and Parliament Sts.

Sam White of 1733 Catherine St., Anaheim, superintendent of the project, said he found that friends of the youngster had uncovered the boy's face. White removed the boy from the remaining debris.

Southland Hit With Hot Rain

and marble-size hail fell in many areas.

* * * *

IN THE Torrance area, black thunderheads scattered spectacular lightning bolts for more than an hour Saturday evening, but no damage was reported.

For today, the Weather Bureau predicted 93-degree temperatures in the Long Beach area, with mostly clear skies in the morning followed by variable cloudiness and scattered thunderstorms in the afternoon and evening.

Flash flood warnings were issued for Mojave desert areas, and brief but heavy showers with gusty winds were expected in the mountains.

* * * *

SATURDAY'S temperatures ranged from 111 degrees in Palm Springs to 94 in Long Beach, with Santa Monica enjoying a cool 77.

Rainfall totals ranged from .31 inches in Palmdale to .23 in San Bernardino, with light sprinkles in the South Bay and Orange County areas Saturday night.

In Long Beach, some 125,000 persons flocked to the beaches, and lifeguards pulled 17 of them out when they got into trouble in the calm waters.

Bulganin Ousted by Soviet Party

placed by Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist Party boss.

* * * *

FOUR DAYS LATER it was reported he had been made chairman of the state bank with cabinet rank, listed 44th among the 60 members of the new council of ministers.

In June he dropped out of sight but Khrushchev said June 13 Bulganin had undergone a serious operation and would return to work in a week.

Last Aug. 15 he was demoted again, named chairman of the council of the national economy in the remote northern caucasus town of Stavropol.

There was some talk that the jovial, bearded "Mr. B" of the famous "B and K"—Bulganin and Khrushchev—political tourist team had been sent to the area to help him recover his health. The Stavropol region is not far from the Black Sea resort area.

* * * *

BUT THERE was no doubt that the move was a demotion and an Italian Communist paper speculated he had been sent there because of his attitude toward Khrushchev.

Bulganin was reported to have sided first against Khrushchev in the party central committee over ousting V. M. Molotov, L. M. Kaganovich Dmitri Shepilov and Georgi Malenkov from roles of party leadership in 1957.

Bulganin later swung to Khrushchev's support but the suspicion in the Communist world as well as outside was that Bulganin had signed his own political death warrant.

* * * *

BULGANIN THUS has followed at least part of the way along the path blazed by Kaganovich, Molotov, Shepilov and Malenkov.

After they fell from favor they went various ways—Kaganovich to the directorship of a cement plant in the Urals, Molotov as ambassador to Mongolia, Shepilov to a teaching job far from Moscow and Malenkov to the directorship of a power station in eastern Kazakhstan.

Wayne and Pilar Near Separation

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Wayne said Saturday that he and his wife of four years are getting ready to separate.

His wife is the former Pilar Pallette, the Peruvian beauty.

"We are not separated yet," Wayne told a reporter, "but I guess we're going to be.

"Pilar and I can't seem to get any warmth and understanding between us anymore."

Edith Piaf Injured in Auto Crash

PARIS (UPI)—Edith Piaf, the tiny, vibrant-voiced French songstress whose tear-stained ballads of Paris back streets brought her world fame, was injured seriously Saturday in an automobile accident.

The accident, in which three other persons also were injured, occurred on the eve of Miss Piaf's departure for a six-month engagement in New York.

Hospital officials at nearby Rambouillet, where the 43-year-old singer is being treated, said she suffered head injuries, facial cuts and two torn tendons of one hand.

Her condition, however, was described as "not alarming."

Miss Piaf underwent surgery shortly after the crash.

She was to have begun a singing engagement at the Waldorf Astoria in New York.

Pair Takes Marriage Plunge—But Literally

WICKFORD, England, Sept. 6 (UPI)—Philip Narbeth, 23, and Maureen Folley, 22, got married Saturday as planned but it wasn't easy.

Philip, a Paris-born student, and his brother John, who served as best man, swam to the church wearing only their underpants.

Maureen waded from her home in an old sweater and pair of jeans. Friends waded along behind her holding the wedding dress aloft in a suitcase.

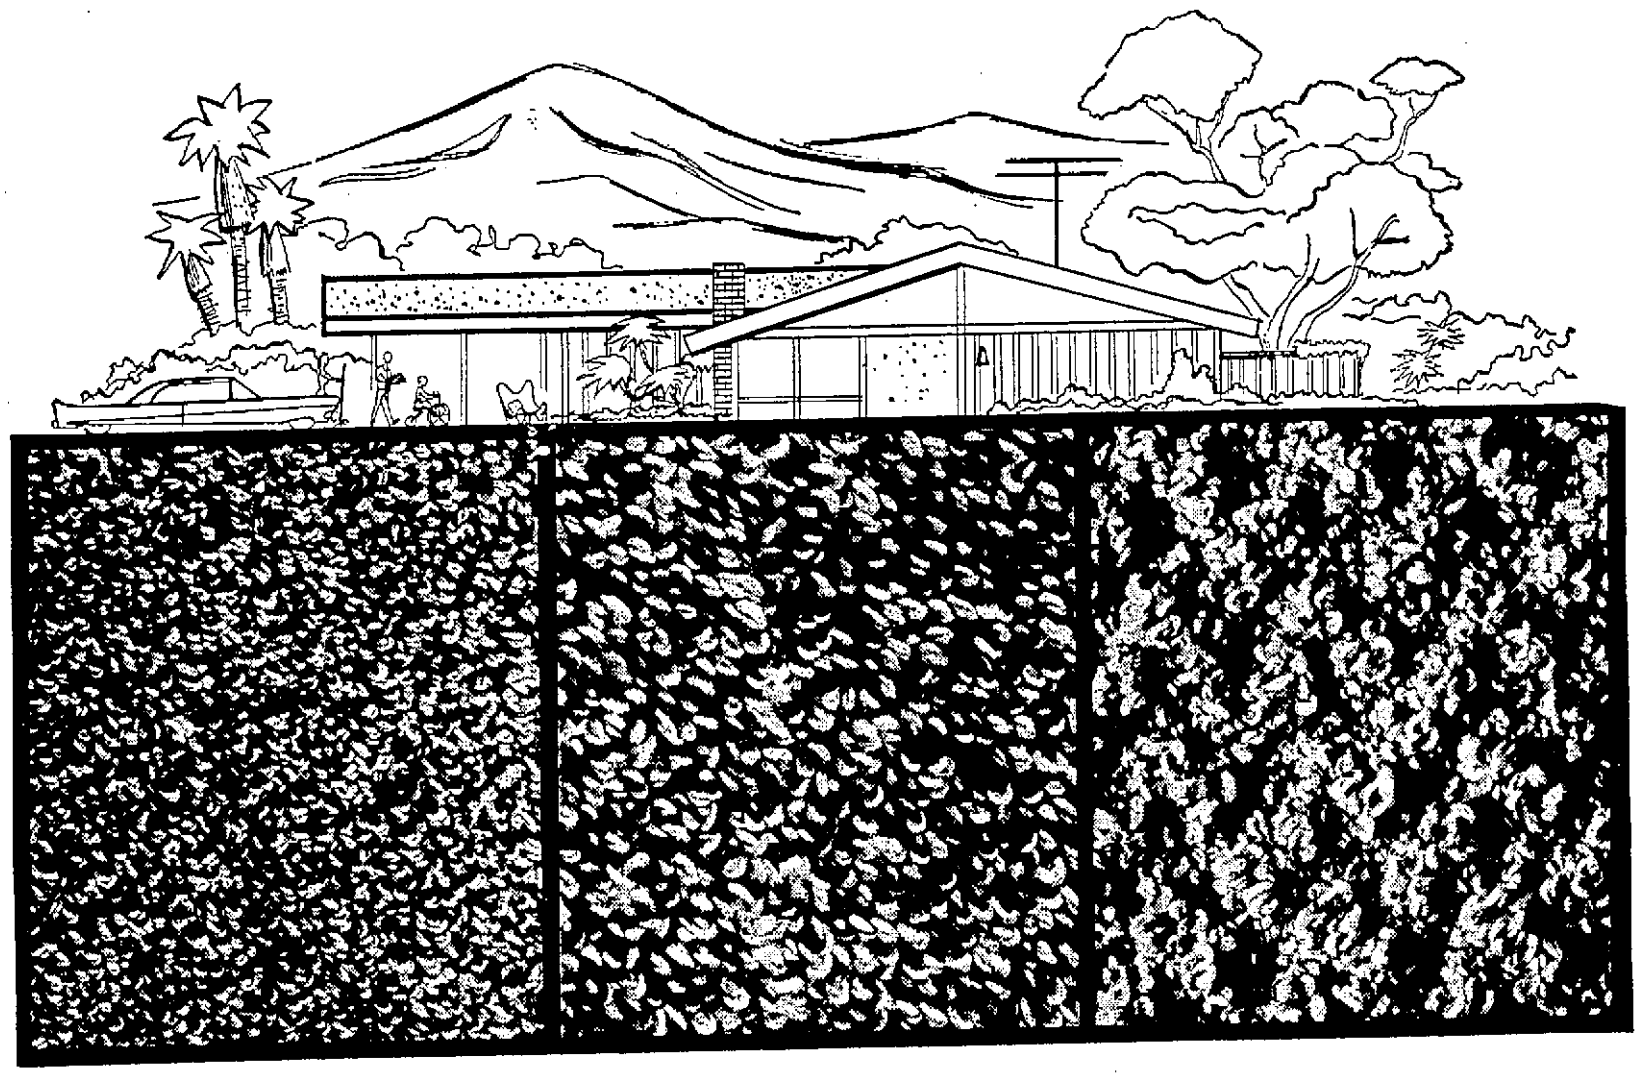

The choir boys turned up in swimming trunks.

After they all dried off and changed clothes at the parish house of Father J. Collins, the wedding went on as scheduled at the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

The town of Wickford was under four to six feet of water as a result of Friday's freak storm which flooded parts of southeast England.

HOSPITAL HIT BY COMMUNIST SHELL

nist ambassador there" to resume talks on the Formosa dispute.

The United States and Red China had been discussing the problem previously in Geneva off and on since 1955. But the talks broke down last December when the Communists rejected repeated U.S. demands for a joint renunciation of force by the two nations.

But the Red Chinese radio announced Saturday morning that Premier Chou En-lai was ready to have the ambassadorial session resume.

* * * *

SO FAR, THE UNITED States has not received any official word on this subject," the White House statement said. But it added that "if the Chinese Communists are now prepared" to resume the talks, "the United States welcomes that decision."

"Naturally," the statement continued, "in these resumed talks the United States will adhere to the negotiating position which it originally took in 1955 —namely, that we will not in these talks be a party to any arrangement which would prejudice the rights of our ally, the Republic of China."

The White House said the Security Council also considered "measures which would conform to the policy" laid down by the President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Sept. 4 in a statement issued at Newport.

* * * *

THERE WAS NO elaboration on this point.

In that statement it was said the President would not hesitate to use U.S. forces to defend Nationalist-held Quemoy and Matsu if he judged the circumstances made this necessary.

The White House said it hoped Red China's new willingness to talk over the Formosa crisis was in reply to another part of the Eisenhower-Dulles Newport statement.

That was a plea that "armed force should not be used to achieve territorial ambitions."

Red China Calls Mobilization

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China ordered general mobilization of its 600 million people Saturday.

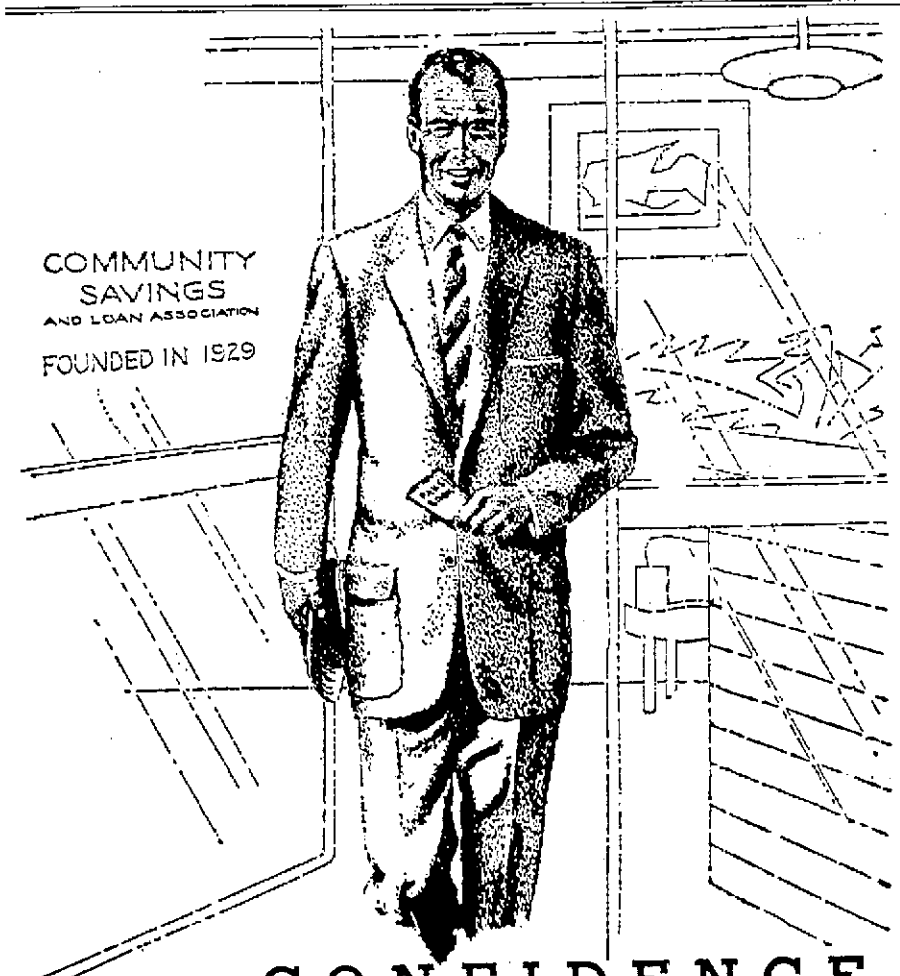

The mobilization order was issued by the Supreme State Council in Peiping "for the struggle against war provocations by American Imperialists in the Taiwan (Formosa) area," Peiping radio said.

There was no explanation of what is involved in the general mobilization order. Red China already has an army of three million men, a people's militia force of about 10 million men, and a conscription system that brings about 450,000 men annually into the army for three years' service.

In effect, the mobilization call may mean little more than using a military but rhetorical term to whip up anti-U.S. mass opinion in support of its leaders by rallying the whole nation to their new program.

Terrorizing of Negroes Has Britain Worried, Divided

Hiam, wife of an auto worker in depression-hit Birmingham.

Third, just plain thuggery.

"These Teddy Boys and hooligans have been spoiling up for a fight for a long time now," said a veteran cop. "This is just their excuse to cause trouble."

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS insist in their editorials that the trouble is mainly caused by hooligans. Certainly the riot pictures in the papers show white youths whose appearance fits the mold.

And the general run of Britons, who have had almost no contact with any of the new immigrants, are horrified by the disturbances—they agree it must be just the work of hooligans.

But the violence is the symptom, not the ailment. The question is what causes the tension that allows for the hooliganism.

The remnants of Sir Oswald Mosley's old Fascist movement have claimed "credit" for the disturbances. Jeffrey Hamm, secretary of the Mosley organization now known as the British Union, said his men had gone around Notting Hill distributing pamphlets entitled "The Colored Invasion."

"There has to be law and order," Hamm told newsmen. "We have to restrict the colored invasion of students and such like. We've got to have deportations."

But the general impression is that the old Mosley group is just trying to cash in on the disorders.

FATHER TREVOR HUDDLESTON, Anglican priest who for 12 years fought segregation policies in South Africa, warned that intolerance could spread through the whole nation if not beaten now.

He asked the British to prove to the world they still believe in freedom and justice by breaking race barriers in everyday life.

But how should it be handled?

A group of Members of Parliament, led by Laborites George Rogers and Maurice Edelman, advocate immigration controls. They believe every settler should be able to prove he has work and accommodation waiting for him.

Their idea has been taken up by the mass circulation Daily Mirror. It is pushing the policy hard.

Huddleston calls this a policy of despair.

"If we persist in believing that the trouble is merely the result of a stupid immigration policy," he said, "we shall capitulate to the ideology which already holds South Africa in its grip, the idea of white supremacy."

THE SITUATION HERE as it affected a colored person was summed up by one. "I have a British passport which commands 'in the name of Her Majesty the Queen' that I shall be allowed to pass 'freely and without hindrance,'" wrote Vivian Witter of Leeds.

"Is it a joke?

"When I went to look for lodgings in houses that advertised them, nobody came to the door—a corner of the curtain was pulled aside, and that was all.

"When my wife went to work she came home in hysterics because of jeers from her mates about grass skirts and mud huts."

The discussion of the racial troubles is the dominant feature in the British newspapers now. Is it all just the work of hooligans or the fault of the colored people or are the British just as subject to prejudices as other people?

The British just now find it all perplexing, shocking and somewhat numbing.

POLICE QUELL RACIAL FIGHT

Police grapple with a youth during free-for-all fight in the Queens, Long Island, section of New York City Saturday. More than 60 persons were involved after six whites tangled with a group of colored persons. Baseball bats, such as held by man at left, and whips made from auto radio antennas were used in the 10-minute battle before police halted the fight. No one was seriously injured. Six white persons were arrested on charges of inciting a riot.—(AP Wirephoto.)

U.S., RUSS DIFFER ON RADIOACTIVITY

Reds Cite Nerve Ruin in Rabbit Experiment

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States delegation to the atoms-for-peace conference disagreed firmly Saturday with Russian findings that even small amounts of radioactivity are damaging to the nervous system and "sensitive organs."

In a special statement, the American delegation said similar experiments had been conducted in the United States and "no effects are observed at low doses of the order of a few 'roentgens'."

Russian scientists claimed to have observed cerebral and nervous damage in rabbits during experiments using only 1 and 1.3 "roentgens" of radioactivity.

* * * *

A ROENTGEN is the international unit of measurement for X-rays.

The U. S. statement suggested disagreement not only with the Russians but with previous findings by leading scientists in the United States. In large areas at least, the statement would mean that there is a "threshold" below which radiation damage does not occur.

If a "threshold" could be established, a big field would be opened for radiation treatment below that level and possibly for building up human resistance to increasing amounts of radioactivity. The Russians contend there is no "threshold," and that all radioactivity is damaging.

The U. S.-Russia dispute, one of several since the 69-nation conference opened last Monday, broke out as the parley ended the first of its two weeks of sessions. More than 5,000 scientists are attending a non-stop series of meetings that continued through the day.

* * * *

AMONG THE developments was disclosure that U. S. researchers secretly proved the "operability" of a nuclear-powered aircraft engine more than a year and a half ago.

Such an engine was operated at power levels for 140 hours and its performance was satisfactory, according to a report submitted by D. R. Shoults, general manager, aircraft nuclear propulsion department, of the General Electric Company.

Shoults told reporters that "someone could build a nuclear aircraft now," if he wanted to, and indicated that the problems of shielding passengers from radiation dangers and cutting down weight had been at least theoretically solved.

"Nuclear-powered fight is inevitable," he said.

Series of Mishaps Keeps Family Apart

SEATTLE (UPI) — Roy Inman, 30, who was reported several weeks overdue on a trip from Houston, Alaska, to Santa Paula, Calif., turned up here Saturday wondering what had happened to his family.

His wife, Patsy, 28, earlier Saturday had asked Seattle police to help her in locating her husband, who was supposed to arrive here July 28 from Alaska. From here, he was to go on to the family's trailer home at Santa Paula.

* * * *

INMAN, AN oil driller, started down the Alcan highway as scheduled, but was involved in a traffic accident which wrecked his car. He has been staying with friends here for the past four weeks, "trying to get straightened out with my insurance company."

In the meantime, a line on an ammonia truck snapped as the vehicle was passing the Santa Paula trailer camp and ammonia sprayed into the park, ruining several of the mobile homes, including Inman's, and sending several people to the hospital.

Inman's three daughters, aged 6 years, 4 years and 20 months, were among those hospitalized. When they were released from medical care, Mrs. Inman took the children to a friend's home at Ventura, Calif., and waited for her husband to arrive.

That was in early August.

* * * *

INMAN SAID that since then he has written letters to his wife, "but all of them were returned. I had no idea what happened to them, but I couldn't leave town because of my hassle with the insurance company."

Saturday, Inman heard a United Press International story concerning his "disappearance" broadcast over a local radio station.

He immediately contacted UPI, learned of his wife's whereabouts and said he would phone her "right away."

"Thank you very, very much," Inman told a UPI reporter. "Believe me, it will be wonderful to talk to the family."

GREAT ARCHEOLOGICAL FIND

Skeleton Holds Solid Gold Bucket

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A solid gold bucket clutched in the bones of a 2,500-year-old skeleton has been found by an archeological team, the University of Pennsylvania disclosed Saturday.

"This is one of the great archeological discoveries of recent years," said Dr. Froelich Rainey, director of the university museum, sponsor of the expedition.

Dr. Rainey announced the discovery after receiving a letter from Robert H. Dyson Jr., expedition field director, in the iron age city of Hasanlu in northwestern Iran, on the shore of Lake Urmia.

* * * *

THE VESSEL is covered with mythological figures the details and composition of which are completely new to us," wrote Dyson. He described the bucket:

"Out of the soil emerged a large bucket-shaped vessel, pressed flat by the weight of the earth, eight inches high and two feet in circumference and shining in golden splendor as only gold, the one non-corroding metal, can do."

The vessel was uncovered in a small room where several skeletons, crushed by debris and lying in distorted positions, were found. Dyson said the skeleton clutching the object was that of a warrior.

Dr. Rainey said the mythological figures are believed to be unique in the art of the ancient Near East. He thought they might have some connection with objects found in the Caucasus, Mesopotamia and eastern Turkey once inhabited by the Urartu, people unknown until about 50 years ago.

Dyson wrote that Hasanlu was a powerful, fortified city whose culture came to an abrupt end sometime after 813 B. C. The site was fire-ravaged.

Minister Admits He Was Fed Answer on '$64,000 Challenge'

NASHVILLE (UPI) — A Tullahoma, Tenn., minister has disclosed that he was "fed" an answer to a question when he appeared as a contestant on the "$64,000 Challenge," the Nashville Tennessean said in an article Saturday.

However, the Rev. Charles E. Jackson asserted that "you can't accuse the people who produce these quiz shows of anything criminal. If there's anything wrong, it's with the American people themselves who are so unforgiveably mercenary they worship anyone who makes money, no matter how it's made."

* * * *

JACKSON and several other Tennesseans who appeared on television quiz shows were contacted by the Nashville Tennessean, which published their comments Saturday.

The minister, who appeared on the quiz program in December, 1957, said that in a briefing before he went on the air on the "$64,000 Challenge," he was told by "a Miss Bernstein" that the answer to part of one question was "Thomas Hood."

The four-part question dealt with "Great Love Stories." It asked the name of Christopher Marlowe's long poem about a famous lover who had to swim to his sweetheart and the name of the body of water involved.

The lovers were "Hero and Leander" and the body of water was the Hellespont. The fourth part was who else also wrote about the story in verse.

The answer was Thomas Hood.

Jackson won $20,000 on two programs—$4,000 on the "$64,000 Question," and $16,000 on the $64,000 Challenge.

* * * *

THREE OTHERS who appeared on TV quiz programs were asked by the Tennessean what they thought of recent charges of "coaching contestants" on quiz shows.

Former Knoxville mayor George Dempster, who won $32,000 on the "$64,000 Question," said, "Hell, no," he wasn't prompted.

Doll Goostree of Clarksville, who went away emtpy-handed, said she could have "used a little help."

HOLE REPAIRED

Girl's Heart Halted 25 Min. for Surgery

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—Surgeons here revealed Saturday they stopped the heart of a 9-year-old girl for 25 minutes to repair a three-quarter-inch hole between the two chambers. The operation was successful and the girl will recover.

The doctors said they used a heart-lung machine to keep the patient's blood circulating during the operation. It was the first time an artificial heart had been used in New Zealand.

The girl was identified as Helen Arnold of Christchurch. She soon will be able to lead a completely normal life, the doctors said.

Chinese Reds Wax Poetic

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign and home broadcasts of Red China radio are plugging a song that is most unlikely to win any prizes for lyrical artistry. It goes:

We will positively liberate Taiwan (Formosa).

Taiwan is legitimately our territory.

Our beloved comrades are on Taiwan.

For the sake of the fatherland,

For the sake of the (Chinese) people,

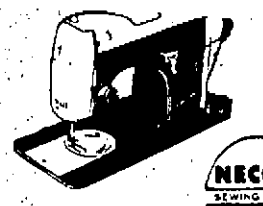

We will beat and drive out American imperialists and the Chiang Kai-Shek group from Taiwan.

We will liberate Taiwan.

Nonstop Flights Mark Torrance Airport Day

TORRANCE—Seventeen private planes staged a nonstop trophy dash from here to Palm Springs and back Saturday to kick off the city's first annual Airport Day celebrations.

The event also featured displays, a crop-dusting demonstration, movies and band concerts.

Winner of the dash was William R. Decker, of West Covina, flying a Cessna 172 at an average speed of 127½ miles an hour.

Other leaders were Harold Corbett, of Hermosa Beach, second at 161¾ miles and hour in a Cessna 180; Myrl C. Rupel, Torrance, third at 126½ miles an hour in a Swift, and Leon J. Jones, Wilmington, fourth at 159½ miles an hour in a Bellanca.

Racers Kill 2, Hurt 11

LEHIGHTON, Pa. (UPI)—Two children were killed and 11 other persons injured Saturday when two cars competing in races at the Lehighton fair grounds ploughed through a fence in separate accidents.

The dead were Dennis Mertz, 11, Lehighton, and Shirley George, 11, Palmerton, R.D. 1.

Mrs. Cora Hawk, 49, Kunkletown, R.D. 2, and Violet Gusick, 17, Summit Hill, were admitted to Lehighton hospital in critical condition.

George Derr, 27, Walnut Port, R.D., was listed in fair condition at the hospital. Eight others were treated there and discharged.

* * * *

MAYOR JAMES Beisel said the Mertz boy and a companion were sitting in a tree watching the stock cars as they competed in a race on the fair grounds half-mile dirt track.

One of the cars skidded and crashed through the fence. The boy leaped in fright from the tree and was pinned against it by the careening automobile.

Dennis was taken to Lehighton Hospital but died less than three hours later.

* * * *

THE SECOND ACCIDENT occurred about 30 minutes later during the closing consolation race of five miles with 14 stock cars competing.

The George girl was among scores of spectators watching the event from behind a wooden fence along one of the sharpest curves on the track.

A racing car ripped through the fence and ploughed into a knot of spectators. Shirley was killed instantly and persons around her were bowled over by the impact as others scrambled out of the way.

The program immediately was called off as ambulances rushed the injured to the hospital. Shirley was pronounced dead on arrival.

'Lovers' Lane' Bandits Rob 2 Men of L.B. Area

Two area men were among victims of two "Lovers' Lane" bandits who robbed four parked couples of a total of $140 in different Los Angeles locations Friday night and early Saturday.

Floyd Cline, 42, a private guard, of 923 W. 134th St., Compton, and a woman companion surrendered $92 to the holdup men.

Harvey L. Rose, 26, an intern at Harbor General Hospital, and a 22-year-old Los Angeles woman were robbed of $24.

The bandits used the same method of operation in each holdup. One poked a pistol through the driver's window as his partner took the money from the opposite side of the car.

Marine Stadium Bridge Work Now a Step Nearer Realization

Negotiations aimed at settlement of problems which have held up completion of the J. H. Davis bridge approach north of Marine Stadium now are under way.

Legal representatives of the Security First National Bank, executor of the estate of the late Warren F. McGrath, have offered proposals to the city for settlement.

The city filed a condemnation suit to acquire the needed property in January, 1956. In January, 1958 a declaratory relief suit was filed.

The declaratory relief suit, scheduled for pre-trial Sept. 29, came about after the state maintained that the city might own the property and could not buy it. This suit, which attorneys believe will take about two years to complete, would settle the rights of the parties as to ownership.

* * * *

THE ATTORNEY general's office meanwhile has announced that it is reviewing a decision that tideland oil money could not be used for Marina facilities such as the bridge approach.

Among the proposals submitted by representatives of the McGrath estate is one wherein the estate would turn over to the city approximately 20 acres of property on the north side of Marine Stadium, including the site for the bridge approach, and the city would remove an 800x200-foot fill from the front of McGrath estate property across from Marina Boat Basin No. 1 and relocate a seawall the city has proposed to build. A further provision is that the city would give up its plan to purchase the block east of Palo Walk.

Other details of the proposed compromise still are being discussed.

After What Burglars Took —It's Sad Sack, Indeed!

Some 150 watches were among more than $1,200 in loot taken in a burglary at Sad Sack Supplies, Inc., 5511 Woodruff Ave., sheriff's deputies reported Saturday.

The watches, two Italian-make carbines and $10 in cash were found missing when manager Lewis Glanzer opened the store about 8 a.m.

Deputies said the burglars entered by drilling a hole in the roof. They tried unsuccessfully to open a safe.

Sweat Box at Florida Prison Told

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—The Tampa Tribune reported Saturday night that two prisoners, one a teenager, were confined 26 continuous days and nights in hot, filthy "sweat boxes" at a state road prison camp near Moore Haven.

The Tribune said both prisoners were stripped of their clothing and forced to remain naked in the sweat boxes during their entire confinement.

"It was reported," said the Tribune, "that the boxes are approximately three feet wide and six feet long, and contain no running water and toilet facilities. Prisoners are not allowed to come out for showers and are provided with two small pitchers of water—one in the morning and one at night. It was reported that bugs crawl into the water pitcher at night, making the water repulsive to drink."

* * * *

THE STORY said the sweat boxes have no sleeping facilities, the prisoners sleeping on the floor.

The story identified the two prisoners as Robert Z. Yancey, 18, of Ocala, Fla., serving an 18-month term for grand larceny, and James J. Wagner, 23, of Morristown, N.J., serving two years for breaking and entering with intent to commit felony.

The Tribune said both men are now in solitary confinement at the state maximum security prison at Raiford for assaulting a prison camp trusty.

* * * *

THE TRIBUNE said that the Moore Haven camp warden, A. E. Wells, "attempted to block the investigation of reports that he used sweat boxes to unreasonable degrees in punishing prisoners. L. W. Griffith, director of all State Road Department prison camps, backed Wells by also refusing to grant a Tribune reporter permission to inspect the sweat box situation."

Florida has no law against the use of sweat boxes.

Prison camp director Griffith declined to comment. Wells was not available for comment.

THEY'LL ALSO GET THEIR PADS PADDLED

SANTA ANA (UPI)—Two 15-year-old Anaheim boys failed to get into orbit and were left on their launching pad Saturday by police.

The boys were bawled out and released for swiping books on rocket and space fields from the Santa Ana, Anaheim and Fullerton public libraries.

Titles included "Rocket Power," "First Principles of Atomic Physics" and "Exploring Outer Space."

"We took the books, because we wouldn't be permitted to keep them long enough to complete our project," one of them explained. "We were going to make an ion-powered rocket engine."

Gale Fifi Cuts Out Seaward

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Tropical storm Fifi blossomed into a full-grown hurricane Saturday in the Atlantic 450 miles east of San Juan and headed northwestward across open seas.

The weather bureau here said in a 5 p.m. advisory that reconnaissance aircraft circled hurricane Fifi and reported it was centered at latitude 18.4 north, longitude 59.3 west.

Highest winds are about 85 miles an hour over a small area near the center and hurricane force winds extend out 50 miles north and east of the center, the advisory said.

* * * *

IT WAS HEADED toward the open sea at 16 miles an hour on a course that, if continued, would skirt the Bahamas and carry eventually to the south Atlantic coast. Many storms born in this area, however, veer northward and never become a menace to land.

"It is expected that hurricane Fifi will continue moving in the same direction at the same speed during the next 12 hours," the advisory said. During the same period, the hurricane was expected to increase slightly in intensity.

Gale warnings were hoisted in the Leeward islands. Residents of the Leeward group were urged to keep posted on the storm's movements.

BIDDER TURNS PALE

Gulp! You Mean It's $551 for Each Acre?

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP)—Auctioneer Harold Kindred's big western type hat bobbed up and down Saturday as bidding passed the $500 mark on a 40-acre farm.

One farmer nudged his neighbor. "This place is bringing a heck of a lot more than I thought it would."

The bidding went to $525. Then there were just two bidders left. One, an experienced, price-wise real estate man, bidding for a farmer client; the other, a 60-year-old woman.

"Five-fifty," said the professional with a note of finalty.

"FIVE-FIFTY-ONE," was the woman's firm reply.

"Sold!" barked Col. Kindred. The real estate man threw up his mands, "way too much money."

Parties of the sale adjourned to the sheriff's office to complete the details.

"Let's see now," said one lawyer, anticipating the usual down payment, "20 per cent of the sale price of $22,040, will be $4,408."

PARTICIPANTS grew pale when the woman replied, "Why, I only have $551. I'm from Chicago. I didn't get in on the explanation. But, I thought any piece of ground around here ought to be worth $551. You mean it was $551 an acre?"

Everyone will tell it to a judge Monday. Because the sale involves an estate, he's likely to order the whole sale started over.

The embarrassed woman would give only her name, Mrs. Lillian Watson.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Nixon Urges High Income Tax Cut

BOSTON (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon Saturday proposed cuts in federal taxes on business and persons with high-bracket incomes to stimulate continued business prosperity.

He did not suggest any reductions for average wage-earners. But he said they would benefit because "prosperity for the American people is inseparable from prosperity for American business."

The vice president emphasized he was speaking only for himself and not the administration which has been strongly opposed to any major tax reduction at this time. Democratic leaders in Congress supported the administration's position in the congressional session concluded last month.

Nixon outlined his tax relief program in a speech to the 50th anniversary of the Harvard Business School Association.

Sniper Slays Woman in Car

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP)—A Minneapolis woman was killed in early morning darkness Saturday by a bullet that pierced the back seat of an automobile cruising along a lonely stretch of U. S. 97.

Mrs. Carl Frederickson, 48, asleep in the seat, died without outcry. Her death was not discovered by others in the car until they reached Bend, 148 miles north of here.

Meanwhile police arrested a Klamath Indian, Myron Barkley, 26, on a charge of shooting another Indian, Eldon James Cress, 20, Saturday morning. After learning of the shooting of Mrs. Frederickson, they began questioning Barkley on whether he had any knowledge of it. Sheriff Murray Britton said Barkley admitted being on U. S. 97 about the time and place of the shooting, but denied knowledge of it.

In the past a number of drivers have complained of shots directed at their cars on or near the Klamath reservation north of here.

Rain Floods Iowa Towns

ATLANTIC, Iowa (AP)—Flood waters rolled on through southwest Iowa Saturday night after a new outburst of torrential rains brought precipitation of a foot or more for the second time within two months.

The latest deluge occurred Friday night and early Saturday with the towns of Casey, Anita and Adair areas getting the heaviest fall.

Unlike the early June floods in which 19 persons perished, the current flooding brought no direct loss of life although two persons were killed in a highway crash in which blinding rain was a factor. U. S. 6, closed at some points last night due to high water, was open again Saturday afternoon.

Fraternity Suspended 2 Years

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass. (UPI)—Phi Gamma Delta, a national colege fraternity with 45,000 white members, Saturday imposed a two-year suspension on its Amherst College chapter which was suspended when it pledged a Negro student last year.

Fraternity President Philip C. Ebeling of Dayton, Ohio, declined to say whether the two-year suspension resulted from the pledging. He said a "sizable majority" of the 225 delegates to the fraternity's national convention approved the suspension.

Olivia Fears Citizenship Loss

PARIS (UPI)—Actress Olivia de Havilland expressed fears Saturday she might lose her American citizenship as a result of testimony before a congressional committee that she once belonged to a Communist front organization.

The British-born actress is now the wife of French journalist Pierre Galante. Her testimony before the House Un-American Activities committee was revealed Friday.

"Naturalized American citizens can lose their citizenship if they reside outside the U.S. for more than five years," Miss de Havilland said Saturday. "In exceptional cases they have lost it before that—and I am just hoping that this will not be considered an exceptional case."

REGIONAL POLITICS

Engle Will Open L.B. Headquarters Wednesday

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Congressman Clair Engle (D-Red Bluff) will cut ribbons, picnic, speak, play roque, bowl and tour the harbor area in a two-day Long Beach kickoff for his U. S. Senate campaign Wednesday and Thursday.

Councilman D. Patrick Ahern, Engle's campaign chairman for the 18th Congressional District, said the Wednesday program will open at 2 p.m. with Engle cutting the ribbon to open officially the new Engle Long Beach Headquarters at the southwest corner of Broadway and American Ave. At 2:45 p.m. Engle will speak at the University by the Sea.

* * * *

BIXBY PARK will be the site of an Engle picnic-rally starting at 7 p.m. with Municipal Band music from 7 to 8 p.m. Ahern said the public is invited to bring a basket picnic. Coffee and lemonade will be served. He said some 40 baskets of groceries will be awarded at the headquarters opening and at the picnic-rally.

Emanuel Gyler, president of the 18th District California Democratic Council, will preside at the picnic program. Democratic nominees Harry S. May for Congress; Joseph M. Kennick for 44th District Assembly, and Tom Griffin for 70th District Assembly will be invited to serve coffee to picnickers.

CLAIR ENGLE

Councilman Gerald Desmond will lead the pledge of allegiance and Vice Mayor Virgil Spongberg will give the invocation. Atty. John Paap will introduce Rep. Engle.

Engle will bowl at Java Lanes at 9 p.m.

* * * *

HE WILL SPEAK Thursday at a meeting of AFL and CIO labor leaders in the Lafayette Hotel at 8:30 a.m. He'll make the traditional campaigners' roque call in Lincoln Park at 10:30 a.m., after which he will go to City Hall to greet city officials and councilmen. After that he plans a harbor tour to inspect subsidence damage.

HOSMER INFLUENCE LOST, SAYS MAY

Harry S. May, Democratic nominee for Congress, 18th District (Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill), charged that Rep. Craig Hosmer, Republican incumbent, "has already lost his fight to keep the Naval Shipyard open. The recent conditional appropriation of funds from the U. S. Navy Dept. for the Long Beach Harbor has shown he has lost all of his influence and strength in representing this district. Rep. Harry Sheppard (D - Yucaipa) has proven that for all men to see."

May said Democratic victory in November will place chairmanships of the appropriations sub-committees in Democratic hands and would render "Hosmer a lame duck." He criticized Hosmer's switch from the Small Business sub-committee to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee as one "for convenience and prestige . . . and he may make the same maneuver in the wake of the subsidence fund debacle by accentuating his atomic advisory post with the already discredited Lewis L. Strauss and his Geneva delegation. Atoms for Peace is vital indeed, but a poor substitute for helping to raise a sinking harbor."

FUND-RAISING ROUNDUP

Nixon to Open Calif. Tour for GOP Oct. 1

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Vice President Nixon will open his California campaign tour for Republican candidates at a GOP fund-raising roundup in San Diego the night of Oct. 1, Rep. Bob Wilson (R-Calif) announced Saturday.

"Vice President Nixon feels that he can be most helpful to California Republicans by pointing up the issues and pointing up the unity that actually exists within the party organization," Wilson said.

* * * *

"HE HAS agreed to come here to help us with this demonstration. It will be his first October-campaign appearance in California and should attract nation-wide attention."

The roundup—western style—will feature rodeo and other acts by top-name performers.

Wilson said all Republican partisan candidates are to participate either in person or through representatives. He said Sen. William Knowland, Republican gubernatorial nominee; Gov. Goodwin Knight, U. S. Senate nominee, and Rep. Pat Hillings (R-Calif), attorney general nominee, already have said they would attend.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Knight scored Rep. Clair Engle of Red Bluff Saturday night for "gross truancy" in Congress and called on Republicans to make campaign issues known to the public.

Knight, Republican nominee for the U. S. Senate, said Engle, his Democratic opponent, "has shamefully neglected one of the most fundamental obligations that an American public official assumes" by his absences from Congress.

* * * *

HE MADE his remarks in a prepared address before the Republican State Central Committee.

Charging that Engle was absent from Congress for "perhaps the most important final weeks of the session" — Aug. 8 through 23—Knight said Engle was "guilty of an inexcusable dereliction of duty."

Turning to his own record, Knight asserted:

"In placing my name before the people of California as a candidate for the United States Senate . . . I do so on a record of unquestioned integrity, statewide perspective, long experience in federal affairs and, above all, full recognition of solemn responsibility to all the people I seek to represent.

"You have the facts: On the one hand, flippancy, indifference, wisecracks, irresponsibility; on the other, integrity, dignity, and proved performance."

Pocket Veto Kills Claims Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower Friday killed, by pocket veto, a bill to permit heads of each military department to settle damage claims of $1,000 or less for death, injury or property loss caused by members or employes of the armed forces.

As a result of the President's inaction settlement of the claims will continue as before —usually requiring special congressional action.

Truman Kin Runs for Parliament

LONDON (UPI) — Charles Truman, 43, a fruit farmer and a distant relative of former President Harry Truman, has been selected as the Liberal candidate for parliament from the Isle of Wight in Britain's next general election, the Liberals announced Saturday.

Relief Offered Wearers of Thick Lensed Glasses

Thousands of people who are wearing unpleasant appearing, thick lensed glasses can now enjoy improved vision and freedom from the burdensome weight of the spectacles, according to vision authorities. They explain that extreme far- and near-sightedness, astigmatism, keratoconus (swelling of the cornea), and postoperative cataract are conditions for which contact lenses are especially good. The field of vision is much greater, and the vision is keener with contact lenses. The thinness and lightness of the new plastic lenses have tremendous cosmetic and functional value, and the psychological effect on the wearer cannot be overemphasized. With a diameter no larger than an eraser tip, modern plastic contact lenses are easy to apply, and they are designed to be worn around the clock. Easy terms. New Pupils Should Enroll This Week

With MALCOLM EPLEY

THE vaguely - identifiable thing known as the "American public" takes a consistent beating.

It is berated, scolded and exhorted to do better on an around-the-clock basis from editorialists, commentators, preachers, and all sorts of pundits.

It is accused of neglecting its children, of recklessly risking life on the highways, of niggardly giving to worthy causes, of superficial consideration of political issues, of failing to ballot in adequate numbers, of a general lowering of moral standards and a vast variety of other sins and shortcomings.

An awful lot of speaking and writing, when it moves beyond the field of private communication, quickly becomes a bawling out for the public.

As an old editorial columnist, I've done my share. Not once but often I've chided "the public" for sins I myself committed on that very day.

IF YOU'RE wondering what I'm leading up to, here it is: I've got some praise today for "the general public."

For once, I'm going to say something nice about it. I'm not going overboard, mind you, because its performance in the field I have in mind isn't perfect, but I claim it's improving.

I detect some definite progress in the cause of preventing litter on the public highways.

The thoroughfares, definitely, are cleaner. I saw as much on a recent run about the state, and others with me confirmed the observation.

It must be that more people are withholding their hands as they move toward the car window, clutching bits of paper or other rubbish. More people are suing litter disposal facilities in cars and more are using the litter cans that may be found beside the highways at convenient turnoffs.

We observed, in fact, that many of these cans were filled to overflowing. Certainly, the stuff couldn't have blown in there.

WHAT is causing this? Supposedly, it's a combination of the anti-litter propaganda campaign, the stiffening of laws and posting of highways with litter warnings, and the program of providing disposal facilities at convenient locations.

Signs now notify drivers that litter cans are a half mile ahead—a neat little reminder, even if the can is not used.

The litter bag for cars is also a fine idea.

Something, apparently, is working, and so this dept., for once, speaks in praise and admiration of the "general public." In particular, the reference is to the driving public. Vacant lots and the beaches still bear evidence that not all of the public is willing yet to rid itself of a dirty habit.

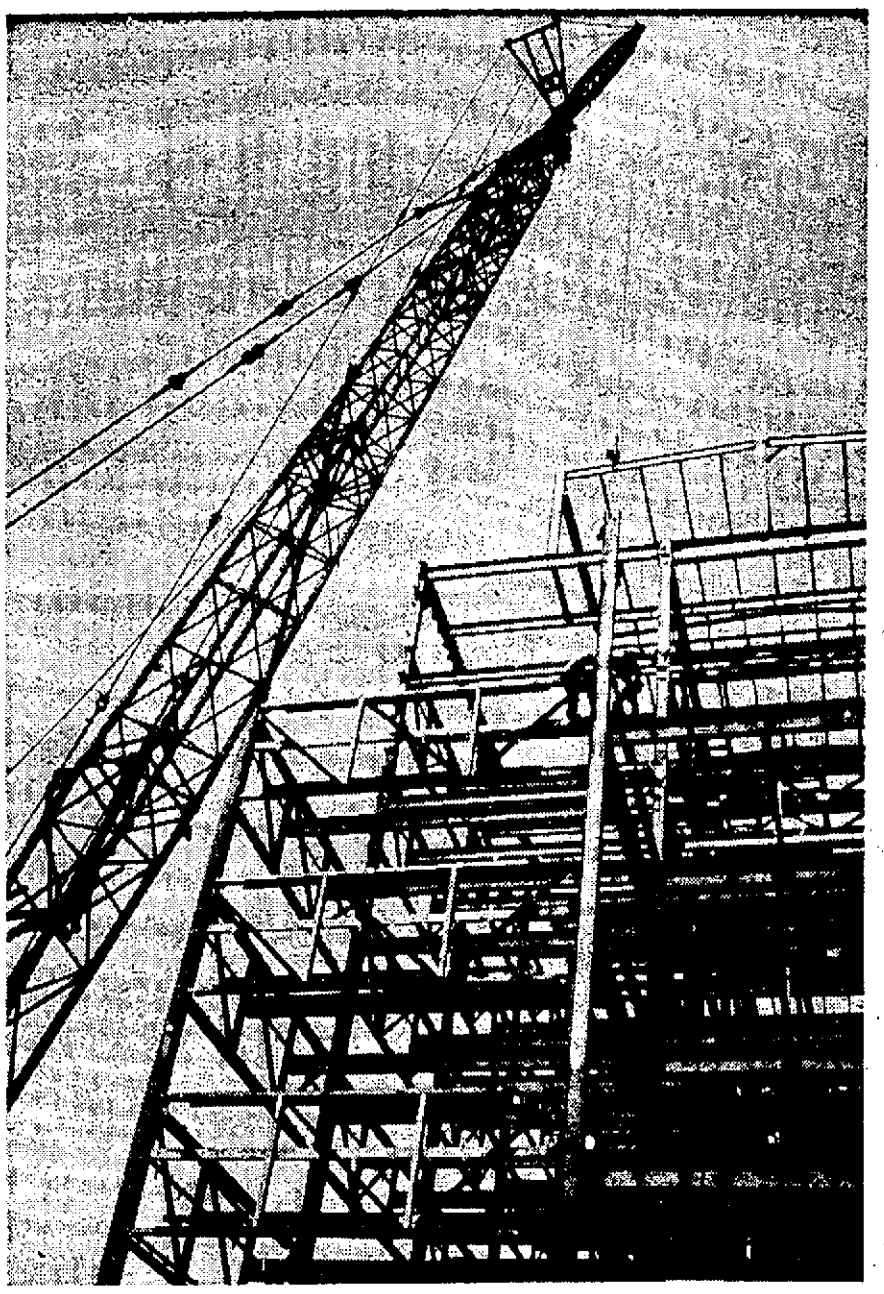

THINGS are bad in spots. The mimeographed membership letter of a Long Beach church carries this item:

"Most churches feel it necessary to pay their ministers in cash, but there are a few in America who pay in grain, turnips, sow belly or greens. Unless our pledgers make up their pledges this month, please bring a turnip or a bit of sow belly for our minister."

THAT brings up a long-dimmed personal memory. My father was a pioneer minister in the western Nebraska prairie country, and I recall his recounting some of his salary experiences in those days.

One year—I think it was the year of a great drought on the plains — he labored for 12 months as a circuit rider, netting $200 in cash, a load of hay for his team, and a barrel of scrawny green apples.

I hope the Long Beach preacher referred to in the bulletin does better than that this year.

And the entire 60x90 foot structure is being painted, inside and outside.

* * * *

STEEL NEARLY COMPLETE

Harbor Building Rises on Pier A

By LEE CRAIG

Erection of steel is nearly complete for Long Beach Harbor Department's $3,000,000 administration building now under construction on a 10-acre site on Pier A.

The seven-story structure, probably the most modern of its type on the Pacific Coast, is scheduled for completion by about Jan. 1, 1960.

ITS EXTERIOR SURFACING will be of ceramic veneer. Feature of the front entrance will be a huge mural on which typical port scenes will be pictured. Before the mural will be a reflection pool.

Suites of harbor executives will be located on the sixth floor, along with the harbor commissioners' board room. A popular feature with port visitors will be a 100-foot long exhibit and sightseeing gallery overlooking the harbor and city.

THE BUILDING WILL FURNISH more than 100,000 square feet of office space for administrative and technical staffs of the harbor department and Long Beach Oil Development Co., the city's oil operator.

Contractors for the building are C. L. Peck Construction and Realty Co., Los Angeles, and Millie & Severson Co., Long Beach, in a joint venture. Architects are Warren Dedrick and James Friend.

Commissioners have made no definite decision on disposition of the present two-story administration building at 1333 El Embarcadero.

BIG SPLASH SATURDAY

Pat McCormick Pool Rituals Set

By EARL GRISWOLD

The summer-long splashing of kids in Lakewood's big $200,000 Pat McCormick Swimming Pool will be interrupted briefly next Saturday while city officials and dignitaries formally dedicate the pool.

The hour-long ceremony, starting at 3 p.m., will feature exhibitions by AAU swimming and diving stars, with Bill Schroeder, managing director of the Helms Athletic Foundation, acting as emcee.

* * * *

MAYOR ANGELO M. Iacoboni will unveil a plaque dedicating the pool in honor of Lakewood's Pat McCormick, who has won four Olympic gold medals and 27 national diving championships.

Pat will give a diving exhibition.

* * * *

SPECIAL BLEACHERS will be erected on the north side of the pool to accommodate spectators. The program will be free and open to the public.

* * * *

THE PAT McCormick Pool, opened last May in Bolivar Park at Del Amo Blvd. and Downey Ave., features a 120 by 40-foot swimming area, with a separate 40 by 40-foot diving pool.

'Jobs for L.B.' on Ballot as Props. S, T

By BEN ZINSER

"Jobs for Long Beach," a proposed public improvement program to increase employment, will be identified on the Nov. 4 ballot as Propositions S and T.

This was announced Saturday by Benjamin S. Hite, Los Angeles County registrar of voters.

Hite also disclosed the alphabetical designations for four Long Beach charter amendments to be submitted to the voters.

The letter "X" will precede an amendment that would abolish the special tax from which musicians in the Long Beach Municipal Band are paid. If passed, it would abolish the 49-year-old musical aggregation.

* * * *

OTHER DESIGNATIONS:

U—for an amendment that would give a one per cent preference to Long Beach firms bidding for supplying the city with materials and equipment.

V—for an amendment providing for transfer of tax assessment and collection to the county and removing the $1 tax rate limit on the General Purpose Fund.

W—for an amendment increasing from five to 40 years the maximum term of leases of Harbor Dept. wharves and piers.

Proposition S is a $2,470,000 bond issue proposal that would spruce up Long Beach's appearance in an effort to attract and hold tourists.

* * * *

IT CALLS FOR the widening of Ocean Blvd. between Golden and Alamitos Aves. and the planting of flowering trees in a divider strip down the center.

It would place a similar dividing island down the center of American Ave. from Ocean Blvd. to Willow St.

Also, it would landscape all the off-ramps on the Long Beach Freeway terminus from the 9th St. Bridge south to Ocean Blvd.

Proposition S would also remove rail tracks from Ocean Blvd. and American Ave.

Its companion measure, Proposition T, is a $4,245,000 bond issue proposal that would expand city convention facilities and modernize and glamorize the present Municipal Auditorium.

* * * *

SPECIFICALLY, it would create a pedestrian mall in front of the Auditorium. Beneath the mall would be erected a 100,000-square-foot exhibits building that would connect with the Auditorium. The extra space would enable the city to draw bigger trade shows.

Interior of the Auditorium would be modernized, including a change in color scheme and improvement of acoustics. Dramatic night lighting of the Auditorium's exterior is proposed.

The pedestrian mall proposed by Proposition T would eliminate the present downhill approach to the auditorium. The new approach would be level with Ocean Blvd.

* * * *

THE MALL would become an International Square, decorated with statuary from foreign nations, to call attention the year around to this city's Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Proponents of Propositions S and T say the two proposals would create from 3,000 to 5,000 jobs.

WORKIN' FOR THE . . .

Convention Dollar

City after city throughout the nation is pursuing a special kind of dollar nowadays.

It's that spent by the convention delegate or the tourist. It's a special dollar because it turns over rapidly in a community and creates jobs.

A five-installment series beginning Monday in The Independent and The Press-Telegram tells what various cities are doing to improve their position in this competitive market.

The articles, written by staff writer Ben Zinser, will disclose that some communities are making millions by catering to conventioneers and travelers.

Oren R. Cline, City Inspector 39 Years, Dies at Age 101

Oren Ramsey Cline, who moved here from Kansas for his health 51 years ago, is dead at the age of 101.

Cline, the city's gas and electric inspector for 39 years until his retirement at age 93, died Thursday.

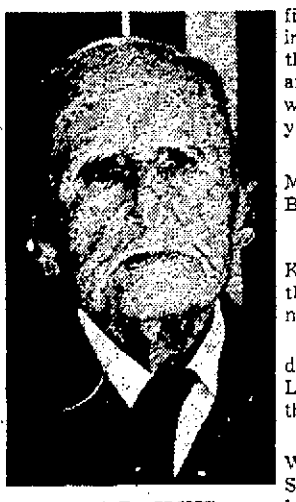

A native of Fulton County, Pa., Cline moved to Kansas as a young man. He worked as a school teacher, accountant and 18 years in the public utilities field in that state.

He and his wife moved here in 1907, a year after he suffered a "breakdown of health."

* * * *

CLINE intended to retire, but four years later he started work for the city, which he saw grow from 7,500 people to more than 300,000.

In 1953, he became beneficiary on two of his own life insurance policies, by outliving the life span covered by insurance mortality tables in effect when he took them out 38 years before.

OREN R. CLINE
Came Here in 1907

Cline was a member of Grace Methodist Church and Long Beach Masonic Lodge.

* * * *

HE AND HIS WIDOW, Katie, would have celebrated their 69th wedding anniversary next month.

Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Harold Dunn, of Laguna Beach, a grandson and three great-grandchildren.

Services will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in Patterson & Snively Mortuary. Burial will be in Melrose Abbey Mausoleum.

Guard to Command Long Beach Nike Site

The Long Beach Nike guided missile site next Sunday will become the first in the nation to be commanded by National Guardsmen.

Public ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. will mark the change of command from active Army to California's 720th Missile Battalion. The site is on Spring St. near Long Beach Airport.

* * * *

A SIMILAR program is set for the Torrance battery, on Crenshaw Blvd. near Torrance Airport, four hours later.

Open house will follow both ceremonies, and one at 3:30 p.m. at Playa del Rey at 3:30 p.m.

Although the sites will remain under operational control of the Army's 47th Artillery Brigade, command of the units will remain with the state.

* * * *

THE 720TH BATTALION, training for the past year under schedules designed by the 47th Brigade, has performed a "pilot" role for other National Guard units in the nation.

The program here has been designed to test all phases of the problem of integrating National Guard units into active air defense of the United States. Since it started here, 26 other battalions in the country have begun similar training.

BRAIN DEVICE ACCEPTED—40 YEARS LATE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A device to help avoid brain injury from a stroke, ignored for over 40 years, will be demonstrated at the annual Pennsylvania Heart Assn. meeting here Sept. 18-21.

The instrument, the ophthalmodynamometer, was developed in France in 1915 but soon dismissed because doctors were not sure how to use it.

The instrument indicates blood pressure level in arteries at the back of the neck. When it reaches a certain level, it may mean the carotid artery on the side of the neck is blocked or narrowed. If repaired in time, brain injury from stroke can be avoided.

Fete Set for 4 Oil Firm Workers

Four long-time employes of the Standard Oil Co. of California will be honored at a luncheon Monday in Brower's Restaurant.

Honorees will be Frank X. O'Neil, 6133 Myrtle Ave., 30 years; R. E. Pile, 3355 Rutgers Ave., 20 years; Walter May, Santa Ana, 35 years; W. B. Lingley, Redondo Beach, 20 years.

H. R. Schuttler, division manager of the retail department, will be host.

Nine Saved as Fishing Boat Sinks

A 63-foot San Pedro fishing vessel sank about nine miles off Point Dume at noon Saturday after nine crewmen were taken off.

The Lucretia K., a rebuilt purse seiner, started shipping water about 10:30 a.m. The skipper, Donald Kusar, of 1218 Weymouth Ave., San Pedro, radioed for help. Another San Pedro vessel, the Clarmont, which was nearby, came to the rescue.

* * * *

THE COAST GUARD sent a cutter and a helicopter to the scene, but the rescue was completed before their arrival. The seiner, valued at about $30,000, had a 65-ton cargo for sardines aboard.

The Clarmont was scheduled to arrive at Terminal Island about 5:30 a.m. today with the rescued fishermen.

Kusar and Borti Petrich, also of San Pedro, had purchased the vessel less than two months ago, and had just completed refitting her.

2 Fly Home; Lost $18,000 Still Mystery

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stanley Collins and his wife of 18 years, who turned up on a Los Angeles street corner after failing to meet her husband with $14,790 for a new house, started back home to Philadelphia Saturday.

The couple boarded a plane here late Saturday morning for the return flight.

Collins, 42, a welder, appeared stunned and pale as he was reunited with Stella Collins, 43, outside the women's jail. She had been placed in "protective custody" as a possible amnesia victim when found on a downtown street corner last Wednesday.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Collins said he believed his wife banked $18,000 in savings, she had only $2.67 when police talked to her.

On Aug. 27, according to the husband, the couple planned to meet to close the deal for a house. Mrs. Collins, who had charge of banking the savings of the two, was to bring a check for the $14,790. She failed to appear and the following day Collins reported her missing.

Collins flew here early Saturday immediately after learning the whereabouts of his wife. Before he joined her outside the entrance to the women's jail, he murmured over and over:

"This thing has hit me right between the eyes. I don't know what happened."

* * * *

BUT COLLINS also repeated that he came west for the single purpose of bringing his wife home with him.

When he saw his wife, Collins appeared suddenly angry. Before leaving with her he kicked at a television man and swung his small suitcase at several reporters, but hit the side of his wife's head intsead.

Mrs. Collins, also pale, at first did not seem to recognize her husband and walked aimlessly for several seconds in the room where Collins waited with reporters and photographers. Collins walked up to his wife, grabbed her arm and started leading her from the building.

* * * *

WHEN photographers began taking pictures, he shouted: "Can't you leave us alone! Why must we be persecuted?"

As they hurried from the building, Collins pulled his coat up and had his wife put her sweater over her head.

When Collins checked the two banks where he believed his wife had placed their savings, he found $41 in one and $50 in the other.

Red Army Politico Ousted

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet government and the Communist Party have cracked down on the Red army to bring it under better control, it was disclosed here Saturday. The army was warned to beware of "debauchery, indiscipline and drunkenness."

The political chief of the Moscow military district has been fired in a new move to tighten the grip of the party over the army.

Red Star, the organ of the government defense ministry, said that Lt. Gen. A. Dubovsky has been "replaced" by Lt. Gen. D. Yegorov, former political chief of the Red army forces in Hungary, where he apparently proved his reliability.

* * * *

DUBOVSKY'S downfall followed recent Soviet press attacks against him for permiting hooliganism in the armed forces in his district.

But the gravest charge, which apparently cost him his job, was that he had allowed serious shortcomings in the political work in the armed forces under his command.

Other purges were understood to have been carried out in the Red Army following a recent general tightening-up of "discipline."

There have been open charges in the Soviet press of hooliganism, absenteeism and of so-called loose living among the troops.

The latest indication came in a lengthy article in the new issue of Red Star. It attacked drinking in the army as a serious threat to discipline and urged soldiers to keep away from liquor.

It described the dangers resulting from drinking, "debauchery and indiscipline."

Remove Old Mines

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet sappers this week spent four days removing a cache of land mines dating from the World War II Nazi siege of Leningrad. They were located by workmen excavating at a factory near Leningrad and, according to experts, might have exploded with disastrous effect.

U.S. Politely Asks Reds to Return Balloons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has responded to a Soviet complaint about American balloons flying over Russia. The United States politely asked for them back.

The Russians sent a note to the United States, three days ago, denouncing the appearance of balloons over Soviet territory.

Saturday, the State Department confirmed that the balloons probably were there. It made public the text of a formal reply delivered to the Soviet foreign office Friday by the U. S. embassy in Moscow.

The American note said the Soviet complaint had been investigated. It was true, the United States said, that the U. S. Air Force recently launched a number of high altitude weather research balloons.

* * * *

THE NOTE SAID these plastic balloons were sent aloft from the West Coast. Attached to them, it added, were cameras for photographing cloud formations and other weather phenomena.

If some of these happened to land in Russia, the note said politely, the United States would appreciate their prompt return through the U. S. embassy in Moscow.

In this way, the note said, "the data collected may be evaluated and made available for use throughout the world scientific community."

The note emphasized there was nothing secret or military about the balloons even though they were part of a U. S. Air Force project.

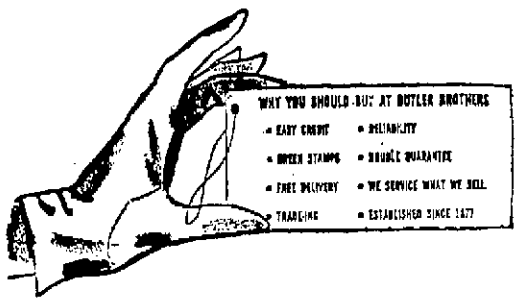

MODESTO (AP) — Before he knew California-launched research balloons would land in Russia, an Air Force physicist said the balloons might provide information on high velocity wind streams in the upper atmosphere—possibly an important factor in rocket aiming.

Sam Solot explained this at a press conference here three months ago. Solot, atmospheric physicist for the Air Force Cambridge Research Center at Bedford, Mass., directed the start of test balloon launchings from nearby Vernolis Field last May.

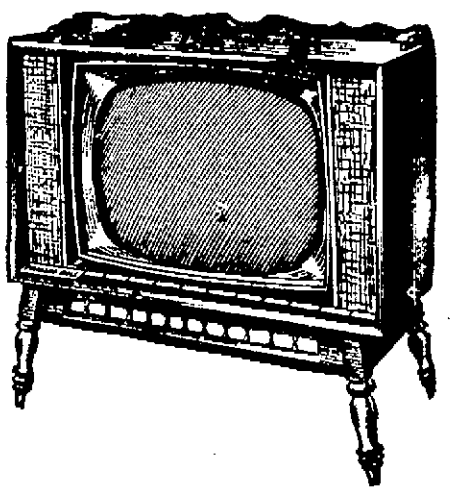

Solot told the press conference the polyethylene balloons, inflated with helium, could reach 100,000 feet altitude. He said fragmentary evidence indicated wind streams at 20 miles altitude similar to the well-known jet streams at 30,000 to 40,000 feet altitudes. Such high velocity streams have given transport airplanes tail wind rides to new speed records.

Is the School Year Too Short?

Plans for Longer Terms Involved in Controversy

By G. K. HODENFIELD
Associated Press Educational Writer

Is the nine-month school year as outmoded as the horsehair sofa?

A growing number of Americans think so.

Teachers say they need more time to teach the facts and fancies of today's complex world. Space age education, they say, can't be taught on a horse-and-buggy schedule.

The American Assn. of School Administrators says, "There is now more to teach and learn than can be accomplished . . . in the present time allotment."

Parents and the students themselves seem to be swinging around to the idea. For example:

In Ocean City N. J., there are regular Saturday classes for high school students who want to take courses in calculus, advanced physics, advanced chemistry and analytical geometry.

In Cheltenham, Pa., the top high school students attend a two-hour class in advanced science every Wednesday evening, the year 'round.

In Wilmington, Del., the school system holds a four-week science camp every summer, with field trips and talks by experts on biology, physics and chemistry.

None of these special classes would be worth a plugged nickel if the students didn't want to attend, or their parents didn't want them to.

* * * *

BUT THESE, on the whole, are isolated cases. They indicate an awareness of the problem, but they don't point to any solution.

The idea of having American children spend more time in the classroom is not a new one. It has been kicked around for a number of years. But, like just about everything else in education, it really became an issue last fall when Russia startled the world with Sputnik I.

In Russia, where the schools operate six days a week, 10 months a year, Soviet students spend an average of from 210 to 230 days in the classroom. The traditional U. S. school year of five days a week, nine months a year, allows an average of from 175 to 180 classroom days.

"And how," ask the critics, "are we going to keep up with the Russians on a schedule like that?"

* * * *

THE AMERICAN system, widely adopted at the turn of the century, was designed largely for a rural society. Long summer vacations meant the kids would be home on the farm during most of the busy planting, growing and harvesting seasons.

The changing American scene has long since done away with the need for such an educational pattern. But it's traditional, and therein lies most of its staying power.

Three plans have been advanced to revise the school year: Saturday classes, 10-month school years, and the four-quarter plan. All of them have their advocates, but they have their enemies, too.

And all of them would cost more money.

When Gov. George M. Leader hinted last year that Saturday classes might be tried out in Pennsylvania, you could hear the outraged wails of anger in Timbuktu.

Parents said they wanted their children home on Saturday, to mow the lawn and help with the housecleaning. Students wrote blistering, if sometimes ungrammatical letters to the editor. A retired teacher summed it up this way:

"If the children go to school on Saturday, when are they going to have time for the other things in life — movies, skating, dancing lessons, pleasure reading, sight-seeing . . .?"

A more valid objection was made on religious grounds. Thousands of Seventh Day Adventists and Jews observe Saturday as the Sabbath.

Apparently it's going to take more of a crisis than education has yet faced to bring about a six-day school week in this country.

* * * *

THE FOUR-QUARTER plan is a tricky one. It looks good, if you don't look too hard.

That's a system whereby the school plant is kept open the year 'round, with each student attending three of the four quarters.

Its backers say that under the four-quarter plan, 60 classrooms can do the work of 80, a big capital investment isn't allowed to stand idle for three months, and jobs are easier to find when only one fourth of the student body is on vacation at a time.

But every school that has tried the four-quarter plan has dropped it.

First, it doesn't really lengthen the school year. In most cases, the average number of classroom days drops.

Second, the idea is full of hidden expenses. Atlanta, took note of the hot and humid summer days and figured it would cost nearly 1½ million dollars just to air condition the schools. Los Angeles figured most of the maintenance work would have to be done at night, or on holidays and weekends. At premium pay, that would raise costs by more than two million dollars a year.

Many parents don't like the idea. If Susie's vacation is in the spring, and Johnny's vacation is in the fall, what happens when dad gets his vacation in the summer? And, unless the plan is adopted nationwide, there would be the difficulty of transferring from a three-quarter to a two-semester school when the family moved.

* * * *

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS don't like it. The entire school program, now based on two semesters, would have to be overhauled.

And the students, for sure, don't like it. As one high school lad put it: "Boy, would that louse up the football team!"

If anything is going to be done, it will probably be along the lines of a 10-month school year. There are arguments against that idea, too, but they aren't as numerous nor as strong.

Calvin Grieder, a professor of school administration at the University of Colorado, has come up with a plan for a 10-month, 200-day school year, with each school day stretched out a bit. He acknowledges it's going to cost money, but he figures the increase shouldn't run more than about 10 per cent per year. Most of that would be in salary adjustments to the teachers.

Under Grieder's plan, outlined in a recent issue of the magazine nation's schools, there would be a five-hour day from kindergarten through the sixth grade, and a seven-hour day for grades 7 through 12. Actual class time would thus be increased from about 880 hours per school to 1,000 in grade school, and from 1,030 to 1,400 hours in junior and senior high school.

Greider suggests two ways in which the 200-day school year might be worked out. One calls for two 100-day semesters, and the other for four 50-day terms.

SATURDAY'S CHILDREN

Will the day come when thousands of American youngsters will attend school on Saturday? Sentiment for a longer school year is growing as a result of Russia's challenge in education.—(AP Photo.)

ANSWER SIREN CALL

Reds Lure Chinese Youths in Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI)—Chinese parents in Pakistan are fighting a problem common to overseas Chinese in many other countries of Asia—how to hold their children at home against the hypnotic blandishments of Communist China propagandists.

Peiping is holding out to Chinese youths the promise of an education, a profession and progress.

Chinese parents here and in other Asian cities clearly are fighting magnetic propaganda.

"What can we do?" one mother asked. "If they want to go, they go."

And it appears enough of the young Chinese are going to make the problem a major one.

"I want to go back to China for the simple reason that I'm Chinese," said one 19-year-old girl who decided to leave Pakistan for the mainland.

* * * *

SOME FAMILIES are trying to combat the pull of the mainland by sending their children abroad—to the United States or Europe. "There they will have a chance in life," said one family, "and they won't be tempted to go to China."

This seems to be the crux of the problem — "A chance in life." As one Chinese in Karachi said, "We cannot fight this propaganda. It is too attractive for them. We can offer the children a little love, a humble home, a restricted society. The Communists offer them education, a profession, progress."

One Chinese said that in Borneo the Communists, with the help of successful businessmen and shop owners, set up a pro-Communist school and installed a party-liner from Singapore as principal.

Another overseas Chinese said that in Singapore Chinese Communists now dominate the student groups and virtually direct the political thinking of the young students there.

* * * *

ONE MAN who passed through Karachi recently said his foster son had packed up suddenly and left his comfortable Hong Kong home for Red China.

"He had a good job, a good home," the man said. "I was every bit a father to him. He was a good Catholic. And then he just packed up and went. I can forgive his ingratitude, but I cannot forgive myself for my complacency in thinking I had more authority than his insidious friends."

DEAN ACHESON
"Not Worth a Life"

Ike Quemoy Policy Hit by Acheson

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson asserted Saturday the Eisenhower administration is leading the United States toward war with Red China over issues "which are not worth a single American life."

The Democratic Party's leading policy spokesman rejected all the arguments advanced by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for American intervention to help the Nationalist Chinese defend the islands they hold near the Red Chinese mainland.

He said this was a "horrendous decision." The U. S. government, Acheson argued, has allowed itself to be trapped by both the opposing Chinese forces in a conflict it cannot win.

* * * *

IN A LONG public statement, Acheson urged that "cool-headed friends from other countries" be consulted before the United States takes on a fight which could lead to another world war.

The "obvious goal" for the United States now, Acheson said, should be to get the Nationalists to withdraw from the Quemoy islands just off the mainland.

He said it was "incredible folly" to let the Nationalists put about one-third of their armed forces on "untenable Quemoy." In the face of Communist China's present air and rocket power, he said, Quemoy "can be defended only by general war with China—as Mr. Dulles, indeed, asserts."

* * * *

HE SAID NATIONALIST Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is trying "to embroil the United States with his enemies, the Communists;" and the Red Chinese are trying "to drive the United States into conflict over an issue so unimportant as to lose us the support of all our friends, and which can never be finally settled in our favor."

Now, he said, the United States has lost control of the situation.

"Either the Nationalists or the Communists, or both, can at any moment—this is one of them—precipitate us into a war or backdown," he continued. "The attitude of the administration is that nothing will be done to extricate ourselves from this position during periods of quiet, and that nothing can be done about it in times of crisis.

"This is an attitude which ought not to be tolerated."

* * * *

ACHESON, who was President Truman's secretary of state, questioned the wisdom of the basic American policy on which defense of the offshore islands would be based: "Formosa in friendly hands (is) essential to the vital interests of the United States."

"Congress certainly has been led to say so," he said. "But Congress cannot make something true which is not true."

"Four times between 1948 and 1950 our highest military authorities concluded that this proposition was not true and did not justify American military action," Acheson said.

(More recently, the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have held that Formosa must be kept out of Communist hands and that its loss would weaken America's western Pacific defense chain.)

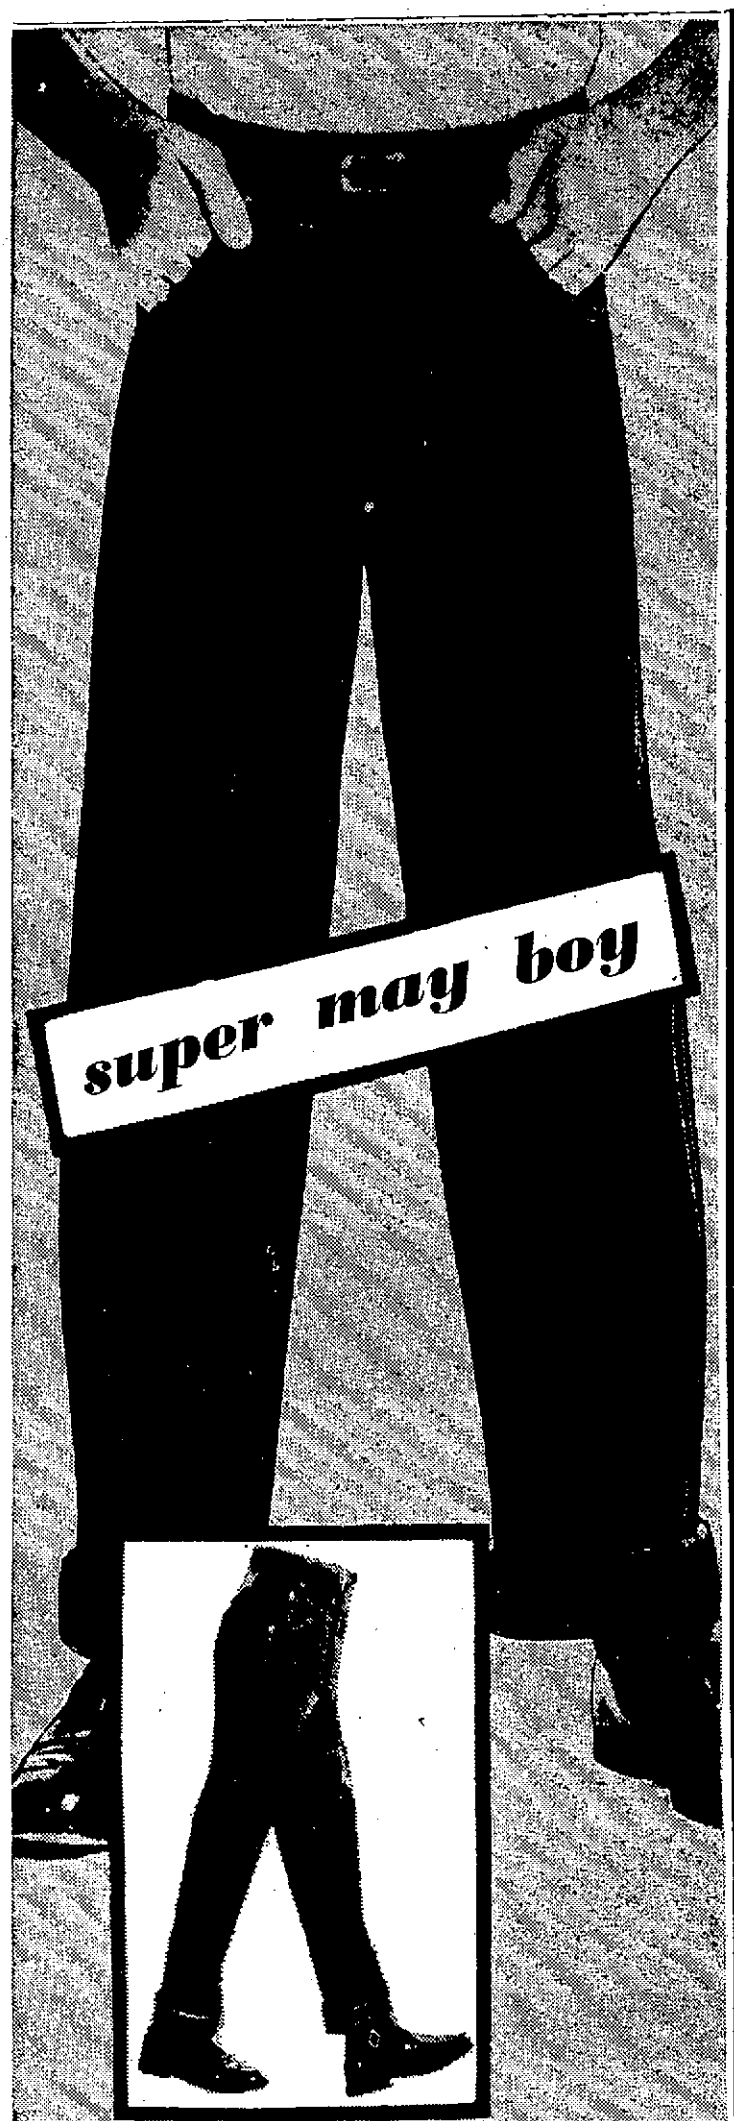

Acheson said the immediate issue, however, is whether the offshore islands — the Quemoy and Matsu groups — are essential to the defense of Formosa. He said they are useful only as offensive bases for attack against the Communist mainland.

Rickover's Troubles Linked to Lone Seawolf Character

Sub Wizard Plows His Rugged Way

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you were searching for a single phrase to summarize the latter-day career of Hyman George Rickover, it could be this: He rocked the boat.

Rocking it, the 125-pound, grey-haired, slightly-built rear admiral — acclaimed as the father of the atomic-powered submarine—has had the Navy chagrined and embarrased. Even, some people say, ready to make him walk the plank.

Many who know Rickover trace his troubles to his dogged determination to get a job done —no matter what. They say he doesn't care whose toes he steps on in his drive for nuclear propelled ships for the fleet.

He has defied protocol, blasted at conformity, pushed projects through over the heads of superior officers. Over the years, he has become a man apart in the tradition-bound Navy, a lone seawolf hard to know and, by many accounts, hard to work with.

Rickover's parents were Russian Jews, and there have been whispers that anti-Semitism has has been a factor in his troubles with authority. But Sen. Jacob Javits (R-NY), himself Jewish, says no—"it's more of a Billy Mitchell case than a Dreyfus case."

And Rear Adm. Albert G. Mumma, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ships under whom Rickover works, insists there's no religious prejudice involved. The Navy has had other Jewish admirals, he points out. "I know several and some are quite good friends of mine."

* * * *

AS FOR RICKOVER HIMSELF, "forget the personal stuff," he advised a reporter. "The real issue is what a man accomplishes."

He wanted no part in explaining why, despite Rickover's accomplishments, it took congressional action and the intervention of two civilian secretaries of the Navy to get him promoted to admiral and keep him from forced retirement.

"I can't get involved," he said. "I can hurt my work terrifically. I'm too busy to get involved."

When the world's first atom sub, the Nautilus, cruised under the polar icecap in a pioneering voyage recently, the White House marked the event with pomp and ceremony. Rickover wasn't among the Navy brass invited, and an outcry followed.

The snub—deliberate or, as tthe White House said, unintended — quickly turned into Rickover's favor. "I'm too busy to worry about snubs," Rickover said. But others weren't.

His wife, Ruth, obviously in a moment of pent-up anger, gave a newspaper interview in which she said the Navy's top brass was determined "to hurt my husband for his independence and free spirit." She herself had not been invited to christen any of the atomic subs her husband helped build, she disclosed.

Rickover kept silent. But the incident brought his case to the fore and Congress voted him a special gold medal for his achievements in developing not only the nuclear sub but also the first large-scale nuclear reactor at Shippingport, Pa.

* * * *

HE RECEIVED an official apology from Secretary of the Navy Gates, plus assurance that he would be promoted to vice admiral and stay in the service. (Previously there had been reports that promotion was unlikely and he might be forced to retire in 1960.) Mrs. Rickover will christen a forthcoming A-sub, and President Eisenhower named the admiral his personal representative at the Nautilus' homecoming ceremonies late last month.

Apparently the most important thing to Rickover personally was continuance in active service beyond the 1960 date. He has been offered many lucrative civilian jobs—some paying more than 10 times his Navy salary and allowances of $1,568 a month—but Rickover is intent on doing a job for his country.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) says the admiral told him he had "a monumental work" that would take five years to complete. Kennedy didn't specify what it was. But Rickover's associates suggest that everything in the nuclear power field is "on the brink," including an atomic aircraft carrier.

* * * *

HIGHLY ARTICULATE and eloquent at times, Rickover can withdraw into a wry terseness when he chooses. At the Nautilus homecoming celebration, reporters crowding around the admiral as he stepped to the rainswept dock from the submarine pressed for some words about the memorable occasion.

"It's wet," said Rickover.

And to a reporter trying to get a story from him recently Rickover solemnly suggested: "Why don't you turn in a sheet of blank paper?"

Rickover is no blank paper man himself. Throughout his 40-year career in the Navy—where he trained as an electrical engineer, served on subs and surface vessels and won two Legion of Merit citations—he has been frequently and audibly critical.

From his days at Annapolis (1918-1922) he adopted a solitary role. Neither he nor his wife joined in much of the Navy's stratified social life. Today they live quietly in a Washington apartment. Mrs. Rickover has a Ph.D. in international law from Columbia. The admiral's sole hobby is reading.

He chides the younger generation for failing to do likewise. Young men, says he, are becoming "nest builders and bird hatchers"—spending most of their time puttering around the house and doing little to improve themselves professionally.

"They don't read. They do not study once they leave school," he said in one of his recent critiques of American educational standards. "The product being turned out by colleges these days is no good."

* * * *

THE ADMIRAL LIVES by a rigorous code. "He won't ever keep the pay he gets for a speech or a book he is writing," Mrs. Rickover said. "He turns it over to charity because he figures he learned everything on government time."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) says of him:

"He is a dissenter, a nonconformist in uniform. The man is a scientist and a genius. You would search hard and long to find a good scientist who is not a bit difficult. I was attracted to him 10 years ago because he was like a breath of fresh air."

Some of Rickover's project workers, who have been with him for years, say Rick (they call him admiral to his face) is not a scientific genius but rather an outstanding engineer with mature technical judgment. But they credit him with a sixth sense for anticipating trouble before it gets started.

Rickover, these co-workers say, can size up trends and problems years in advance and saw the potential of nuclear power for the Navy long before other officers did. He put his own staff to work on a wartime schedule nine years ago.

* * * *

THEY AREN'T SURPRISED at the admiral's failure to get along with Navy brass. Many people make friendly compromises and adjustments in working with others. Not Rickover.

Says Admiral Mumma:

"Rickover is a pretty tough guy to work with . . . he works like a dog himself, but he's not a happy, pleasant individual. People feel rebuffed by someone exceptionally tough and Rickover makes a fetish of that."

Rickover has given his own interpretation of his problems in testimony before Senate committees.

If a military man wants to push a new idea, he once observed, the first thing he must decide is that "he is going to get his head chopped off ultimately."

He said he was given a free hand to build the Nautilus because "there were so many people who were certain the project would fail and they didn't want to be associated with it.

"I was kept on and I was assigned this job all to myself —and given an office in an exladies powder room."

News Photog Mauled by Georgia Klan

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Jack Young, southern division newspictures manager of United Press International, was attacked and threatened by Ku Klux Klansmen Saturday.

He was held for almost an hour but finally managed to "talk my way out of a jam."

Young was covering a Klan cross burning on Stone Mountain about 16 miles from Atlanta. This has long been a favorite spot for festivities of the order.

• • • •

YOUNG was given permission to take pictures of a burning cross but incurred the wrath of klansmen when he attempted to make other pictures.

He said he was lifted off the ground by several members of the klan. He came out of the argument with his shirt containing a foot-long rip.

The klan threatened Young but he was released without injury.

Young was accosted while E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, the Grand Wizard, was addressing a crowd of approximately 500.

Part of Young's photographic equipment was confiscated and during the incident he lost his glasses and someone stepped on them, smashing one lens to bits.

He said a klansman told him his equipment would be returned "through secret channels."

• • • •

YOUNG HAS been in the thick of trouble many times in his photographic career with United Press International.

In 1956 he was awarded the George Polk Memorial award for a dramatic picture he made at the height of school integration troubles in Clinton, Tenn.

Klansmen from Alabama, Florida and Georgia assembled for Saturday's cross-burning session.

Klansmen spoke from an improvised stage bearing the slogan in large letters: "Remember Little Rock."

Donleys Wed Again, Fix Old Mistake

NORTH HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Morris Donley, 45-year-old actor-turned-author, and Mrs. Ann Margaret Donley, who were divorced 15 years ago, were remarried Saturday.

After the ceremony in the Little Brown Church in the Valley, Donley explained: "We made a mistake and we're correcting it."

The Donleys met in a Cleveland, Ohio, little theater group and were married 24 years ago in Ripley, N. Y. They were divorced in Cleveland nine years later.

After World War II, Donley toured with the "This Is the Army" show. He subsequently teamed with Edward Hutchings in various writing projects, including the recent film, "Andy Hardy Comes Home."

Mrs. Donley, a public relations counselor in Chicago, met Donley again last fall for the first time since their divorce when she conferred with him here on educational plans for their son. The romance blossomed anew.

Their son, Robert Jr., 20, is currently a student at the Chicago Art Institute. He was not present for the wedding.

MARINES ATTACK

Lebanon Battle in MIDWEST

LEBANON, Ill. (AP)—Marines in full battle gear took over this town Saturday in a mock occupation to the sound of wailing sirens and the rattle of machine guns firing blanks.

The recruiting stunt first was planned as a surprise but this was changed through fear it might panic some of the 3,500 residents. Instead they crowded the town square to view combat exhibits.

The town was selected because its name is the same as the Middle East nation recently occupied by Marines. The Leathernecks here were greeted by signs reading "Yankees Go Home" and "We Like You Yanks."

By STERLING BEMIS

The business card reads:
GENE HARDING
WALKER & LEE, INC.

This is a cool, professional description of a spun-taffy blonde with blue eyes who is the only woman manager in the roster of a real estate corporation which has charted sales of $19,000,000 in six months.

Gene manages the Marina Shores tract of the Butler-Harbour Construction Co. in Seal Beach.

She was Long Beach Sales Executive Club's salesman of the year in 1957.

Gene is a blunt, business-like name for an alert, intense executive who is on the job up to 12 hours a day, often seven days a week. But her real name is Emogene, which is a curvy cognomen in tune with a 34-year-old mother who will send a 15-year-old son, Jim, to Millikan High and a 5-year-old daughter, Nancy, to Bixby School kindergarten this semester.

* * * *

SHE IS THE WIFE of Dr. H. V. (Ted) Harding, a dietary specialist.

Gene credits Dr. Harding's vitamin therapy for a silken tan 35-24-35 figure, but actually she keeps so busy that an extra pound wouldn't dare tackle her.

In business she takes such an interest in her clients that she often knits booties or sweaters for new mothers in new tracts. She takes a hand in the designing and decorating of the houses she and her staff sell, and handles the paper work on the mysterious procedures of escrow, down to the last whereas.

Yet Mrs. Harding does her own housework. By some strange chemistry of excess energy, it becomes a game with her. She practices posture exercise in rhythm with the sweep of her kitchen mop.

* * * *

SHE AVERAGES 20 in 25 on the skeet range. When the dove season opened she had her limit of 10 by 8 a.m., including one rapid-fire triple from the .12 gauge shotgun with the birds' eye maple stock she carved herself.

Gene used to spar an occasional round with Jim, but that was before he grew a head taller than her 5 feet 4. Now they romp and wrestle on the lawn and Jim's teenage pals call mother Harding "a real cool head."

Gene was still limbered from a bike ride the other day when a door-to-door salesman inquired of Jim:

"Is the lady of the house here."

Answered Jim: "My mother isn't a lady—she's a girl."

Auto Crash Injures 2

A traffic collision at Loma Ave. and 8th St. injured two persons Saturday, police reported.

Treated at Community Hospital were driver Cora O. Runhold, 58, of 4045 E. 8th St. and Benjamin F. Tucker, 87, of 1720 Termino Ave.

The Runhold woman suffered a skull injury and a head wound while Tucker was treated for a fractured right arm and abrasions.

Police said the Runhold auto struck one driven by Thelma G. Pettit, 59, of 247½ Ximeno Ave. Tucker was a passenger in the Pettit auto.

RENTS TO BLUE CHIP FIRMS

Outcast Union Has Plush Temple

By WILLIAM J. EATON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An outcast union which put up the fanciest office building in town is playing landlord to some of the nation's biggest blue-chip firms.

The Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union of America—ejected from the AFL-CIO on corruption charges—has almost completed renting space in its new six-million-dollar, eight-story home here. The rates range from $6.50 to $7 a square foot, the highest in the Capital.

* * * *

THE UNION, which plays down its ownership of the marble-glass-stone edifice on one of Washington's busiest street corners, figures to gross about $750,000 a year from rentals.

Such giants of industry as Bethlehem Steel, Republic Aviation and Standard Oil of Indiana are tenants in the "solar building" near the heart of the financial district.

It is not the first time a union has taken in free enterprise roomers in a headquarters building. The Machinists' Union, which spent $3,200,000 for its own 10-story structure, has leased space on five floors.

* * * *

THE BAKERS' HOME is special, according to Managing Agent S. Fischer. It has custom lighting fixtures, acoustical ceilings, high-speed elevators, ash trays built into the walls, and ultra-modern design throughout.

Many unions are shifting their main operations to Washington. The Labor Department reports the city now has 50 union headquarters—more than any other community. Increasing importance of legislation to the labor movement is given as one major reason for the shift.

* * * *

AT LEAST ONE labor leader objects to this trend. George Baldanzi, outspoken president of the United Textile Workers recently moved his union's headquarters to New York.

"I don't see any point to building these mausoleums," Baldanzi snapped. "It just takes you farther away from the rank-and-file membership." He added that he decided to relocate the UTW in New York when he couldn't find a single weaver in Washington.

* * * *

NEXT TO THE EXPELLED Bakers' dwelling, the most costly labor temple in town is the five-million-dollar glass-fronted teamsters' palace where James R. Hoffa hangs his hat.

The letter carriers, two electrical workers' unions, rail labor and telephone workers also have their own buildings. Even the Hod Carriers and Laborers' Union is building a new structure in the downtown area.

Only at the Bakers, however, can you see a brokers' exchange with the latest stock market prices coming in from Wall Street under a union roof.

New Antennas to Land Planes on Instruments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A new-type antenna to enable pilots to land their planes by instrument all the way in bad weather instead of being "talked in", has passed the initial research phase here.

A team of Ohio State University engineers is developing the antenna which would enable a plane to pick up "glide-path" signals about five miles distant and provide direction all the way to the ground.

At present, the glide-path system at airports is known as the "null reference" type and brings the plane to within only 30 feet of the point of touchdown.

THE EXPERIMENTAL antenna being developed here under the direction of Richard H. McFarland, Ohio State Antenna Laboratory research associate, consists of two trough-shaped structures filled with common salt and placed end-to-end flush with the ground and 160 feet apart.

At least two such antennas are required to form a glide path, but six would be required for an actual installation.

Political Window for $2 Bettors

A BOLD NEW political experiment is under way in the Sacramento and Azusa plants of the Aerojet-General Corp. Its apparent thesis: Charity begins at the grass roots.

The experiment is a fund drive among the two plants' 15,000 employes to contribute at least $2 each for the campaign funds of the political candidates of their choice.

FORMER NAVY SECRETARY DAN KIMBALL, president of the rocket manufacturing firm, said he hoped the drive would net from $30,000 to $40,000 which would be distributed to the political campaign funds of both parties.

Kimball started the kitty with $500 for the Democrats and specified it's to be used in the campaigns of Rep. Clair Engle, nominee for U. S. Senate, and Alan Cranston, Democratic nominee for state controller.

Aerojet Vice President Arthur H. Rude is contributing $500 to the Republican campaign chest. Any contributor may specify a candidate of his choice. Otherwise his contribution will be allocated by either the Democratic or Republican committee in charge to statewide and local races.

President Kimball explained the experiment: "Somebody has to pick up the tab for the ads, TV, radio, billboards and the direct mailing costs of a campaign. It has been my observation that too often the money comes from special interests—people who want something in return."

AS TOUCHY AS candidates are about that term "special interests," the realistic ones often have to compromise to get money to run. It would be an ideal if poor but honest politicians could win without money. Short of political miracles, they can't. Campaign money and how to get it has been the preoccupation for years of those who want to be honest.

Kimball's idea may be a good answer. He admits there will be competition between his plants' two parties to see which committee raises more. But, in any event, the only special interest of $2 contributors will be good government.

WITH ASSURANCE that money is available from a broadly-subscribed kitty of small donations, politics might attract higher-caliber people to whom strings-attached contributions are repugnant.

Nationwide, the bipartisan endorsement of Dollars for Democrats and Dollars for Republicans drives are promise of the same kind of fulfillment.

Aerojet's pilot campaign may fly high in the interest of good government, with many interested stakeholders.

Recession Recovery Seen as Deterrent to Tax Hike

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM

WASHINGTON — Many government economists are taking warnings of a tax hike for next year with a grain of salt. They believe an increase in taxes will be extremely unlikely.

Rumors got their start after Treasury Secretary Bob Anderson testified before the Senate Finance Committee on the Administration's request for lifting the permanent debt ceiling. Anderson said the budget deficit for the fiscal year 1960 would be in the vicinity of $12 billion to $14 billion.

Some experts immediately concluded a tax increase was inevitable. It probably won't be and here's why.

Recovery from the recession is a reality, the economists say. If the recovery picks up steam, tax revenues will increase far above the Budget Bureau's estimates. (Bureau Director Maurice Stans in his last estimate said they probably would fall off $7.4 billion during the current fiscal year.)

With revenues higher, the deficit will be lower and that should put the damper on tax hike talk.

The Administration will desperately try to keep expenditures down, and that could further contribute to lowering the deficit.

IF, AS THE President's press secretary Jim Hagerty said Wednesday, Ike has no plans to campaign in California, two leading Republican candidates will be in for the surprise of their lives. BENSON, incidentally has made the biggest comeback since Silky Sullivan won the Santa Anita Handicap. Riding the crest of his farm bill victories in Congress, he's much in demand as a speaker at GOP rallies.

In Nebraska, where he once was the target of egg-throwers, Republican congressmen fired off a special request for his assistance.

Benson is also the current favorite of national campaign leaders, who are miffed at the rest of the President's cabinet. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy, Secretary of State Foster Dulles and Treasury Secretary Anderson all have been shy of campaign appearances.

But Benson is willing and available. He stumped the mountain precincts of West Virginia last week before pointing his wagon at Massachusetts for a keynote speech before a national meeting of GOP women.

A DIPLOMATIC traveler, just in from Bogota, Colombia, cites the following as evidence our foreign service is on the ball.

Some weeks ago, a U.S. consular official was awakened at 2 a.m. by the sound of gunfire, shouts and mob noises.

"Aha!" he said to himself. "The long-awaited coup d'etat has arrived."

He hurried into his clothing and sprinted for the Embassy to be the first to message a full account of the upheaval to Washington.

But the revolution never came.

The gunfire and mob noises? They were the exuberant reaction of a happy citizenry at the news a Colombian beauty had just won the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif.

Lobbyists Asked to Finance $15,000 Dinner for Lincoln

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Lobbyists throughout California are being contacted to finance and underwrite a $15,000 "testimonial" dinner for Assembly Speaker Luther H. Lincoln (R-Oakland), upon his retirement next January, it was learned today.

The Capitol News Service learned of the Jan. 7 affair, for which industrial, commercial and agricultural organizations are being asked to pony up $300 each, from one of the organizations. The organization asked "how commercial can a speaker get?"

"Invitations" for the affair have been distributed by the public relations firm of Mel Riddle and Associates. Riddle is a former travel secretary of Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and his present clientele includes Assemblyman Francis C. Lindsay (R-Loomis), longtime advisor and supporter of Lincoln.

Lincoln, when contacted by CNS, said he had been asked to keep the Jan. 7 date open. He said some of his friends "indicated they would like to put on a dinner and I said it would be all right, after I was completely out of office."

However, Lincoln said he was not aware of the financial aspects of the engagement and suspected "my friends are getting a little too exuberant."

The letter from Riddle said the dinner, including music and a cocktail hour, would be provided for $12.50 per person, with 1,000 tickets to be sold, at $15 each, "the $2.50 difference $2,500) to be used as expense money and fee to Mel Riddle & Associates."

UNDER THE PLAN, each organization which was a member of the steering committee would be asked to purchase 20 tickets for $300 but would receive only 15 tickets. The remaining five would be used as complimentary tickets for "state officials, members of both houses of the Legislature, and the press."

"Therefore, each member would receive back from the sale of the 15 tickets 83 per cent or $250, of the money invested," the letter said. "The 750 tickets must be sold to those who are well known in their fields . . . they must be committed to attend.

"AND IN this way," it continued, "California's leaders will be gathered in Sacramento breaking bread with the legislators who they usually know only through the legislative advocates."

The invitational letter also said "the promotion of the dinner would be on an entirely non-partisan basis and might serve as the basis for future such salutes to state officials who are retiring from public life."

THE LETTER explains that "a steering committee be formed, made up of members of the 3rd house (lobbyists) who would be responsible for the financial underwriting of the dinner and for the sale of the tickets.

"This is not to imply that the dinner is to be sponsored by the 3rd house," it said. "The implications are that a group of business organizations are putting on the affair."

Questions, Answers

Only One Bard Role Wins Oscar

Q. Has anyone playing a Shakespearean role ever won an Academy Award for best actor or actress?—N.R.

A. Laurence Olivier, who won an "Oscar" in 1948 for his portrayal of Hamlet, is the only one. "Hamlet" also won the Academy Award that year for best motion picture.

Q. When a 9-inning baseball game ends without a score on either side, are the pitchers recorded as winning or losing?—O.B.

A. No. Rule 10.03e (1) states: "All individual and team records of any drawn or forfeited game which has reached or exceeded legal length when ended shall become a part of the official averages except that no pitcher shall be credited with a victory or charged with a defeat."

Q. How much money does the Federal Government derive annually from the sale of alcoholic beverages?—G.Y.

A. The amount varies from year to year, but in 1957 the Federal Government collected revenues totaling $2,943,241,000 from the sale of alcoholic beverages. This was a decrease of 4.6 per cent from the all-time high in 1956 of $3,085,327,000.

Freeway Foe Asks What's the Hurry?

TO THE EDITOR:

What California needs right now is some very potent guided missiles aimed at Sacramento and some state officials. Today's papers quoted C. M. Gilliss of the State Department of Public Works as proposing 12,500 miles of new freeways for California to cost from ten to twelve billion dollars.

I believe that some 60 to 70 per cent of the state is given up to mountains, unfit for cultivation or ranching. Evidently Mr. Gilliss is perfectly willing to utilize the other twenty-five or thirty per cent for his freeways.

Also it begins to look like California, thanks to the freespenders, is about to enter a marathon with the national government on who or which can tax and spend the most.

Mr. J. W. Vickery, deputy state highway engineer, supports Mr. Gilliss and proceeds to tell us that freeways are safer than other roads. Horsefeathers! Freeways are SPEEDWAYS, and really dangerous. Now another freeway or two through Long Beach, and the downtown business district will be finished. Right now, thanks to these busybodies, a freeway is planned and surveyed to cut the business district of Bellflower and Compton in half. And we see our city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives rushing to Sacramento seeking more money for freeways. Speed kills. "Honestly now, what's your hurry?"

Cites Multi-Use Coliseum Policy

TO THE EDITOR:

Thank you for entering my letter in the Independent, Press-Telegram of Aug. 31. However, I regret to state that the editor's notation that "Blair Field is designed for baseball and Park Avenue for softball" is not in conformity with established custom and practice of similar public places.

A tangible example is the Los Angeles Coliseum, which was designed for the 1932 Olympic Games and has since been used for softball, hardball, football, relay-track meets, fireworks displays, boxing, wrestling, religious and similar gatherings.

On Aug. 31, 1958, the Coliseum was used for a Rodeo. Thus, if the editor feels that Blair Field should be used for baseball and Park Avenue for softball exclusively there is logical room for modifying these designs.

Private Schools Don't Rob Public

TO THE EDITOR:

Some of the literature emanating from sources intent on taxing church schools is false to the point of being satanical. These forces are placed in proper light by a Protestant publication "Tax Facts" distributed by Associates for Americanism, Box 6476, Pt. Loma Station, San Diego 6.

After showing how these schools save the California taxpayer over one hundred million dollars a year in addition to many millions of dollars for new schools, the leaflet, in part, states:

"The above figures fully expose the grossly untrue propaganda which claims that private school exemptions are robbing our public schools. The taxpayer should also realize that parents using private schools not only pay for that tuition, but also pay just as much as other taxpayers for our public schools."

Philippines Ready to Fight With U. S. Against Red China

MANILA, P. I. — Although there is little love lost between them, Philippine President Carlos Garcia added his voice last week to Chiang Kai-Shek's appeal for American intervention in case the Chinese Communists try to seize Quemoy or Matsu.

Any other course, Garcia warned in an interview with this column, would be a severe blow to our Asian allies who have stuck their necks out a giraffe's length to support our Formosa policy. He added that the Philippines are ready to fight on our side if shooting should break out between the United States and Red China.

The Philippines — A shotgun blast of 7,000 islands splattered across the South Pacific — are connected by a short fuse to two powder kegs. To the north, the Formosan crisis is about to explode less than an hour away by jet bomber. To the south, Indonesia is racked by civil war which rages at some points within motorboat distance of Philippine territory.

President Garcia's aim is to discourage the spread of Communism in either area. Despite bitter hassles with Chiang over Chinese refugees neither country wants and disputed islands both countries want, Garcia declared his firm support of the Formosa regime.

* * * *

WON'T REVERSE POLICY—The leader of 20,000,000 Filipinos also expressed grave concern over the Indonesian conflict raging in his back yard. He recalled a private conversation with Indonesian President Sukarno whom he quoted as saying: "I would accept Communism for Indonesia if it were the will of the people."

CARLOS GARCIA
His Voice to Chiang's

In such an event, Garcia commented, "We would have to make a careful review of our relations with Indonesia."

He claimed that the Government had completely crushed the Communist-inspired Huk movement in the Philippines, except for a few fanatics still hiding out in the jungle. He acknowledged, however, that communist China may still be landing infiltration teams in the country. His small navy was patrolling the islands, he said, for submarines that reportedly had landed Red agents.

* * * *

SQUIRMS OVER AID—. The dusky, diffident Philippine president seemed embarrassed about discussing the subject that was obviously uppermost in his mind: his country's economic needs. He told of his efforts to strengthen the Philippine economy by bringing in basic industry. But the capital investment, he complained, was draining his dollar reserves.

He squirmed in his chair and smiled apologetically at the mention of American aid, but acknowledged that he could use more. He suggested that the United States, which invests heavily in troublesome countries, sometimes took her friends for granted.

But he added with a grin that no one could be elected President of the Philippines who was anti-American.

Note — chain-smoking, chess-playing President Garcia is equally at home fighting with guerrillas against the Japanese or writing romantic poetry in his native Visayan dialect. He also goes without eating for two weeks each year during lent.

* * * *

SECRET SHANGRI-LA— Unknown to American authorities, four World War II deserters are happily rearing families on an uncharted tropical isle in the Philippines. A high official confirmed to this column that a Philippine patrol boat once stumbled upon their secret Shangri-La and radioed for instructions.

Apparently the four GI's had declared their own armistice after being reported missing in action. They had married Filipino girls and settled down on an uninhabited island — where, as far as the Philippine Government is concerned, they can live happily ever after.

Who are they? Where is there island? The Philippine official wouldn't say.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

High School Drivers

TO THE EDITOR:

May I take this opportunity to express my surprise at all the apparent efforts which are publicized by your newspaper with regard to the importance that Johnny and Suzie be safeguarded on their way to and from school, as featured in Sunday's paper, Section A-5.

NOT ONE single word is printed about the idiots who use their automobiles for high school transportation, who drive them regardless of safety rules and pledges and who use 8th St. and Belmont Ave. and other nearby thoroughfares as their private race tracks.

How are younger children expected to be safe on the streets of Long Beach, so long as these older people are unhampered in their wild and reckless driving in the same areas where the younger children pass on their way to and from the lower grade schools—regardless of whether or not they have taken the safety pledge?

THE UNIFIED School Board has refused to take any action about this situation, other than referring such inquiries to the individual school. Why then don't ALL students observe the safety rules? So long as the streets are used for speed starts no child is safe, regardless of how often the younger child take or repeats the safety pledge.

New Discovery for Hard-of-Hearing

To all readers of the Independent Press-Telegram the Diagnostic Office will give the first treatment for only $3.00.

According to the Basic Diagnostic Office it is now possible for many people who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, "We have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else." Once they try this new and proved method they are overjoyed. Just like magic, in many cases they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the first treatment.

The treatment is simple, it consists of three steps, and takes about 45 minutes, if the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition a special treatment is given; if the loss is due to catarrh a different treatment is given; if it is a bone condition, the Tympanic Oscillations treatment is given.

According to Basic Diagnostic, 70% of all hard of hearing people will be helped by this method. We believe it is as great a discovery as insulin was for diabetes.

We are so sure that we can help you that we will give you the first treatment, including an ear examination for only $3.00 providing you bring in this ad within 10 days from today.

VACCINATION 'PRUDENT MEASURE'

Flu Shots Advised for Key Personnel

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Public Health Service Saturday recommended flu shots for persons the disease might affect seriously and for professional and service groups wishing to guard against absenteeism.

Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney said there is no indication at present that widespread attacks of influenza—similar to last year's Asian flu epidemics—will occur this fall and winter. But he said there will be some influenza around and he prescribed a vaccination as a "prudent measure."

• • • •

DR. BURNEY POINTED out that ample supplies of influenza vaccine of the polyvalent type are on hand. This type builds immunity against all the important strains of flu, including the Oriental. He said any mass vaccination program should be planned before the flu season gets under way.

He stressed that practising physicians should be the judges whether a vaccination should be given.

He added that groups which should be considered for vaccination include hospital staffs whose services are needed to care for the sick; groups living in close proximity where flu could spread rapidly, such as institutions and industrial or service groups in occupations where a sudden jump in absenteeism would cause serious disruption of work.

• • • •

DR. BURNEY SAID that special consideration for vaccinations, under the guidance of private doctors, should also be given to the special health "risk" group such as the aged, the chronically ill, and pregnant women.

The Public Health Service said that while nothing like the 1957 Asian flu killer is expected this year, a new flu strain usually stays around for several years. It said some 70 million persons in this country were stricken with the "Oriental" strain last year and early this year.

We are highly respected toy brokers rated by Dun & Bradstreet, selling toys nationally. Now expanding in your area.

Our distributors' toy recorders are pouring in because our toys are not "average rack merchandise." We have the largest assortment, widest price range, best packaging.

Since there are some choice territories available in this general area, a few sincere individuals will acquire a profitable self-service "TOY SHOP" route in grocery, drugstores, etc. WHICH WE WILL ESTABLISH FOR YOU. Cheap toy racks are rapidly being replaced in thousands of stores by the sensational "TOY SHOP" merchandising displays. The stores make money. So do you, but this is

NOT A GET-RICH-QUICK SCHEME

This may be your chance to get into a profitable year-around business of your own. Simply replace toys on regular schedule and collect your money. Start in spare time and still leave room for full-time expansion.

AVAILABLE SOON

Our representative will arrange appointments soon in your vicinity to present complete details. Must have car and $497 cash for toys, displays and store accounts. Airmail fully about yourself, give address, phone number to:

AND WHERE HOW to BUY A USED CAR WITH SAFETY AND SATISFACTION

(1) Deal with a concern with a reputation over the years for fair dealing. Be sure the title is clear.
(2) Buy a car with only one previous owner. Original owners invariably take better care of their cars. See the maintenance record.
(3) Put the car on a hoist and examine it in, out and under for signs of wreck or flood damage.
(4) Have the car tested on your dealer's Dynamometer. Get a written and signed report of its condition.
(5) Consider the difference between your present car and the one you are thinking of buying rather than only its price or the appraisal of yours.
(6) Figure the interest and insurance charges. Be sure they are not exorbitant.
(7) Remember, the guarantee is no better than the reputation of the dealer you are buying from.
(8) See the dependable values listed herewith. Because of condition, guarantee, price, etc., they are, every one, a plus value!

Tele-Vues by TERRY VERNON

It must be pretty confusing for Lassie, this changing of cast members for her TV series. First there was Tommy Rettig as his master and Jan Clayton with George Cleveland as the adults.

Then Rettig was replaced by Jon Provost and the adults were Cloris Leachman and Jon Sheppod with George Chandler in a new role of "Uncle Petrie."

Starting the fifth year on TV tonight, "Lassie" (2) will still have Jon Provost and Chandler, but the new parents of Timmy are June Lockhart (who played with Lassie in "Lassie Come Home") and Hugh Reilly. Also added is Todd Ferrell, of Garden Grove, as Boomer Bates and his "best $1.50 dog in America," Mike.

A cyclone roars down on the farm and Mike is out chasing rabbits so Lassie goes to save him and both dogs mysteriously disappear.

DAYTIME DATA

"U. N. In Action" (2) resumes at 8 a.m. with Daniel Schorr as the host. Special films on the Geneva "Atoms for Peace" parley will be seen. . . . Problems of retirement and old age discussed on "Frontiers of Faith" (4) at 2 p. m. . . . Orange County Rhinos and San Francisco Tanners play semipro football on (5) at 2:10 p. m. . . . Joan Balling of Long Beach is one of a group of students touring Europe and is seen on "Youth Wants to Know" (4) at 2:30 interviewing A. I. Mikoyan, First Deputy Chairman of the Council of Ministers of Russia. Show replaces "Comment" in a time switch with "Mathematics." . . . "School Year '58" (2) is a special report on our education system. . . . Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey (D) will be queried on "College News Conference" (7) at 3:30. . . . Charles M. Schulz, creator of the cartoon "Peanuts," is one of the guests on "Cavalcade of Books" (2) at 4:30. . . . Thor Heyerdahl and author Rona Jaffe on "The Last Word" (2) at 5 p.m. . . . COLOR for "Feitelson On Art" (4) at 5 p.m. dealing with 18th Century French Art at the County Museum. . . . Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, will "Face the Nation" (2) at 5:30 discussing integration and racial discrimination. . . . "Mathematics" (4) is now at 5:30 p.m. and deals with "mind and machine."

6 P. M.

Charles A. Hoegh, director of the Office of Defense and Mobilization, will "Meet The Press" on (4).

6:30 P. M.

"Outlook" (4) interviews Kimie Tojo, 26-year-old daughter of Gen. Hideki Tojo, wartime Prime Minister of Japan.

7:30 P. M.

Finale for "The Brothers" (2) has them hosting a trio of escaped female convicts with resulting complications. Jack Benny is back in two weeks.

It is also the finale for "No Warning" (4) as "Northwest Passage" debuts next week in COLOR. Tonight it's a first-run western starring Peter Hansen, Steve Brodie and Billy Minnick. A boy is bitten by a rabid coyote and has just 26 hours to reach a town to get medical attention.

8 P. M.

COLOR — "Steve Allen Show" (4) is back again and guesting will be Steve Lawrence, Edyie Gorme, Andy Griffith and the McGuire Sisters.

10:30 P. M.

Noted philosopher Mortimer Adler, who maintains the United States is "advancing toward a socialist state," will be on the "Mike Wallace Interview" (7).

CARMEN GIVES I, P-T READERS HIS POST-FIGHT VIEWS . . .

Pleasure Next on Basilio Slate

By CARMEN BASILIO
(Written exclusively for the I, P-T)

Well, now that I've got the important business behind me, I'm going to start enjoying Southern California during the next week.

I'm taking my wife, Kay, and my little nephews, Eddie and Freddie—one's six, the other 11—to a lot of places around here. One we're going to hit right off the bat is Disneyland. The kids and my wife have been driving me nuts to go there, so I'm outnumbered.

When I finally leave Long Beach, I'll rent a U-drive car and hit both Las Vegas and Yosemite before I drive back to good, old New York.

I'm going to miss California—and, especially, Long Beach—but you know when you've got deep roots in a place, like my family has got in New York, it's plenty tough to pull 'em up. I sure like California and I've a hunch I'll be back here soon. They tell me Ray Robinson wants to try his luck with me again.

I guess you want to hear about the fight. From reading the newspapers Saturday, I don't know what I can add. Those boys printed every quote I made, but I'll see if I can come up with something new.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH I DON'T care much for the people around him, I've got to give Art Aragon a little credit. For all his popping off, the guy has guts. He hung in there real good and I'm not fooling when I say I landed some sweethearts on him, particularly a couple dozen hard hooks to his body.

He'll go down in my book as one fellow that can take it.

On the other hand, Aragon wasn't the puncher I thought he was. He hit me a couple of times with stingers, but none really hurt. I expected him to belt me good now and then, but he didn't.

I could see his blows coming and I rolled with them. Maybe that's why they didn't have any steam. From the third round until the ref stopped it in the eighth, I felt like I was back in the gym again, hitting the big bag.

Another thing about this fight was the fans. I was sort of worried the week before the fight, because I think Southern California boxing fans are the most rabid anywhere. In the East, the people get excited, naturally, when some real slugging starts, but out here they go crazy over anything.

I got some ideas about that in my workouts at the Lafayette Hotel and mainly at the Olympic Auditorium last Sunday. Those people would make noise at the drop of a hat.

Al Silvani, one of my trainers who knows a lot about California boxing, told me I may have to fight the crowd. I mean if a crowd starts yelling at everything one guy does, the referee and the judges sometimes get influenced.

* * * *

I KNEW THE PEOPLE would be yelling for Aragon and I hoped if the fight was close that I wouldn't get a raw deal from the officials. Sure, they booed the guy when he came into the ring, but they sure screamed for him more and more as the fight went on. If the fight would of been close, I'd have been plenty worried about a decision in my favor.

I wrote earlier that I didn't care for the guys in Aragon's corner. I've been around a few years, but I've never got the treatment like those characters gave me. When I had to retape my hands because their man pro-

MATSON'S RUNNING WRECKS RAMS

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

The State of California's inability to cope with big-time sports events or organizations was displayed once again Friday night just prior to Carmen Basilio's demonstration of how a meat grinder operates. (The hamburger, of course, was Arthur Aragon.)

This state operates like a backwoods rube whenever its people are called upon to cope with something of major importance in the sports realm.

The best example is the Dodger situation. We invited the team here, then buffeted it around in its search for a permanent home until this portion of California became the laughing stock of the whole nation.

ART ARAGON
Bruised, but Lauded

Incidents preceding Friday night's fight were right in character for our country boy commissioners. But, let John De John, Basilio's co-manager and one of the nation's most respected ring personalities, tell you.

"I wouldn't have believed it," declared De John in a fight post-mortem early Saturday. 'Somebody ought to straighten out this boxing commission for its own good. This is a bad situation.

"Anyway, the thing is this. Twenty or 30 minutes before every fight, as you know, a member of an opposing fighter's group goes to the other boxer's dressing room to observe the taping of hands, etc. Just to keep everything on the up-and-up.

"I went to Aragon's room, while Boren (Lee) went to Carmen's quarters. But, when I walked into Aragon's room, his guys hustled me right out. I got my foot in the door, but they almost tore it off when they slammed the door.

"This commissioner, Frye (Clayton), comes by and I yell to him about what happened. 'They just don't want Aragon to get upset,' Frye tells me, 'but I'll let you in before the fight.' For all I know, they're loading dynamite sticks in Aragon's glove by this time.

"Finally, when I get into the room Aragon has his hands all taped and he's ready to go. How do you like that? Of course, his man is in Carmen's room all the time and we're not making a fuss."

De John made quite a point of checking Aragon's taped hands and the gloves themselves in the ring moments before the fight.

"It's an easy thing to 'load' a glove and I wasn't taking any chances," explained De John, who pointed out also that he didn't blame Aragon for creating any of the pre-fight fireworks.

"The characters operating in his corner are the ones I blame," De John said. "For Aragon, I've got plenty of respect. The kid had lots of guts and didn't quit. He really took some bombs from Carmen, too."

BASILIO'S CONNECTIONS were pleased with the fight, because they felt he proved beyond any doubt that he had shaken off any possible ill effects from the two rugged Ray Robinson brawls.

"Carmen was hitting as good as he ever has," claimed co-manager Joey Netro. "In fact, he was much more accurate against Aragon than he usually is. We were well pleased with his performance."

Yet, Don Dumphy and Win Elliott, the radio broadcasting team, could only whisper between rounds that "this isn't the old Carmen" and "Basilio has lost his big punch and his zing."

I don't know what those fellows call a "big punch," but the things Basilio was crashing into Aragon looked like blockbusters to me. And they came often, too.

Why, in one round, intrigued by the rapid-fire attack being generated by Carmen, I actually counted the blows. Aragon tosed 16 punches to Carmen's 83!

That's like pitting a B-B gun against a machine-gun!

CARMEN AND HIS HANDLERS were amused over the concern of many Southern California sports columnists about Basilio's pre-fight weight of 148. I believe Bob Kelley's column originated the fear that Carmen was sadly overtrained because he was down to 148.

In fact, Ole Kel even remarked that ". . . if Aragon beats Basilio, you know where you read it first," because he had the idea Basilio wasn't prepared this time.

I was dead certain Basilio would come in well over 150 pounds, even though he did weigh 148 two weeks ago. The climate change was responsible for his loss of a few pounds, but De John and Netro remedied that by prescribing one bottle of ale daily after the workout.

When I learned the ale was stopped three days before the bout, I knew Carmen wouldn't be at any 148 figure for the Friday weigh-in.

But, Ole Kel was dead serious. He believed those publicity department handouts!

IF ANY DOUBT was entertained about Basilio routing Aragon, it would have been erased at the noon weigh-in. Arthur was as frightened as Pete Rademacher before the Zora Foley match.

He didn't laugh nor joke. He looked as if he were about to cry. When Basilio got on the scale, Aragon sneaked a quick "size-up" look at his foe and his eyes told the whole story. They read:

'How in hell did I get myself into this situation?"

I'll bet he won't again.

Cards in 27-26 Triumph

SEATTLE (Special) — Ollie Matson's 94-yard kickoff return for a touchdown highlighted a furious second half here Saturday as the Chicago Cardinals defeated the Rams, 27-26, to gain their first preseason exhibition football victory of the year.

Matson's thrilling dash was the longest run seen in the University of Washington Stadium since 1951 when Hugh McElhenny returned a kickoff 100 yards against Southern California.

But the Cardinal star's touchdown sprint was far from the only thrill that excited 31,500 fans.

* * * *

LAMAR McHAN and Gern Nagler teamed up with a 61-yard pass-run combination to start the second half fireworks.

Bobby Joe Conrad then kicked a 42-yard field goal to put the Cards ahead 13-10. They never were behind again.

Matson, who gained 101 yards in 11 carries from scrimmage, in addition to his kickoff return, set up another Cardinal touchdown in the third period when he broke loose for 54 yards to the Rams' 17. McHan then passed to Conrad for the score.

* * * *

BILL WADE warmed up in the final period to get the Rams back in the ball game. He hit Joe Marconi for 15 yards and Lamar Lundy for 25 to lead the Rams to the Chicago one. Tom Wilson bucked over for the score.

Then came Matson's long run and the Cardinals lead of 27-17 seemed insurmountable. But Wade hit three straight passes to lead the Rams to another touchdown. The score came on a 15-yard pass to Leon Clarke.

Los Angeles scored first in the opening period when Paige Cothren booted a 36-yard field goal.

The Cardinals' turn came a few minutes later when the Rams' Will Sherman fumbled a punt on his own 35 and Dean Philpott recovered for Chicago.

* * * *

PHILPOTT'S 11-yard run sparked a Cardinal advance to the Ram five, but an illegal motion penalty stopped the drive and Conrad kicked a 15-yard field goal to tie it up.

The Rams went ahead 10-7 when Lundy made a spectacular running catch of Wade's 32-yard pass in the end zone to climax an 80-yard drive.

The Rams had Chicago backed down to their one-yard line just before the game ended but Bobby Gordon took an automatic safety and McHan punted 60 yards.

ALTHEA HAD AN ACCURATE DAY

Accurate drop shots by Althea Gibson led way to convincing victory Saturday over Long Beach's Beverly Baker Fleitz in semifinals of U. S. Championships at Forest Hills, N. Y. She scored 6-4, 6-2 triumph, meets Darlene Hard in today's final.—(AP Wirephoto.)

L.B. Girl Lauded for Play

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (Special) — The upset string ran out for petite Beverly Baker Fleitz Saturday and she was beaten by the queen of tennis in the semifinal round of the United States Championships.

Considered the only possibility to dethrone Althea Gibson, Miss Fleitz was extremely nervous and showed none of the confidence that marked her quarterfinal triumph over high-ranked Maria Bueno of Brazil and the Long Beach, Calif., housewife was toppled, 6-4, 6-2.

The finals in both the men's and women's division will be televised on KRCA (4) from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Defending champion Mal Anderson and Wimbledon king Ashley Cooper, both from Australia, hammered their way into the final round of the men's division.

* * * *

MISS FLEITZ had beaten Miss Gibson in three previous meetings and had been the surprise of the tournament, playing the best tennis Forest Hills has seen since the days of Helen Wills Moody just one day before. So the crowd of 10,000 was expecting a torrid battle.

But, after making a brief fight out of it against the stringy Miss Gibson on the famed center court, she came apart at the seam and went down to swift defeat.

The 31-year-old Althea, shooting for her second straight U.S.-Wimbledon slam, gave an indication of what was to come when she went to the net on return of service in the fifth game of the opening set to smash through and take a 3-2 lead. Mrs. Fleitz hammered right back with passing shots which shattered Althea's service and squared it at 3-3.

* * * *

BUT IN the seventh game, eighth-seeded Mrs. Fleitz lost service on a doublefault and Althea's charge to the net for winning volleys. That put Miss Gibson in front, 4-3, and she ran it out from there.

The loss of that first set completely unsettled Mrs. Fleitz. She lost service in the first game of the second set on extremely bad overdrives and lost service again in the fifth game as Althea broke through once more, not even bothering to charge the net but letting the upset Beverly make her own mistakes from the baseline.

Drysdale's String Ended by Cards

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—Don Drysdale's bid for a seventh straight victory blew up on one pitch in the eighth inning Saturday night.

After Drysdale had stretched his streak of shutout innings to 16, doubles by Stan Musial and Irv Noren broke the ice. Then Joe Cunningham belted the next pitch for a two-run homer to give the St. Louis Cardinals a thrilling 3-2 triumph over the Dodgers.

Drysdale's defeat was a heartbreaker. He held the Cards to four singles in the first seven innings and owned a 2-0 edge via homers by Carl Furillo and Gino Cimoli.

The homers were two of the five hits allowed by Redbird rookie Bob Mabe, who matched Drysdale in a sizzling pitching duel and was credited with his second win in a row. Until last week, when he beat Cincinnati, 4-2, Mabe was winless in the majors and had lost five.

* * * *

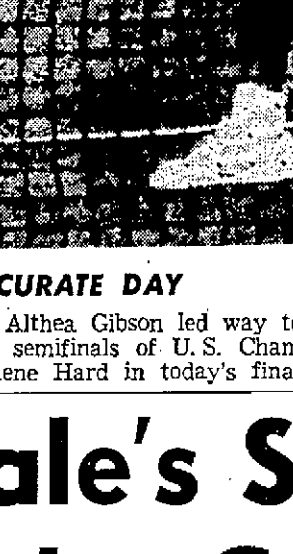

MABE STRUCK out 10 Dodgers, seven in the first three innings, while Drysdale registered seven whiffs.

Musial, batting for shortstop Eddie Kasko, led off the eighth inning with a double to the left field corner and thereby regained the lead in the tight National League batting derby. His sixth two-bagger of the year against the Dodgers tacked two points onto his average for .341, while Richie Ashburn of the Phils was hitless in four trips and slipped to .340.

Ruben Amaro ran for the sore-legged Musial and took third as Hobie Landrith grounded out in a pinch-hitting role for Mabe. When Drysdale fanned Gene Freese for the second out, Dodger stock rose a notch, but Noren and Cunningham, two dangerous left-handers, were still waiting in the wings.

Noren drove a shot off the right field screen that just missed being a home run and Amaro trotted home to cut the Dodger lead to 2-1.

Manager Walt Alston went out to talk to Drysdale. There was a lot of head-nodding and everything appeared to be under control. No sooner had Alston reached the dugout steps, when wham! Cunningham parked his ninth homer of the year in the right field seats and the game was all but over.

STAN MUSIAL
Who's Ailing

When Drysdale followed by walking Ken Boyer, Johnny Klippstein relieved and retired the side without facing a batter. Boyer was caught attempting to steal second and now the Dodgers had one final shot.

Jim Brosnan was assigned to hold the Redbird lead and he made Gil Hodges ground out to open the top of the ninth. Junior Gilliam, batting for Don Zimmer, ran the count full and then lined to Noren in right. Charlie Neal walked on a 3-2 pitch, but Steve Bilko, batting for Klippstein, lined to second to end the game.

* * * *

FURILLO led off the Dodger second inning with his 16th homer of the year that gave him 30 runs batted-in in his last 27 games. Mabe, however, quickly regained his touch and struck out the side.

That was all the scoring until Cimoli led off the Dodger eighth with his ninth circuit swat.

The Dodgers pushed a runner to third with one out in the fourth inning, left one at third with two down in the sixth and missed still another chance when Neal doubled with two out in the seventh.

LION ROOKIE
'Sing, Dance or Act?'

COCKY CASSADY FOUND ROOKIE LIFE RATHER 'CRUMBY'

Hoppy Survived Lion Vets' Hazing

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (NEA)—The freckled kid separated himself from the tangle of bodies and limped back to the huddle. A sneer crossed his face as he half-knelt, hands on knees, shouldered in among the awe-sized Detroit Lions.

"Why," snarled Hopalong Cassady, "I got better blocking at Ohio State than I get from this gang."

Bobby Layne winked at big Lou Creekmur, who gave the high sign to the other boys.

"Polly Parrot," they cackled in unison at Cassady, then a fresh-faced rookie getting an exhibition game baptism with the Lions in late summer of 1956.

And for the next six months, every time he stepped on a field, the ex-Buckeye chatterbox was greeted with parrot-like squawks. All through training camp he had to filter crumbs from his bed sheets before hitting the sack. Every time he opened his mail box he had to clear away the debris of crumpled crackers.

IT WASN'T UNTIL the Green Bay game late in the season, when he piled his slight frame into the formidable Packer front wall play after play with a whimper that the Lions gave him a passing grade. "Now," one of the big linemen wrapped his arm around Hoppy's shoulder, "you're a pro."

Cassady took longer coming around than most of the college heroes adjusting to professional football. The Lions seven years ago recognized the unique problems they face and inaugurated the first pro grid rookie schools. They were the brainchild of Nick Kerbawy, the general manager of the Lions until he deserted to pro basketball this year, and ex-coach Buddy Parker.

WHEN THE LIONS' full squad assembles to prepare for the regular season in swank layouts like the Cranbrook School here, the first question asked a rookie is: "What do you do? Sing, dance or act?"

The talents, whatever they are, are incorporated into a rookie show held late in the training grind. Best bit of this year's extravaganza was an imitation of Kerbawy making the grand entrance, flourishing his ubiquitous cigar, dribbling an imaginary basketball.

At meal times, the kids are required to stand on their chairs, hands over their hearts and sing their alma maters.

"Louder, louder," the Lion vets roar them on.

Just how much of a requisite is this rookie entertainment towards making the team?

"SOME OF our best entertainers," Kerbawy grins ruefully, "didn't last more than three or four weeks."

Injuries Mar First Vike Scrimmage

By JEROME HALL

A half hundred grid candidates at Long Beach City College buckled down to serious contact work Saturday and a half dozen of them promptly buckled over from injuries.

Surveying the prone pigskinners, head coach Jim Stangeland observed there were "way too many injuries" for only a 20-minute contact drill.

It was the first scrimmage of the season for the Vikings and in spite of the casualties, it was a highly enlightening sessions. There were several standout performances.

One was by Johnny Amos, a freshman from New Jersey who has been switched from fullback to halfback. Amos unreeled some crisp running, but it was his defensive work from a halfback "corner" spot that had the coaching staff beaming.

* * * *

THE scrimmage produced only one touchdown. It was set up by Charlie Miller, a defensive specialist last year who will play both fullback and halfback. He boomed up the middle for 20 yards to the two-yard line and Gary Griffin, who played on the LBCC Junior Rose Bown team of 1950, plunged over.

The day's injury list included probable first string tackles Jim Smith (twisted ankle) and Earl Finney (elbow injury); second string fullback Kim Line (knee injury) and letterman end Ray Gilbert (shoulder separation.)

Only Line's injury is believed to be serious, however, among the "regular" personnel.

Quarterback candidate Dave Groff turned in an impressive performance, bringing praise from Stangeland. Groff was injured most of last year at Millikan. Saturday he took control of the offensive unit and ran it like a veteran, though it was the first grid combat for him in a full year.

* * * *

GROFF faces a formidable task in unseating letterman John McDonald and beating out newcomer Don Glasscock for the No. 1 QB spot.

Glasscock, the transfer from Baylor U., missed several workouts during the week because of a minor ailment so was not ready for his best performance. But from all indications, the Vikings are wealthy at quarterback.

There were some heartening performances by interior linemen in the brief workout. Doug Brown, who didn't play high school ball but came on fast as an LBCC frosh last season, gives every sign of developing into a terror. He's near 230 pounds. Another tackle, Keith Cordes, drew applause from Stangeland for his work.

There were a half dozen beefy interior linemen rambling across the field who appear capable of filling the deficit in last year's club.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Now that the boxing world has seen that Los Angeles can consistently draw gates of over $200,000 with mismatches, it is quite possible that Southern California will get a few legitimate headline fights in the near future.

Los Angeles fight fans have been "pigeons" long enough for "in the bag" matches. They deserve a real top attraction such as the rubber go between Sugar Ray Robinson and Carmen Basilio.

While it may fizzle as a classic brawl . . . it nevertheless is the No. 1 attraction left on the ring books at the present time and which undoubtedly will take place sometime next spring.

Wrigley Field has now been the scene of four fights in the past 10 months that have drawn over $200,000.

In each case, it has been, as I described it, "90 per cent buildup, 10 per cent fight."

Basilio and Art Aragon established a new all-time California gate record Friday night by luring 22,500 fans and a gross of $236,521.

Three weeks ago, Floyd Patterson and Roy Harris drew $234,183, the state record until Friday night.

On April 1, it was $215,047 by featherweight champion Hogan (Kid) Bassey and Pajarito Moreno despite heavy rains.

And last November 6, bantamweight king Alphonse Halimi and Raton Macias drew $209,848.

ARAGON, HARRIS, MORENO and Macias were all badly outclassed. Of the four, Macias was the only one who figured to have any kind of a chance and although he was the only one who went the distance, he was badly beaten by Halimi.

All four bouts were "sold" to fight fans with classic buildups. Nowhere else in the country could these four fights have drawn nearly as much.

For instance, it is doubteful if the Aragon-Basilio bout could have drawn as much as $40,000 on Carmen's home grounds around Syracuse or in New York City proper . . . and I may be pegging that figure far too high.

Their tremendous gate Friday night was additional proof that Southern California sports fans are eager for topline fistic attractions.

It would be most interesting to see what would happen in Los Angeles if a headline bout was staged that figured to be 90 per cent fight instead of 90 per cent buildup.

In all of the above four fights, we told readers beforehand that they figured to be one-sided affairs.

Of the four, however, we thought all along that the Basilio-Aragon bout would be the best . . . and it was. For five rounds it was a rousing crowd-pleaser. In fact, during that time it was as good a scrap as you would want to see before Art finally absorbed such a brutal beating that Referee Tommy Hart stopped it in the eighth round—one stanza less than we called it. We had it tabbed for nine heats.

I HAVE NEVER BEEN an Aragon fan. I have recognized his limitations for many years and have openly said so on several occasions.

But I must admit that when I walked out of Wrigley Field Friday night, I did so with a new respect for the Golden Boy . . . and he still is the Golden Boy in my book.

Art has never been and never will be more than a second-rater. But he showed he had plenty of guts in his stand against Basilio and we need more like him to inject a little more life and color in the sordid beak-busting business.

It was Aragon who "made" the fight . . . financially speaking. And Basilio paid him a backhanded compliment when he said in the dressing room after the bout "I'd much rather meet a 'talker' than a real good fighter."

And Art did plenty of talking before the fight as part of the buildup. Not even Aragon figured he actually had a chance to win. But he knew he could draw a tremendous gate with Basilio and that's what he's in the game to do—make money.

Actually, the whole affair amounted to little more than an all-expenses-paid "vacation trip" to the West for Basilio than a major fight.

But he became co-holder of the all-time gate record in California thanks in part to Art's personal publicity campaign.

AS BASILIO NOW POINTS for another match with Robinson next year, the big question here in Southern California fight circles concerns Aragon. Is he through?

I don't think so. In fact, I think he has a few more $200,000 gates left. As I said before the fight, Art had everything to gain, nothing to lose. He certainly didn't lose any prestige in being beaten by a man who has held both the welterweight and middleweight title. Whats more he was still on his feet when the bout was stopped.

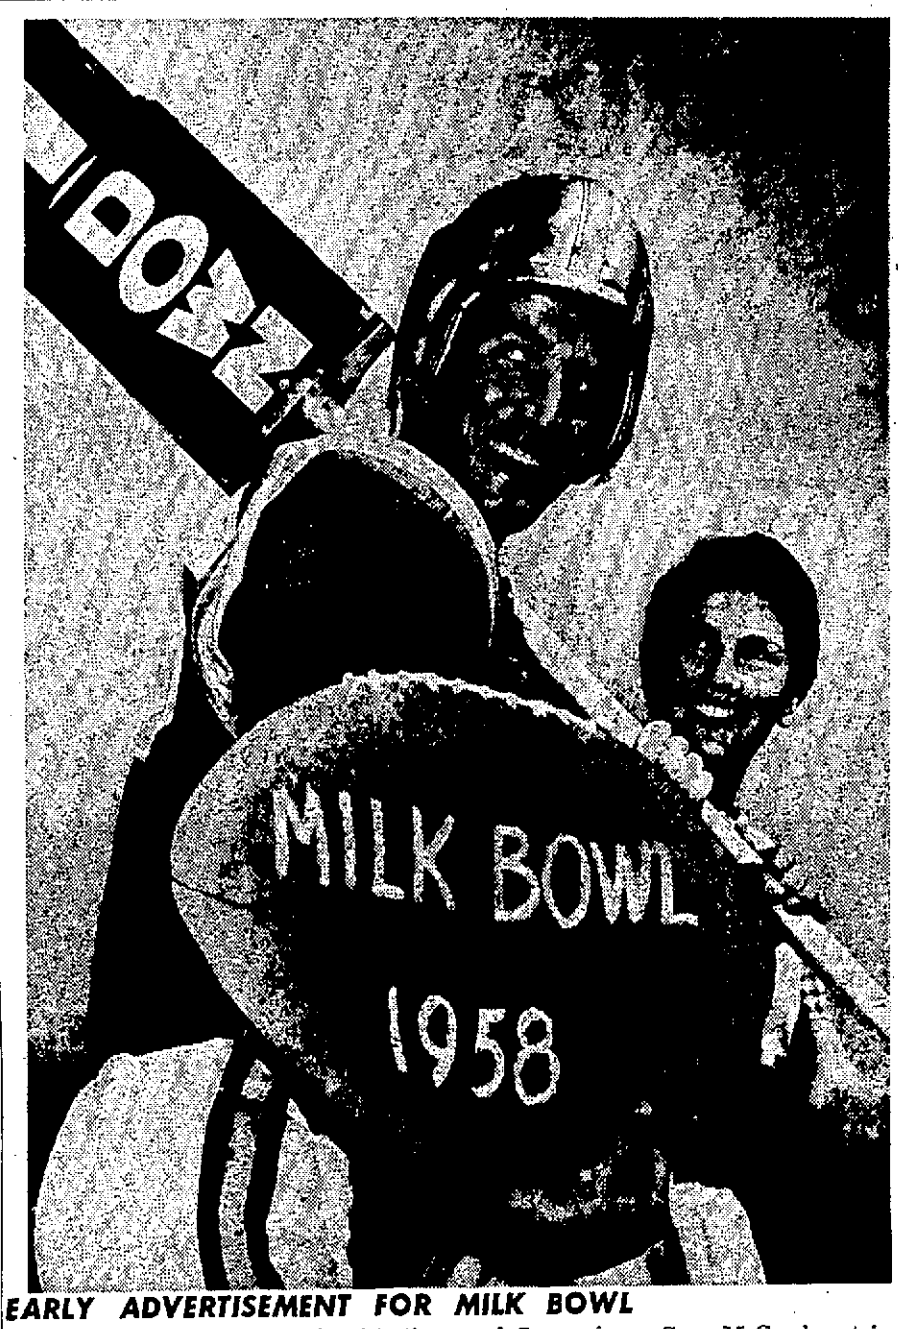

A couple of easy marks for buildup purposes would set the stage for another big-money bout for Aragon with one of the top welters . . . perhaps even Champion Virgil Akins. After all, the whole fight world is anxious to get a shot at this California money.

No, Aragon is far from being through as I see it. I think a lot of people who went to see him get murdered Friday night left with a new respect, as I did, for the Golden Boy . . . the greatest box-office draw in California ring history.

Fans would have been touched by a scene in the Aragon dressing room before the fight when Art received a telegram from his three children which read "Good luck, Daddy, we know you can do it. Lots of love and kisses."

It brought tears to Art's eyes!

Friday night, Aragon became a human being again in the eyes of many. And, strangely enough, the beating Art took may have produced the strange phenomenon of making him a "hero" instead of a "villain" with Los Angeles fight fans in future appearances!

EARLY ADVERTISEMENT FOR MILK BOWL

Poly High footballer Chick Hastings and flag swinger Sara McComb get in first warning to Long Beach football fans that annual Milk Bowl charity game, featuring five Moore League teams, is slated for Sept. 27. Moore teams begin workouts Monday.

Moore League Schools Begin Practice Monday

Moore League teams break out the grid gear Monday, with first practice sessions planned at all five schools — Wilson, Poly, Jordan Millikan and Lakewood.

The teams have three weeks to prepare for initial action. The annual Milk Bowl charity "carnival" type game is scheduled for Sept. 27.

* * * *

DEFENDING champion Wilson and senior-studded Poly are co-favorites.

Injury already has played a large part in the season. Wilson fullback Jim Burchfiel broke an ankle during the summer while skin diving and is lost for at least the first half of the season.

According to recent calculation, the giant powerhouse may be back in action "in four to six weeks." That would mean shortly before the big game with Poly, which is scheduled for Oct. 31. The Bruins are coached by Skip Rowland, Poly by Dave Levy.

With Buchfield sidelined, the Bruins' "inside, outside" punch of big Jim and halfback Larry Sather is cut in half.

But if there's a pre-season edge for the top spot it must go to Poly because of its late-developing and fast-rising club of last year which is, in large part, returning.

The Rabbits will be led by jackrabbit-like Dee Andrews, a champion sprinter-hurdler. But he will have plenty of help from halfback Willie Brown and fullback Lonzo Irvin.

Jordan coach Bob Parke is on the lookout for some lanky, fast ends—they seem to be his specialty—to go with the veteran backs and interior linemen. Jordan has lost a lot of talent from a year ago.

The experience problem also faces Tom Kinkade at Millikan, where Bees and Jayvees will be pressed into service.

Lakewood will field the league's darkhorse team. The Lancers managed just one win in its initial season but have a host of returning regulars, spearheaded by Gil Mendoza, an excellent passer and a swift ball carrier.

MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

L.B. Jr. Football Loop Issues Call

The Long Beach Jr. Football League, which has developed some of the top football players in the city's grid history, will begin preparing for its 11th season Tuesday night when candidates for the four league teams report to coaches.

The league consists of four teams, the North Long Beach Bulldogs, Los Altos Lions, Belmont Shore Bears and Lakewood Cougars.

Players will be divided into two groups according to size and each area will field an "A" and "B" team. Boys from 95-125 pounds will play on the "B" teams and boys over 125 pounds on the "A" team.

All Long Beach boys between the ages of 11 and 15 are eligible to play on the teams, according to league publicity chairman Bud Oberg.

Candidates should report at 6:30 Tuesday night to one of these four locations: 1. North Long Beach, Houghton Park, 2. Los Altos, Stanford Jr. High, 3. Belmont Shore, Wilson High, and 4. Lakewood, Pan-American Park.

THE LEAGUE will furnish all equipment except shoes for players. Each boy must have his parents' consent to play and parents are requested to accompany the boys to the first meeting if possible. Physical exams will be given each candidate.

League games will be played on Sundays with practices on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Kickoff Fete to Honor Vikes, 49ers

Long Beach Century Club's Second Annual Kickoff Banquet to honor football players and coaches at Long Beach State College and Long Beach City College will be held Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave.

Don Callan is program chairman, while Jim Crooker will be master of ceremonies and Jack Dilday is in charge of tickets. The evening's principal speaker will be Mike Pecarovich, former college football coach and currently an instructor at St. Anthony High School here.

Actually each ticket-purchaser "sponsors" a football player, for with each $7.50 dinner ticket sold an athlete's dinner also is included.

Tickets still may be purchased from the Century Club office, 121 Linden Ave., or from Dilday (HE 2-5901) or Callan (GE 8-7557).

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Quarterback Lee Grosscup, Utah University's ace passer and a candidate for all-America honors, suffered a cracked rib in scrimmage today which Ute officials said may result in his loss for the first two games.

After One Week: 49er Line Strong, Offense Problem

By JERRY WYNN

How much stronger is "considerably stronger than last year?"

That is the major question on the Long Beach State College practice field as the 49ers head into their second week of practice for the season's opener at San Francisco State, Sept. 19.

The above quote is the first summation of his team by new head coach Don Reed, and reflects the general feeling of the staff and returning players. The 1958 squad is much stronger over-all than its predecessor which had a 3-5 record. The 1958 squad is the strongest in school history.

BUT . . . will this mean a successful season against a painfully (for L. B.) tough schedule of nine games. At this, heads shake and words are left unspoken. Wait and see.

* * * *

"THE EMPHASIS in practice is being put on defense," says Reed. "Last year, we could give a team a good first half, and then were physically worn out to play a decent second half. We became pushovers. That shouldn't happen this year."

And as one veteran lineman commented after taking punishment in a contact drill Thursday:

"This line will be two to three times better than last year's. We had one thin line last year. We'll have two good ones this year."

* * * *

LAST SEASON the line was handicapped by lack of size. This year weight should be an asset. A look at probable candidates for starting line berths shows this beefy crew:

Ends—Carl Evans, 200; Bob Pinkerton, 195; Cliff O'Grain, 220. Tackles—Stan Guzy, 215; Welo Vasquez, 245; Kirk King, 215; Roger Hall, 240. Guards—Don Davis, 185; Tom Tracy, 210; Warren Wardlow, 215; Larry Miller, 185. Centers—Dick Keelor, 195; Dick Duty, 200; Jerry Gregg, 205.

"Our big problem will be offense," Reed shrugs. "More specifically, how we are going to replace Gouyd (Mickey) and Rodriguez (Gil)."

* * * *

ONE HALF of the 49er backfield appears well manned.

In John Pembrook, Larry Manley, John Nicholson and Jim St. Amour, the team has four top-flight quarterbacks whose battle for the starting position should be the highlight of preseason practice. Returning starter Dick Van Voohris and Don Radford, a Santa Ana JC transfer, are both capable flanker backs.

A first-week analysis of the 49ers could read:

Line — strong; backfield — questionable; team — wait and see.

At Boston Green Bay swamped the New York Giants in the second half to run up a 41-20 triumph, using a well-mixed air-ground attack. Babe Parilli threw a 56-yard pass for one touchdown.

At Jacksonville, Fla., the Redskins edged the Philadelphia Eagles 35-31.

The Greens scored the first two times they had the ball, first on a 31-yard pass from quarterback Bob Williams to end Bob Wetoska, and next on a four-yard plunge by halfback Jim Crotty.

In the extra point department, Coach Terry Brennan had the teams concentrate on getting two points on pass plays and runs.

JOHNNY KLIPPSTEIN . . . Late-Trade Dividend

Klippstein in Line for Pay Hike After Some Fine Relief

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—One of the few raises at Dodger contract time next spring is certain to go to relief pitcher Johnny Klippstein, a most pleasant surprise since he was obtained from the Redlegs in an 11th hour trade.

In a recent discussion with manager Alston, one writer remarked, "I don't know what they're paying this guy. But whatever it is, it's not enough."

Alston has enough problems without worrying about next year's salaries and leaves that department to veep Buzzie Bavasi. But he agrees that Klippstein has been a lifesaver. "He deserves a lot of credit. He's done one helluva job for us."

Since Klippstein joined the Dodgers, an hour before trading deadline on June 15, he has appeared in 35 games, all in relief. He has had a hand in nine victories, saving seven and winning two, while compiling the second lowest earned run average on the staff. Johnny Podres is the ERA leader with 3.74 and Klippstein has a 3.88 mark.

* * * *

KLIPPSTEIN, who has had only one winning season during eight years in the majors, reached his peak in the last month. Since Aug. 12, he has appeared in 12 games, pitched 20⅓ innings and has allowed only two earned runs. In his last 21 appearances he has given up only six earned runs in 31⅓ innings and four came on homers in one of his few unsuccessful performances.

"The only time Klippstein hasn't done the job for us is when he's been overworked," Alston said. The home run barrage unleashed by the Giants was one of those times. It was Klippstein's fifth rescue role in a week during which he had saved three games by allowing only one hit.

The 30-year-old Klippstein came to the Dodgers along with first baseman Steve Bilko in exchange for pitcher Don Newcombe and an undisclosed bundle of cash. He had toiled five seasons for the Cubs and three for Cincinnati, but showed a winning record only in 1956 when he won 12 and lost 11 for the Redlegs.

* * * *

"I'VE ALWAYS liked Klippstein's fast ball," Alston said when asked why he had picked up a pitcher whose lifetime record in the majors was only 60-83 before this season. "He's always pitched well against us, so when Buzzie had a chance to get him I told him to go ahead."

Klippstein gives a lot of credit to Dodger pitching coach Joe Becker for improving a curve ball that was only a "wrinkle" before he joined the Dodgers.

"I didn't like his slider," Becker said," and his curve came off a three-quarters delivery that rolled off his hand. Now he's throwing the curve from the same position as his fast ball and it has a lot more snap."

Even with the improved curve, the fast ball is still the Klippstein trade mark. His fast ball is what is known as a "live" one; it moves, up and into right-handed hitters. He has given up on the slider and uses only an occasional change-up.

* * * *

SINCE HE is known as a fast ball pitcher, batters often have the advantage and are set for his best pitch. But that doesn't bother Klippstein. "Some days I have enough stuff on the fast ball to get 'em out even if they're waiting for it. And I surprise them with the curve more than I ever did."

This is the first season that the 6-1, 175-pound righthander has been used in relief exclusively. He started four games for Cincinnati and beat the Dodgers once before he was traded and given a permanent seat in the bullpen.

"It's tougher to be a relief pitcher. Physically, you're working three days out of four instead of one out of four. And mentally, your attitude is changed entirely. You go to the ball park every day knowing that you may get into the game.

"The hardest job of all, though, is starting and relieving," Klippstein says. "I'm surprised that my arm responds the way it does after the change in routine."

* * * *

ALTHOUGH HE appears strong on the mound, Klippstein would make a better "before" than "after" ad in a physical culture magazine. Stripped to the waist, the dark, wavy-haired Klippstein just doesn't look like an athlete. His chest is downright conclave and gives him an almost frail appearance.

Still, he has the stamina of a bull and demonstrated it in San Francisco last weekend when he worked in both games of a doubleheader. He pitched two hitless innings in the morning game, then after hurling more than half a game in the bullpen he came back with a one-hit job in 4⅔ innings during the afternoon.

The game that Klippstein remembers best is the clutch relief effort he turned in two years ago against his ex-teammates, the Cubs. Chicago had the bases loaded with none out in the 14th inning, then Klippstein struck out Don Hoak and Hobie Landrith and forced Eddie Miksis to ground out. The Redlegs won the game in 15 innings.

Harry Minor Pilots Wellsville to Flag

The Wellsville Braves, managed by Harry Minor of Long Beach, won the New York-Pennsylvania League pennant by defeating Geneva, 5-1, in a playoff.

It was Minor's first year at the helm of the Milwaukee-owned Class D team. In addition to managing, the former Wilson High football and baseball star played first base and hit .290 with 17 home runs and 77 runs batted in.

Set October All-Star Tilt at Blair Field

It will be Homecoming Day and Dedication Day on Oct. 12 when a major-minor league all-star baseball game is played at Blair Field.

Park Commissioner Bill Feistner announced the date which will mark the formal dedication of the new stadium and at the same time welcome the flock of professional ballplayers residing in this area.

A partial list of players expected includes Dick Stuart, Pirates; Gus Zernial and Hank Aguirre, Tigers; Lee Walls and Bobby Adams, Cubs; Lou Berberet and Billy Consolo, Red Sox; Rocky Bridges, Senators; Hank Sauer and Eddie Bressoud, Giants; Bud Daley, Athletics; Jack Harshman, Orioles; Ray Boone, White Sox, and the Cards' Irv Noren, if he doesn't go on the St. Louis barnstorming trip to Japan.

* * * *

MINOR leaguers expected to participate include Harry Minor, Bill Wilson, Dick Cole, Gene Mauch, Paul Pettit, Roy Smalley, Rudy Regalado and many others.

Feistner stated that he will meet with Red Patterson, Dodgers' publicity director, Monday in hopes of obtaining several Dodger players remaining in the Los Angeles area after close of their season.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP:

Braves, Yanks Lose Again

United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates kept the barest flicker of life glowing in the National League pennant race Saturday when they beat the Milwaukee Braves for the second straight time, 7-6, on Johnny Powers' pinch-hit homed in the eighth inning.

The victory at Pittsburgh moved the Pirates into undisputed second place, 7½ games behind the league-leading Braves who have 18 games left to play.

* * * *

IN OTHER National League day games Saturday, the Chicago Cubs followed the pitching of rookie Johnny Briggs to a 6-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants to drop the Giants to third place, and Bob Purkey's five-hit pitching led the Cincinnati Redlegs to a 10-2 win over Philadelphia.

Bob Friend, Pittsburgh ace bidding for his 20th victory, was rocked for five of the Braves' six runs, including fifth-inning homers by Johnny Logan and Ed Mathews. Relief Pitcher R. G. Smith gained the win by holding the Braves scoreless the rest of the way except for Del Rice's eighth-inning homer. Rice's blow tied the score at 6-6 and set the stage for Powers' winning homer.

At Chicago, rookie Briggs blanked the Giants for eight innings and held them hitless for six. But then he gave up three runs in the ninth on three walks with two out and Willie Kirkland's double. Don Elston relieved to get the last out. A four-run rally in the second inning and Jim Marshall's two-run homer in the seventh accounted for all the Cub scoring.

Purkey's victory at Philadelphia was his 16th and he missed a shutout only when Harry Anderson hit a two-run homer in the third inning. Homers by Frank Robinson and Walt Dropo led the Redlegs' 13-hit attack as they handed the Phillies their fifth straight loss.

Roy Sievers slammed his 36th home run with two on in a six-run sixth inning that paced the Washington Senators to an 8-3 victory over the sluggish New York Yankees, who dropped their 17th game in their last 29 starts.

The Senators' run total might have been even higher were it not for a ninth-inning triple play by the Yankees. With runners on first and second, Clint Courtney lined to second baseman Gil McDougald, who tossed to shortstop Tony Kubek, who in turn relayed the ball to Bill Skowron at first for the triple killing.

Sievers' blast, off loser Art Ditmar, brought his runs-batted-in total to 100 for the season and helped fastballer Camilo Pascual to his eighth victory.

Kansas City beat Detroit 6-2 before a crowd of 5,756 at Detroit that swelled the Tigers' home gate over the million mark for the 13th time in the last 14 years.

Bob Kelley Says—

SEATTLE—About 10:30 Friday night, the phone in my hotel room rang.

"Mr. Bob Kelley?" sang the operator.

"Yes."

"One moment," she said. "Los Angeles calling."

"Am I all through, buddy?" said a new voice (which I recognized instantly.)

"Why should you be washed up?" I replied. "You've been beaten before, and by fighters not as good as Basilio."

"How did I look?"

I hedged. "What do you expect me to say? You didn't look good. I'm not trying to second-guess you when it's all over. But you would have been better off to go out and slug with the guy, either knock him

BOB KELLEY
Phone Buzzed and . . .

out or get knocked out yourself."

The caller changed the subject—to money.

"What will I draw with Akins?"

"For the title?"

"Yeah."

"Oh," I mused, "it ought to draw pretty good, but not as much as you drew with Basilio tonight. Besides, Akins will knock you out."

"JUST A MINUTE, just a minute," the voice ranted. Slightly off phone range, I could hear him saying: "Aileen (Eaton), I want you to talk to Kelley. He says Akins and I won't draw."

I yelled into the phone. "Wait a minute, Art, I didn't say that! I just said you wouldn't draw as much as the Basilio fight."

Aileen came on the phone. "Hello, Bob. Listen, we're all proud of our boy here. I thought it was a great fight, didn't you?"

I cleared my throat. "Frankly, Aileen, as long as you ask me, I didn't. In fact, I thought it was a lousy fight."

"Oh," she replied, in a tone indicating she'd been fooling herself, and sort of agreed with me.

"Well," she went on "Here's what we're going to do with our boy. I want him to take a nice vacation, then come back and have one fight—then Akins for the title in January."

"AILEEN," I interrupted. "I'm up here to broadcast a football game and I don't want to nose into your business. But Akins will knock Art out. It might be a good payday for you, but two bad beatings in six months will just about finish the guy at the box-office.

"Why don't you just bring in the Chica Vejars four or five times a year for a $40,000 gate and be happy? Art can fight and win and draw for another three years if you do it right."

I didn't get through. "But Art can beat Akins," she insisted. "Wait a minute . . . here's Art."

"Sure, he can beat Akins," I mumbled. . . . "With a club."

"Did I look bad, buddy?" the voice said.

"Don't ask me. By the way, what slowed you down — the body punches, or did you have trouble seeing?"

"It was my nose," said the voice. "I couldn't breathe."

"I could see on TV you were having trouble. But that wasn't what made you run out of gas. Was it the body punches? He was really digging, wasn't he?"

"MY NOSE," came the repy. "I couldn't breathe."

"Oh, great," I said disgustedly. "I can see I'm getting a lot out of you. But it didn't look like you took too bad a beating. You're cut, and you'll have a few sore ribs for a week—but he didn't rattle you in the head. You aren't hurt too much, right?"

"Only when I laugh."

Same jokes, same Aragon. He'll be back in four months—to take your money again.

Dodgers Dis 'n Data

DODGERS DIS AND DATA— Junior Gilliam, the Dodgers ironman who has appeared in 132 of 136 games, was out of the lineup Saturday night for a rest. Gilliam said he did not feel well, but went through the regular pre-game workout. . . . Stan Musial, bidding for his eighth NL batting title, hopes to return to the Cardinal lineup for the series finale this afternoon. Musial has missed three games because of a charley horse in his upper left thigh and now trails NL batting leader Richie Ashburn .340 to .339.

"I want to play, but the injury has bothered my running," Musial said. "I don't know if it affected my hitting, but since I aggravated the leg I haven't been able to hit with power. I can't put my full weight on the leg, and since I'm a lefthanded hitter, it's the left or back leg that gives me my power." Musial has a .332 average (25-for-47) against the Dodgers this year, including three homers and five doubles.

Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale was fined $25 by NL President Warren Giles for last week's run-in with plate Umpire Augie Donatelli. Drysdale beefed too long and loud about a called third strike in a pich-hitting role against the Giants. . . . Cardinal center fielder Curt Flood will leave the club this week to enlist in the Army's six-month training program. He will drive home to Oakland Thursday or Friday and is to report for induction in mid-September. He will be released by mid-March, which would give him a month of spring training before the start of the 1959 season. Flood's average has dipped from .330 in June to .262, but the 20-year-old rookie is regarded as a star of the future. He has hit 10 homers and driven in 41 runs, mostly from the leadoff spo

Johnny Podres (12-12) will oppose the Cardinals' Larry Jackson (12-10) this afternoon. Jackson has two wins over the Dodgers this year, including a five-hit 12-strikeout job here Aug. 4. He had an eight-game win streak against the Dodgers until he lost, 4-3, in 11 innings, Aug. 15. Podres is 2-2 against the Cards this season. Thundershowers are predicted this afternoon for the Dodgers' last game in St. Louis. They fly to Philadelphia tonight and are off Monday.

Duke Snider left the game in the second inning when he aggravated his ailing left knee. Elmer Valo was sent to left field and Gino Cimoli moved from left to center. Snider has hit .352 (31-for-88) since July 15, raising his average from .289 to a club leading .307. . . . Saturday night's crowd of 12,505 put the Dodgers over the million mark in road attendance. They have played before 1,005,840 fans in 64 road games. . . . The Dodgers led the league in road attendance during the last 12 years, but will be displaced by either the Braves or Giants this season. Last year the Dodgers drew 1,539,988 away from home.

Jr. Golf Trials On Wednesday

Junior golfers take their final tournament fling of the summer this week in the annual Long Beach City Championship at Recreation Park.

A field of about 70 is expected to battle for 32 match play berths in qualifying Wednesday. Double rounds are scheduled for Thursday and Friday with 18-hole finals Saturday.

Since advance entries are not being accepted, the makeup of the field will be unknown until tee-off time. However, the tourney has always attracted most top Southland juniors and all Long Beach area aces.

THE TITLE IS BEING vacated by Gerald Zar of Palos Verdes, also the 1956 winner, who is now too old for junior competition. Zar defeated Dennis Murphy, another "graduate," in last year's finals.

The probable favorite should be Richard Martinez of California CC, the reigning state champion and recent victor of the Lakewood Junior tournament. Among Long Beach area hopefuls, the Lakewood trio of Mike Blackmore, Bob Clark and John Berkhoel stand out. Host club threats include Jeff Lake, Larry Griggs and Phil Wittenburg.

JIM FERRIE
Draws 1st Round Bye

NEIL WHITE
Faces Kentuckian

Ferrie and White in S.F. Classic

By JERRY WYNN

Jim Ferrie and Neil White, two tried and true Virginia Country Club veterans, will represent Long Beach in the 58th United States Amateur Golf Championship opening at San Francisco Monday.

Ferrie, former Southern California and Long Beach City champion, has drawn a first round bye. He will face the winner between John Penrose, Miami Beach, and Henry Wysong, Dallas, on Tuesday.

White, the reigning Virginia champion who won the California State crown in 1943, opposes George Stigger of Henderson, Ky., Monday. If successful, he will battle another former State king, Eli Barlteau of Santa Cruz, Tuesday.

The tournament will be played on the famous, beautiful and treacherous Lake course of the Olympic Country Club that was the scene of the memorable 1955 U. S. Open in which Jack Fleck pulled the upset of the century by beating Ben Hogan in a championship playoff.

Par proved a veritable monster then, and Fleck and Hogan ended their 72-hole journeys tied at 287, seven over regulation figures. Although the rough won't be as high for the Amateur, the narrow, cypress-lined fairways will invite just as much trouble to an errant tee shot. The 6,680-yard course will play to a par 35-35—70.

All of the nation's best amateurs are entered, but one in particular will be in the spotlight. He is home-town favorite Harvie Ward, whose suspension by the USGA last year for accepting illegal expense money denied him the opportunity of seeking an unprecedented third straight title.

If the handsome transplanted Tar Heel wins his first two matches this week, he will surpass Lawson Little's record of 15 straight match victories. Ward has a bye Monday.

* * * *

DEFENDING champion is Hillman Robbins of Memphis. Robbins beat Dr. Bud Taylor of Pomona in the 1957 finals largely because Taylor wilted under the Massachusetts humidity after playing brilliantly throughout the tourney.

Taylor will head a powerful 16-man Southern California contingent at San Francisco that includes former National Public Links champion Gene Andrews, NCAA champion Phil Rodgers, U. S. Seniors champion Johnny Dawson, collegiate stars Al Geiberger (SC), Bill Seanor (Stanford) and Bill and Dick Foote (UCLA), Don Keith, Sandy Mosk and the aforementioned Ferrie and White.

* * * *

OTHER TOP title threats from elsewhere in the nation are Billie Joe Patton, Rex Baxter, Don Cherry, Bill Hyndman, Arnold Blum, Charley Coe, Dick Chapman, Billy Campbell and Dick Yost.

Wynn at National, State Tournaments

Jerry Wynn, I-PT golf writer, will be in San Francisco this week to report on the National Amateur Tournament. From there, he will go to Pebble Beach for the State Amateur, Sept. 15-21. For the finest golf coverage, the I-PT is the winner!

All-Comers Spikes Post Top Marks

Earlene Brown didn't make it to the meet, but some of the top marks of the southland's summer cinder season were turned in Saturday at the Long Beach City College All-Comers meet despite the absence of America's top woman shot putter.

Among the flashy performances were a 6 feet, 5 inch high jump, Dr. Steve Seymour's 228-7 javelin toss, and Bob Humphreys double win in the shot put and discus. Lis Josefsen of Long Beach was a double winner in women's competition.

100—Hall (Striders) 10.1; 100 (novice)—Doby (Un.) 10.5; 100 (women)—Walsh (Un.) 12.1; 220—Hall (Striders) 21.5; 440—Joyce (Un.) 51.8; 440 (women)—Walsh (Un.) 63.8; Mile — Mundel (Striders) 4:33.6; Two-mile—Bevins (Un.) 10:32.9; Three-mile—Boswell (Orange Co. Lane Decisions Cuban Zulueta

MUSKEGON, Mich. (UPI)—Methodical Kenny Lane, the NBA's No. 1 lightweight contender, Saturday night decisioned Cuban Orlando Zulueta in a 10-round overweight match in Muskegon to keep alive his hopes for another crack at lightweight king Joe Brown.

Zulueta opened up several cuts, one around Lane's right eye, and the Muskegon southpaw bled profusely but he carried the fight all the way and won by 49-42, 48-42 and 47-43 margins.

Matthews 2nd in Bowling Ballot

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —Don Carter of St. Louis and Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., were named bowlers of the year Saturday by the Bowling Writers' Association of America, the second straight year the two gained the top honors.

It was Carter's fourth such title and Mrs. Ladewig's seventh. She received 899 points on 79 first place ballots and 11 seconds, while Carter had 902 points, including 80 first place votes and eight seconds.

Miss Merle Matthews, Long Beach, Calif., who won the national all-star crown when Mrs. Ladewig's No. 10 pin failed to go down on her second delivery in the last frame, was voted runnerup in women's voting with 727 points. She had 13 first place votes and 47 seconds.

U.S. Games Bid Goes to Detroit

CHICAGO (UPI) — Detroit was chosen Saturday to represent the United States in a bid for the 1964 Olympic Games.

The United States Olympic Committee said it picked Detroit over Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Chicago after two hours of deliberations.

"It was a very close decision," site committee chairman Robert J. Kane said. "We really felt each of the four cities would be a worthy representative but Detroit had the edge."

* * * *

DETROIT'S bid now will be passed on to the International Olympic Committee's Lausanne, Switzerland, headquarters. The international group is scheduled to meet next May in Munich, Germany, to select the 1964 site.

U. S. Olympic committee president Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson said he believed only Tokyo, Japan, already has entered a bid for the 1964 games.

"I feel Detroit has a very excellent chance of landing the games. It has tremendous facilities," Wilson said.

ABYC Continues Action in Summer-Fall Series

By BOB RUSKAUFF

In what looms as a major meet of 1958, inboard racers will settle two national class championships and possibly snare a world record or two, next Saturday and Sunday at Newport.

Event is the annual regatta on the N. Lido Channel of Newport Bay, conducted by the So. Calif. Speedboat Club.

Titles up are those in the E-Racing runabout class with Cream Puff (ex-Egad), defending, and in the gaudy Cracker Box class.

The E's will go in title heats on Saturday, the Crackers on Sunday.

* * * *

A TRIPLE array of major action is on today's sailing agenda:

1—Return sail of PC-Rhodes sloops from Avalon to Newport in the two-leg channel race which started Saturday off Balboa.

2—Conclusion, on ocean courses off Balboa, of the unique one-of-a-kind series, for picked skippers in some 25 different types of boats. They range in size from 12-foot Penguin dinghies to the Midget Ocean Racers and Rhodes-PC classes.

* * * *

ONCE AGAIN the fleets of Alamitos Bay YC break out canvas today in skirmishes of the long summer-fall championship series. The action will continue almost up to time of the ever-big Turkey Day Regatta—about the only event which lets sailors know that summer is over.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Today's subject—fishing off the wharves in Long Beach Harbor—is highly controversial and certainly requires delicate handling by all concerned. Before you finish reading this column, some of you may want my scalp, along with the scalps of workers in the Harbor Department who have a difficult job to perform.

But let the chips fall where they may and, as the saying goes, pigs is pigs and can never grow into anything except hogs. That is not to infer that all fishermen are pigs—just some of them! Enough, I might add, to bring about regulations that affect all of us!

If you have been in the inner harbor area recently, you must have noticed the NO-FISHING signs in considerable numbers. When those signs first appeared, the telephone on my desk began to ring far more than I normally like. The callers—almost all of them—wanted those signs removed.

Once before, three or four years ago, I wrote a column in which I said that the docks were public property and that no one could rightfully prevent anglers from pursuing their sport even in the inner harbor. But that was before pigs!

THE ORIGINAL LAND GRANT transferring the harbor lands to the city contained a provision which read:

"Reserving, however, in the people of the State of California the absolute right to fish in the waters of said harbor, with the right to convenient access to said waters over said lands for said purpose."

That 1911 grant made it rather clear that any angler could go to the harbor and fish wherever he pleased.

Conditions in 1911, it must be admitted, were slightly different than those of today. In 1911, the harbor consisted of a few sand bars; now it handles great volumes of world trade over a network of docks.

Even so, up until just recently, harbor guards were winking—or looking the other way—when they found fishermen on the docks, even though those persons were endangering themselves and hampering workers loading or unloading ships.

It was at that point that the pigs took over. The vandals, although they might have been few, had to have their fun.

SUDDENLY GUARDS DISCOVERED that windows in warehouses were being broken, restroom locks pried off and debris scattered on docks. Some of the fishermen got the idea—as they seem to do everywhere—that they could drop their litter and hurry homeward, leaving the cleanup to others. Smelly bait, dead fish, papers and pieces of sandwiches were left and even the seagulls didn't want any part of it.

Even so, the guards still might have winked at that, too, except that fishermen were parking their cars on rail tracks, in private lots and generally interfering with harbor traffic.

The Harbor Department received letters from steamship operators, who complained of delays in sailings, in addition to numerous instances of vandalism. So the Harbor Department asked for a ruling.

"It shall be unlawful for any person to fish from or otherwise use in any manner, or for any vessel, or any owner, agent or operator thereof, to use in any manner any berth, wharf, wharf premises, or other area under the jurisdiction of the board without first securing an assignment so to do from the general manager."

That is substantially the same law which has been in effect in Los Angeles Harbor for many years.

SO WHERE DOES THAT LEAVE the angler who wants to try for mackerel, bonito, perch or other species off a dock? The law is very plain and it is going to remain that way because persons actually have endangered themselves and others by venturing into loading areas.

I looked up Thomas Thorley, assistant general manager of the Harbor Department. Briefly, here's what he said:

"We do not wish to stop people from fishing recreation, but the growth of the harbor has brought about so many changes that the city can not take chances with people's lives.

"If anything, we want to create more places where people may fish. It's a natural relaxation that is good for all of us.

"Please explain to your readers that while the inner harbor docks may be closed to them, there still are more than two miles of fishable wharves from Pierpoint Landing stretching to the east and even around toward Pacific Landing.

"Even along that shoreline, however, there may be times when guards will have to ask people to move because of constant maintenance operations connected with our harbor development and land subsidence.

"We hope with the eventual extension of Pierpoint that more space may be provided for the sportsfishermen."

ONE THOUGHT IN CLOSING: Meat-hogs and vandals seem to be a small part of the general outdoor picture, but it is that small minority that brings trouble to all. In every instance where lands have been posted, it has been because the selfish few pursued their game without respecting the rights of property owners.

And getting back to the inner harbor law: What is written here won't change it, but I fervently hope that all fishermen who use what remaining wharf space we have left in such a way that the city officials will be happy to keep it set aside for such purposes.

Let's not be litterbugs on the highway, or on the ocean. Some boat operator could use that advice very wisely. Debris washing against our shores certainly is not any prettier than that along the shoulders of our highways.

OCEAN FISH SUMMARY

New schools of yellowtail that broke loose on the Horseshoe Kelp last week saved the fish count for Long Beach and kept the anglers happy. Just at a time when fishing interest generally slackens—it always that way when Labor Day ends—the yellows whooped up the fever again and both Pierpoint and Pacific Landings reported increased passenger loads.

Prior to Saturday, the two main Long Beach landings reported these totals for five days: 2,378 fishermen, 629 yellowtail, 3,513 barracuda, 3 white sea bass, 1,947 bonito, 1,805 kelp bass, 8 bluefin tuna and 1,947 miscellaneous species. Jim Griffin, Compton, topped the list with his 45-pound yellow.

Other ports reporting:

SEAL BEACH—A four-day total showed 222 anglers catching 45 yellows, 388 barracuda, 3 white sea bass, 231 bonito, 47 kelp bass and 31 miscellaneous.

SAN DIEGO—Yellowtail were on the rampage at the Coronado Islands, with anglers getting more than 800 per day for almost three straight weeks. Five-day totals showed 2,044 fishermen catching 4,525 yellowtail, 1,407 barracuda, 4 white sea bass, 2 marlin, 1 bluefin tuna, 1 black sea bass, 1,087 bonito, 989 kelp bass and 38 miscellaneous.

SAN PEDRO (Norm's Landing)—Skippers here seemed to have the golden touch, accounting for 65 bluefin tuna at Catalina Island. A marlin hooked from a regular sportfishing boat also enlivened the week. The five-day totals: 879 anglers, 172 yellowtail, 2,521 barracuda, 5 white sea bass, 1,155 bonito, 2,132 kelp bass and 286 miscellaneous.

NEWPORT (Davy's Locker)—Three large black sea bass added to the excitement here. Other totals for five days: 729 anglers, 159 yellowtail, 1,842 barracuda, 103 white sea bass, 374 bonito, 361 kelp bass and 160 miscellaneous.

REDONDO—Five-day totals: 1,109 anglers, 97 yellowtail, 1,729 barracuda, 1,014 bonito, 867 kelp bass and 250 miscellaneous.

OCEANSIDE—Here again there was a good catch of white sea bass, plus more than 200 halibut. Five-day totals showed 915 anglers catching 34 yellowtail, 680 barracuda, 377 white sea bass, 2,702 bonito, 1,942 kelp bass and 554 miscellaneous.

FRESH-WATER ROUNDUP

Interest in fresh-water fishing declined considerably following the tremendous pressure put on all waters by the Labor Day weekenders. But fishing per angler continued to yield about the same in trout, bass, crappie and bluegill. In fact, with the pressure valve blown off, angling really seemed better.

Here's the way it looked:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—One of the best spots is Isabella Lake, now dropping rapidly, but yielding plenty of bluegill, crappie, bass and some trout. The Kern River above the lake continues fair to good for trout. Puddingstone Reservoir still hot for catfish, with catches ranging from 3 to 11 pounds. Silver Lakes Ranch, a fish-and-pay resort north of Corona, yielding four or five trout per angler. Bluegill fishing remains as good as ever at Hensh aw Lake, with bass, crappie and catfish rated as fair. Wohlford Lake's crappie just as inquisitive as ever and many partial limits found their way into the frying pans. Trout were on strike, but the bass and cats were rated fair to good. Irvine Lake, due to close at the end of the month, produced some nice bass catches ranging from 2 to 4 pounds. Crappie being taken by drifting method on Vee-Bee flies. Big Bear slowing down, but some limits still being taken by the smart anglers.

INYO-MONO—Comparatively speaking, many sections of the Sierras appeared almost deserted after Labor Day, but those who stayed had fair to excellent luck. Bridgeport Reservoir yielded its largest trout—a 7¼-pounder—to a Los Angeles angler. June Lake was excellent for pan-size rainbows. Hot Creek very good for late-afternoon fly fishermen. Ditto for Rush Creek, but it took worms and eggs to take the big ones out of Robinson and Buckeye Creeks.

Another large trout was caught in the Upper Owens River by Lynn Adams of Eagle Rock, fishing with good old reliable worms. It weighed 11-2.

Near Bishop, Sabrina, North and South Lakes were excellent all week, with some 2-pounders being registered. Murtel and Upper Lost Lakes were good for limits of golden. Brookies were hitting well in Granite Lake.

A late-season slump seems to have hit the western slope of the Sierras, with few fish and warmer water everywhere.

MOTOR SPORTS ROUNDUP:

Two Long Beach drag race drivers have returned with first place class trophies from the National Championship Drag Race in Oklahoma City.

Jerry Norek won the A roadster bracket with the supercharged-Chrysler powered Reath Automotive-Clay Smith Cams Special. His best run was in 11.19 seconds at 133 mph in the standing quarter mile.

Junior Thompson driving the Speed Engineering sedan captured top spot in the A gas coupe and sedan class.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE reported near completion for the Gardena Stadium motor racing plant to take over Los Angeles Speedway, the half mile Torrance dirt track.

Maury Powell, newly appointed public relations representative for the Gardena oval, said plans call for the Torrance plant to be refurbished with new seats built and the track surface improved.

Both tracks will be operated with the bigger machinery—sprint cars and late model stocks—scheduled to operate over the longer Torrance loop. The speedway will be renamed New Ascot Stadium.

Teams from Santa Monica, Venice, Manhattan Beach, Burbank, Belmont Shore, San Pedro and Hollywood will compete in the all-day affair, according to tournament director Clive Graham.

The public is invited.

DR. WILFRED SLATER
Four in a Row

Catalina Swim Mark by Dr. Slater

Dr. Wilfred Slater, 51-year-old Long Beach surgeon, Saturday lowered his own Catalina-to-mainland amateur swim record by churning the 22-mile route in 14 hours 39 minutes.

It was the fourth consecutive year the veteran distance swimmer has successfully attempted the crossing. Army Capt. Robert Evans, trying the same route at the same time, was forced out of the water with severe cramps after nine hours.

Slater's time knocked a full hour off the record he set last year even though the water was described as "terribly rough." His time is one hour off the professional record for the route, which is held by Tom Park.

Slater plunged into the water at Catalina Island about 10 p.m. Friday and landed two miles east of Marineland at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Five Marks Fall in Jr. Olympics

Five more National Junior Olympic records went by the boards Saturday in the second day of competition of the Southern Section meet at Lakewood's Mayfair Pool.

After Saturday's activity, Kris Kristenson Swim School held first place with a 56½ point spread over second place Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Defending Champion Dolphin Swim Club trailed the field with 114 points.

Boyer Fidgets Over Reputation as Lover

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If change of pace is an actor's life blood, then Charles Boyer is the healthiest thespian alive.

Within one month Boyer played an aging general in "The Buccaneer," a role that has no romantic interest, and a torrid love scene on a beach with a Bikini-clad Brigitte Bardot.

That he was believable in both is a tribute to one of the most professional craftsmen in the business.

Boyer, as the middle-aged roue prince in "La Parisienne" who has an extra-marital affair with Bardot, is the Boyer best known to the public.

* * * *

BUT BOYER CRINGES at his great lover reputation.

"I never liked that reputation," he says with a smile, "and at my age I can't live up to it."

His role in "The Buccaneer" is more the way Boyer thinks of himself—a serious character actor. Anthony Quinn, the director, thinks so, too.

Quinn, in his first directorial job, urged Boyer to take the role of the aging general.

Since returning from the Bardot film, Boyer has become something of an expert on the subject of Brigitte.

* * * *

BOYER SAYS Brigitte is a very shy girl with a cultured background. She seldom talks to reporters, he says, because, quoting her:

"No matter what I might say, they'd all write that I greeted them with only my hat on. So what's the use?"

"Brigitte is a very nice girl," he adds.

Bringing Up Papa Gable

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable became a father when he married Kay Spreckels who had two children by a previous marriage. Now he is finding out the effect of movies on children.

"Our nine-year-old started pouring his milk all over his face the other day. I asked him 'How come?'

"He explained that he saw Kirk Douglas drink that way in 'The Vikings.' The next time he goes to a movie, I'm going to see it first."

It Happened Last Night

By Earl Wilson

OLD SOLDIER

NEW YORK—"That was a pretty tough war I was in," Red Buttons cackled the other day at Sardi's like some old Civil War vet.

Red wasn't speaking of the Oscar-winning war he fought with Marlon Brando in "Sayonara," nor of being a corporal again in "Imitation General."

BUTTONS

Red was speaking of the funniest war which he started fighting in a Broadway Air Force show called "Winged Victory," which eventually led him to Germany where he distinguished himself by selling Mickey Mouse watches to the Russians.

"The things I did were ridiculous," he said, thinking back to the middle 1940s.

"Imagine picketing a captain because we wanted a weekend pass and he wouldn't give it to us!

"Henry Slater and I actually built picket signs which read 'UNFAIR TO PRIVATES!' and picketed him. Capt. John Gabriel was his name and he's now a big real estate man in New Jersey.

"That's when we were on location in Santa Monica making the picture. Did they punish us? Nah," laughed Red. "Everybody broke up. How can they punish idiots?"

Peter Lind Hayes, Lee Cobb, Ray Middleton, Edmund O'Brien, the Stroud Twins and several others were in that company.

"For maneuvers," Red recalled, "we had to capture the zoo."

* * * *

RED SAID that there was some opposition to actors' being put into shows, even for morale purposes, and that they had to go through the motions of having "basic training."

"They wouldn't issue us guns—we'd have killed somebody. But we had to capture the zoo all the same. We used peanuts and grapes at first. Then we came in with the heavy stuff—oranges and bananas."

One morning Red remembers very vividly—he remembers it more vividly each year.

"It was early in the morning as we swung marching down the street singing 'Off We Go!'" he said. "Old women came crying out of skyscrapers yelling 'God bless you and keep you alive.' Crowds on the curbs waved farewell to us. One old man who had the wars mixed up yelled 'Kill the Kaiser!' We marched bravely on—for we were going to Boston to open the show there."

* * * *

LATER RED WAS SENT to the Potsdam Conference to entertain. He met his first Russian soldiers.

"We found out you could put red-ink spots in the back of watches and make them look like jewels. The Russians were buying any watches from us they could get. I sold them one watch with 136 jewels."

Red looks forward to doing some TV this year with both Milton Berle and Jackie Gleason, as a guest.

"I think it's time to get a little fun back in the business," he said. "I hope both the boys are a smash."

He wants eventually to attempt another Red Buttons TV show—though he can't work on it now because he's become such a big hit in movies.

"I just got in from out-of-town," he told me, adding, "It's quite a trip down from the Bronx."

What is his next picture? He couldn't discuss it.

"But I think I'll ask for Marlon," he said.

Jimmy's Hooked This Time

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jimmy Stewart made a fisherman out of his wife—and it's very embarrassing. She's getting all the big ones.

The lanky actor interrupted a deepsea fishing trip this week to start production on "The FBI Story."

"For once I was glad to quit fishing and start a picture," he says. The reason: While Jimmy was hauling in puny mackerel, Mrs. Stewart was hooking giant marlin.

"Last year we were in Acapulco," Stewart tells, "and Gloria hooked a 12-foot sailfish, fought him for awhile—with no assistance from me—and then landed him all by herself.

* * * *

"WE DOCKED and she had her picture taken with the big fish while I held mine behind my back so no one would take a picture of me. Then to really rub it in, she said she wanted to have the fish stuffed and sent to our house in Beverly Hills.

"I told her you can't have that sort of thing done down in Mexico but some local character spoke up and said it could be done with a down payment and the rest paid on delivery.

"I handed him $80, with a wink, and figured that would be the last time I would see him, the money or the fish—and it was worth it. But six months later, I come home one night and find a package as big as a house in my front yard.

"We had to take the door down to get it in. It was the fish all right, stuffed and ready to hang. So far we haven't found a wall wide enough to hang it—and the fish, thank heavens, is down in the basement where I'm not reminded of it.

"But Gloria is talking about adding a trophy room onto the house so we can hang that fish on the wall. And I taught her how to fish."

Film Stars Ottumwa, Ia.

The film, sponsored by the United States Army Recruiting Service, has been shown over 385 television stations and has been nominated for the Freedom Foundation award of 1958. All Iowans, former Iowans, and relatives and friends of Iowans are invited.

10,000 STUDENTS EXPECTED

State College Adds 57 to Its Faculty

Long Beach State College will employ 57 new instructors for the fall term opening Sept. 22, swelling the full-time faculty ranks to 330, executive dean David L. Bryant announced Saturday.

In addition, some 60 part-time persons will be called upon — all necessary to provide adequate instruction for the whopping 10,000 anticipated enrollment.

Last year State met its 8,438 student body with a full-time staff of 282 and 70 part time.

Instructors hail from hither and yon.

California leads the roll call with 24. Twenty states and four countries outside the United States are represented.

Glenn H. Stewart, professor of business, is leaving his consultantship with the U. N. in Ankara, Turkey.

From the Paris American High School, France, comes Mary Kefgen, assistant professor of home economics.

The University of Manitoba, Canada, will supply Jagdish Mehra, assistant professor of physics.

Keith A. Dixon joins the group as an assistant professor of anthropology, leaving the New World Archaeological Foundation of Orinda, Calif., and Chiapas, Mexico.

Thirty-two have their PhD's or Doctorates or Education; the remainder have their advanced degree in progress.

WHY BE A TENANT? Many excellent home-buys at easy terms in the Classified ads.

Jewish School of Traditions Opens Rosters

Keeping Jewish cultural traditions alive is the aim of the Long Beach Children's School which is accepting registrations for the fall term, Mrs. Milton R. Beychok, 2725 Nipoma Ave., is in charge of registrations.

Classes will begin Saturday. Children from 6 to 12 are welcome, according to the group's president, Mrs. Edith Beychok.

Songs, dances and history of the Jewish people are taught at the school. Students from Lakewood, Bellflower, Los Altos and other communities in the Long Beach area may attend.

Plan Four Concerts in Season

By MARY LOU ZEHMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Women's Editor

If you not only like good music but also enjoy seeing the world's finest musicians in action, then you'll make plans right now to attend the four concerts in Long Beach this winter and spring by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Some of the world's finest conductors will be on the podium and some of the world's greatest artists will perform in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium.

Concert dates as set up with Miss Alice Taylor, orchestra manager, by our Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Assn., of which Mrs. William P. Ellery is concert chairman, are: Nov. 23 with Eugen Jochum, conductor, and Rudolf Firkusny, pianist; Feb. 15, Sir John Barbirolli conducting; March 22, Erich Leinsdorf, conductor, Nathan Milstein, violinist; and April 26, Georg Solti, conductor, Nan Merriman, mezzo-soprano.

The Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, considered one of the finest in the world, is composed of 100 musicians who perform over a period of 24 weeks each season throughout Southern California. Season ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Ellery, 31 The Colonnade, or Mrs. Howard Coy, 36 Virgil Walk.

THE CONDUCTORS this year, each of a different nationality and musical background, will show diversification of repertoire and interpretation that should please the most discriminating music devotee.

Eugen Jochum, who will conduct Nov. 23, is considered one of Europe's foremost conductors and is at present music director of the Munich Orchestra and Opera. Appearing the same evening will be Czechoslovakian pianist Rudolf Firkusny, who, since 1941, has made an annual tour of the United States. A student of Artur Schnabel, he has performed with almost every major symphony in America.

Sir John Barbirolli, conductor for the Feb. 15, 1959, concert, has been music director of the famed Halle Orchestra in Manchester, England, the past 15 years. He left a long engagement with the Los Angeles Philharmonic to accept this post and prior to that was conductor of the Scottish Symphony Orchestra. In the mid-30s he was invited to succeed Arturo Toscanini as conductor of the New York Symphony Philharmonic.

• • • •

CONDUCTOR Erich Leinsdorf, scheduled for the March 22, 1959, concert has been prominent in opera and symphony for many years. From the Met (where he curcently is one of the leading conductors) Leinsdorf went to the Cleveland Symphony. After service in the Army, he became music director of the Rochester Philharmonic.

The Austrian-born maestro has conducted the Los Angeles Philharmonic a number of times. On the same program will be the Russian-American violin virtuoso, Nathan Milstein, who made his concert debut at the age of 10 in Odessa, Russia, playing the concerto by Alexander Glazounoff with the composer conducting. In his late teens Milstein formed a team with pianist Vladimir Horowitz and together they toured Russia and Europe. Later they joined with Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, and toured as a trio. History shows that they emerged from this ensemble playing as three of the world's foremost artists.

Milstein, a naturalized American citizen, remains at the pinnacle with the great instrumentalists of the present day.

For the fourth concert on April 26, 1959, Georg Solti will conduct. He is known in this area through his appearances with the San Francisco Opera, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in both the winter and summer Hollywood Bowl concerts. After conducting three bowl concerts this summer, he returned to his post as music director of the Frankfort Opera and symphony season. He will be back for 15 concerts during the 40th season.

NAN MERRIMAN, mezzo soprano, will appear with Solti at this final event. She is another Californian who has been acclaimed internationally as an artist of the first rank. Her singing career began in Los Angeles and after several minor roles in bowl opera performances, her career moved upward rapidly. Now her name is known around the world for she has appeared with marked success in concerto, oratorio and opera in leading music centers of Europe.

Miss Merriman has been chosen by Eduard Van Beinum, music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic and Amsterdam Concertgebouw orchestras for important solo engagements in Holland.

It's time now for music lovers to plan on an outstanding season of great music right here in Long Beach.

SELLING TICKETS to concerts in Long Beach by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra poses no problem for these industrious members of Southern California Symphony Association. Mrs. Betty Benwell, left, roster chairman, Mrs. William P. Ellery, concert chairman, and Mrs. Monroe S. Yunker, president of Long Beach Auxiliary to the Association. The orchestra plays four concerts here each season at Municipal Auditorium, beginning this year on Nov. 23.—(Staff Photo.)

SIR JOHN BARBIROLLI, music director of the famed Halle Orchestra in Manchester, England, will be guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in concert here on Feb. 15, 1959, in Municipal Auditorium.

Style Show at Luncheon

A "Memory Book of Fashions" will high light the fall opening of Long Beach Chapter, Council of Jewish Women, at noon luncheon Tuesday in the Cavalier Room, Lafayette Hotel.

Mrs. Jack Ross, program chairman, will narrate high lights in the life of Hanna Solomon and will present the fashion show. Participating will be Mmes. Robert Feldman, L. R. Altman, Ruben Golub, Max Siegel, A. J. Laitz, Louis Wechsler, J. S. Lebovitz, Robert Abraham, Alvin Morrow, H. M. Stein, F. D. Rogovin, Edward Kramer, Howard Amos and Miss Diane Ross.

Mrs. Morris Freedland will preside at the session. Members and guests may make reservations with Mrs. Freedland or Mrs. George Feldman.

ASSISTING THE Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony Association in setting up the four concerts scheduled in Long Beach this season by the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra is Miss Alice Taylor, left, orchestra manager. She is shown with Mrs. Howard Coy, assistant concert chairman for the local group. Season ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Coy, 36 Virgil Walk, or Mrs. William P. Ellery, 31 The Colonnade.—(Staff Photo.)

Junior Leaguers Vacation

Enjoying a change of pace at various vacation spots around the country this summer are members of the Junior League of Long Beach.

Lake Arrowhead has been a popular spot and among those who enjoyed the beautiful scenery and had a wonderful time were Shirley and Chuck Planting and their Susie and Scott, Barbara and Tom Rowan with Diana and Susan, and Caroline and Bill Wagner with Billy, Caroline and Willis.

Some of the "lucky" ones to have spent time in Las Vegas include Rosemarie and Jim Frew, Joanne and Dick Barry, Jane and Bill Began, Bev and Dick Matlock, and Waula and Siebert Pearson.

Marie and Ed Platz took Peggy and Jimmy to Sprucedale Ranch for two weeks. This popular spot in the White Mountains just out of Springerville, Ariz., was also the first stop on a trip for Eleanore and Harold Nissen and Andy and Carolyn. Then they continued to Grand Canyon, Bryce and Zion National Parks.

LIZ AND Don Wallace have been visiting her family in their lovely summer home at Idlewild. Jo Ann Parks left in August for Flagstaff, Ariz., where she has been a counselor at Camp Tocaloma. Dorothy Deatherage spent a month south of the border really seeing Mexico.

Barbara and Chester Moore started the summer with a trip back to Baldwin, Kan., locale of Baker University, to help celebrate the 100th anniversary of that school and to visit relatives in Kansas City and Creston, Iowa. Since their return, localities have seen very little of them for they are gone to Catalina

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

OUR TRUSTY little feathered tattler who tells all claims he got caught in a swinging cage door last week and that's why he was late with some of his news. Personally we think he stopped off for a long birdseed hour with some canary. At any rate a couple of his scoops were pretty good so we'll overlook the time element and tell them just as he repeated them to us. For instance. . . .

"Birdseed, Extra Dry"

THIS IS THE kind of story that keeps you awake nights with jealous insomnia. Seems Gladys Vyverberg went over to Las Vegas the other day for a little Nevada recreation. She was in the Fremont Hotel just ready to walk across the street to meet Fran and Jack Hott for dinner. Her last silver dollar was resting heavily in her purse so she just plopped it in the nearest $1 machine and practically without pausing started for the door. A witness called her attention to the four silver companions which had dropped into the cup so she scooped them up and put one more back in. Bingo! $100 jackpot. Whew! Try once more. Bongo! Another jackpot for the same amount.

Then, caught in the spirit of the game for sure, she dropped two or three more into place before the impossible happened and she made solid connection with the $200 jackpot. Yep; all from the same machine, now resting, undoubtedly, on some windswept boothill for careless one armed bandits. Taking her cue from the generous slot machine, Gladys shared her winnings and, before she ever left the hotel, sent a goodly portion to a favorite nephew in San Francisco paralyzed with polio.

ANOTHER wish-we'd-known-earlier newsaroo concerned "Smitty" Smith who was here on business from Mexico City. Juanita didn't come up this trip but will be here when they both return for a visit in December. All was not keeping the home fires burning, however, for Mrs. Smith who had the pleasure of entertaining Diane Steveson during the absence of Mr. S. Diane stopped off after summer school sessions at Guadalajara before returning here in time to welcome husband, Jim, back into civilian life after the Army's version. They're busy getting into the swing of housekeeping now at 214 Roycroft Ave. before school bells bring an end to Diane's full-time homemaking and she begins her first year as a school ma'rm.

WATCH FOR a new blue Mercedes (with upholstery as red as a Gabor's lipstick) now bringing a razzle dazzle look to Long Beach streets. Owners Engle and Nell Randolph may have a little trouble keeping their continental garage guest on the right side of the white line; having driven it all around Europe on the left for more than two months during their summer tour with son, Julian, and Johnny Glover (he dispenses Spanish lessons at Millikan Alta Escuela). The Randolphs were on hand Tuesday to meet their German-born petrol burner when it arrived by ship at the local harbor and immediately put it in a merch-anitarium to recuperate from freighter bumps before sallying forth with it this weekend.

"IF YOU'VE never been over there you should really go sometime. They have six swimming pools, five different type restaurants, one snack bar, 38 shops, a theater and many other attractions." Now we ask you, is a guy who talks like that just before returning to Honolulu (the Hawaii Village Hotel, to be specific) for the second time in one summer—is he practicing to become a press agent or a fomenter of rebellion among the working classes? That was the gist of Barrister Bob White's "cheery" farewell Wednesday night as he enplaned for the sands of Waikiki to join wife, Loyce, and the children who have all been over there since July 20 (rubbing elbows with Tony Martin and Tennessee Ernie Ford and their families). The idyll ends Sept. 16 when they come back to earth, mainland style.

WAY-WE-HEARD-It-Dep't: When Alma McFarland, president of L. B. Children's Theater, and Sally Nesmith, a charter sparkplug of the group, returned Sunday from national conference in Seattle of such civic children's theater organizations, they had a death grip on first prize, won by the Long Beach unit, and smiles on their faces as radiant as if they had just heard St. Peter say, "Come on inside, girls!" The silver trophy, most prized of the national meet, has previously been held only by Seattle and Omaha.

THE "DON'T TAKE My 'Jack', I Promised Mother I'd Never Gamble" Bridge, Lunching and Chatting Society met at the University Club last weekend as guests, this time, of Beth Williams. Among the "Queens" competing for kings that day were Beth Carey, Nancy Lough, Lucille Garver, Virginia Faris, Rosie Belcher, Noel Hodges, Gladee Jewett, Betty Clark, Gladys King and Betty Barden. And after 12 years of getting together for this sort of thing, what they don't know about each others' kings isn't worth the booby prize.

THE TEN merriest days of summer ended for Betty Ann and Gene Kirkpatrick and their children when they returned to regular labor days on Labor Day from the Kirkpatrick family aerie on the shores of Lake Arrowhead. Lots of company added to the fun. During the week guests included Carol and Jim Hoagland and their daughters, Betty Ann's father, S. G. Stewart and Mrs. Stewart of San Mateo, and Doris and Dr. Dick McCoy, Diane and Doug, of Newport. Last Sunday the gang really "rolled in" for an all-day picnic on the beach with plenty of water skiing to heighten appetites. Picnickers included Sandy and Don Gill and Kim, Jean and Ed Conrady and their two, Lahoma and Bill Smith with their two, Veronica and "Marv" Tincher and their three (up for the weekend at the Tincher cabin) and Mary and Bob Lintz with Susan.

THERE WERE a couple of times when we don't see how being in the middle of a shootin' war could have tingled spines belonging to Ethel Severson, son "Corky," or her parents, "Artie" and Al Stevenson much more than during their four-month tour of Europe this summer.

"Part of Tour"

Take, for instance, the week they stayed at the Grande Bretgne Hotel in Athens, occupying rooms adjoining those of exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus, whose life is constantly in danger. There were soldiers lurking everywhere to guard him—mirrors placed strategically so assassins, attempting to come near any entrance could be spotted from any angle—and always a glowering ex-Cyprian commando sitting at a grand piano by the elevators ready to "play" a secret warning if some fool attempted to enter by conventional means. See such a scene in the movies and you'd laugh your head off at the phony scene. But, according to Ethel, it didn't feel very phony at the time.

Another incident to disconcert the most stalwart was when they were stalled on the one and only road (high in the Pyrenees between Spain and France) connecting the tiny Republic of Andora with the rest of the world. So remote there's just no traffic to speak of which accounts for their 2½-hour wait in blizzard weather until help could be summoned. Lots of other times, though, interesting and gay, to offset eerie ones.

IF THIS year's new batch of Dames Club members don't feel welcome after last night they just aren't the kind of dames who enjoy parties. With their husbands they were guests at the second party of the summer in their honor, this one taking place at Mary Edna and Floyd Williams home, 1121 Claiborne Dr. Cocktails at 5 and lawn games until dinner. Maurice Giffin, present with husband, Glen, chairmanned the informal affair. Among those being catered to (literally and figuratively) were Marge and Harry Stafford, Gerry and Don Hazard, Prexy Caroline and Sterling Blakeman, Ginny and Bob Hall, Betty and Bob Frankenfeld, Madeline and Glen Horrie, Millie and Bill Berry, Gwen and Dean Jones, Ann and Bob Croxson, Camilla and Jim La Gregs, Beverly and Jim Gardner, Barbara and George Powell and about that many more.

ACROSS THE channel deeps for a boating rendezvous at Emerald Bay, Catalina, went members of the Long Beach Outboard Club last weekend. A few of the gang we heard followed in the wake of Commodore Bill Winston and wife, Nance, were Kadey and Harry Kemp, Peg and Bud Sjolund, Florence and Paul Fillinger, the Kelly Williams, Dottie and Frank Bartha, Nellie and John Cataldo, Edna and Fred Cleary and Evelyn and Robert Cox. Yo-ho-ho and a barbecued steak on the beach.

They Feed Fussy 'Family'

By JEAN B. MOORE

Wonder how you'd like to feed a family, practically every member of which demands a different diet. One gets butter on his potatoes; another wants margarine; one has to have her meat cut fine, another doesn't want it at all.

Pride in your work won't let you consciously repeat a menu, ever.

Multiply the average family of four by 15 and you have 60 persons whose likes and dislikes you're expected to cater to.

Enough to make a person throw up her hands and head for the tules, never to return, isn't it?

* * * *

BUT IT'S WITH a quiet efficiency born of long experience that Leatrice Muirhead does just that, even to serving truffles on request.

The unruffled Miss Muirhead is chief dietitian for Harriman Jones Clinic and Hospital, and has been for almost 25 years. In the early days of the young establishment, she had plenty of time to market personally for the patients. Nowadays, she admits she really doesn't have the time, but she can't give up the habit of selecting the finest and freshest foods herself.

She shops for the 45 patients and 15 staff members every Tuesday and Saturday. "I can do it in two hours if I rush," she says, adding emphatically, "and I do."

Her '57 Chevrolet takes her on a wide circuit in her semi-weekly quest. From a responsible farmer she gets garden-fresh produce; a wholesale house is another call; so is a fresh fish market. Meat for the day is selected from another market. (On non-market days it is delivered).

The groceries, piled high in her car, ride to the clinic parking lot in style and are carried to the kitchen by attendants.

* * * *

IF THE PROOF is in the eating, then all the efforts of the dietitian are worthwhile. Patients rave over the meals. Many ask for recipes. Most sought after is the French dressing recipe that Miss Muirhead got from a little old lady on a train. It was specialty of a Minnesota inn.

Only rarely does a person complain. A wealthy Reno man became ill on his yacht and was hospitalized here. Nothing, absolutely nothing, satisfied him. Observers believed nothing, absolutely nothing, ever would!

One woman patient craved mushrooms under glass, like she'd had in England. Miss Muirhead couldn't come up with the glass dome, but the mushrooms were tastier than the British version, the patient declared.

Another patient was accustomed to having a sandwich every day with each meal, and being hospitalized wasn't going to change that, she insisted, so she had her sandwich, along with the full meal.

* * * *

CATERING TO ALL these whims-within-reason requires a file system studiously kept by Miss Muirhead and her assistant, Rowena McLean. Each meal is written down for each individual every day. A scribbled "rich fine" may indicate to the Muirhead-McLean combination that a patient's dentures are poor and the meat should be chopped fine.

Such personal attention to preference pays off in an economic way besides giving gastronomic pleasure to the patient and inner satisfaction to the dietitian. There never are any leftovers.

Diet consulting and menu preparing is the dietitian's job; the cooking is done by four women who came from or reared large families and love to cook. Seven other helpers have kitchen duties other than the actual cooking. Their chief pleasure is arranging and serving the patients themselves, then returning to the kitchen with comments from the sickroom that often verge on the ecstatic. Often during mealtime Miss Muirhead and Miss McLean visit patients to answer requests—and get in a bit of the praise themselves.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH THE dietitians do most of their work from a small office, they are thoroughly familiar with the kitchen operation. Miss Muirhead sighs wistfully and expresses her dream—to have a bigger kitchen with all shiny new equipment.

The Misses Muirhead and McLean are enthusiastic exceptions to the theory that dietitians often dislike cooking. The Canadian Miss McLean interned at the Mayo Clinic (yes, dietitians intern too). This is her first job. She loved to cook at home, especially desserts, and is building a file of recipes.

Her "chief" makes a hobby of collecting cook books and recipes from here and there. Gourmet foods are her specialty when cooking for friends.

Before serving a new dish at the hospital, both she and Miss McLean give the recipe a whirl at home.

Before you get the impression their life is one round of testing, tasting and eating, remember these two women are first, last and always dietitians, smart enough to take their own medicine (i.e. sensible diets!)

IT'S ALL IN A DAY'S MARKETING, says Leatrice Muirhead as she and her assistant, Rowena McLean, show plump strawberries to Mike Kuzmin. The women are dietitians for Harriman Jones Clinic and Hospital. To Mike falls the job of whisking the perishables to the kitchen.—(Staff photo.)

Trophy Dinner for Yachters

Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's Penguin Fleet's annual trophy dinner will be held at the clubhouse, 5437 E. Ocean Blvd. at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. (Fleet Capt.) Arthur J. Beland and Mrs. Beland's home at 5615 Naples Canal will be the locale for a cocktail party preceding the dinner.

Skipper and crew, boy and girl Penguin figures, will top a huge decorated sheet cake, which also will carry the fleet's initials, done in frosting, and will center the buffet table.

Mrs. James V. Shirley is dinner chairman, with Mrs. Stanley Hunter in charge of reservations. Mr. and Mrs. Roland Shutt are co-chairmen of decorations and trophies.

A battery of blazing barbecues will line the deck, where steaks will be cooked for the main course. Assisting in the dinner preparations will be Mmes. Hal Ewing, Max Smith, Frederick C. Tebbetts and Palmer Wentworth.

Kind of Tonic It's a Pleasure 'to Take'!

Best tonic for tired spirits is a party like the one Helen and Edson Davis will host Thursday — a cocktail buffet from 6 until 9. Just ask any doctor—especially one who will be there—and if they prescribe it for themselves the other guests can expect to end the evening feeling like a million.

"Beats Penicillin"

Assisting dispense party medicine to the approximately 150 guests bidden will be Huldis and Dr. Francis Hortzog, Sally and Dr. Dick De Golia, Bettye and Decatur Mitchell, Dr. Milton Van Dyke (Sallie will be present but taking it easy, her broken leg still not quite ready to carry her mingling-walking) and Virginia Mitchell.

Yep. That's the kind of medication that would be marvelous any night just before bedtime!

Plan Mass as Silver Year Fete

The silver wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. John Victor Malouf of Long Beach will be observed Saturday at a Silver Anniversary Wedding Mass in Our Lady of the Lake Catholic Church, Lake Arrowhead. The prominent local pair was married by Fr. Robert Lucey, now Archbishop of San Antonio, in 1933. He is planning to attend the celebration.

Attending Dr. and Mrs. Malouf at the mass will be their daughter, Mrs. Betty Jane Rodecker, widow of Maj. Rodecker, and Dr. Victor S. Zahn Sr. Altar boys will be Wallace Rodecker Jr., their grandson, and Victor Zahn, great-nephew, while flower girls will be Tina Rodecker, granddaughter, and Valerie Zahn, great-niece.

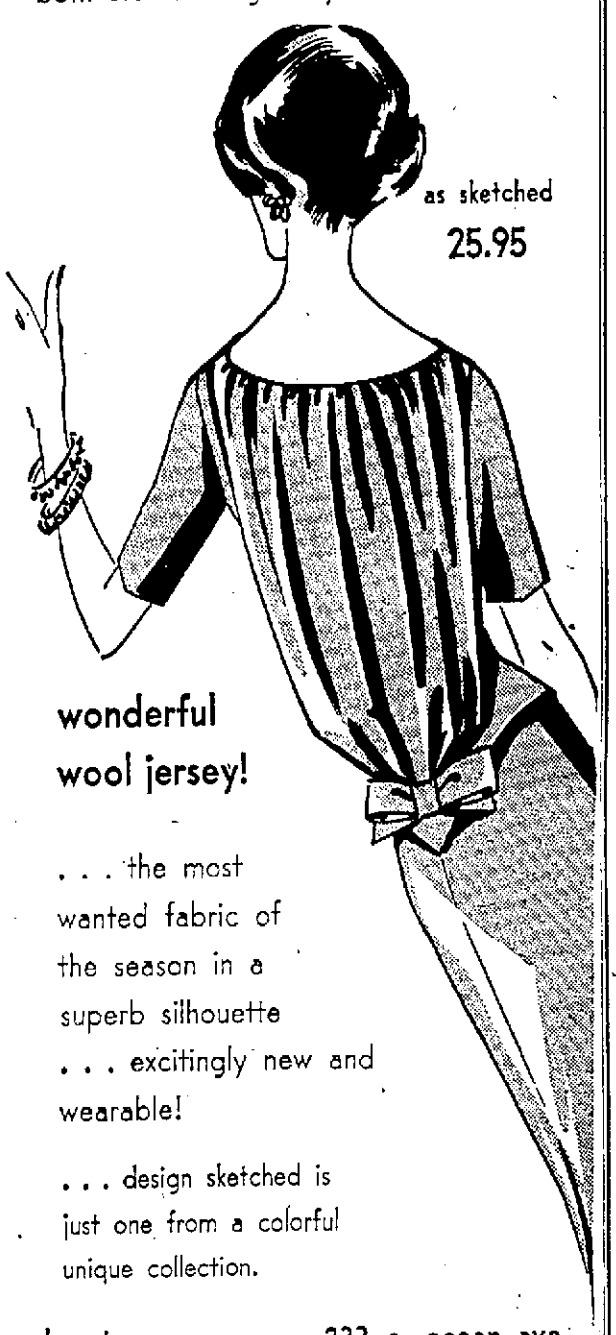

Among the many family and friends planning to attend will be Mr. and Mrs. Jubert G. Malouf and family of Hollywood, Fla., brother of Dr. Malouf. All the relatives, including 32 grand-nieces, nephews and grandchildren, between the ages of 1 and 15, will be guests of the Maloufs at Arrowhead Inn for the weekend.

Grace M. Hoffman

Plan Gala Affair for OES Grand Matron

For Mrs. Grace M. Hoffman, 601 Terraine Ave., now nearing the end of her year's term as worthy grand matron, Order of Eastern Star, for the State of California (the first Long Beach woman ever to attain this high post) the next few weeks will find her showered with honors.

Among the most gratifying will be the fourth and final reception given by her own Esther Chapter at Millikan High School Auditorium, Snowden Ave. and Spring St., next Saturday at 8 p.m. All Eastern Stars, guests and friends are cordially invited to be present.

* * * *

MRS. HOFFMAN, who estimates she has driven 150,000 miles on official OES business during the past five years, will climax her year on Oct. 20 when she presides over 8,000 delegates who will convene in Sacramento. She has been a singularly effective leader in Eastern Star since affiliating in 1935. Her first office was as treasurer of Esther Chapter then she progressed through the line to become worthy matron in 1942; subsequently served as deputy grand matron from Long Beach in 1944 to California Grand Chapter and was appointed state grand marshal in 1954. She was elected associate grand conductress in 1955 and progressed through the line to her present post as leader of 165,000 members in the 601 Eastern Star chapters of California.

* * * *

ONE OF Mrs. Hoffman's most treasured memories of her year in office was attending the General Grand Chapter in Philadelphia and reporting California OES work which includes maintenance of a home for their elderly members; donation of 25 regular scholarships annually plus five scholarships for religious training; give around $40,000 annually to benevolent projects; and are extremely active in aid to cancer victims including an average expenditure of $75,000 annually to members and their immediate families who are stricken with the disease.

In addition to her aforementioned affiliations, Mrs. Hoffman is a past president of Lady Lions and Loyalty Club; is a member of Merrct Temple No. 103, Daughters of the Nile, Nazareth White Shrine No. 8 and of Ebell Club.

Fiesta Set for Lodge

Loyal Order of Moose, Long Beach Lodge 600, and Women of the Moose, Chapter 506, will have a Beachcombers Fiesta in the Lodge Hall Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

The evening will include a luau, to be prepared by Chairman Mrs. Win Powell and her committee. Hawaiian, Samoan and Tahitian entertainment, under the direction of William Ippolito, will follow at 8:30. Dancing to the music of the Del Lawson orchestra will conclude the evening's festivities.

This will be one of the most colorful events of the current year, with decorations in the Hawaiian theme planned by Mrs. Earl Cummings. Members and their friends are invited to attend. Proceeds will be used for alterations of the new lodge hall.

Rebekah Events

Past Noble Grands' Club of Wide Awake Rebekah Lodge 71 will meet at the home of Carolina Bond in Downey Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Effie Berry will conduct. The social club will meet Friday at Morgan Hall for covered-dish luncheon at noon. Lavina Newmaster, president, will be in charge. Canasta will complete the afternoon.

Paula Chace Honored

Among the year's gayest medley of pre-wedding parties concluded last evening with the wedding rehearsal dinner party at Virginia Country Club for Miss Paula Chace and Ralph Irwin Jr. who are to exchange marriage vows in a late afternoon ceremony today at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Chace, 4160 Country Club Dr.

Among affairs which have preceded today's nuptials was a tea and lawn party given by Mrs. Milo Dick at her home, 1061 Burlinghall Dr., with co-hostesses Mrs. Ralph Webster and Mrs. Harold Johnson. Decorations in an exquisite bridal motif were carried out in white and gentle shades of pink. Guests and the hostesses presented Miss Chace with place settings in each of her chosen patterns in china, crystal and silver.

* * * *

ON THE evening of this same August day Miss Patsy Ziegler of Los Angeles and Steven Dewey (her fiance at that time; now her husband since their marriage last week) entertained at a barbecue dinner for both Miss Chace and her fiance at the Ziegler's home. Guests, all sorority sisters and fraternity brothers of the honorees, presented the couple with a barbecue set and incidental equipment. The new Mrs. Dewey, who asked Miss Chace to serve as one of her bridesmaids at her wedding, will, in turn, join the bridal entourage today.

Another in the potpourri of beautiful parties honoring the popular bride-elect was a luncheon and miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Francis Heusel and Mrs. Lowell Hill at the latter's home in Rolling Hills. Guests were seated at tables in the garden, canopied from the bright sun, with its panoramic view of coastline and ocean. While Paula opened her many gifts each of the approximately 50 guests was given a tea towel to hem and embroider with the honoree's initial—an activity that added a fillip to the afternoon and will keep the newlyweds provided with tea towels for a long time to come!

* * * *

A PARTY for family members in honor of both Paula and Ralph was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Chace in their Rolling Hills home with co-hosts Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Chace, Mr. and Mrs. Mertroe Hillinger and Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Sigworth. The informal garden barbecue dinner was mirrored in the clever decorations. Each table was centered by a bride and bridegroom, completely sculptured in vegetables.

Wednesday Mrs. V. Ray Townsend, the bride-elect's sister, honored Paula and her bridesmaids by hostessing the bridesmaids' luncheon at Balboa Bay Club. Present were members of the wedding party, Mmes. Steven Dewey, Robert Wells (nee Mary Calderwood), Melvin Rowan (nee Judy Rupert), Donald Wells, Miss Barbara Tuohy of La Canada and Miss Lois Baker as well as Mrs. Jerry O'Malley, Mrs. Al Sassower, Mrs. Donald Withers and Miss Beverly Davis, who will be assisting hostesses at tonight's reception.

Tuesday Luncheon

Women's Auxiliary to the Typographical Union will combine Charter Day and Union Label party on Tuesday at a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth West, 5980 Stearns St. Mrs. Ruth Sharts, delegate to the international convention recently in San Francisco, will give her report. Charter members will be special guests.

Miss Cottrell Bride

Catherine Cottrell, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John C. Cottrell of Long Beach, was married to a University of Colorado classmate, Robert Anthony Salerno, in a late-afternoon ceremony Aug. 25 in picturesque St. Thomas Aquinas Chapel in Boulder, Colo.

Dr. and Mrs. Cottrell traveled to Colorado for the ceremony, with Dr. Cottrell giving his daughter in marriage. She wore for her wedding a bouffant ballerina-length gown of candlelight chiffon designed with round neckline and jabot of the same fabric. She wore a tiny crown of satin encircled with pink roses and velvet leaves, and carried sweetheart roses.

Miss Linda L. McKinney was the bride's only attendant. She wore a waltz-length gown of bachelor button blue peau de soie with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of champagne carnations.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Salerno of Trinidad, Colo., had Norbert Shew as his best man.

Friends and family members gathered following the ceremony at the Matterhorn to toast the newlyweds at a champagne reception and wedding supper. Hostess was Miss Janet E. Cottrell of San Francisco.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Glenwood Springs, Colo., and will reside in Boulder while both continue studies at the university. The bride, a graduate of Wilson High School here, is a Gamma Phi Beta at U of Colorado. Her husband received early schooling in Trinidad and is a letterman on the university's varsity football team.

Pair Weds in Colorful Rite

Lakewood Village Community Church was the setting when 400 guests attended the afternoon wedding of Miss Mona Kay Haberman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry E. Haberman, 4420 Hazelbrook Ave., and Walter Ray Babcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Babcock, 5802 Parkcrest St.

White satin rope was garlanded from candelabra to baskets of flowers in peony pink tones, matching the rope garlands and flowers on the aisle.

Pure white imported French lace was worn by the bride. The empire bodice of the princess-style grown was accented by velvet which formed a back bow and streamers falling gracefully beyond the chapel train.

Her fingertip-length gown of illusion was caught to a lace double crown adorned with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white butterfly orchids and stephanotis interspersed with velvet leaves and ribbon.

* * * *

FOR HER maid of honor, the bride chose Miss Charlene Anthony of Sidney, Neb. Bridal attendants were Mrs. James P. Nielsen and Misses Judy Cochran, Lynne McColloch, and Betheen Smith.

They were attired in pink satin empire-style gowns with full skirts gathered to a bow at the front hemline. The maid of honor's gown was identical in a vivid peony pink. Velvet and tulle hats trimmed with pearls, and pink baskets of roses in harmonizing shades complemented their gowns.

Little Lida Lockwood, flower girl, wore a frock of white organdy over pink.

The groom asked his brother, Jon, to be best man. Guests were seated by Messrs. Robert Good, Monte Haberman, William Kleese and Robert Mallory. Candlelighters were the bride's young brother, Merrill, and Robert Chaffee.

Solemn wedding vows were recited by Hazelle Gytri Borgerson and Richard Franklin Enarson in a recent double-ring ceremony witnessed by 125 guests in Trinity Lutheran Church. The Rev. Orval Awerkamp officiated.

The bride was escorted to the altar by Fred Lugenbehl. She selected for her nuptials a ballerina-length dress of Chantilly lace over French net. Her shoulder-length veil was caught to a small pearl tiara and she carried a white orchid with stephanotis on a white Bible.

Preceding her down the aisle were her matron of honor, Mrs. Marshall Stonestreet, and her bridesmaid, Mrs. Hank Groff. Both were gowned in mint green taffeta with matching headpieces and shoes and carried white carnation bouquets.

* * * *

THE BRIDEGROOM asked Dr. Marshall Stonestreet to serve him as best man and Jerry Syverson, Dr. Dean Syverson and George Smith to usher.

A champagne reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lugenbehl, 3419 Heather Rd., followed best wishes of guests during a reception in the church parlor. Mrs. Robert Rose assisted the hostess.

'Fanfare of Fashion' Set by Style-Conscious Women

Although Septembers in Southern California often are sizzling, fashion-minded women look with interest to fall apparel, knowing that cooler breezes lurk ahead. Heralding a "Fanfare of Fashion," Long Beach City Panhellenic aims to answer fashion queries at a luncheon and fashion show Sept. 20 in the grand ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel.

Newest fashions from Vinson's will be modeled by both professional models and members of Panhellenic, including Mmes. Jack W. Knowlton, Joseph Kellogg, John Dillard and Weldon H. Long. Wilma Hastings' informative commentary will add a touch of glamour.

An additional fanfare will be initiated at the annual event—the first model of each group of fashions will be escorted by a handsomely attired model from John Norman's Store for Men.

* * * *

FUNDS RAISED by the event, the only Panhellenic money-making project of the year, are used for scholarships given each year to Long Beach-area girls attending Long Beach State College.

Mrs. Jack T. Gentry, general chairman, is being assisted by Mmes. Fred A. Wright, program and music; Joseph Kellogg, ticket distribution; James Shively, reservations; Jack W. Knowlton, awards; John Dollard, decorations; Robert Day, favors, and Richard J. Hoard, junior hostessess.

The junior hostesses, undergraduates of Long Beach State College, are Misses Polli Hoard, Carolyn Hauer, Marilyn Hauer, Marilyn Ankrom, Becky Downes, Paula Turner, Pat Worden, Judy Hamner, Cecilia Moore, Marilyn Wells, Arlene Crowley, Carol Sue Swepston, Marcia Arnold, Barbara Robertson, Roselind Schilling, Barbara Shira, Shirley Graham and Nancy Synisky.

* * * *

AMONG THE honored guests will be the scholarship recipients, Misses Toni Anthony, Carol Morrisset, Jo Ann Leevers and Roberta Pelle.

Other guests will be Dr. Lois J. Swanson, associate dean of student activities at LBSC; Miss Marion Darlington, dean of women, Long Beach City College; and counselors from area high schools, Miss Rosalie Wride, Jordan; Miss Mary McClellan, Lakewood; Mrs. Irmel O. Community Hospital Group Makes Another Big Donation

The Long Beach Community Hospital Auxiliary has donated $1,500 to the hospital. The gift completes the auxiliary's pledge to pay for the furnishings of the lounge and lobby of Community's new convalescent wing.

The auxiliary, organized less than two years ago, has given the hospital more than $6,500 for new equipment and furnishings, says Mrs. Charles Mutter, treasurer. Funds are raised through the operation of a gift shop in the hospital and a Christmas decor tour of four Long Beach homes.

This year's homes tour will be Dec. 4. Mrs. John Worthington, chairman of the tour, announced that three homes have been selected for this year at the present time.

Mrs. Howard Dumm's home, 1052 Andrews Dr., will be the setting for a traditional Christmas. Christmas decorations arranged to blend with an antique setting will be shown at the W. A. Nesbitt home, 4315 Myrtle Ave. A modern Christmas will be portrayed at home of Mrs. Hal Moore, 1105 La Dera Ave.

All of the decorations shown on the tour will be for sale as well as a large number of handicraft gifts made by members of the auxiliary.

Something for the Boys

Ol' Ted Finds Ally in Tourist Battle

By TED KREC

Every time I have devoted this space to scholarly remarks about tourists, I have been brought under fire via the U. S. Mail. Great literary violence has been heaped upon my head by members of the sunglasses - and - flowing - shirt - tail set.

The latest episode was different in only one respect. If you will recall, a few weeks ago I remarked about hideous appearance of so-called sports who travel to Catalina Island. As usual, many of my fans here at the paper stuck their heads inside the door to give me Bronx cheers and other forms of invective, but this time the mail brought a pleasant departure.

A charming lady named Grace Seiger Walton took the time to write a letter and say that she agreed with my viewpoint. I'd like to share parts of her letter with you today.

"My husband and I had just returned from four days over there across the channel and were just fascinated by the variety of 'sport' attire. My good spouse took a sport coat (and wore it) in spite of the fact that I kept warning him that he would look like a freak to the rest of the visitors. So you see—your article brought us much mirth and we immediately recalled the couple coming into the little bar at the St. Catherine in their swim sults. Boy — times have changed over there!"

* * * *

MRS. WALTON continued: "But my real purpose in writing is to mention—if you think the people in Avalon look like a bunch of ill-dressed clowns — you evidently have not been to Disneyland lately!

"That by far is the most complete array of sartorial disgust that I have ever seen gathered in one community. It would take a ream of paper to commentate on the combinations we saw over there last week. But, one couple (dames) fattish - forty-ish-giddyish-dressed in short-shorts with more showing than Sally Rand ever let show beyond her fans."

You are correct in your assumption, dear lady, that I have not been to Disneyland yet. I've been saving that for a time when my spirits are at a low ebb. Usually, I can pick out enough sloppy attire on the streets of Long Beach to fill this column adequately.

However, I would add that I HAVE been to Knott's Berry Farm several times. The most recent trip was a few weeks ago when my wife and I went there for dinner with our two small nieces.

All I can say is that I KNOW what you MEAN! I haven't seen such a collection of apparitions in one spot since the Allied forces burst into the concentration camps in the waning years of World War II.

It seems to me that the management at Knott's used to frown on women frequenting the establishment while attired in shorts—but those days evidently are gone forever. Women of all shapes and sizes stroll the area showing much more skin than sense. And the men? Well, most of them look like they've just been rescued from a sinking at sea!

We ate in the big dining room—where they serve the chicken dinners — and I am forced to admit that the state of dress of most of the patrons reminded me of pictures I have seen of meal time at Devil's Island!

* * * *

I REALIZE that by saying this I am making myself a target for more jibes by the dirty-fingernail-and-uncut-hair set, but I can't understand how people with an ounce of pride in their make-up will be seen in public in such ratty attire.

I'm all for comfort — I don't think you have to wear a business suit for a visit to Disneyland or Knott's or Catalina. There are clothes made expressly for such trips — they are called sport clothes. There's nothing wrong with them, they look wonderful under these circumstances. And most bona-fide sport outfits include a coat for men!

This isn't a quirk on my part — it's just common decency, good manners.

"But this is California!" the alibi artists will wail. To which I reply, "So WHAT?" There isn't a separate etiquette book for California. We're part of the human race, too. And I stand by my guns — I don't care WHO a man is, if he isn't dressed neatly, I know WHAT he is—he's a SLOB!

Newlywed Couple at Home

At home in Woodside this week are Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Johnson (Marguerite McNair). The newlyweds honeymooned in Santa Barbara and Carmel following their recent marriage in St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church, Lakewood.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. McNair, 1641 Marshall Pl., the bride was escorted to the altar by her father where she was met by her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Johnson of Boulder, Colo., for the double-ring rite read by the Rev. Hiram B. Crosby.

* * * *

SHE WAS attired radiantly in a gown of mirra mist taffeta and Chantilly lace styled on empire lines with lace bodice enhanced by Sabrina neckline. The full skirt swept to a chapel train. A French cap of lace and tulle trimmed with pearls held her fingertip-length veil of imported silk illusion, and she carried a cascade of stephanotis surrounding a pair of white orchids. Completing her costume were Oriental pearls and an antique lace handkerchief.

Carol Crosby, childhood friend of the bride, was asked to be her maid of honor, and Diana Ellerbrock, Cecily Carter and Marjorie Coblentz were bridesmaids. They were gowned in pink lace over taffeta in sheath style. Their hats were tiny bands of velvet holding eye-veils and they carried miniature pink roses.

Duties of the best man were performed by the bridegroom's cousin, George Nelson of Longmont, Colo. Ushers were the bride's brother, Martin McNair, Gerald Baden and Frederick Bean.

Among guests at the reception which followed in the church social hall were the bridegroom's parents. His mother selected a gown of powder blue taffeta with lace bodice, while the bride's mother was attired in rose lace with chiffon shoulder drape.

HOSTESSES TO the 200 wedding guests were Miss Kay Corlew who presided at the guest book and Miss Marilyn Tower, Mmes. Waldo Moore, W. H. Carls and John Hueneryager.

East Discard Tip-Off to Opponent

Take a look at the South hand only and put yourself in the place of John Faricy who held it at the Saint Paul Athletic Club.

Mr. Faricy chose to open two diamonds and received the expected two no-trump response. He rebid to three clubs and when North bid three diamonds Mr. Faricy went to seven.

His partner had to have some diamond support and might well hold a doubleton club; or he might have that all important queen of clubs or almost anything else that would make seven diamonds a spread.

West opened the five of hearts and now if you will take a look at the dummy you will see that the North hand was just as bad as the South hand was good.

John took two rounds of trumps and the suit broke. He led his seven of trumps and overtook with dummy's nine and East dropped the three of clubs. John decided that East would not have discarded a club if he held either or both of the club honors and that the only play for the hand would be to drop the queen and jack from the West hand. He led a club and went up with the king. Down came the jack! He led the ace! The queen dropped; Eureka!

Fall Tailoring Course Ready

Modern tailoring techniques for the home seamstress — both the woman who wants to learn to tailor and the dressmaker who would like to streamline her methods — will be offered by May Co. Lakewood in a Fall Tailoring Course opening Sept. 19.

Slated at 1 p. m. and 7:30 p. m., and continuing for six consecutive Friday afternoons and evenings, the lecture-demonstration course is designed to cover all phases of tailoring, from pattern selection to custom finishing details. Each class member will complete a garment of her own choosing during the course.

* * * *

INSTRUCTING the class will be Miss Elizabeth Chapin, nationally recognized sewing authority, who has conducted similar schools in Southern California for many years. Acclaimed for her ability to present sewing techniques in a simplified manner, her methods embody the shortcut methods of the garment industry and the couturier tricks of the professional tailor. She is the author of "Adventures in Sewing," a monthly column of McCall's Fashion Digest and a regular feature of McCall Pattern fashions.

Registrations now are being taken in the pattern dept. of the May Co. Fee for the six-lesson course is $1.50, and early enrollment is advised.

L. B. Story League

First meeting of the club year for the Long Beach Story League will be Monday in the home of Mrs. Earl Heise, 6516 California Ave. The hostess will serve a noon luncheon.

Continuing an 18-year tradition, Grace Schick will show couturier designs obtained during a recent New York buying trip when Group Y of Ebell stages its annual fashion extravaganza and luncheon Friday noon in Ebell Clubhouse. Among members who will show the fashionable couture designs are, from left, Mmes. Lewis Van Winkle, John A. Harris, E. M. Findlay and John O. McDonald. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. McDonald, reservations chairman, or any member.

AUTUMN HUES IN SHOW DECOR

Roscoe Howell, Group Y chairman (pictured far left), will greet members and guests as they arrive. Assisting in show arrangements are (left to right) Mmes. King C. Light, H. L. Beckley, Foster G. Strong and Will H. Winston. Not pictured are committee members, Mmes. Robert N. Rothenbach, Merton Betts Smith, J. Paul Walker, Homer D. Redford and M. A. Sneed.—(Staff photos.)

Knit Fashion Show Slated

Knitting is no longer just a useful way to pass the time of day, but a clear road to fashion 1958. In fact, knitwear is such a vital part of the fall fashion picture that one of the country's leading yarn firms will have a special representative at Buffums' department store Monday and Tuesday.

Bernat yarn stylist Charlene Moynahan will present a collection of the latest and smartest hand-knit fashions and give tips on new ways with color and yarn.

* * * *

YOUNG KNITTERS will receive encouragement in the handicraft with a special group of styles designed for what Bernat terms the "Almost Teens," girls from 8 to 14 years.

Mohair blends and quick-and-easy bulky knits in high fashion shades also will hold a prominent place in the display.

Council Meeting

Regina Coeli Council Seven, Lakewood Ladies of Columbus, will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in St. Cornelius Hall, 3330 Bellflower Blvd. Mrs. George Glade will preside.

Dear Abby

The Reluctant Bridesmaid

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am in a spot and don't know what to do.

My friend (we grew up next door to each other) is getting married in November and she asked me to be a bridesmaid. She's been engaged to this fellow for three years and all the time she went with him she has been sneaking out to go with others. I don't respect her and really don't want to be a bridesmaid at her wedding because I know too much about her. She says she is marrying him for security and will learn to love him after they are married. How can I get out of being her bridesmaid after I said yes?

ABBY

—ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Merely "growing up" with someone doesn't constitute a friendship. Tell her you have changed your mind—and tell her why.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a very irritating habit of reading in bed before going to sleep. If you've ever tried to sleep with the light shining in your face you will realize my problem. In my job I am on 24-hour call and I could use the extra sleep. Should I burn the magazines or sleep in the doghouse?

—SLEEPY IRENE

DEAR SLEEPY: Neither! Get a bed-light that shoots a beam of light, or buy eyeshades for yourself. Goodnight, Irene!

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: We have a very stingy aunt who accepts dinner invitations from all the relatives, but never invites anyone to her home. Last Christmas she won a turkey in a raffle and it only weighed 12 pounds and she had the nerve to invite 36 people to her house for turkey. All she served with it was cranberry sauce and garlic bread. She has been the talk of the whole family ever since. My husband says we should invite her anyway and overlook her stinginess. Do you think he is right or not? I say she should stay home if she can't entertain others like they entertain her. She is in better financial shape than any of the rest of us, so that's no excuse.

—A NIECE

DEAR NIECE: Life is too short to bear a grudge over anything so insignificant as what was served at a party. Next time offer to "help" her and talk enough "turkey" to her to feed everybody.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl of 17 and I think I have a problem. I have been seeing this guy who is 19 but he says he doesn't want to go steady. He told me he loves me and I know I am in love with him. He told me he didn't want to see too much of me because he doesn't want to get sick of me. After telling me this he put me on a bus to go home and didn't say when he would call me. Do you think he meant it when he said he loved me? I want to know what to do.

—LOSS OF WORDS

DEAR LOSS: If this fellow loves anything—it's his own freedom. Don't take him seriously.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed for six years and now have an opportunity to remarry. I understand that there is a new state law which gives the husband half his wife's assets. My husband's insurance, holdings and properties add up to about $30,000. This is a lot of money and all I have in the world. I am not saying this man who asked to marry me is marrying me for my money but I know he isn't as well off as I am. I like this man, but I am not sure I like him $30,000 worth. Should I talk it over with him and ask him if he is counting on this law or what? —QUESTIONING

DEAR QUESTIONING: Talk to a lawyer about drawing up a prenuptial agreement. If your husband is not marrying you for your money he won't mind putting it in writing.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EXHAUSTED": Prosperity is just around the coronary. Slow up.

Major & Minor Notes

By RACHEL MORTON

The Hollywood Bowl season of 1958 has come and gone. In its 37 years of existence this has been the most successful season of them all, both in attendance and in the outstanding musical quality of its programs.

Thirty concerts were given with a total attendance of 335,000. (It is interesting to note that the symphonic programs greatly outnumbered the popular programs in attendance!)

It has been a season uncommonly rich in glorious achievement. This must mean that there has been on the board of directors this year an unusual group of men and women with an uncanny ability for selecting the very finest of musical material, for the finest it has been.

* * * *

WE HAVE HAD some of the greatest conductors—Georg Solti, William Steinberg and Andre Kostelanetz whose performances were notable.

For variety and tremendous undertaking I must hand the palm to Eugene Ormandy. Steadily his great ability unfolded. His is a talent not at first appreciated. But his conducting of the Brahm's Symphony No. 1 was one of the most stirring performances of the whole summer. And he climaxed a brilliant season with an electrifying performance of Verdi's "Requiem" in company with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, the Roger Wagner Chorale and four great singers.

The two soloists who filled the Bowl to capacity were Jascha Heifetz, violinist, and Van Cliburn, pianist, the latter filling it twice. These two artists possess in common that rare gift, GENIUS. And although she did not fill the Bowl, Guiomar Novaes, pianist, belongs also in that category for she, too, is a genius. There were memorable performances by Rudolf Serkin, pianist, and John Browning, pianist.

* * * *

OF THE SINGERS, we had several who thrilled the vast crowds. George London, basso, made us live again the glories of the great days of the past when Chaliapin, Plancon and Edward de Reszke thrilled with their great voices.

Leontyne Price in two performances showed herself to be not only an operatic singer of great ability but as an oratorio singer she displayed a voice of unique beauty and a reverent understanding of the oratorio style. Her singing in the Verdi's Requiem will never be forgotten.

Jennie Tourel, soprano, gave great pleasure with a magnificent voice, superbly handled. Hers is singing in the grand manner.

Of the coloratura's, Erika Koeth stands high in our musical regard. She not only sings beautifully, she is a great artist.

The Opera Night with Wilfrid Pellitier conducting, brought out an amazing mezzo-soprano, Irene Dalis, whose opulent voice flooded the great amphitheater.

* * * *

AS I HAVE SAT through the beautiful summer nights listening to this gorgeous music, this thought has often come to me. With an average attendance of 15,000 people, with such a magnificent orchestra as the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, with a chorus, unsurpassed as is the Roger Wagner Chorale, with singers and conductors of the caliber we have been hearing, WHY oh WHY cannot Los Angeles have a regular opera company? Not for a six-week season and not in any auditorium. But for a six-month season and in a magnificent new opera house worthy of our Southland.

Certainly it has been proven with our summer Bowl concerts and with our short opera season that the people of this area are hungry for good music. And they are willing to pay for it too, judging by the huge audiences we have witnessed.

If politics or apathy stand in the way, why do not our rich, civic-minded citizens form a private organization, buy a site and build an opera house? The Hollywood Bowl now is a going concern, a great success. It should be a forerunner of an even greater undertaking. It is not an impossible idea. All the European cities manage it and they are not rich as we are rich. With such an opera company there would be opportunity for our young talent, employment for many and cultural outlets for us all. Los Angeles might well lead America in a grand new way of achievement.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Adm. Long Brings Recipe for Filet

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.P-T Home Economics Editor

He's known as the SOPA. To you landlubbers, that means Senior Officer Present Afloat. Today's Chef of the Week, Rear Adm. Victor Dismukes Long, also is Commander, Mine Force, Pacific Fleet, Long Beach-Los Angeles areas.

Never having been at the Naval Academy as a student—only as a tourist—this writer is not sure if one can major in the "department of screening." But if you CAN, he DID. His success at "operation screening" of fast carrier and escort groups during World War II, saved the lives of hundreds of our Navy men. In fact, Long is the proud possessor of a Silver Star, a Gold Star and the Legion of Merit for his work as screen commander in planning and directing operations against the enemy in various Pacific areas.

Not only was he lauded for "operating efficiently and effectively for extended periods of time in dangerous hostile waters . . . ", he rendered outstanding service in rescuing 348 men from a sinking escort carrier and from planes which had been forced to make water landings.

Eastern born, the admiral attended Central High School and Columbian (Schadman's) Preparatory School in Washington, D. C., prior to his appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy from Mississippi in June 1921.

* * * *

AS A MIDSHIPMAN, he played class football and soccer, and was a member of the varsity crew four years.

Since leaving Annapolis, he has guided the destiny of battleships, destroyers and minesweepers, and has executed behind-the-desk terra firma operations in the Office of Naval Communications. He has had a tour of duty in the executive department at the Naval Academy, and has served as aide to the commander in chief of the U.S. fleet.

Long's background is rich in other Navy lore, too. In October 1945, he was designated assistant chief of staff (administrative) to the commander in chief, U.S. Pacific Fleet. He served in that capacity until ordered to the National War College, Washington, D. C., for instruction.

Graduating in 1948, he assumed command of the USS Macon, but came ashore in 1951 as assistant director for Joint Staff Matters, Logistic Plans Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Logistics), Navy Department. He later became director of this operation.

Following his command of an amphibious group in the Eastern Pacific, he assumed his present command as senior officer at the U.S. Naval Station, Long Beach.

WHEN THE admiral is not "at sea," he likes to exchange sea breezes for land breezes . . . the "hot air" of the golf course. When he does have a few stolen moments, he'll invariably go for a boat ride, though he is also a devoted winter sports enthusiast. He also finds time to be active in the Long Beach Rotary Club.

Our "Chef" indulges in the usual masculine domestic puttering, but is purely the amateur when it comes to repair maintenance. Possessor of a rare humor, he's also a top-flight diplomat. He'll admit readily that he's a spoiled husband and Dad, and that Mrs. Long is the best cook ever. His (or her) recipe today is for Charcoal Broiled Filet Mignon.

CHARCOAL BROILED FILET MIGNON
Choice beef filets, at least 1½ inches thick
Butter
Garlic salt
Onion salt
Salt and pepper

Place steaks on grill over charcoal fire which has been lighted about one hour previously so that all the charcoal is gray. Sear for 2 or 3 minutes, then turn. Immediately season the side which has just been seared, working rapidly as follows: Take small pat of butter and spread evenly over whole surface as it melts; sprinkle salt (rather liberally) and pepper; sprinkle garlic salt and onion salt to taste (I prefer to use sparingly). Then immediately turn the steaks, and similarly apply the above seasoning to the other side. About 5 minutes AFTER TURNING, turn again and broil for 4-5 more minutes. If you like your steaks other than rare to medium rare (heaven forbid!) increase the last-mentioned cooking periods, but NOT the searing time.

Serve immediately. (Note to amateur chefs—the above is practically foolproof, because it's almost impossible to spoil a really good piece of beef!)

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Togetherness Has Gone

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is very busy. He works nine hours a day. He is good as gold. He brings home a pay check every week, and I take care of the bills. We go to church every Sunday — the church of his choice, but I like it, too.

I can have the car when I want it. We've bought a house and remodeled it. I think we've done very well to be only 20 years old.

My worry is that he is getting "settled." He doesn't care for a dimly lit room, or romantic settings. He used to have a big kiss for me when he returned from work. Now I get a peck. Is he taking me for granted—or am I being foolish?

We've always done everything together until now. Now I stay home. What's the answer?—MRS. C. W.

DEAR MRS. C. W.:

You've answered your own question. You simply aren't doing enough things together. One of the strongest bonds between husband and wife (even 20-year-old ones) is mutual interests.

Can't you have a card club, you both enjoy, or a bowling group, a square-dance group, a potluck party club—oh, it doesn't matter what it is, just so it is interesting and exciting to both of you.

Keep this in mind, won't you?—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been going steady with Bob for two years now—ever since he was 19 and I was 16. We plan on marriage when I graduate, but we argue over little things. For instance, if he wants to go some place and I don't want him to, he gets furious.

He calls every night, but recently we disagreed, and he hung up. I told him later that he'd better NEVER do that again.

Last night he did. What would you do in my place NOW?—HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN:

This is one case where a dose of his own medicine wouldn't hurt him at all. He'll probably call you back—probably he already has—so the next time there's an argument show him what it feels like to be hung up on.

And stop being "heartbroken" over little arguments. You'll find that some of the little ones turn to "big ones" after you're married.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

A friend of mine has a 14-year-old brother who was accidentally shot in the leg last spring and will be getting a wooden leg soon. If some of your kind readers would drop him a card, I know this would cheer him. He is Jerry Rahlf, Binford, N. D. — A READER

To Build 313 Homes Here on Part of Bixby Ranch

FOR LONG BEACH COLLEGE ESTATES
Shown is an artist's rendering of the recreational park to be reserved for the exclusive use of the residents of Long Beach Estates, S. & S. Construction Co.'s residential project to be constructed at 7th St. and Studebaker Rd.

A new prestige residential subdivision of 313 custom-styled homes, all in the city of Long Beach, will be developed on the historic Bixby Ranch, it was announced Saturday by officials of the S. and S. Construction Co.

A spacious, private recreational park, reserved for exclusive use of residents of the development, will be included.

To be known as Long Beach College Estates, the homes will be on the acreage north of 7th St. running to Anaheim St. and east of Studebaker Rd.

* * * *

THE ENTIRE development will be enclosed by a block wall, 6 feet high, and the park land alone, with its facilities, represents an expenditure of over $100,000, it was noted. Plans also include a proposed future bath house and swimming pool to be reserved for the community's residents.

Located on one of the last remaining sections of the Bixby Ranch, Long Beach College Estates is situated close to where one of the new Garden Grove Freeway's major cloverleaves will be placed at the junction of 7th St. and Studebaker Rd. Studebaker is to be widened, officials said, and to become one of the area's major thoroughfares.

The S. and S. development was purchased from the Bixby Ranch Co., which retained, for future development into a large community center for shopping, professional, medical and business structures, a portion of land located at Anaheim St. and Studebaker Rd.

This building firm brings to Long Beach College Estates experience gained through construction of more than 3,000 attractively styled, substantially built homes in the Norwalk, Whittier and Long Beach areas. Almost without exception, S. and S. Construction communities have sold out even before completion.

Spacious residences in this new development will offer VA, FHA and conventional financing, officials said.

Immediately west of Studebaker Rd. is the huge new Long Beach State College.

The site was sold with restrictions which will assure lasting values, the spokesman pointed out.

14-Mile Road Is Set for Gruelling Test

OTTAWA, Ill. (UPI) — A group of soldiers this fall will start driving 60 trucks 16 million miles—all on a 14-mile-long test road.

Taking turns, they'll be behind the wheels of their fully-loaded trucks 17 hours a day, six days a week, for two years.

By the time they're finished, the trucks will have accumulated enough mileage to have traveled to the moon 66 times.

And highway officials hope they will have compiled data which will have a "tremendous impact" on the future design and construction of roads and bridges.

* * * *

THE TEST, complete with an electronic computer to record its findings, will be sponsored by the American Association of State Highway Officials and administered by the Highway Research Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

The soldiers—about 300 of them—will be from Fort Eustis, Va.

Their trucks will be loaded with up to 48,000 pounds of concrete blocks in order to give the test strip an unprecedented beating that will uncover its weak and strong points.

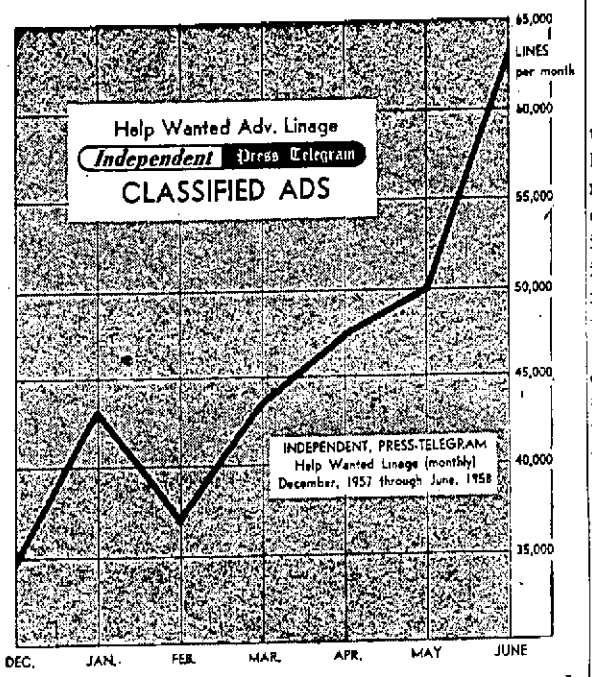

* * * *

MORE THAN 8,000 measuring devices will be on, in, or under the pavement to provide detailed information on the day-to-day behavior of such a road under heavy-volume traffic.

Ironically, the electronic brain being used in this monumental project is one of the tiniest of the electronic marvels. It's the Bendix G15D general purpose digtal computer, comparing in size to two filing cabinets.

But without this computer and other electronic devices being used, the test would produce staggering quantities of records and the money and time required to figure them out would be prohibitive. As it is, the project will cost 22 million dollars.

Help Wanted Ads Show L. B. Economy

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM help wanted ads are a barometer of business conditions in the Long Beach area. An economic letdown means help wanted advertising slumps and when conditions improve, the advertising climbs. This graph shows the steady improvement in conditions here since last December, with the exception of February. In May alone there was a great upward swing with nearly 64,000 lines of help wanted ads in the I, P-T. And, the trend is continuing into the fall months, department officials report.

Throngs of Viewers at Windsor Greens

Announcement of its new $28,750 price brought throngs of new home buyers out to Windsor Greens according to James Pelton, builder-developer. Luxury-minded families were greatly appreciative of the value offered by the new price.

On sites appraised at $10,000 Windsor Green homes boast a picturesque city-suburban location immediately adjoining the park-like grounds of Lakewood Country Club Estates at Carson St. between Lakewood Blvd. and Cherry Ave.

* * * *

ENCHANCING the exterior of these luxury homes is the enclosed private entrance court containing a secluded garden. The interior decor boasts such features as stone or brick floor-to-ceiling fireplace, fully panelled living room walls, and sliding walls of glass. A kitchen fully equipped with over $2,000 worth of the latest in modern built-ins is carefully designed for the leisure loving. Included are an electric range and oven in color, automatic dishwasher and disposal, copper-tone range hood and fan, natural wood cabinets.

* * * *

These 3 and 4-bedroom luxury homes offer either a family room or a convertible den and all have 2½ baths with colored fixtures, marble pullmans and ceramic tile.

The builder will cooperate making immediate occupancy available for those who wish to be settled before school starts. Windsor Green homes may be purchased for as little as $3,975 down.

National Realty Man to Speak

Larry Miller, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, announced that Steve Spindell, program chairman for September, has engaged Emerson Smith, field executive of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, to, be the speaker at the "Early-Bird" Breakfast meeting Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel.

EMERSON SMITH
Booked for Breakfast Meeting

Smith travels from the headquarters office in Chicago. During his visit, Smith will meet with the officers of the Long Beach Board and will be guest at a luncheon at the board office.

Prior to his service with the association, Smith was an active realtor in Kingsport, Tenn. In 1956 he served as president of his local board and as a vice president of the Tennessee Assn. of Realtors. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee and during World War II served with the Navy in the Pacific area.

New N. L. B. Industrial Tract Getting Fourth Big Building

CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY
Construction has started on this 14,000-square-foot, tilt-up concrete, light manufacturing plant in the Familian Industrial Tract on 59th St. at Downey Ave. in North Long Beach, which is offered for lease by Bill Brooks, Industrial Realtor, exclusive agent.

Construction has started on the fourth light manufacturing building in the $2,000,000 Familian Industrial Tract, located on 59th St. and Downey Ave. in North Long Beach, according to Bill Brooks, industrial realtor, exclusive agent for the tract.

This tilt-up concrete building of 14,000 square feet will be similar in design to the three already completed and occupied. It is located on a one-acre site with attractive landscaping in front and the entire property will be paved and fenced. It is offered for lease to light manufacturing firms.

TWO OF THE completed buildings are occupied by Omega Design Associates. One building is used for the manufacture of tools, dies, jigs, fixtures and machine parts for aircraft and other industries. The second building, which has just recently been completed, is used for special machinery design and automation.

The third building is occupied by Scholle Long Beach Corp., a division of Scholle Chemical Corp. of Chicago, and is used for the packaging of battery fluid, which is distributed throughout Southern California.

* * * *

WHEN the Familian Industrial Tract of 17 acres is completed it is planned to have 15 buildings which will have an investment in plant and equipment in excess of $2,000,000 to add to the Long Beach tax rolls, Brooks pointed out.

The buildings are being constructed by Svend Birklund, contractor, and the leases are being negotiated by Brooks, agent for the owner, George Familian.

Pollen Count

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—During the hayfever season, about one million tons of ragweed pollen is in the air over the United States, according to Prof. Warren H. Wagner, Jr., botanist at the University of Michigan. He estimates that ragweed accounts for about 90 per cent of all pollen in the air.

Build Model for Marina Tower Apt.

First public preview of luxurious Marina Tower display model residence at 3055 E. Ocean Blvd. will be held next Sunday, it was announced by E. T. Moore of Moore Realty, sales agents for the ocean-front cooperative.

Containing nearly 3,300 square feet of living space, including spacious patio-terrace, the residence is an exact duplicate of one of the 44 units that will comprise the $3,000,000 Marina Tower. The model occupies half of the frontage of the 155x200-foot lot on which the 12-story tower structure will be built; the display residence will be moved from the property when construction of the tower begins.

Designed by the architectural firm of Killingsworth-Brady-Smith, the residence features a 36-foot living room with a double-exposure of sliding glass exterior walls for an unobstructed panoramic view of the ocean.

Q: Why have we reduced Windsor Greens homes $2,000?

A: No one just recklessly gives away money. Then why have we posted a new price sign on Windsor Greens homes, more than $2,000 under the original figure recently announced in these pages? And how honest was the original price to begin with?

The original price (from $31,000) was an eminently honest one. It was based on the impartial appraisal by a very fine lending institution, which is actually making loans to Windsor Greens residents on the basis of that appraisal. What's more, a later appraisal indicated that these homes had actually increased in value with the continued development of the Lakewood Country Club Estates, in which Windsor Greens is located.

My decision to lower the purchase price, effective immediately, to $28,750 for the same model is simply a wise business move on my part. I am a builder. Where you pay interest money on your one home, I must pay interest on all homes I build, from the day construction starts until the day they are sold. True, property surveys indicate that rather than lowering my prices, I could command five or six thousand dollars more for my few remaining Windsor Greens homes in the near future. But it just isn't good business to let completed homes wait for buyers, even for a few weeks. To continue my building activities, both in this area and elsewhere, it is to my advantage to forego future profits for instant cashout.

Strangely enough, experience proves that home buyers who take quick advantage of a profit situation like this are persons who need the savings least. I feel certain that I could run this ad in the Wall Street Journal and dispose of the few remaining homes quickly to investors in search of potential profit. This I have no desire to do. The many Windsor Greens residents, who paid me full price for their homes, selected this community for its lovely, pleasant living values — not for quick speculation. I respect this trust. I prefer to be the one — not some speculator — to decide what families qualify to be their neighbors.

So I address this message to families who seek the finest home and the nicest suburban environment possible. I invite you to select a Windsor Greens home for these most important reasons. Let the $2,000 you save be a happy windfall, to make your family's living at Windsor Greens all the more pleasurable.

Ball Manor Homes Are Selling Fast

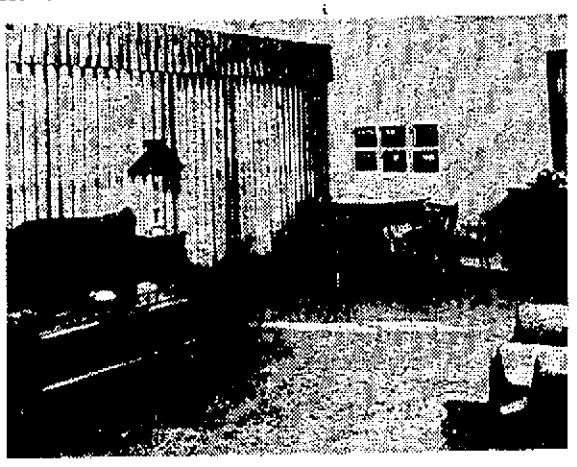

Laramore Construction Co. announced that Ball Manor in Anaheim, near Disneyland, is over three-fourths sold. Company officials anticipate that increased sales will complete the full occupancy soon.

Frank H. McFarland, sales agent, reports that recent buyers find excellent commuting facilities via Santa Ana Freeway and year-round family advantages at this new suburban location. Neighborhood schools and Broadway shopping center are nearby; driving distances are easy from metropolitan areas; beach and mountain playgrounds are within minutes.

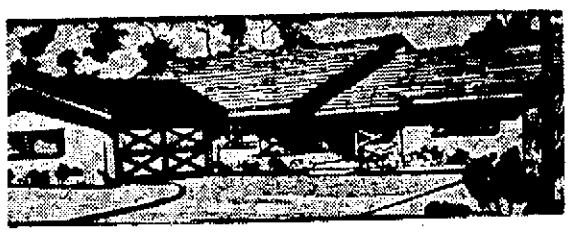

Three family-planned models emphasize spaciousness and home-economy. It is stated that average income families prevail throughout these $12,950 homes which offer over 1300 square feet of modern construction plus double garages. Open perspective living rooms display a choice of adjoining studies or dining areas. Efficiently designed kitchens contain snack bars or nooks, hardwood cabinets, Formica sinks with disposals and compact utility space. Three to 4 large bedrooms and 1½ or 2 baths complete the plans.

Fourteen different elevations are examples of provincial or contemporary architecture with brick wainscotting and planters, garden-patio areas. Terms are as low as $195 down and $90 move-in costs with no due dates or balloon payments.

Visitors are welcome from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily and will find Ball Manor homes are an easy drive from Long Beach by taking Carson-Lincoln to Santa Ana Freeway south to Ball Rd., turnoff and west to the models.

BUILT BY LARAMORE
Here is a living room in one of the Ball Manor Homes, built by Laramore Construction Co., which expects a sell-out shortly.

$195 DOWN NEEDED
Magnolia Manor Unit 7 is offering homes such as this to non-veterans for as little as $195 down and $90 move-in costs. They are built by Laramore Construction Co.

Magnolia Manor's Unit 7 Terms Low for Non-Vets

Two miles south of Disneyland, and a few blocks west of Harbor Blvd. in western Orange County, is a planned community of rare provincial style homes, set on wide lots, well back from the street. This community is Magnolia Manor No. 7, and one of many such developments designed and built by the Laramore Construction Co.

Here, according to Frank H. McFarland, sales agent, hundreds of families have found the relaxed pleasure of semi-rural living, close to the business districts in both Santa Ana, Garden Grove and Westminster. Through a unique financing plan, calling for a down payment of just $195 for non-vets and only $90 move-in costs with no balloon payments or due dates, families have been able to transplant their future into a new environment.

IT IS SELDOM that home buyers can find large, spacious, conventionally constructed homes of more than 1300 square feet of living space and as many as 4 bedrooms and 2 baths, at these terms, McFarland points out.

Magnolia Manor Unit 7 was designed with growing families in mind. Close to schools, recreation and shopping, the homes also boast a location convenient to year round employment.

Driving from the Long Beach area go east on 7th Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Huntington Beach Blvd., south to Westminster then east to models.

Frank B. Lee, who has been with General Electric since 1930 in the lamp division, both in development and field application, will be in charge of the tour and demonstration. He is chairman of the Southern California Section of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

Rail Line Calls Men Back to Jobs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Erie railroad will recall 100 employes to work on a program of reconditioning freight cars in anticipation of an upturn in carloadings later this year. Work is expected to start Sept. 15 at Meadville, Pa.

Harry von Willer, Erie president, said this was the first major maintenance undertaken by the railroad in more than a year.

Lemon Heights Homes Finding Market

Spacious, custom designed residences at Lemon Heights West No. 2 Schwartz-Yedor's community in the exclusive Lemon Heights District of suburban Santa Ana, are well over 50 per cent sold, according to Tom Yedor.

Winners of the "House and Home" 1958 Merit Award, Schwart-Yedor has also been awarded McCall's "Congress on Better Living Certificate" for good design and ease of family living. Luxury appointments and custom detailing that won the firm such awards have been incorporated in this distinctive group of custom homes.

Encompassing an actual living area of 2,200 square feet, spacious residences offer an unusually wide selection of diverse architectural stylings and family-flexible plans, all designed by George Vernon Russell, AIA, and available with 3 and 4 bedrooms and 3 baths.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH PRICES will increase on Sept. 10, at present they are fully priced from just $32,750, Yedor explained.

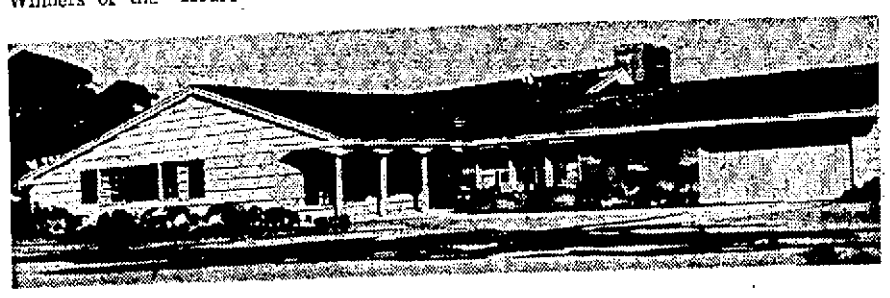

In this "Custom Series" are to be found such unusual appointments as sunken playrooms, separate dining rooms as well as dining areas, family rooms, powder rooms and master bedrooms with private baths.

Built-in appliances, each selected from the tops in their field, and all included in the price of the homes, list such convenient attractions as built-in wall oven, tabletop range, automatic dishwasher, waste disposer, combination refrigerator-freezer, washer, dryer and a built-in Hi-Fi intercom system.

* * * *

OTHER ATTRACTIONS include magnificent custom-style fireplaces, Hi-Fi-wiring and properly engineered heating and air conditioning.

Furnished models with decor by Newton S. Leichter, are on display. From Long Beach, the homes are reached by driving Pacific Coast Hwy. to Bay Blvd. (at Seal Beach), north to Westminster Ave. (becomes 17th St.) and east through Santa Ana to Hewes Ave. Then north on Hewes to Spaulding and west to the homes. Or, take Garden Grove Blvd. to Main St., Santa Ana. Jog right, then left on 17th St. as above.

IN LEMON HEIGHTS WEST NO. 2
Pictured is one of the many highly individual exterior stylings at Lemon Heights West No. 2, Schwartz-Yedor's new prestige community of custom residences. Spacious residences encompass 2,200 square feet of actual interior living area, and offer three and four bedrooms with three baths.

Four Speakers at Realty Club

Four speakers will be on the program for the North Long Beach Real Estate Club breakfast Thursday morning at Mayo's Restaurant, Mickey Bemis, president, announced.

They will be: John Goeglein, loan consultant and instructor in real estate appraising; Gene Hoffman, appraiser and instructor; Oliver Speraw, sales manager and teacher of real estate procedures and building construction, and Keith James, coordinator of City College and member of the California Real Estate Education and Research Committee.

Low Monthly Payments on Artesia Park Homes

No down payment is necessary for qualified veterans to move into Artesia Park Homes, it was announced by Jim Young, vice-president of Brighton-Bilt Homes.

"A low down payment will cover necessary costs and impounds while low monthly payments from $72, principle and interest, make owning these quality 3-bedroom, 2-bath, 2-car garage homes less expensive than paying rent for an apartment," ocmmented Young. Artesia Park Homes are also available on attractive FHA terms for non-vets.

Over $256,000 worth of homes were sold in the first two weeks at Artesia Park as a result of the strong combination of low monthly payments, luxury features and extra-large lots, in a convenient location.

* * * *

COMBINING a feeling of spaciousness with a minimum of wasted movement, the all-gas "Freedom-Kitchens" feature built-in range and oven with quiet exhaust fan over the range, deluxe silent garbage disposals and natural finish cabinets.

Extra large lots allow more than adequate room for swimming pools, play areas and extensive landscaping. All walks, streets and improvements are in and paid for.

Conveniently located in the Artesia-Lakewood area, Artesia Park is close to major shopping centers, schools, freeways, recreation centers and minutes from the beach.

To reach Artesia Park, drive north on Lakewood to Carson, right on Carson to Pioneer then left (north) on Pioneer to Del Amo and furnished models.

I'M THE LUCKIEST KID IN THE WORLD!

Take today! I had a golf lesson from Betty Hicks—she's the head pro at Los Coyotes Country Club—and then I played 18 holes of golf with my older sister. I beat her, so she took me to lunch at the Country Club. Then after a couple of sets of tennis at the Recreation Center, we both had diving lessons from Pat McCormick, Director of Diving. Then I went swimming, while Sis walked home to get prettied up for the Country Club dance tonight. And I've got a date at the Teen Center, where the gang and I are gonna dance to a name band. Sis and I are sure glad Dad bought us a house in Bellehurst. Ours is the prettiest home you've ever seen, and are the rooms huge! Would you believe it—Dad paid only $500 down and we moved right in. Let me tell you, living in Bellehurst is like having vacation all year long, only you never had vacations this good anywhere.

OUR COVER

Brilliant hues of autumn dramatize the vista looking north at Lake McDonald in Glacier National Park in the full-color scene on today's Southland cover. Ironically, national park travel dwindles in the fall, just when the reservations of natural beauty are bedecked in their finest tones. Officials of Glacier, Yellowstone, Yosemite, Sequoia and Kings Canyon Parks, among others, this year have hung out a special welcome sign for autumn travelers. These visitors will find many park improvements completed or under way as the National Park Service pushes ahead with its "Mission 66" program. An article on Page 7 will bring you up to date on dramatic plans to make your stay in the out-of-doors more enjoyable.

NEXT WEEK

While taking a few days off from a special writing assignment in Europe, former Independent, Press-Telegram newsman Jim Phelan visited a group of islands off the coast of Spain. He was amazed when a barber there charged him 15 cents for a haircut, positively flabbergasted a few minutes later when he paid the same price for an excellent dry martini with TWO olives. He spent the next day or two looking into these people and their way of life. Next week he will tell you about them in a most absorbing story called "The Improbable Islands." Whether you do your traveling in a modern jet plane, a ship or an armchair, we bet you'll enjoy it!

Glamour Garb for Adam's Apple

By Jack B. Kemmerer

DOWN through the ages man has glamorized his Adam's apple and, Hollywood informality to the contrary, no gentleman's ever really dressed, sir, until he has knotted a hunk of something or other around his neck.

Necktie history goes as far back as man himself, running the gamut of teeth and bones of savage beasts, bits of metal, swathings of linens and brocades, lace and pleated ruffs, strips of silk, rayon, nylon, wool, leather and fabric blends —some somber black, some pure white and some brilliant with color.

Tracing the path of the ordinary necktie spans many years of world history.

THE CROAT TROOPS, who came to France as mercenaries in 1600, brought the first bright colored fancy neckpieces with them. During the Thirty Years War their neckpieces were adopted and called cravats after the Croats. The cravat was introduced into England by Charles II in 1660 after his return from exile at the French court. Charles II loved ties so much that he was known to have paid as high as $600 for a single tie.

The fashion of wearing cravats was brought to a sudden end by the French Revolution. Wearing of a cravat then was enough to make one suspected of being an aristocrat. Only Robespierre and his friends were allowed to wear ties.

According to Byron, the undisputed leader in London fashion in the early 17th century was Beau Brummell, who dressed as if it were a sacred ceremony, climaxed by the knotting of his white tie. The Prince Regent, later George IV, would often come to witness the ceremony.

Napoleon, who always wore a black tie, went strictly formal to the Battle of Waterloo in 1815 for he is said to have worn a white tie.

During the Napoleonic wars in the late 18th century, red faces were considered an indication of great health. Frequently ties were pulled tight to make the face flush. It also made the wearer's eyes protrude like a frog's. This is reputed to be the origin of the name "Frog" as applied to the French.

In 1823, the French had a special type of tie for the heavy eaters which was called "gastronomical." It was loosely arranged and unstarched so that it would not interfere with the enjoyment of dinner. The color was pink like a boiled ham.

COLLARS AND TIES made of steel were issued to officers of the U. S. Marines in the early 1800's as a protection in warfare. At the same time, enlisted men were issued leather collars, and that gave the nickname, "Leathernecks," which still persists.

During the late 17th century the cravat worn with several windings around the neck was credited with saving many officers from sabre cuts.

The polka dot is the earliest known design to have been used in neckwear. It is supposed to have been a tribute to the Sun God. During the reign of Louis XIV bow ties made of lace were popular, the larger the better.

THE CRAVAT was still enormous in 1800 and covered the chin in the manner common at the time of the "Incroyables," a fashionable set of British dandies. It usually consisted of a square piece of cloth folded in triangular fashion and passed around the neck several times. About 1815 the high-peaked, starched-shirt collar, the ends of which stuck up around the wearer's cheeks, was worn with a white cravat lightly folded. Neckties were either arranged by the wearer or were made up; in the latter case they were fashioned at the back. George IV introduced the first ready-made cravat in 1829. It became known as the "Royal George" tie.

Long ties began to be worn about 1840. They were passed around the neck twice, and hung down in broad expanse which sometimes completely covered the shirt front. They were either arranged with pins or purchased ready made.

In 1850, turned down collars became fashionable and were worn with neckties tied in a loose, broad bow in the manner which has been affected by artists, but by 1860 the necktie was very much reduced in size, becoming no more than a narrow band with a tiny bow, which was usually made up. And then, about 1890, neckties reverted to a flowing artistic appearance.

Dandy of 1850 enjoys cup of chocolate. He's wearing combination of stock collar and tie of the era.

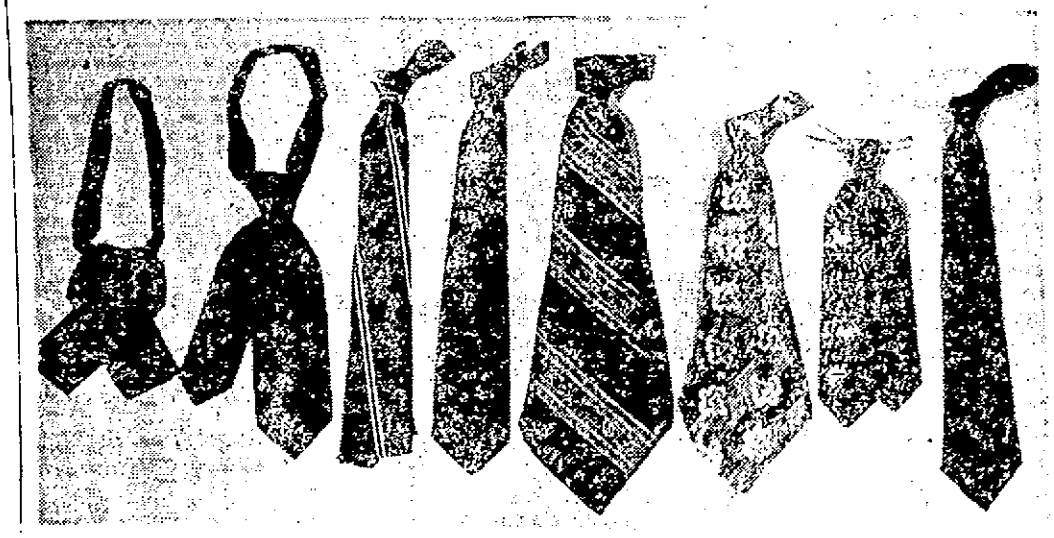

THE LONG TIE worn in the Nineties was similar in character to that customary today.

Two of the most important forms of ties were introduced in 1914; the butterfly bow and the long tie with the sailor's knot, both of which are still worn.

As late as 1865 there were practically no neckwear manufacturers in the United States, the largest percentage of ties being imported. But, in 1951, the American tie industry manufactured more than 200 million dollars worth of ties, using 37 million yards of tie fabrics, 500 million yards of thread, 10 million yards of lining and 171 million labels. The new crop of ties for this year includes 100,000 color combinations and 40,000 different patterns.

One of the most important inventions concerning ties came in 1920 when Jesse Langsdorff worked out a resilient construction using a floating stitch which permits the tie to spring back into shape after knotting. It also reduced the hazard of tearing the tie when pulled out of the collar.

Hence, each man who steps before the mirror to knot his tie in the morning is following an ages-old precedent, and his action is passing tradition along to future generations.

Left, 1880 tie known as the "flat"; next, band-teck of about 1898; narrower ties in vogue in early 1900's; flowing end, four-in-hand and fancy brocade of World War I; shield-teck of 1919, and, last, narrow four-in-hand of 1921.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: We secretly hope you never run out of requests for name origins. Our name is FOX.—Mrs. F.W.F.

MRS. F.W.F.: Eight hundred years ago in ancient England, some inns were individualized by brightly colored signs. One inn owner became known by his popular trademark "At the sign of the Fox." Consequently he eventually took Fox for his surname. John Fox, descendant of the first Fox Inn owner, resided in 14th Century Yorkshire. The Fox lineage became noblemen at that time and were granted a coat-of-arms, three gold fox heads on a blue chevron centered on an ermine-covered shield. Thomas Fox, an early settler of Concord, Mass., died there in 1690, leaving many descendants.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like your analysis of HAMLYN and HAMELIN.—MRS. A.E.H., Long Beach; MRS. J.M., Midway City.

A.H., J.M.: HAMLYN and Hamelin were from early English nicknames for Hamon, meaning "ruler of the home." The family is traced to Hamelin, a nobleman of Cornwall who was included in the 11th-Century English Domesday Book. Hamelin owned 22 estates. This baron's descendants are still residents of Cornwall and Devonshire. The family coat-of-arms has a rampant, gold-crowned lion centered on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give history on BUSTAMANTE. —S.A., Paramount.

S.A.: The Spanish surname BUSTAMANTE has an unusual significance, "man with his chest covered with a blanket." This either depicted a forebear who wore a blanket of very striking colors, or it may have described a rock formation near the ancestral home, a cliff that looked like a blanket enshrouded figure. The Bustamante coat-of-arms has 13 blue circles on a gold shield. Anastasio Bustamante was an early 19th Century president of Mexico.

DEAR MISS RULE: We would like origin and coat-of-arms of HUNT. — B.H., San Pedro; A.R., Paramount.

B.H., A.R.: The medieval English term for a professional hunter of wild game was "Hunte." This became the surname HUNT. The family resided in Derbyshire in the 1200s. Their coat-of-arms has a black buglehorn on a silver shield, an emblem symbolizing the hunter. William Hunt, a settler of Rowley, Mass., shortly after 1620, is believed to be the first American Hunt.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give origin of the Scotch name STERLING. — E.M., Long Beach.

E.M.: The surname STERLING, taken from the city of Stirling in southern Scotland, is a modern spelling of the ancient Celtic word "Ystrefelyn," meaning "yellow house." This archaic word was shortened to Strivelin in the 12th Century and later changed to Stirling. A historic battle between the Scotch and England was fought at Stirling in 1297. The Stirlings are a division of the Scotch Clan Murray. Their coat-of-arms has three gold belt buckles on a diagonal blue stripe across a silver shield, with the motto "Forward."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please tell genealogy on HANCHET and HANCHETT.—P.H., E.W., Long Beach.

P.H., E.W.: The French name, HANCHETT, from the old German warrior name "Hanno," means "little rooster." The rooster was an ancient symbol of pride and determination. Hanno, joined to the nickname suffix "-quet," produced Hannequet which was altered to Hanchett and Hanchet. Descendants migrated to England and were 17th Century settlers of Connecticut.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of SHEEHAN? Mrs. E.H., Long Beach.

MRS. E.H.: The Gaelic Irish name SHEEHAN was once O'Siodacain, meaning "sons of the peaceful man." The family resided in the Irish counties of Limerick, Cork and Kerry. Many descendants migrated to America in the 1700s.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

You'll Fall for the Parks in Autumn

By Sterling Bemis

"Most tourists," said the ranger, "see the park under bad conditions—crowded with people. The time to see the park is in the fall, when there's nobody here but us animals."

IN 1870 A LADY VISITOR to Yosemite National Park complained it was "too crowded." That year it had 1,735 visitors.

This year Yosemite expects 1,100,000 visitors. The total for all national parks will exceed 50,000,000.

In the last decade a tremendous surge in touring has resulted from the increase in leisure time and the shorter work week. To meet the challenge, National Park Service in 1956 launched a crash program to expand facilities, called "Mission 66." Its goal is to establish by 1966, the 50th anniversary of the service, facilities for 80,000,000 visitors. Key items will be 300 miles of new roads, 1,500 miles of additional trails and an increase in campsites from the present 12,000 to 28,000.

An unofficial goal sought by park officials and concessioners is to extend the park season, primarily by attracting fall visitors. Decked with autumn's kaleidoscope of colors, the parks—rangers agree—are at their best in September and October.

ANOTHER TREND WHICH BRIGHTENS the outlook for park tourists has gained a firm foothold only this season. It is a novel system of recruiting talented students for the summer staffs of park lodges. The system promises not only more and better entertainment for visitors, but a higher grade of young waiters, bellboys, maids and clerks.

Canyon Village in Yellowstone Park is the first major project of Mission 66. A new lodge, supermarket and 500 cottage units have been completed by McNeil Construction Co. of Los Angeles as part of a $5,000,000 outlay by Yellowstone Park Co. and concessioners. The government is spending an additional $3,000,000 on the village, with a new Park Service center virtually complete.

Yosemite, which expects 1,800,000 visitors a year by 1966, is concentrating on preserving the beauty of the valley by removing buildings which clutter it. Warehouses, storage and repair shops will be centered in the El Portal area. Rebuilding of a 21-mile section of the old Tioga mining road will be completed by 1961. Big Oak Flat Road will be brought from stagecoach standards to modern capacity. The 800 campsites outside the valley will be tripled. Trailer courts are planned at Wawona and El Portal.

MAIN BUILDINGS OF THE NEW Yosemite Lodge and Cedar Cottage have been completed for $1,100,000 and further building will bring the outlay by Yosemite Park and Curry Co. to $2,500,000. Work on a merchandise center and grill will start this fall.

National Park Service will spend $22,000,000 for roads, trails, buildings, utilities, etc.

The Yellowstone and Yosemite programs are typical of the face-lifting promised for all parks by Mission 66.

The California climate encourages late-season touring at Yosemite and the twin parks of Sequoia and Kings Canyon.

Yosemite Lodge and the Ahwahnee are open all year. Glacier Point Hotel and Big Tree Lodge are open through October. Camp Curry reopens for skiers on Dec. 22 and Wawona Hotel is open during Christmas and New Year's holidays.

THE AUTUMN SEASON at Sequoia begins Sept. 15 when the lodge dining room closes at Giant Forest. Giant Forest coffee shop serves all year and rustic cabins are available until Oct. 26. Camp Kaweah is open all year. At Grant Grove in Kings Canyon the lodge and Meadow Camp close Sept. 15, but the coffee shop remains open.

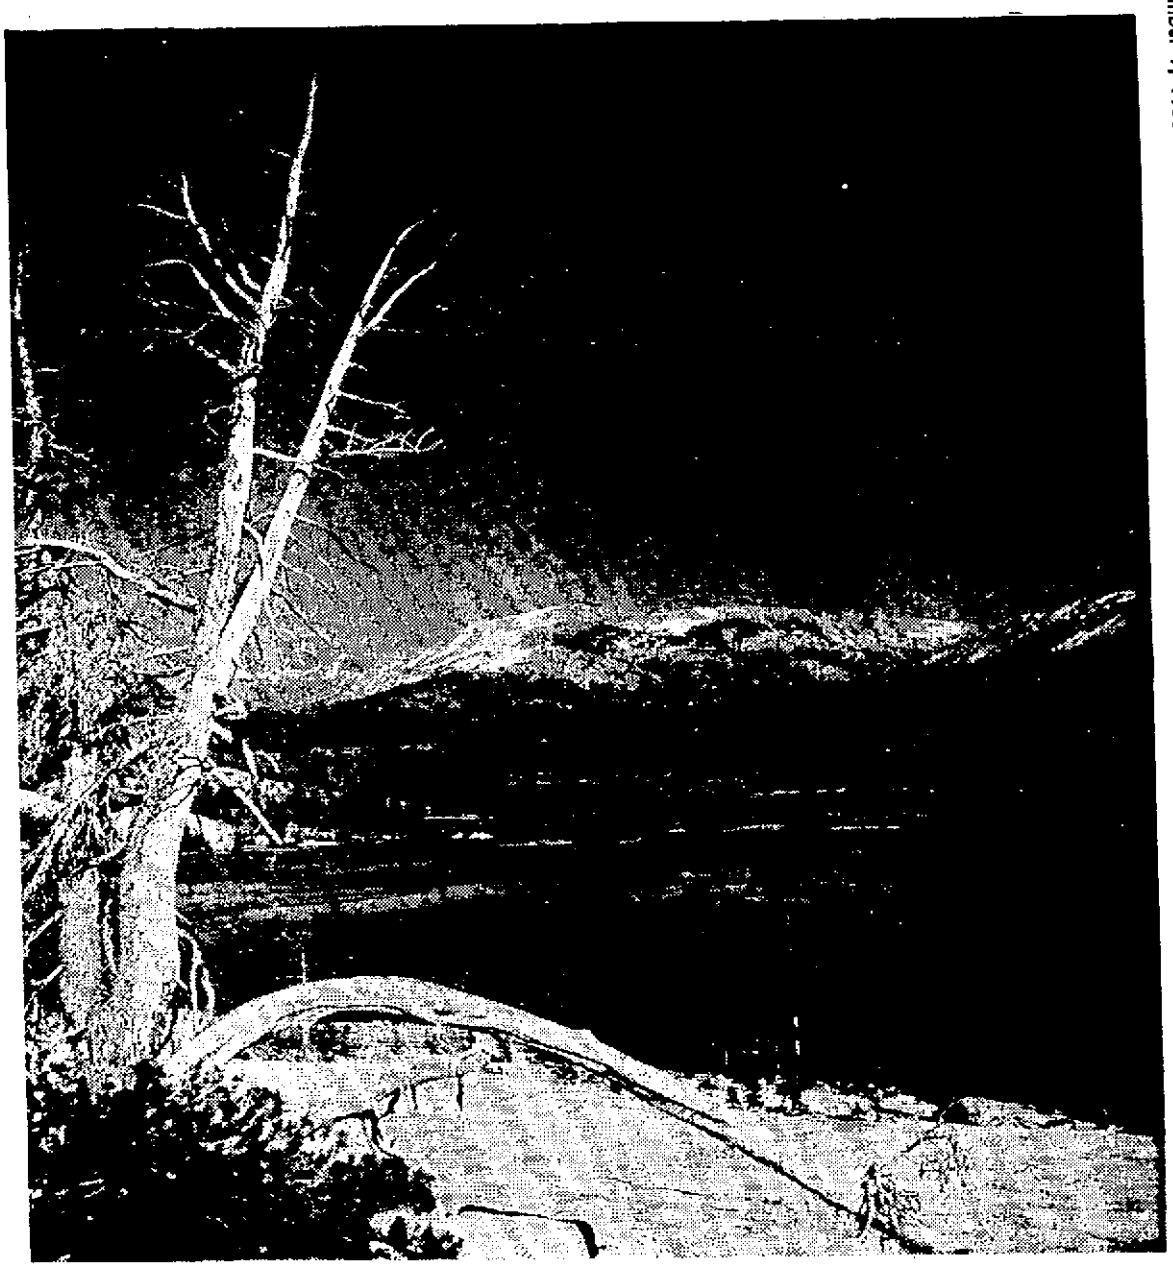

In Yellowstone, Old Faithful Inn and cabins with cafeteria service at Fishing Bridge are available until Sept. 15. Mammoth Hotel closes Sept. 20 and cabins are open at Old Faithful Lodge until Sept. 30. Canyon Village cottages and meals are available until Oct. 1 and cabins with cafeteria service at Old Faithful are open until Oct. 15.

KEY PERSONNEL, including the chairman of the board and the president of Yellowstone Park Co. and a staff of 10, maintain winter headquarters in La Jolla.

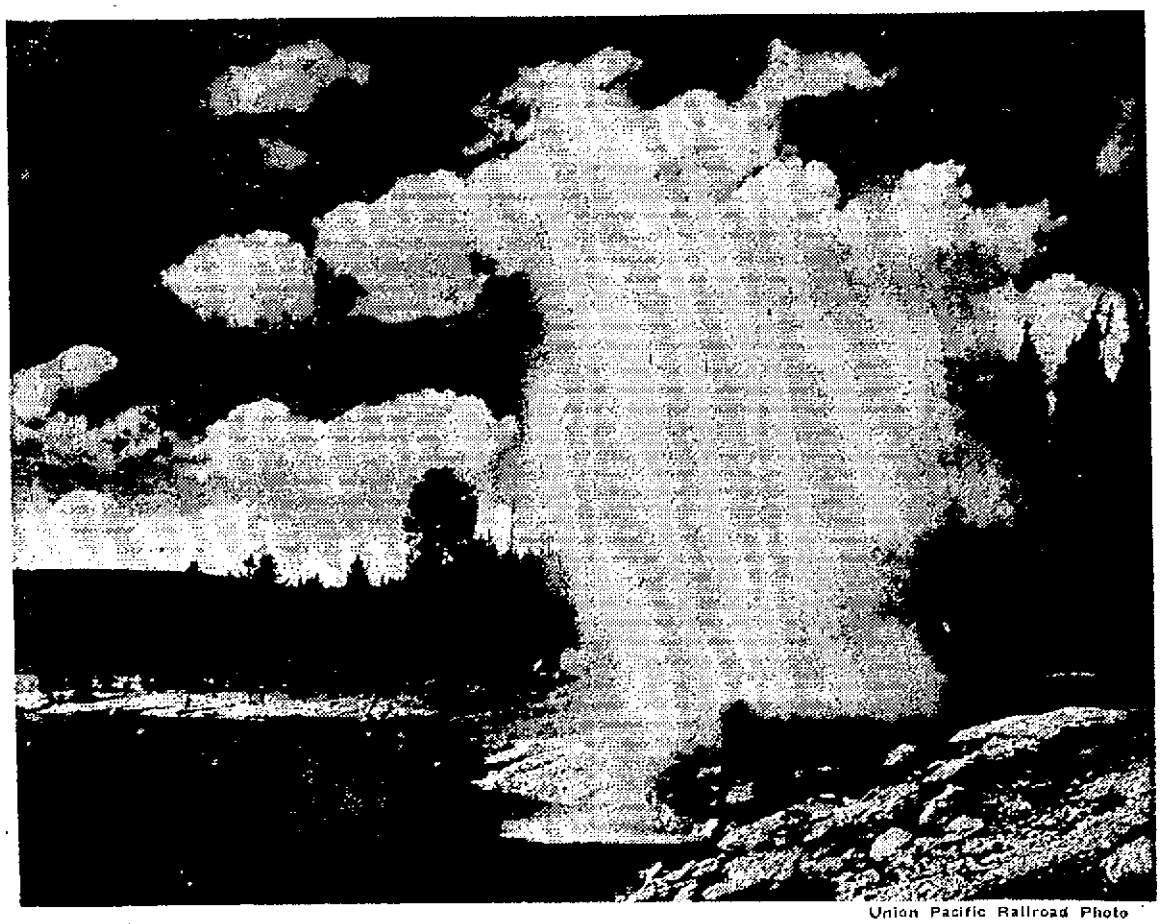

Another note of interest to Southlanders is the fact that Yellowstone this summer used for tours 10 buses owned by the City School Bus System, which will lease them this fall to Los Angeles School District. Nine school drivers manned the buses in the park. For park touring, they seat 41, for school use, 79. Next year 28 school buses will be supplied to the park.

At northerly Glacier Park, hotels close Sept. 10, motor inns on Sept. 15. But autumns are "warm, colorful and beautiful and profitable for the motels all around the park which remain open for a pretty busy October season," William O. Carlson, public relations director reports. Going-to-the-Sun Road is usually open until Oct. 15. "Actually, there is very little more chance of snow in the park in September

Decked with autumn's kaleidoscope of colors, the parks are at their best in September and October. Tuolumne Meadows, in Yosemite, is fall beauty spot.

Women find judo interesting; could put judo skills to effective use in event of assault. Elinor Maywood shows instructor John Ogden she's learned lesson well.

Judo techniques are practiced by two 12-year-olds, Billy Johnson, Dave Ogden, having some fun as they train. Health, sportsmanship are among claims for judo.

Judo Is an Art

By Betty Washlake

THERE'S an old Japanese art being practiced just a few paces off the busy street at 1929 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach. Inside, the atmosphere is calm and quiet except for the soft scuffing of bare feet, as white clad judo students of all ages, exercise on a thick, white mat.

On the walls are large charts. They state the various rules for attack and defense, and the most important of these are the basic judo techniques, as follows: 1. Keep relaxed. 2. Every movement must have a purpose. 3. Keep alert. 4. Get opponent off balance. 5. Maintain your own balance. 6. Change timing. 7. Strength vs. strength is without success. 8. Learn attacks and defenses. 9. Abdominal breathing. 10. Think of opponents possible moves; simplify your own moves.

"MOST PEOPLE DON'T understand judo. They're afraid of it," says John Ogden, instructor and owner of the school. "Judo is much more than the ability to throw a person over your shoulder. It is an art, a sport, a system of physical exercise and self defense; but most of all it is an education in training your mind, body, emotions, and spirit to work together. Judo develops character and clean habits, and each student is rewarded with self-confidence, poise, balance, timing and agility."

Ogden should know! He's made judo his life's work, with a combination of 25 years training and instructing. During World War II, he taught judo in the Navy. One of the best instructors in the country, he wears the Black Belt, 2nd rank. (Black Belt, 10th rank, is the highest award attainable, and only three men, now living, hold this rank.)

In the dojo, or exercise hall, Ogden's students sit quietly on the mat until they are told otherwise. Each wears the traditional judo-gi, a costume composed of a white cotton jacket, trousers and belt. When Ogden calls "Hajime" (begin) the contestants rise and bow to each other. This salutation is a custom showing respect for each other's ability. Then they begin their bout, putting to use the judo techniques they have learned. They engage in contests with other judo schools in Southland cities, and give exhibitions for various clubs and P-T.A. groups.

STUDENTS ARE 6 to 60 or older. Age, sex and strength are of little importance. But young or old, male or female, the students have two things in common; they all enjoy judo and they take their training seriously.

They can not wear rings, bracelets or fancy gadgets. Finger nails and toe nails must be kept clean and cut. Breathing is done through the nose with the mouth closed. The costume must be kept clean and mended, and when not in use, it must be folded neatly. As for conduct, there is no place for show-offs or braggarts in judo.

Achievements are classified by colored belts, and each belt carries a series of ranks. Promotions have to be earned through the progress the student makes. They start with the White belt, Green is next, then Brown and Black. The higher the color, the more difficult it becomes to win the various degrees of rank. The instructor can give up to a 3rd Brown in his own school. From then on, it's left to the Promotional Tournament's Governing Board to decide, and tournaments are held every six months.

HIGH STANDARDS, CUSTOMS, and rules of judo are followed with esteem in all countries. The modern Kodokan judo is a cultural, impressive sport, compared to the old, violent jujitsu from which it stemmed. It came about when a small, timid 18-year-old Japanese boy, Jigoro Kano, grew tired of being shoved and bullied by his stronger classmates. He decided to try a jujitsu school, where he understood strength was not an important factor in protecting oneself.

Jujitsu was rough and at times dangerous with malicious throwing, twisting, poking and jabbing. Injuries were frequent, and Kano was disturbed about it. After years of extensive training, he found by combining the good qualities of jujitsu, (art of attack and defense) with his own higher aims and techniques, he had a new, effective exercise. He opened his own school and called it Kodokan judo, (principal of maximum-efficiency with minimum effort.)

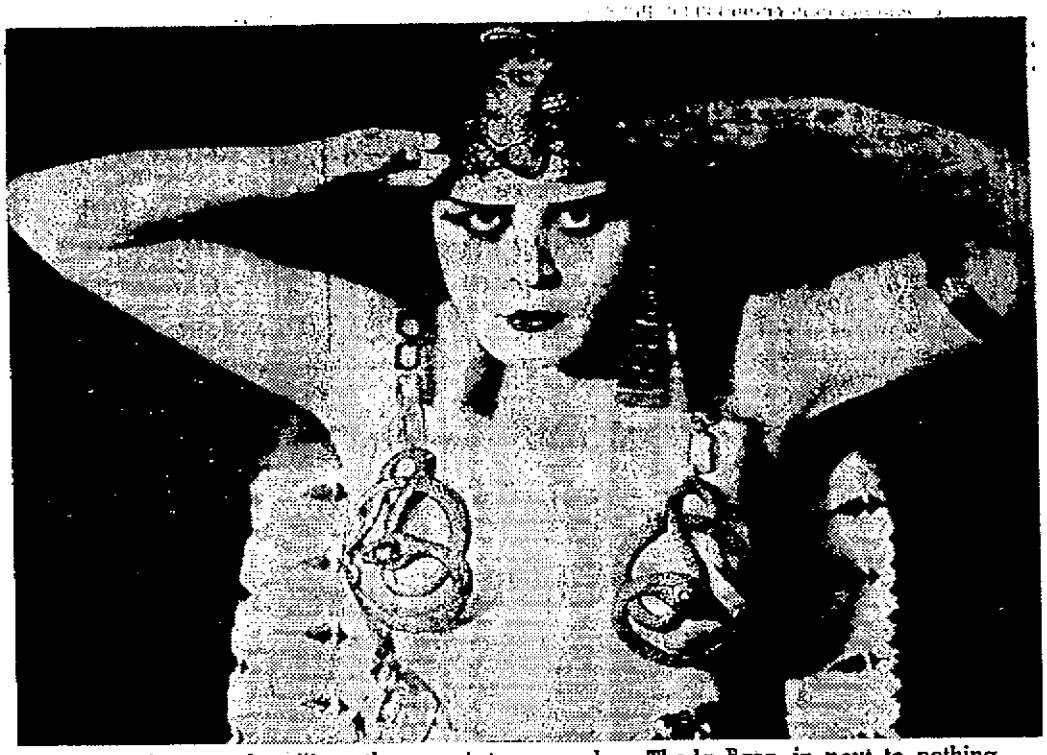

The Japanese public approved the new method, but doubted that judo could stand up to jujitsu in actual conflict. A show-down resulted between the best judo students and the masters of jujitsu. Kodokan judo won all but two bouts, and these they tied. From then on, judo spread throughout the world and jujitsu became all but obsolete.

When judo was first introduced in America at the turn of the century Theodore Roosevelt had a room in the White House converted for judo training. He practiced diligently, and became an avid student in the art.

Now it is popular in many large universities such as Purdue, the University of Chicago and the University of California.

Bara to Bardot

In 1914, when the world was ablaze with war, the then flickering motion picture screen was flaming with the exotic image of Theda Bara who was making granddaddy's heart palpitate joyously as she slithered through "A Fool There Was." She was the first of the movie vamps and set a new style for femmes fatale. A succession of glamour gals has followed the raven-haired, dark-eyed beauty, each in her own manner. Recently, Marilyn Monroe hit the suave modern movies with startling impact, only to find that a new queen is threatening her reign: Brigitte Bardot, national sex symbol of France and star of the upcoming United Artists-Lopert release, "La Parisienne." So, from Bara to Bardot the glamour parade has spanned more than a half century. Each new queen, in her own manner, has been the personification of sexy emoting. As you scan the lovelies presented here, try to remember that standards of glamour are always changing—don't be too critical of yesterday's stars. They, too, had fan clubs of swooning admirers.

"Father! Come here!" mother used to say when Theda Bara, in next to nothing, turned on her burning look — as she did (above) in role of "Cleopatra."

Greta Garbo hasn't made a movie in years, but is still remembered with awe for her mysterious beauty, talent.

Blonde Bombshell in Repose: Platinum-tressed Jean Harlow skyrocketed into fame with a pyrotechnical brand of all-American emoting in movies of 1930s.

Marilyn Monroe, whose nude and near-nude posing, lifted her to prominence, is the modern film siren of U.S.A.

And now Brigitte: Purring like a romantic kitten, Brigitte Bardot cuddles up to Henri Vidal in this scene from United Artists' "La Parisienne."

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

Happy Birthday to All!

By Jane Johnson

BELIEVING that people, no matter how rich or famous, appreciate approbation, Mrs. Blanche Phillips of 229 W. 6th St. began writing birthday letters to famous folks more than 40 years ago. The response has been more than 70 per cent and the replies always joyous.

There's a little bit of villainy in every one, says Lee Van Cleef, one of TV's most despicable villains.

TELEVISION

Villainy Is His Business

By Terry Vernon

Independent, Press-Telegram Television Columnist

NEXT TIME you watch a television villain smile as he pumps bullets into a helpless victim's back, check your reaction.

There's a small part of you that might enjoy doing the same thing.

Lee Van Cleef, an actor who has made a business out of being disliked, feels that everyone has a bit of sadism in his nature. But most people, he says, have successfully suppressed it to the extent that they don't realize it exists.

VAN CLEEF doesn't get much chance to suppress his.

"I've pretended that I enjoy shooting people in the back so often that I've found myself smiling without meaning to. There have been times when I've had to suppress glee at someone else's despair," he says.

This can be brought out in almost anyone, Van Cleef believes. The more pleasure a villain seems to derive from his evil deeds, the richer the vicarious thrill for the viewers.

Villains usually get their come-uppance, on or off film, and it makes for a short life for Van Cleef.

"I get my licks in during the first part of a show, but always wind up getting killed in the last act."

Little lawn ornaments have own personalities.

Little Lawn Ornaments

By Steve Ellingson

WHENEVER you get unhappy with our streamlined, 20th century, fast way of life, consider the poor chicken. Now there's a creature that has reason to complain.

There was a day, when a mother hen with her family of chicks, gave a pastoral touch to many a yard. She laid her eggs, sat on them until they hatched and then taught her family how to scratch for food. But that's all gone now. Chicks, in this mechanical age, are incubator-hatched, and mechanically brooded. Poor old mother hen has become almost as useless as roller skates on a fish—at least, where raising a family is concerned. Her cackle has given way to the monotonous clack of computing machines at the checkout counters in the hatcheries.

LAWN ORNAMENTS came into existence because people like to be reminded of the pastoral scenes of days gone by. Since it isn't easy or practical to keep a calf or duck or other living things in our yards we've developed simulated animals. The lawn ornaments pictured above with Evelyn Rudie, whom you have watched on NBC's television shows, will add sparkle to any yard. Each little animal has a personality all his own. And what is more, they are lots of fun and easy to make, when you use the full-size patterns.

Here's how you do it; you trace the full-size patterns on wood, then paint over the tracings and finally saw them out. It's that easy, any child from 8 to 80 can do it. The patterns tell what materials to use.

To obtain the full-size lawn ornament pattern assortment No. C-3 shown here, send $1 by check, currency or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, 15155 Saticoy St., Van Nuys, Calif.

House of 'Wall-To-Wall Charm'

Photos by Joe Risinger

Small game table and chairs stand before the living room window wall that surveys terrace and pool of the interesting home of the H. M. Bower family.

By Eileen Ball

IT'S SHADED by benevolent old trees, skirted with velvety lawns and backed by a pool . . . it rings merrily with the sounds of a happy family of four. It's a house on the corner at 601 Ultimo Ave. and it's the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bower and their two active teenagers, Dayle and Jeff.

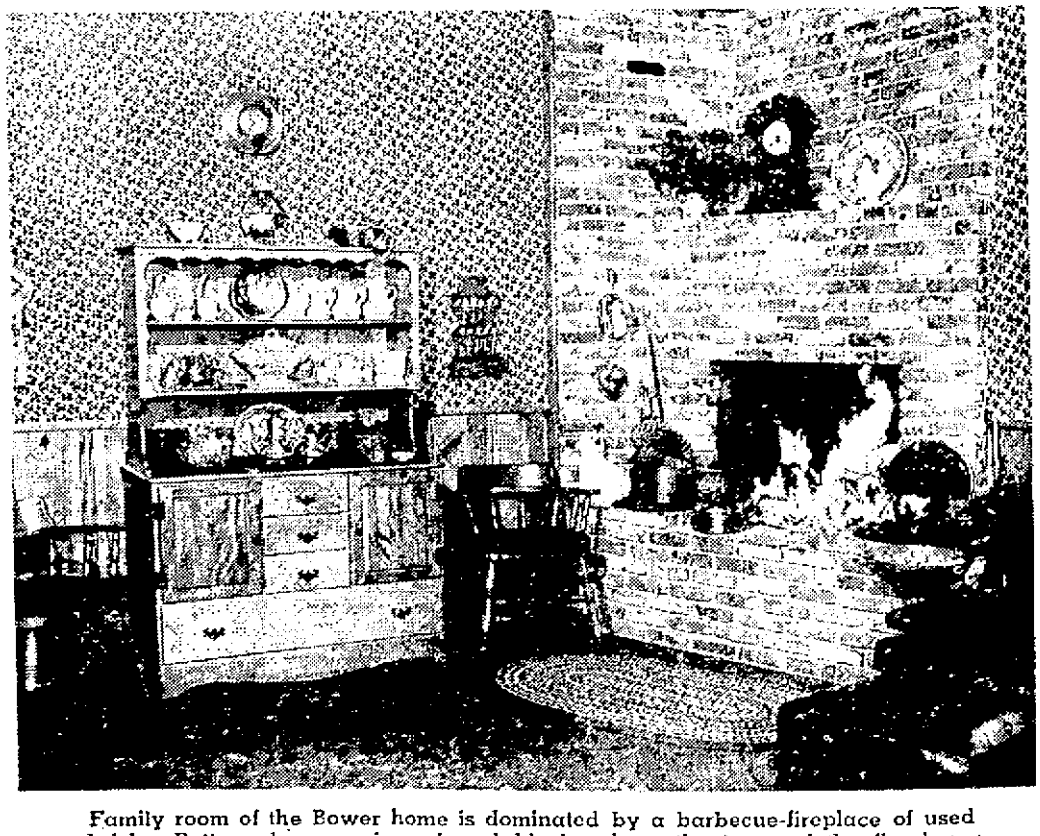

It's a home of "wall-to-wall" charm, with 3,000 square feet of floor space in two stories. It's strictly an one-family house, devoting itself wholly to the special tastes of its occupants, and each room does something special for the Bowers' relaxed mode of living.

Brown shingles and colonial styling mark the exterior. The white-paneled front door opens to an entry pretty as a picture with its cut-crystal chandelier, its beige, rose and soft green medallion wallpaper, and its amusing old Victorian hat rack and marble shelf.

TWO COLOR schemes prevail, each carefully coordinated and carried throughout. The entry and all living areas borrow their schemes from a trio of robust colors: red, green and gold. All the bedrooms are in shades of blue. Smart planning, this. As Mrs. Bower pointed out, the living room chairs, for example, may be used harmoniously in the family room. And vice versa. Ditto for accessories, all of which are as at home in one spot as another, thanks to this closely planned color coordination.

Green walls decorate the living room, located to the right of the entry. Beige carpet and butterscotch-gold casement draperies contribute two major neutral areas to the room. Basically, the room presents a somewhat subdued background for appointments in ruby reds and deep greens that give the area a cheery, perennial Christmas sort of atmosphere.

THE SAME COLORFUL and richly patterned fabric used for the sofa is repeated in wide ex-

Family room of the Bower home is dominated by a barbecue-fireplace of used brick. Patterned paper in red and black echoes the tones of the fireplace.

Raised terrace of brick serves for outdoor dining in the Bower home, offering most pleasant surroundings.

panses of pleated window valances. This linen material employs the exuberant and traditional Indian tree motif interpreted in full tones of red, gold and green against a neutral, off-white background.

Over the sofa is an interesting arrangement—an old fruitwood planter flanked by a pair of very old baroque brass sconces. Each one is centered with a small beveled mirror which reflects the twinkling light of a ruby trio of hobnail, votive candle cups. The sofa is gaily sprinkled with gold, red and green pillows.

Across the room, two cherry-red wing chairs, tastefully quilted, stand at either side of the open fireplace. Between them is a Victorian oval table that primly but prettily serves as a cocktail table.

THE BACK WALL of the living room is one large, square-paned window that frames a view of the bricked dining terrace, the lower level garden and the pool beyond. Standing before the window is a small, round game table that has been fitted with a quilted, red-and-green plaid gingham pad edged with a perky little ruffle. Four petite game chairs accompany the table, their seats upholstered in the same plaid fabric.

The family room, located toward the back of the house, is two levels lower than the preceding area. This room encourages the family and their guests to gather around its open fireplace that doubles effectively as a barbecue. Sharing the area is the kitchen.

The warmth of natural wood lends a special provincial kind of charm to the family room. Walls are wainscoted with mellow, waxed knotty pine paneling. The same material was used for the high-pitched, exposed-beam ceiling. Above the wainscot, a provincial paper combining dark red and charcoal-over-white colors echoes the tones of the black and deep red vinyl flooring. Close to this same color tone is the diagonal, raised hearth fireplace of used brick.

FURNISHINGS ARE casual, early American pieces that lend a special, rustic charm to this all-purpose area. Included in the grouping is a round dining table and captains chairs, an open hutch and several occasional tables. A forest-green Lawson sofa is over patterned with red plaid and accessorized with red pollows.

Kitchen cabinets are knotty pine, and all electric appliances are built in. The drop level ceiling of knotty pine terminates over the open serving bar that adjoins the family area. At this point, the ceiling takes an important upswing in pitch.

Located off the entry to the left is Jeff's bedroom which is all, and more, than any 15-year-old boy could wish for. Republic blue wallpaper patterned with small white geometric motifs provide the background for natural wood window shutters, maple furniture and a large red leather chair and ottoman. One touch of elegance is seen in the carpet of solid Republic blue.

UPSTAIRS, A PAIR of completely charming bedrooms and two baths complete the plan.

Brown-shingle, two-story residence contains "wall-to-wall charm" within its pleasant and inviting confines.

Sign of the Flying

By Betty Hardesty

THE Imperial Valley wildlife refuge—stopping place for untold thousands of waterfowl—extends along the southern end and eastern shore of Salton Sea. Part of the refuge is marked by rustic wooden signs bearing a flying goose and lettered with "U.S. Dept. of the Interior Fish & Wildlife Service Salton Sea Refuge."

The refuge comes as a surprise to autoists who turn off the main road near Westmoreland to visit Obsidian Mountain. Some buildings of the California Fish and Game Commission are also located on the road leading to the black peaks which loom up in the otherwise flat land, watered by irrigation ditches and the Alamo River. Green crops are cultivated by these governmental services to provide food for the wild ducks and geese, especially.

This section of the game refuge, designated as the "Pumice Unit," was the first portion opened for public hunting. In 1945, when the State Fish & Game first participated in the Imperial waterfowl management, public shooting was limited to 160 acres where 16 ten-acre ponds were developed and one double blind provided at each pond.

THE ACTIVITIES of this department date back to 1931 when the refuge was purchased for $85,000. This 2,000 acres had been occupied by two commercial duck clubs but it was kept inviolate as a refuge until 1944 when it became necessary to relieve duck depredations on Imperial Valley crops. At that time, interested farmers, the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the State Fish & Game got together to work out a plan. Their objectives remain in effect today: The waterfowl management area was to include sub-marginal lands along the south and east shores of the Salton Sea, to provide feed and resting areas as well as areas with food and water where depredating waterfowl might be herded and kept to prevent agricultural crop damage, and to provide public hunting areas.

Development and farming of green crops has continued with additional purchases of acreage but the steady rise of the Salton Sea water level curtailed some plans (it also sometimes covers the mud pots marked on maps). In 1956, however, the new 5,000-acre Wister unit, acquired for $1,000,000, was made available to the California Wildlife Conservation Board from the state's share of horse pari-mutuel betting.

REGULATED PUBLIC shooting is available to hunters at the Salton Sea Refuge for both ducks and geese during the waterfowl season. A $2 fee is required with reservations but no blinds are furnished as hunters are expected to disperse themselves. Some blinds remaining from early days can be used, however, as well as a few constructed by hunters. Makeshift arrowweed blinds are also useful when hunting on the refuge.

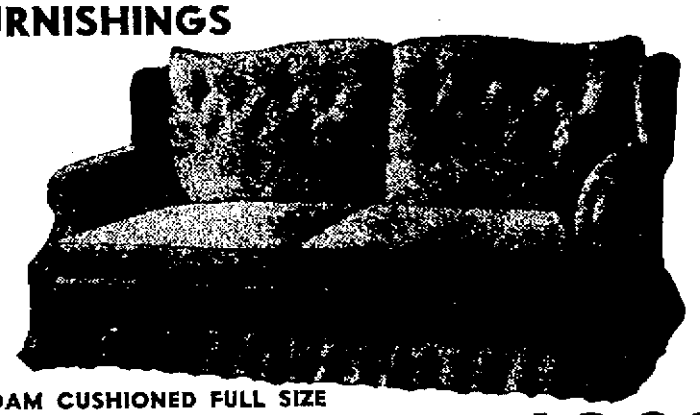

You Make It

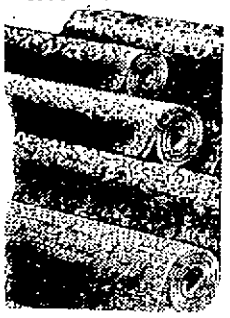

Shutters lend style and are useful when it is time to close a house or mountain cabin. Pattern 389, which shows how to make a number of different kinds and gives actual-size guides for a variety of applied and open-work decorations, may be obtained for 25 cents. This pattern also is one of five in the Homestead Improvement Packet No. 30—all for $1. For orders under $1, add 10 cents service charge. Address orders with money to Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, New York.

Sandwiches and Salads to Go!

Peanut butter sandwiches can be varied to appeal to all summer appetites. Onion rings on rye, bacon, tomato, lettuce and cream cheese beckon eaters.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

SANDWICHES and salads to go! That's one meal call sure to win votes and influence appetites.

It's also an answer to warm-weather meals which often are skipped or skimped. Families are busy—lucky to muster a quorum for even one planned meal a day. Too often, unrewarding refrigerator raids and soda fountain shops fill the gaps.

So why not serve Saturday lunch and Sunday night supper straight from the refrigerator? Clear a shelf and post a menu that's an eye-and-appetite catcher. Make it self-service, but quick and easy to pick up on the run: nutritionally sound, but so tempting that kids (and grown-ups) can't resist. Plan foods that will keep their flavors and freshness till everybody and his pal is fed—and likely re-fueled on his next swing past home base.

ON THAT refrigerator shelf stack a tray with sandwiches—two kinds at least—each in its own plastic wrap. Or offer choices of breads and spread all set to combine.

Next on the menu, a bowl of crisp salad greens under snug cover, with snappy dressing ready for solo toss-ups. For special appeal, take a tip from fastidious gourmets and make your French dressing with peanut oil. It's delightfully bland, with the surprising talent for holding seasoning extra close to each crinkle of salad greens without wilting them.

Next day, mold favorite fruits or vegetables in bright gelatine and firm up in chubby paper cups for the salad.

CARROT STRIPS and celery keep their fresh-cut color and crispness in a tight plastic bag or refrigerator dish. Fresh fruits and milk take front seats. Pickles and olives, peanut butter and mayonnaise, mustard and catsup line up for quick action. Cupcakes, candy bars, and cokes operate on the honor system — yours if you've taken on a real meal to back them up.

On a counter close by stack those Mom-savers — plastic forks and spreaders, paper plates, napkins and cups, plus lap trays for toting. So load when ready, folks, and pick your own eat spot — study table, back yard, TV corner or away on the run.

Heart of these refrigerator-ready meals are sandwiches. So make them rib-stickers, loaded with protein foods and energy-packed spreads that offer more than just calories.

PEANUT BUTTER combos are most children's first love. Meat, cheese, chicken and tuna are favorite fillers. Protect bread slices from moisture by careful crust-to-crust spreading with butter, margarine or mayonnaise. And fill right up to those edges so every last bite will be enjoyed.

One more thing about sandwiches. If you've a houseful of inveterate "just-make-mine-peanut-butter" enthusiasts, don't worry about it — nutritionally you're in luck! Balanced with other good foods—especially for these fast-galloping juniors — there's just no such thing as too much or too often when it comes to peanut butter. It's packed with protein, loaded with fast-action energy, and rich in important B vitamins. So, don't hesitate to go along with the crowd. Keep it front and center for weekend snackers, and swirled in your prettiest spread server —on the table any day of the week or meal of the day.

Swiss Steak 'Quickie'

Dot the center of 2½ feet of heavy duty aluminum foil with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Shake half the contents of 1 envelope onion soup mix on the foil. (Use the soup mix dry and mix the ingredients so the concentrated bouillon and dehydrated vegetables will be evenly blended.) Over this place 1½ pounds chuck steak, without bone, cut 1 inch thick. Top steak with remaining soup mix and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Add ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced around steak. Bring foil up over meat and double fold edges to seal tightly. Place in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) 1 hour.

SERVE WITH: Fruit Juice, Au Gratin Potatoes, Asparagus, Rye Bread, Spiced Peaches, Cress and Radish Salad, Baked Custard.

WHEN THOR HEYERDAHL, after 101 days at sea, sailed his raft Kon-Tiki to Easter Island more than a decade ago, he found gigantic stone figures (above) scattered everywhere. Who made these 50-ton monoliths, dragged them across country and erected them on huge stone terraces? Delving deeper into the mystery, he discovered the activity had suddenly ceased, because tools were left lying with many figures unfinished. Why? Heyerdahl organized a new expedition and sailed again for the remote Pacific island to get the answers. Accompanied by archeologists, he dug deeper into the mysteries of these long-lost people, whom he is now convinced came from South America and were forerunners of the Incas. His story, told in "AKU-AKU: THE SECRET OF EASTER ISLAND" (Rand, McNally, $6.95), is perhaps the most remarkable adventure tale of the year. Endpapers are a map of Easter Island, and there are 62 full-color photographs which prove Heyerdahl's tale is more than an exciting dream.

Peril in the Pacific

THE S. S. SILVERSPRAY beats her way out of San Francisco, Manila-bound. By the time the merchant marine freighter reaches Honolulu the cargo in her holds is shifting and an unlisted cargo of fear, hatred and bigotry begins to show among the ship's personnel.

So begins "S. S. SILVERSPRAY" by John Langdon (Macmillan, $3.95). The captain's wife finds herself in the middle of a brewing shipboard storm over treatment of a colored seullion suffering a mental breakdown. The captain is a good sailor, but his prejudice against any pigmentation other than white is strong and deep-rooted.

Continuing on from Honolulu the Silverspray finds herself in a great typhoon that threatens to destroy her. At the beginning of the blow the captain exhibits brilliant seamanship by maneuvering his ship to rescue a man washed overboard. When the ship finally limps into Manila the tensions and hates built up on the voyage snap into violence. The author, a Southern Californian, in this, his second novel, writes of ships and the sea with knowledge and love.

"THE HARD BLUE SKY" by Shirley Ann Grau (Knopf, $5): The setting for this novel is somewhat new — one of the three long, narrow islands at the mouth of the Mississippi. The characters are not so unique—a 16-year-old girl in need of a man, a marooned sailboat captain, and a score of others who weave in and out of the pages; only Miss Grau's pen makes them appear so. The action is not unique — life among the people of the swamps, storms, suspense over a lost one—but again the author's inventiveness comes to the rescue. The "feel" or atmosphere is superb for Miss Grau is a New Orleans resident who knows these swamplands in-

Birthdays

ceive from my countrymen and others is so generous that I feel overwhelmed by it."

The Lady in Waiting to Charles, Duke of Cornwall, wrote a note of thanks from England. Mamie Eisenhower acknowledged a tatted handkerchief with great joy. These famous personalities have the same birthday as Mrs. Phillips.

J. C. PENNEY wrote (in 1955): "I am 80 years old but my wife insists that my mother made a mistake, and that I am but 70. Your kind words regarding the standards of the Penney Company are most gratifying to me."

To Princess Margaret, she wrote: "You will receive many good wishes, but the best gift of all is a statement of friendship." Her Lady in Waiting answered: "Her Royal Highness is touched by your expression of good wishes on her birthday. It is much appreciated."

The late King of Sweden and his son, the present King, requested their secretaries to send letters of appreciation.

THE QUEEN of The Netherlands sent a card of thanks. So did Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio, Edgar Guest of Detroit, Sen. Richard Russell and Gov. Averill Harriman, who wrote: "Your warm birthday wishes were most welcome to me."

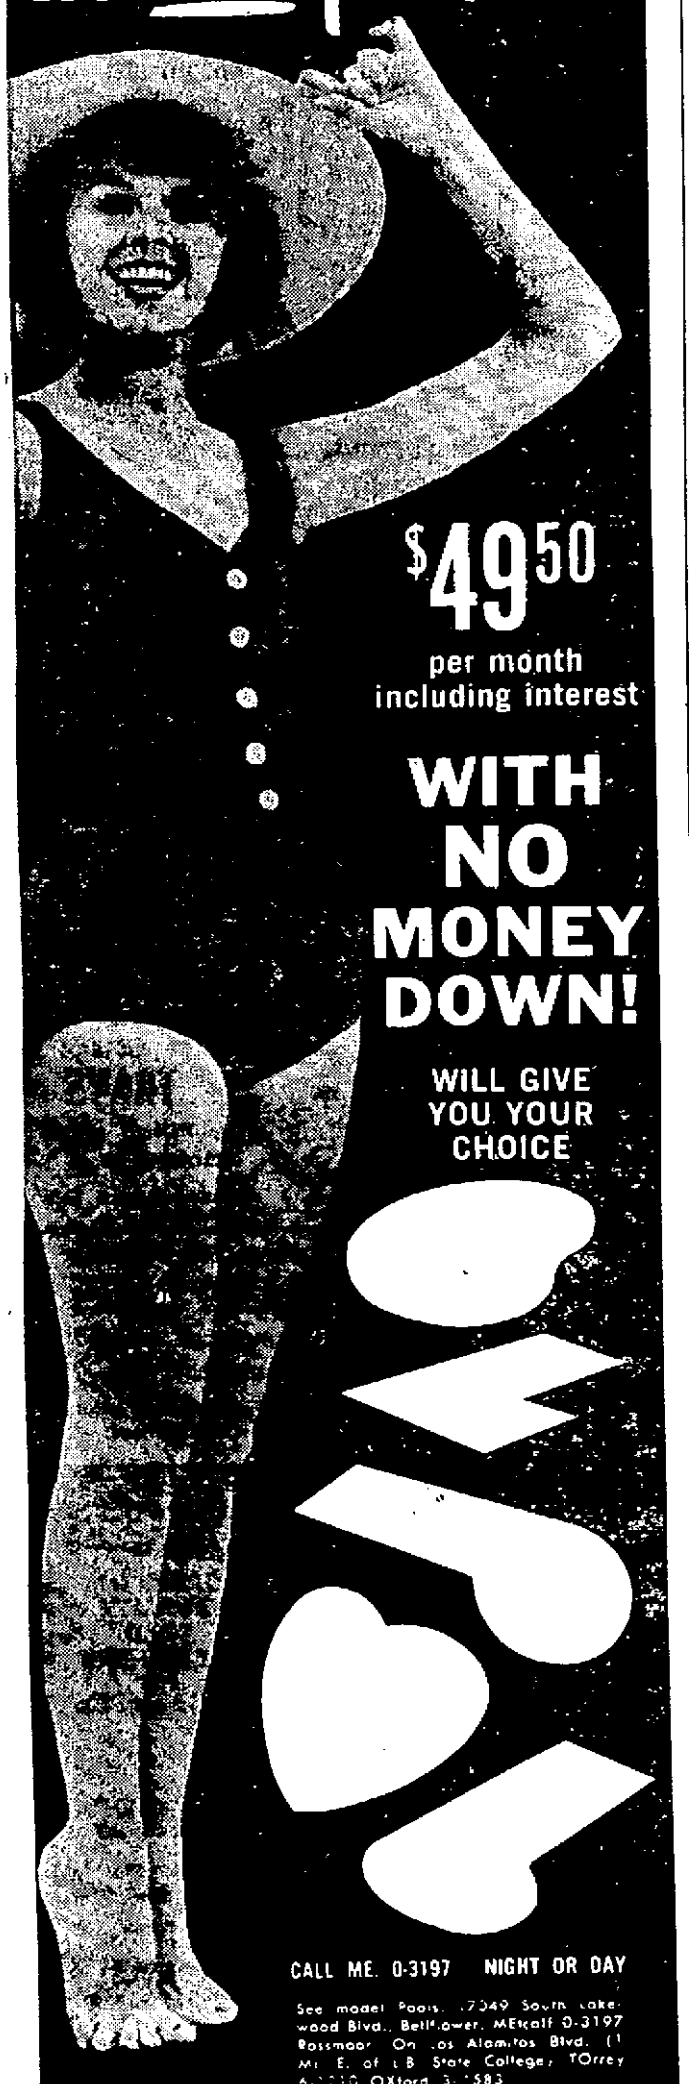

Winston Churchill sent a hand-written note saying: "I am so much obliged to you for your kind token of good will on my birthday."

To Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Phillips wrote: "I honor you for your contributions to our laws and organizations. I wish that the lovely lady who assisted you in the White House were present to eat cake and drink the 'wine of gladness.' She was outstanding in the list of personalities who reigned as First Lady." He replied with a hand-written letter, "I want you to know I am grateful for your birthday greeting."

SHE WROTE to Pope Pius at Rome: "Let us cease setting new year-posts and turn about to straighten those that show some lack of balance from the storms of time. Thus we may capture some of the joy and loveliness experienced in former years."

His card of reply expressed an appreciation, and invoked heavenly blessings upon the sender.

Her Fingers Taught Her Feet

By Aubrey B. Haines

WHEN Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch danced "Giselle" at the Greek Theater in Los Angeles' Griffith Park recently, ballet patrons witnessed a veritable phenomenon. Mrs. Alonso learned to dance the title role not on her toes but on her fingers.

Soon after joining Ballet Theater Alicia noticed that she frequently bumped into things and was uncertain where her partner would be. Once she complained to her husband, Fernando Alonso, about it. They began testing how far they could see to the side when looking straight ahead.

Alicia found that—instead of seeing in a semicircle as people with normal vision do—she saw in a triangular pattern. A physician's examination revealed that she had detachment of the retina. "This was especially tragic to me," she recalls, "for a ballerina learns to dance with her eyes, watching other people dance."

THEN SURGERY BEGAN. Two operations, performed in New York, traced the difficulty to her tonsils, which were removed. Back in her native Havana, Alicia underwent her third and most crucial operation. This, however, was only the beginning. The doctor told her that she had only one chance to get well. For an entire year she must lie in bed, completely still, with eyes bandaged. She must not move, cry, nor laugh. At the end of the year she might be able to see well enough to perform simple household tasks, but the doctor doubted that she would ever dance again.

Lying alone in a room in her family's home, Alicia realized that this was a real test of her faith. "It was such torture for me to lie still," she recalls, "feeling my muscles lose their power and learning that I was gaining weight and becoming flabby. Then I realized that dancing must still be the most important part of my life. Having lived for it always, I couldn't give it up."

LYING FLAT on her back, the young dancer began to visualize ballet for the first time as the audience sees it. "I saw all the steps that I had done," she remembers, "and how often I had done them wrong. I side and out. All in all, a book to be read for its quality and its power to entertain as few books can; and the satisfaction it gives for having read it.

Late Books

"HOMESPUN AMERICA," edited and with an introduction and commentary by Wallace Brockway and Bart Keith Winer (Simon and Schuster, $10): This handsome 831-page anthology is a book of many moods, a mixture of sense and nonsense, solemnity and levity, whimsy and wisdom. The writings are by some of America's most famous men of wit and wisdom, among them Ben Franklin, John James Audubon, Andrew Jackson, Davey Crockett, Henry David Thoreau, James Russell Lowell, Brigham Young, Artemus Ward, Louisa May Alcott, Mark Twain, Ring Lardner and Robert Frost. Also contributing are such distinguished English writers as Charles Dickens, Peter H. Burnett, Oliver Wendell Holmes and P. T. Barnum. Read any page and you'll enjoy it: It's all very down-to-earth and very American.

A thumbnail look at some other new books:

"AN APACHE CAMPAIGN IN THE SIERRA MADRE" by John G. Bourke (Scribners, $2.75): One of two writers who actually penetrated the Southwest during Indian days, Mr. Bourke describes as only an eye witness can the United States Army campaign in 1883, which brought together Geronimo and Gen. George Crook. Introduction to this chronicle, which has been out of print for many years, is by J. Frank Dobie.

"THE KATE SMITH 'COMPANY'S COMING' COOKBOOK" (Prentice-Hall, $3.95): Kate Smith is a past master at the art of entertaining informally. Here she offers 300 recipes which have delighted her guests. A separate chapter contains tempting recipes she has received from her fans.

"CLAUDINE IN PARIS" by Colette (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $3.75): Claudine—half-child, half-woman, impetuous but chastely sensual—explores Paris in this entertaining sequel to "Claudine in School." Only one person could write such a novel and that person, of course, is France's own Colette.

"A DOCTOR SPEAKS HIS MIND," by Roger I. Lee, M. D. (Little, Brown, $3): A happy and devoted doctor for more than a half-century deplores some of today's medical practices, particularly the specialists who know "more and more about less and less," and concludes that the general practitioner always will be the backbone of the medical profession.

"THE BOOK OF THE SEA," edited by A. C. Spectorsky (Gossett & Dunlap, $4.95): This reissue is a complete, unabridged edition of the magnificent original that cost $12.50—an anthology of dramatic writings, from earliest times to the present, with 64 pages of beautiful illustrations in halftone and gravure, and many line drawings. Worthy of the finest libraries.

"JACOB" by Jean Cabries (Dutton, $4.95): After developing first the theme of Jacob's flight, this novel by a young Frenchman follows closely the story told in the Book of Genesis — his sojourn in the house of his uncle Laban, his acquisition of wealth, his wives and his concubines, and, finally, his return at the head of a multitude.

danced in my mind, and Fernando showed me my mistakes." When in the evening he came to see her, she would show him with her fingers the dance she was practicing, and he would correct any errors. Blinded and motionless, she taught herself to dance Giselle.

"It's my favorite role now," Alicia says, "because, I suppose, I learned it under such impossible circumstances." When the year of seclusion ended, Alicia's troubles were not over. Afraid that she might once more jar loose her retina, the doctor still forbade her to practice dancing. She still had to guard her eyes and had to learn to walk again.

MORE WEEKS passed, and Alicia resolved that she had been obedient long enough. She pretended to take walks with her parents' Great Dane but in reality visited a ballet studio two blocks from her home for daily practice.

Then a Caribbean hurricane howled down upon Havana, and Alicia ran to the patio to get the dog, which had recently given birth to puppies. A strong gust blew the glass out of the door from which she had just come, and the splinters hit her on the back of the head. She fell screaming on top of the dogs. Fernando rushed out to find her lying bleeding on the pavement.

An examination by the doctor revealed that the blow had done her retina no harm. "If your eyes can withstand such a shock, you can dance again," he said. She cabled Ballet Theater her readiness to return. Back she went as a soloist, arriving in New York with her head still bandaged. One night she got her chance to dance Giselle when Alicia Markova, at the time prima ballerina of the company, became ill.

"When asked if I could do it, I said, 'Of course,'" Alicia recalls. "For a moment I really thought that I had danced Giselle on the stage, I knew it so well. Yet the only way I had danced it was with my fingers when I was sick." Her performance was a triumph, as it has been ever since. So a critic recently said of her interpretation of the role, "Alicia Alonso is the reigning Giselle of the present day."

BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Southland takes its readers into a different, attractive Long Beach area home each week.

Danny Riehl displays his sister's 3-tiered parasol which he discovered was not kite, rocket or chute.

Not a Rocket, But a Parasol

By Edna Hicks

DANNY RIEHL, an enterprising youngster of four summers who lives in Orange, found the strange contraption in his sister's clothes closet.

It was paper, bright and figured, and it looked something like a parachute and something like a kite.

Danny took it outdoors to investigate.

He pressed little latches and found that it opened in three tiers.

IT WASN'T A KITE because it didn't fly. It wasn't a rocket because it didn't shoot up into the clouds. It wasn't a parachute because it did not come down from anything.

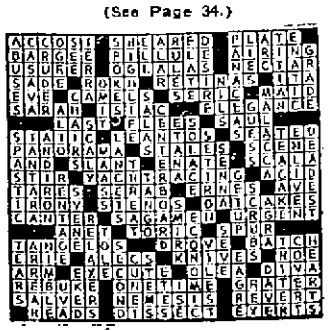

"Just girl's paper stuff," said Danny.

Around the corner darted his sister, Barbara Lee, 7, and she retrieved—HER PARASOL.

Swiss 'Mot-Hotel'

Sachseln: The first "Mot-Hotel," a combination of the traditional hotel type and a modern motel, was inaugurated recently at Sachseln, Central Switzerland. The Touring Club of Switzerland, one of Switzerland's two leading motorists' associations, had the historic, 500-year-old "Kreuz" Inn completely modernized and supplemented by four up-to-date motel units. The "Kreuz" mot-hotel is Touring-Club's first venture into this field.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE
(See Page 34.)

Diet's Important to Begonias, Too

For an abundance of lush growth and a profusion of blooms in a single season, be sure to provide tuberous begonias with a complete balanced diet. According to the Belgian Begonia Growers Association, the two common problems in handling these aristocrats of the summer garden are overfeeding and over-watering.

Tuberous Begonias like to be moist and cool. A mist spray is highly beneficial during the hot dry summer months. These plants have shallow roots and for that reason must not be allowed to dry. On the other hand, a waterlogged condition will cause rotting of the roots and stems.

Tubers can easily be saved from year to year. Just as other tender bulbs, tuberous begonias need a rest period over the winter. In most areas, tubers are taken out of the ground with a digging fork after the plant has died. They are washed and allowed to cure in the sun for two or three weeks. When thoroughly dry, the stem can be pulled out easily. Store in a cool and semi-moist place over the winter, often in dry peat or dry sand.

Plan Ahead

The wise gardener looks well ahead. Plant perennial seeds now for bloom next spring. Carnation, gerbera, hollyhock, delphinium, many more. Consult your nurseryman about which seeds will do best in your soil and climate.

Answered

No one knew exactly how it happened, but one of the Sunday School teachers injured her hand during class and medical attention was necessary. Filling out the insurance claim posed no problems until she came to this: 'What were you doing at the time of the accident? Examples: Laying bricks, driving truck, etc.'

After some deliberation she wrote, "working to beat the Devil!"

Shoyu Will Add Flavor to Old Standbys

Have you discovered shoyu? If not, hurry to the grocery and get a bottle. You'll give your family a new taste thrill.

Northwest Orient Airlines stewardesses, who have been enjoying shoyu in Japan and Hawaii, are passing the word along to their passengers. Also known as soya, soyu, and soy, shoyu is the "salt of the Orient." It's a fermented liquid made from roasted corn and steamed soy beans mixed with malt-mould and salted water. Caramel is added for color and flavor.

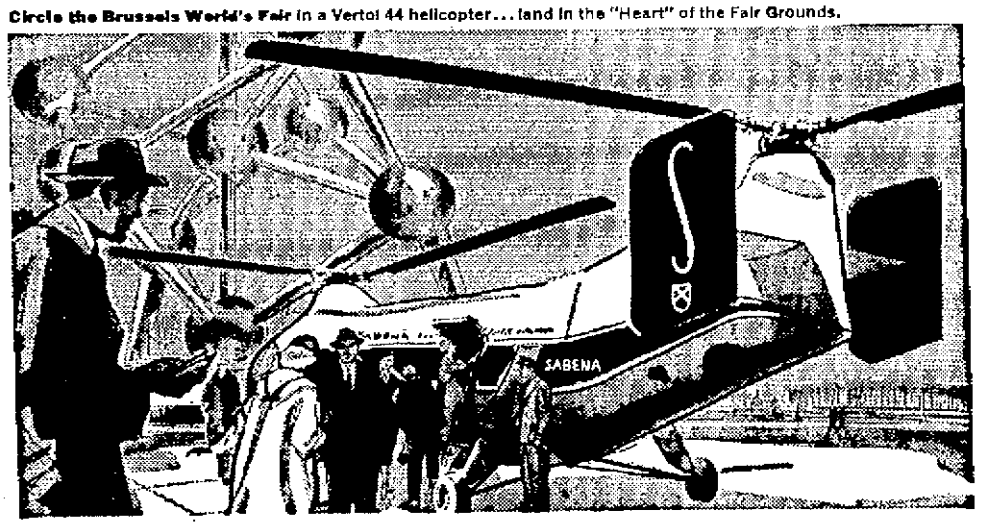

Nutritionists say it's healthful. And it's a gourmet's delight at a price anyone can afford. Originated in Japan, it found its way to Honolulu and now is available everywhere. It brings out the special flavors in various foods.

A few drops of shoyu give an extra tangy flavor of old standbys. A few drops over steak, hamburgers or chicken add oomph." It's fine for marinating beef, lamb or pork. Good cooks turn to it when broiling or barbecuing, using two parts of shoyu, one of white wine and one of vegetable oil, with a little garlic and ginger. It adds flavor to cream cheese and other snack dips. It improves gravies and salad dressings.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"How do we make arrangements for the Rhine steamer trip from Wiesbaden to Cologne while we are in Germany?"

JUST LIKE a ferry ride. You take a taxi down to the dock and buy a ticket at the little window—for a dollar or two as I remember. You can have lunch on the boat and take the train back if you like.

Better ask at your hotel if there is apt to be a crowd. I got on this trip over a three-day holiday and, believe me, it was fierce. But worth it.

"We are driving to Mexico in October. Can you suggest towns that are not overrun with tourists?"

THAT'S A GOOD off-season month. But for nontourist towns—the problem is that such towns usually have no tourists because they don't have hotels. Mexico is not like the U.S., where you can always find a motel.

Best bets are off the major highways: Guanajuato, off the El Paso highway; Patzcuaro, off the Guadalajara-Mexico City highway; far-south towns like Tuxtla Guitierrez or Mitla or the area around Oaxaca.

"How many cigarettes can you take into European countries? What is the best way to buy them in Europe?"

MOST RULE BOOKS say 200, that is, one carton. However, this is a rule aimed at imports for sale. Customs officers usually don't push you on it. I generally take in about four or five cartons.

American cigarettes will cost you roughly 50 cents a pack in Europe. Except for Spain, where they are smuggled in from Tangier and sold quite openly at 25 cents.

Best buy is at the duty-free airport at Shannon, Ireland, if you stop there. Untaxed American cigarettes run around $1.50 a carton.

"Are there good antique buys in Vienna?"

I UNDERSTAND the government pawn shop called "The Dorotheum" is very good.

IF YOU SEND $3 to the British Travel Centre, 336 Madison Ave., New York City, you get a year's subscription to the excellent magazine, "Coming Events in Britain." Many good articles on places to go and see.

". . . some unusual, not-too-expensive place for dinner one night in New York?"

CAMERA ANGLES

Vacation Shots Take Planning

By the Shutterbug

TOTING up my just-back from-vacation photo experiences, with its lessons learned from mistakes and successes, could be helpful to those camera fans with vacation time still ahead of them.

Definitely on the plus side was a day-by-day pocket notebook and diary. This gives the date and name of every place we stopped in orderly fashion. Whenever we stopped to take pictures, a few brief descriptive notes were added to make later identification easy and positive.

Any snapshooter who has conscientiously written down names, dates and other data on a menu, map or other handy scrap of paper will appreciate a bound notebook because there seems to be no way to prevent those scraps from disintegrating by the time they're needed for reference.

IN HINDSIGHT, I'd add one further recommendation. About my recent pictures, my written record tells who, what, where and when but not how.

Since my wife kept the records (and here's a tip of my sunshade for her good work) she didn't report any of the off-beat exposure data because I never relayed them.

Yet today, in going over the results from 25 rolls of black-and-white film, I wish I were more certain as to when I used a green filter and when the red.

I am glad, though, that I took along more than one camera. Most of the time, I had three slung around my neck. I wanted color and stereo slides besides the black-and-white. Trouble came after a visit to a beach.

YOU KNOW how shifty sand can be and how defenseless cameras are unless they're covered or hidden. Well, one camera inhaled a little more flying sand than was good for it and was rendered momentarily hors de combat.

For the next couple of days there was a shift to the new 35mm Kodacolor film. The latest development of this versatile film is that 35mm color transparency slides can be made from it as well as black-and-white or color prints.

Later, after some hefty blowing, vigorous shaking and some careful cleaning, the "black-and-white" camera was returned to duty pending more expert checkup now that we're back home.

THE MATTER of enough film tripped me up also, in two ways. There were times when I had an ample supply, but it was in the wrong place. Like the time we took a cable car ride up a mountainside and the cameras devoured all the film in the gadget bag and called for more. The reserve remained remote and unobtainable in the car at the bottom of the mountain. It also happened when we took "short" walks which turned out to be major expeditions with more photogenic sights and situations than we anticipated.

SECONDLY, despite my annual warnings in these columns, I ran out of film altogether. For some reason I can't explain, the last rolls of film always seem to zip through cameras at greater speeds and more opportunities to shoot crop up than normal. And it always happens between cities, at spots where your particular size or type of film is not easily obtainable.

In retrospect, I wish I hadn't passed by some of the people, places and events because I was sure I'd get around to taking better pictures of them later. Some of them never got taken at all and some of the first views were the most impressive, after all.

It makes better sense to shoot first and then seek improvements later. It's good insurance and allows greater selectivity later.

This photo enthusiast uses the cooperation of the whole family to snap pictures on recent vacation.

U. S. Parks

than in July," says Jack K. Anderson, management assistant for National Park Service.

IT WAS GLACIER PARK which pioneered this summer the new system of providing talented student helpers. Nearly 40 colleges were culled for musical talent. From 12,000 applicants, 550 young singers and instrumentalists were selected. After serving the soup, your waiter may step back and sing with, for instance, a dozen other members of the famous St. Olaf's Choir of Northfield, Minn.

Park officials report that the earnest, dedicated music students are more reliable in their other duties than the general run of college students.

Assigned to Glacier Park Lodge, for example, was Joyce Anderson, an alto soloist from Wittenberg College. Joyce will teach sixth graders in a Garden Grove school this year.

PET PARADE

A Day in the Life of a Canine Star

By Eleanor Avery Price

TELEVISION serials featuring dogs as important members of the cast pull a large number of viewers. These dogs are alert, well-trained, and bright-eyed with good health. Much can be learned about what makes them this way from the care and training they get.

Take Asta, as an example. Asta, registered with the AKC as Kilary's Kan Doo, is the wire-haired fox terrier who soared to stardom with his first television appearance as the personality pet of Nick and Nora Charles, played by Peter Lawford and Phyllis Kirk, in "The Thin Man." He is owned by movie dog manager Halleck H. Driscoll, who placed him in the care of William Koehler of Pomona to learn the art of performing in dramatic situations.

DRISCOLL SAYS that, although Asta's daily schedule is necessarily different from most home dogs, his sensible diet and care could easily be adapted for almost any canine.

Asta's working day begins at 6 a.m. when he is placed in a board-floor run for a light breakfast of shredded wheat and milk. Arriving on the set at 8:30 a.m., he gets his first of several daily brushings.

Throughout the day, he walks —and visits fire plugs—four or five times, is offered clean fresh drinking water frequently, and is sometimes rewarded with dog candy for a job well done.

WHEN HE RETURNS home around 7 p.m., Asta is allowed to exercise in his run for an hour and then is given his second, and large meal of the day. His food consists of cooked meat mixed with kibble and cottage cheese. A vitamin supplement is also given.

By 10 p.m. Asta is ready for a night's rest, bed being a sleeping box inside the house.

On Saturday, Asta is taken to a dog beauty parlor for a stripping, shampoo, and whisker trim. Thanks to these beauty treatments, daily brushings, and nourishing food, Asta's beautifully formed head and wiry-coated body are always in top condition for each episode of "The Thin Man."

Koehler, trainer of Roy Roger's Bullet, his own Wildfire, and many other dogs over a 20-year period, was a member of the wartime K-9 Corps. He says Asta easily assimilates instruction, and his retentive power is excellent. He is emotionally stable with a restless but not hysterical quality that makes him want to play into the picture, not just look at the trainer. He photographs well because most his coloring is light.

THOUGH NOT all dogs possess all the above qualities, Koehler believes almost any dog can be at least a canine headliner in its own home. Koehler highly recommends obedience training of the dog, but he also thinks the owner should obedience train himself.

He believes one cannot shout angrily at a dog and expect it to interpret anything but disapproval, and one cannot glare at it without the dog feeling guilty.

In fact, Koehler feels one usually cannot even think unpleasant thoughts about one's dog without it tuning in like a radio receiver.

So, if you want your dog to have a well rounded pattern of good behavior, keep yourself in hand and remain consistent at all times.

ENTRIES FOR Maria Obispo Kennel Club's unbenched show, Sept. 28, at Santa Maria Fairgrounds, will close Sept. 15.

Asta, wire-haired terrier, featured on TV 'Thin Man' show, shares secret of all top stars—good grooming.

1. AFTER REMOVING old counter-top material and sink, sand counter top smooth or recover with plywood or hardboard. Fill the screw holes, joints with wood putty, sand smooth.

2. AFTER FASTENING hardboard or plywood in place, cut out hole for sink. Apply special plastic counter-top glue to entire counter top. Use grooved applicator to spread glue uniformly on surface, in corners, along edge.

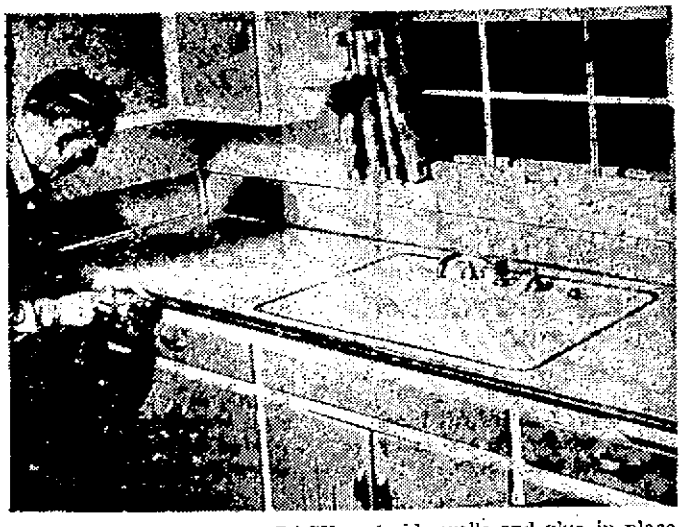

3. CUT PLASTIC to fit lengthwise and roll into place. Make sure counter-top material butts against backwall. Use damp cloth, to press material firmly on counter-top surface.

4. TRIM EXCESS counter-top material along front of counter. Plastic material is easily trimmed with scissors. A sharp knife works best for trimming the corners, curved edges.

5. AFTER TRIMMING off front edge of material flush with the counter, use a sharp knife to cut hole for sink. Use knife with a sawing motion, but cut only on the downward stroke.

6. CUT STRIPS FOR BACK and side walls and glue in place. Metal molding and corners cover joints and front edge of the counter top. Install sink and tighten down securely.

Mums Steal the Fall Show

By Joe Littlefield

MANY GARDENERS prefer to grow the huge, commercial-exhibition type of chrysanthemums, even though lots of loving care has to go into the development of these spectacular autumn blooms.

True, these flowers steal the show in fall, but less ambitious growers find just as much pleasure in the "run-of-the-garden" blooms that require less attention — and herein also lies some of the affection of some for the pompon type of mum.

To gain giant blooms of show quality, care must be taken in every detail of culture. Emphasis must be placed on disbudding—removing all but the few desired buds. This diverts the strength of the plant into a few blooms which then must be carefully groomed to maturity.

Disbudding won't result in large pompon mums, but larger blossoms will result from such treatment of the plants.

Here's a little trick with pompon mums: Decide about how many flowers you want to pick for table decoration. Disbud the selected branches from which you pick the flowers, leaving only one flower to a branch. This leaves flower clusters on other branches that will remain small, continuing to bloom. Thus, you make the plant serve a twofold purpose

Continue to give the plants generous amounts of water. If the buds haven't started to show color, fertilize them with a complete plant food.

Disbudding branches of chrysanthemum produces larger blooms than if buds were not removed.

YOU'LL ADD MORE fall color in your sunny flower bed by planting some mums, right now. Your local nurseryman has them available in tin can containers. Plant some mums in the garden, leave the others in the containers and place them in the patio for spots of color, or plant them into larger containers.

Blossoms aren't the only form of floral decoration for indoors. There are a number of shrubs that flower arrangers list as "musts" for their gardens. They grow the plants for their decorative foliage uses.

Jessie Black, a well known floral arranger and active in California Garden Clubs, Inc., has her favorite foliage shrubs she grows to use for decorative purposes. Shrubs she recommends are Ternstroemia, Chinese Photinia, Nandina, small leaf bamboos, Correa magnifica, purple leaf plum; Viburnum suspensum, Chamaelaucium, small and larger leaf Myrtle for the blackberries that follow the blooms, geranium, saxifrage, billbergia, smoke tree and shake grass.

TERNSTROEMIA HAS the most colorful foliage. In the sun the leaves turn almost blood red. In the shade, the leaves stay a green color. Topping the plants several times forces them to grow bushy instead of tall and upright.

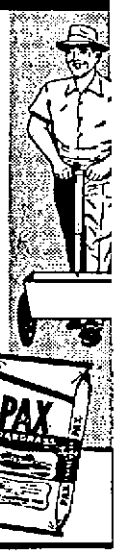

Chinese photinia serves a three-fold purpose. The mature foliage is stiff and handy for decorative uses. The masses of creamy-colored flowers look like billows of smoke hovering over the plant. New growth looks like hammered copper, and old-

Black spot on roses is a very serious fungus disease, but many people make the mistake of thinking the black specks that appear like pepper on top of the leaves is genuine black spot.

Actually, the fungus disease known as black spot starts on the underside and usually rots through to the top of the leaves.

The black spots appearing on top of the leaves are due to soil deficiency — lack of the necessary trace of mineral elements in the soil in which the roses grow. This can be corrected by the use of a proper trace element product used two or three times during the season.

Fuchsia Society

Report of the nominating committee and nomination of officers by delegates of some 30 branches and the board of directors will be major items of business at the bimonthly meeting of the California National Fuchsia Society at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Richard Henry Dana School, 135th and Aviation Blvd., Hawthorne. William L. Taylor, Anaheim, is president of the society.

Fuchsia Society branch awards in the Blue Whale word contest, in which hundreds of garden clubs from the coastal states and British Columbia participated, will be presented. First place, a $100 award, goes to Santa Barbara branch; second, $50, to Long Beach branch.

Wiseburn and El Segundo branches, cohosts, invite members and friends to attend and meet candidates. Refreshments will be served.

est leaves turn rich red in the winter.

Nandina, "heavenly bamboo," has attractive fall foliage coloring. Bamboo leaves are distinctly different from most other ornamental plants.

Correa magnifica has dark green foliage with a furry brown beneath. The long chartreuse flowers in the spring are an added attraction to the plant. Be careful not to overwater this plant.

PURPLE LEAF PLUM has to have plenty of space to grow, and seemingly doesn't mind growing in a lawn. White or pink flowers bloom in the spring; reddish, colorful foliage occurs in the summer.

Viburnum suspensum has green foliage and is a welcome addition for floral decoration. The small clusters of white scented flowers add color to the plants in winter.

BOAT TALK

Back to Sea School

By Bob Ruskauff

SHIP'S BELLS won't be ringing, but if you are yearnin' for learnin'- about the sea and for free—get ready to enroll.

Which is by way of saying two organizations that have done a tremendous job of providing boat and water savvy for the boating masses (and they now are masses) are about to begin fall courses throughout the Southland.

Courses are free, open to all, but also on first-come, first-served basis until the classes are loaded. Then, no more until spring.

Lt. Cmdr. Rubin Young, director of the auxiliary program for the U. S. Coast Guard, said opening (enrollment) classes will begin in this area the week of Sept. 15. Instruction will take 12 weeks, 2½ hours one evening per week.

In Long Beach, the site will be Dewey High School, 235 E. 8th St., starting Sept. 16, 7:30 p.m. (that, lubbers will soon learn, is 1930). In Torrance, Fern School, 1314 Fern St., Sept. 15, 6:30 p.m. In the Newport area, Balboa Yacht Club (for details call Oriole 3-0420).

ART RUDD, for four years now Educational Officer of Long Beach Power Squadron, announces enrollments and first classes at two Long Beach schools (among 16 Los Angeles-Orange County communities with similar programs).

These will be at Jefferson Junior High School, 750 Euclid Ave., Sept. 15, 7:30 p.m., and at Hamilton Junior High, 1016 E. 70th St., Sept. 17, 7:30 p.m. These classes in piloting and small boat handling, will be for 13 weeks, two hours each night.

The Monday classes of LBPS will handle about 170 persons, those on Wednesday, 125. As for USCG auxiliary, though under 50 per class is preferred, one spring enrollment had 100.

INSTRUCTION methods differ slightly, but in the main the two organizations proceed on similar basis, beginning with the basic objective which is sea safety, which can be gained only through knowledge.

Anyone, whether or not a boat owner or club member, may enroll. Those completing the course, then taking and passing examinations (some 60-70 per cent do so, others just complete the courses), receive certificates.

All instruction time is donated by ardent, seasoned Corinthians. Specialist experts present occasional features. USPS breaks its classes into smaller groups, under charge of a monitor to expedite instruction.

JOHN OLGIN
Back From Alaska

SINCE CALIFORNIA is a healthy distance from Florida, not everyone out here knows what a Florida pompano is.

So perhaps the following information is pertinent. A pompano is a Florida fish which attains a length of 18 inches. It has a deep thin body, a rounded head and is golden, silver and blue in color.

It is also extremely delicious, especially the way it is prepared at the redecorated Harbor House Restaurant, 701 E. Ocean Blvd. Chefs Jack Richardson and Andre Foure saute their pompano with sliced almonds. The result is food fit for the Queen of Sheba. The fish is white and flaky, falls apart at the touch of a fork and has a delicate unfishy flavor.

In addition to its expert chefs, the Harbor House—owned by Ron Deardon and Ernie Moore—features the talents of Maitre d' John Olgin, a gentleman who is sometimes referred to as Ageless Johnny. The name is fitting because Ageless Johnny, who is a handsome grandfather, has looked 28 years old for the last 20 years.

LONG KNOWN to Long Beach restaurant-goers, Olgin recently returned here from Alaska, where his maitre d' talents at Anchorage's Chart Room won that restaurant Holiday magazine's 1957 award for achievement in cuisine. Olgin has gathered a competent staff at the Harbor House, including such waiters as Rocky Malone, who is superbly professional.

The large menu at the Harbor House offers extensive complete dinners which include a remarkably creamy clam chowder, large salad, potatoes, beverage and dessert. Among the entrees: pompano, $2.50; red snapper, $2.25; grilled deep sea bass, $2.25; halibut steak, $2.25; crab legs Florentine, $2.85; abalone, $2.75. Specialties include handsome, live Maine lobsters, $5.50, and the Gourmet Plate ($5), a spectacular affair which includes lobster, broiled chicken and assorted sea foods.

The Pat Blakely models stage luncheon fashion shows at the restaurant Tuesdays at 12:30 p.m.

Special report on Lance Reventlow:
World's richest baby grows up

Pin the name on the donkey the elephant

Enter Parade's election-year contest— you may win a trip to Europe

During the upcoming election campaign, you'll see these animals everywhere and know what they symbolize. Everyone knows the donkey stands for the Democratic Party, the elephant for the Republican. Both have been in politics since the 1870's — but neither, strange to say, ever has had a name.

Here's your chance to name these two symbols.

To stimulate interest in the great American privilege of voting, PARADE is sponsoring a contest to choose names for the party mascots. If the name you suggest is best, you (and a companion you choose) can win a 10-day, all-expenses paid trip to the French Riviera, or — if you prefer — a skiing holiday in the Alps. There will be two first-place winners — one for the best donkey's name and one for the elephant's.

But more important, this can be your chance to contribute to history. The national party chairmen expect the names to stick, and in the future the names will turn up in campaign literature, posters and speeches. And you'll help to make free government work. Voting is the cornerstone of democracy — but too many Americans still shirk their responsibility. This year, the parties and the non-partisan American Heritage Foundation will launch great get-out-the-vote drives. By entering PARADE's contest, you can support their purpose and make a vital patriotic contribution.

And you can help. The names you suggest can be short or long, symbolic, historic or just catchy. Maybe your inspiration will come from the mascots' history. You'll find some of that history at right. Next week PARADE will offer more hints from the past.

The prizes for the two cleverest choices are well worth aiming for. Winners will fly in a DC-7C Scandinavian Airways System airliner to Copenhagen, then on to the French Riviera (or to Switzerland or Austria, if you choose) for 10 days, with all bills paid. You and your companion can make the trip any time between December 1, 1958, and February 1, 1959.

And there will be 118 more prizes. From readers of this newspaper will come winners for a donkey's name and an elephant's name. These runners-up will receive a handsome pen desk set, specially designed by Arlen Trophy Co., Inc., plus a parchment scroll from the American Heritage Foundation, commending them for help in making democracy work.

The contest closes September 29. Judges will be Democratic chairman Paul Butler, Republican chairman Meade Alcorn and John C. Cornelius, president of the American Heritage Foundation. Winners will be announced in PARADE November 2. Read the rules and get out your pencil now. Remember, all entries must be on the contest entry blank. Send your suggestions to: Name Contest Editor, PARADE, Box 1640, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N.Y.

On Parade: Almost since the U.S. began, political parties have rallied around symbols — or used them derisively against opponents. The Democratic donkey and the Republican elephant — which you can name in our big contest — are the best-known, but are latecomers.

Back in Andrew Jackson's 1828 campaign, his opponents used the coffin as his symbol. It dramatized their claim that Jackson was a butcher who had killed his own militiamen. Later anti-Jacksonites used a spittoon to represent him.

Best-known symbol in the early years was the log cabin and cider barrel, representing the Whig, William Henry Harrison, in 1840. First used by his opponents, the log cabin was taken over by the Whigs.

Four years later, a coon represented the Whigs; the opposing Democrats called themselves "Coonskinners." In Lincoln's campaigns, a rail was the symbol—as in Lincoln the railsplitter.

The elephant came along in 1874. Cartoonist Thomas Nast of Harper's Weekly invented it, then used it repeatedly until other cartoonists adopted it. Nast also fathered the donkey, a few years later. Before that, Nast, a Republican, had tried a fox as the Democratic symbol, but the fox implied cleverness.

The donkey and elephant first appeared together in 1879. They've been together ever since.

Give you any ideas?

Jack Paar's Bouncy Buffoons

Ping-pong balls inspire TV humor

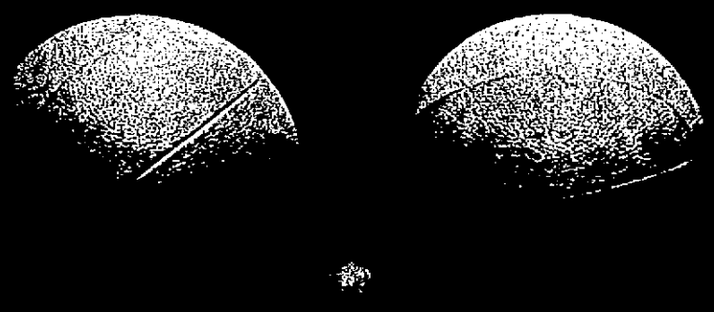

You've got to think of them as little people who live in a happy world of their own, explains television star Jack Paar, as he arranges a Ping-pong ball and a baseball on a strip of black velvet. Paar sees [illegible] in [illegible] his oddly assorted cast of spherical chums in the world of stay-up-late on his NBC-TV Tonight show. On stage, they behave with mad logic. Brainfather of this twist in abstract humor is Paar's chief writer, Jack Douglas.

"Fritz! You've been dueling again!"

"Look, Mommy — an angel!"

"I'm sure you guys are familiar with the rules of the New York State Boxing Commission."

"Do you think it'll rain all week end?"

"Take me to your leader."

"Mabel, you've really got to give up sweets."

OLD-FASHIONED RICE PUDDING

—the quicker Minute Rice way

⅔ cup Minute Rice • 2¾ cups milk • ⅓ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter • ½ teaspoon salt • ½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon nutmeg • Cinnamon • Sugar

Combine Minute Rice, milk, sugar, butter, salt, vanilla and nutmeg in a greased 1-quart baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 1 hour, stirring after 15 minutes, and again when pudding is done. Then sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Place under broiler a few minutes to brown. Serve warm, or chilled.

Pudding thickens as it stands, because Minute Rice continues to absorb the milk and flavors as pudding cools. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

GLORIFIED MINUTE RICE

A dream dessert that's double-quick

⅔ cup Minute Rice • ⅔ cup water • ½ cup pineapple juice
½ teaspoon salt • 1 cup diced marshmallows • 6 diced maraschino cherries • ¾ cup drained canned crushed pineapple
⅓ cup chopped nuts • 2 cups sweetened whipped cream

Combine Minute Rice, water, pineapple juice and salt in saucepan. Mix just to moisten all rice. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat. Cover and simmer 5 minutes.

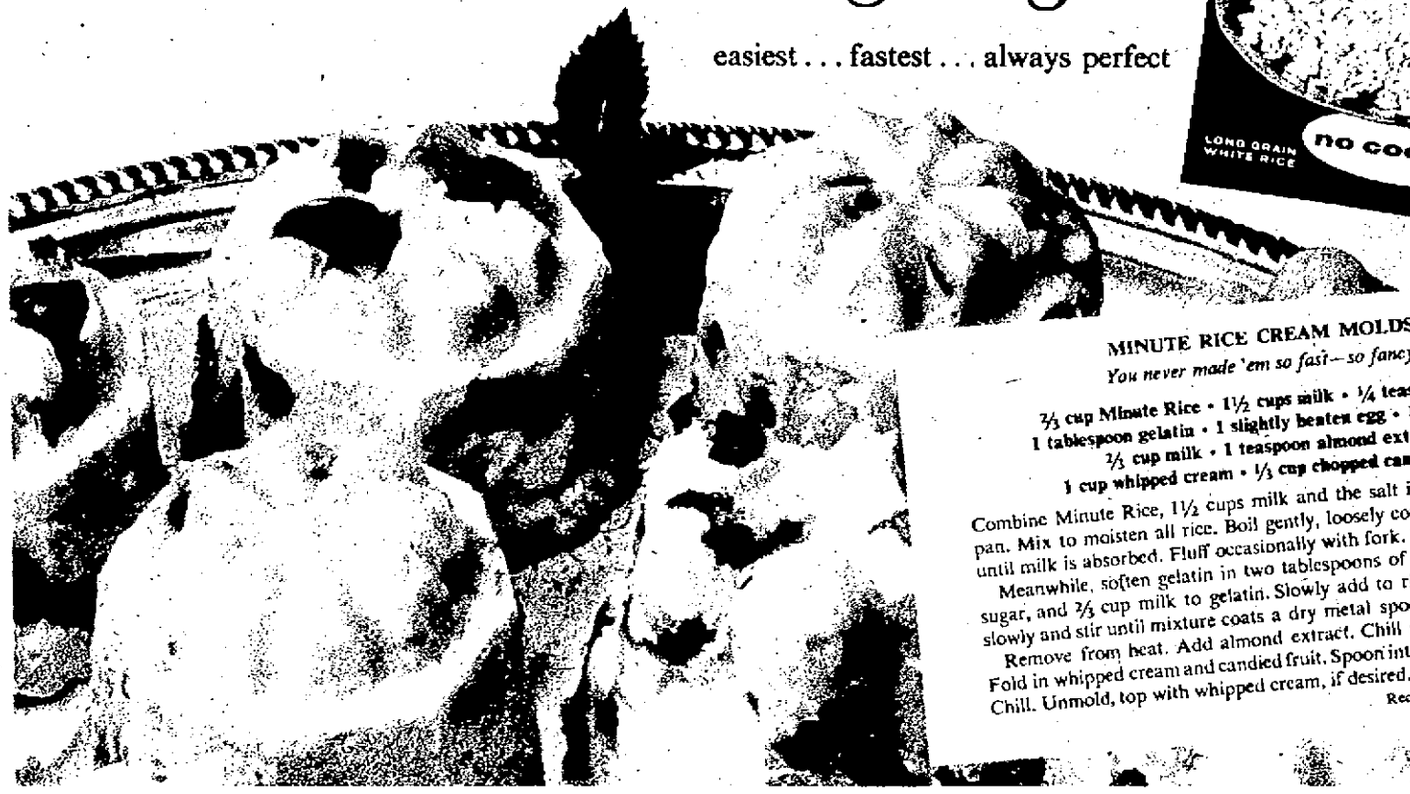

Remove from heat, let stand 5 minutes. Add marshmallows, cherries, pineapple and nuts. Cool to room temperature. Fold in whipped cream and chill 1 hour. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Cool, happy desserts for company—for family—or just for fun

MINUTE RICE CREAM MOLDS

You never made 'em so fast—so fancy!

⅔ cup Minute Rice • 1½ cups milk • ¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon gelatin • 1 slightly beaten egg • ⅓ cup sugar
⅔ cup milk • 1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup whipped cream • ⅓ cup chopped candied fruit

Combine Minute Rice, 1½ cups milk and the salt in large, heavy saucepan. Mix to moisten all rice. Boil gently, loosely covered, 10 minutes, or until milk is absorbed. Fluff occasionally with fork. Remove from heat.

Meanwhile, soften gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Add egg, sugar, and ⅔ cup milk to gelatin. Slowly add to rice, mixing well. Cook slowly and stir until mixture coats a dry metal spoon.

Remove from heat. Add almond extract. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped cream and candied fruit. Spoon into 6 to 8 buttered molds. Chill. Unmold, top with whipped cream, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

LANCE REVENTLOW:

THE WORLD'S RICHEST

Blessed with wealth, good looks and a remarkably sound approach to life, this 22-year-old son of Barbara Hutton faces up to unique problems

by LLOYD SHEARER
Parade West Coast correspondent

What would you do if you were 22, single and had:
- A million dollars and unlimited credit;
- A $200,000 hilltop mansion in Beverly Hills;
- Your own airplane (a Cessna 310) and several cars including a Rolls Royce, a Ferrari and a Scarab;
- A cook and butler to wait on you;
- A bright and beautiful 18-year-old actress girl friend named Jill St. John;
- The knowledge that you were sole heir to a fortune ranging from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000?

With these assets, what would you do with your life? This is the problem today confronting Lance Reventlow, the tall (6'), well-built (170 lbs.), handsome (brown eyes, blond hair) son of Barbara Hutton, heiress to the tremendous Woolworth fortune.

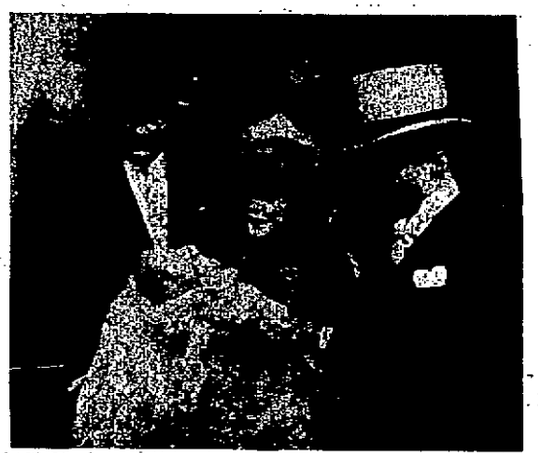

Sensitive, asthmatic and intelligent, young Reventlow is faced with several alternatives. Should he become a playboy like some of his relatives and other scions of wealthy American families? Should he enter politics like the Roosevelts and Rockefellers? Should he dedicate himself and his money to the betterment of humanity? Or should he satisfy his every whim, spending his money as he sees fit?

These are the questions which today course through Lance's mind. As yet, he has found no answer.

No Store Manager

"If I were connected with a family business," he says, "it might be easy for me to follow in my father's footsteps. But the truth is that I haven't talked to my father [Count Haugwitz Reventlow, an ex-German soldier who became a naturalized Dane] in ten years, and I'd sooner be caught dead than follow in his footsteps. My mother hasn't owned any Woolworth stock for years. And besides, I don't have the temperament or the desire to become the manager of a five-and-dime store. If I did, I'd become one."

Right now, Reventlow is interested in sports cars. "I like to race 'em," he explains, "and I like to build 'em. I've finished three Scarabs this year, and eventually I'd like to build custom jobs for sale. I've got a company, the Reventlow Automobile Corporation, a few good friends in the business, and I think we can make a go of it. Unfortunately, it's tough in America for publicized people of inherited wealth to make a go of things. You've got to try doubly hard."

AT CHRISTENING, Lance is admired by parents outside London chapel. Man at left is Barbara Hutton's father.

As Jill St. John, explains things: "When Lance wins a sports car race, as he did at Riverside not too long ago, the scoffers say, 'Who couldn't win with a car like that?' When he loses they say, 'He's a bum.' Either way, he can't win."

Lance Reventlow is sharply aware of the envy and antagonism his inherited wealth arouses in people ("Americans openly scorn but secretly admire royalty and the sons of the rich," wrote de Tocqueville, the noted French observer, more than 100 years ago) and as a result, the young man tries his best to be self-effacing and polite. He rarely throws either his weight or his wallet around.

A few weeks ago, for instance, he appeared for his Army physical in Beverly Hills. Many rich boys here try to avoid service by presenting fake medical histories and dossiers of imaginary ailments. Lance, who scorns such behavior, showed up and took his exam like any other draftee, was turned down as an asthmatic.

Lance has suffered from asthma most of his life. He was born "an almost blue baby" in London and delivered by Caesarean section on February 24, 1936. The delivery nearly killed his mother. As a boy he suffered seriously from one respiratory disease after another and eventually was sent to the Southern Arizona School for Boys in Tucson, a school especially prepared to educate asthmatics. Lance still wheezes when he gets excited. He also has difficulty breathing the night air, and both his lungs are damaged.

Keepsake Giver

For a young man who suffered the strife-torn childhood of the "poor little rich boy" — Lance was constantly fought over by his parents — Reventlow possesses a surprisingly good sense of humor and sense of values. A few years ago he was dating Dawn Addams, an English apprentice actress who later latched onto an Italian prince. "How come," Dawn asked one day, "you never gave me a keepsake of our friendship?"

Lance smiled. The following afternoon Dawn returned to her apartment to find a 50-pound bag of Bandini fertilizer smack in the center of the living room.

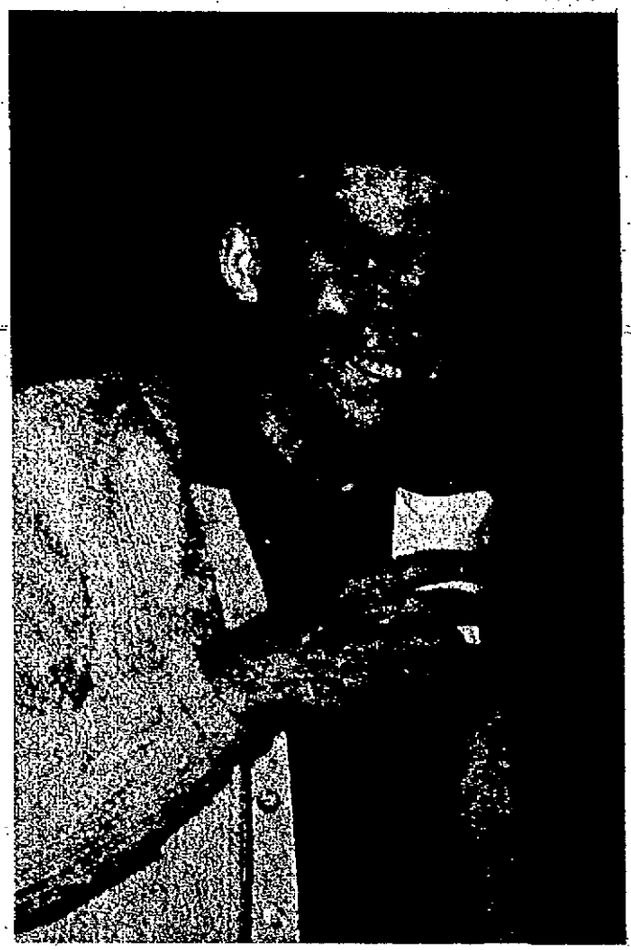

Recently Walter Winchell carried an item to the effect that Barbara Hutton would give her son a check for $5,000,000 the day after he got married. Jill St. John phoned him. "Why don't you marry me for your money?" she asked. Lance laughed. "For that much dough," he cracked, "I'd do almost anything. But marriage is too much."

Like most young rich men, Reventlow views people, especially attractive marriage-minded young women, with a wary eye. "How do you know," he asks, "whether they're interested in you as a human being or your money? That's the trouble with being born rich — it's both a curse and a convenience."

For his age, Reventlow is studiously cautious, reserved and unusually mature. He also is intelligent enough to learn from someone else's experience.

Lance feels his mother, the much-maligned Barbara Hutton whom he loves and admires deeply, is a sensitive, warm-hearted woman of kindness and ethereal beauty. She never has hurt anyone in her life but herself. European fortune-hunters have duped her year after year, because she is an incurable romantic who believes in the essential goodness of human beings. Married six times, first to Alexis Mdvani, then to Count Court Haugwitz Reventlow, actor Cary Grant, Prince Igor Troubtezkoy, Dominican playboy Porfirio Rubirosa and finally to tennis-playing Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Barbara Hutton still refuses to believe that many of the men who move and have moved in her circle are devious, grasping rascals.

BABY GROWS UP

CLEAN-CUT and handsome, Lance has a passion for sports cars, a wariness of Hollywood phonies and fortune hunters.

But Lance Reventlow sees these men with a clear eye. He can go through the list of international society types and chop them down with a few sharp adjectives. Others he speaks of good-naturedly, but always with a perceptive objectivity his mother lacks. Unlike many young people of strong conviction, he is not without sympathy or compassion.

"I've read your mother's poems," I told him, "two slender volumes of fragile, beautiful and moving poetry. How could so sensitive a woman marry the guys she did?"

"It's not too hard to understand," Lance said, "when you realize that there are men in the world who specialize in women. They learn everything there is to learn about them—how to flatter them, how to spoil them, how to charm them. They make a career of it, and frequently they're irresistible. It takes a strong, tough-minded woman to withstand their onslaughts, and my mother isn't one of these. After she marries, the romance seems to vanish. The husbands seem to change. My father talked to my mother about giving up her American citizenship. In Denmark they have a community property law. The husband owns half of his wife's property. That's one of the reasons I'm not particularly fond of my father."

For years Barbara Hutton and Haugwitz Reventlow fought a bitter, no-holds-barred legal battle for the custody of Lance. This at a time when the boy desperately needed love, affection and guidance. Instead there were headlines, recriminations, emotional traumas, law suits. At 2, Lance first was awarded to his father, then to his mother until he reached school age; then he was made a ward of the court. In 1944, when his father was scheduled to relinquish him to his mother's custody, Lance was hustled off to Canada. Of these early years, Reventlow understandably refuses to talk.

Magnificent Fortune

When Lance was awarded by the court to his father, Barbara Hutton created a trust fund of several millions for her son. Haugwitz Reventlow was permitted to control the fund until Lance came of age. After that the residue of the fund was to be returned to the boy (which is how Lance came to pick up his million dollars last year when he was 21).

Stories to the effect that he inherited $25,000,000 at the time are not true. Nor is it true that he lives in a half-million dollar mansion equipped with an indoor swimming pool and all the latest mechanical gadgets.

The house (which he helped design) cost $200,000. It stands on a knoll overlooking Beverly Hills and contains six rooms and a swimming pool, a small portion of which edges into the living room, a merging of outdoor and indoor living not too unusual in California.

The truth about Lance's money is that he does not come into the lion's share until his mother dies or alters her will. His mother is only 46. Upon her death Lance will inherit all her holdings, none of which consist of shares in F. W. Woolworth & Co. These were disposed of many years ago after Barbara Hutton came into outright possession on her 21st birthday, November 14, 1933, of her $40,000,000 share of the Woolworth fortune.

Barbara Hutton's father, Franklin Hutton, a broker who had married Edna Woolworth, daughter of Jessie and Frank Woolworth, founder of the five-and-ten chain, invested his daughter's money so shrewdly that today, according to conservative estimates, it has doubled in value. Barbara Hutton, however, has given a good deal of it away to sundry husbands and charities.

Mother Writes Poetry

She is passionately devoted to Lance, however — her books of poetry are dedicated "To my son Lance Haugwitz Hardenburg Reventlow" — and the sports car racer will never be in need of money. Lawyers estimate his minimal inheritance to be $50,000,000 on which he can draw in advance, if he so desires, $500,000 a year.

This is all owing to a circumstance of birth for which Lance sensibly refuses to apologize. "Some people are born with blue eyes, I was born with money." He realizes that inherited money is frequently a handicap to a man's character, but he hopes to compensate for it by making himself a useful, hard-working, law-abiding citizen.

The life he currently leads is certainly above criticism. He reads omnivorously, everything from novels to scientific tracts, and is amazingly well-informed on a great variety of subjects.

Young Reventlow went to Pomona College for two months but quit in 1953 and embarked on a course of self-education. Nervous and restless by nature, he finds that reading and chain-smoking calm his nerves.

He spends hours at his drawing board working up new car designs — his knowledge of automotive engineering is extensive — and more hours in a Beverly Hills garage constructing motors. He races cars in meets every few weeks and is considered by fellow competitors to be "a good driver." Dr. Alan Kerns, a well-known racer who's driven against Reventlow, says, "He's got brains, which a lot of these kids don't have. He's afraid when he loses control of his machine, which hasn't been too often, and he knows how to judge the risk between winning and getting killed."

Socially, Lance is a conservative who has seen through the illusion of both high and Hollywood society. "Hollywood society," he says, quoting his mother, "is like going down a sewer in a glass-bottom boat." Lance attends relatively few parties or social functions, but when he does he can size up phonies quickly and instinctively. He doesn't care for actors as close friends, but he has dated such young actresses as Cathy Crosby, Natalie Wood, Kim Wadsworth.

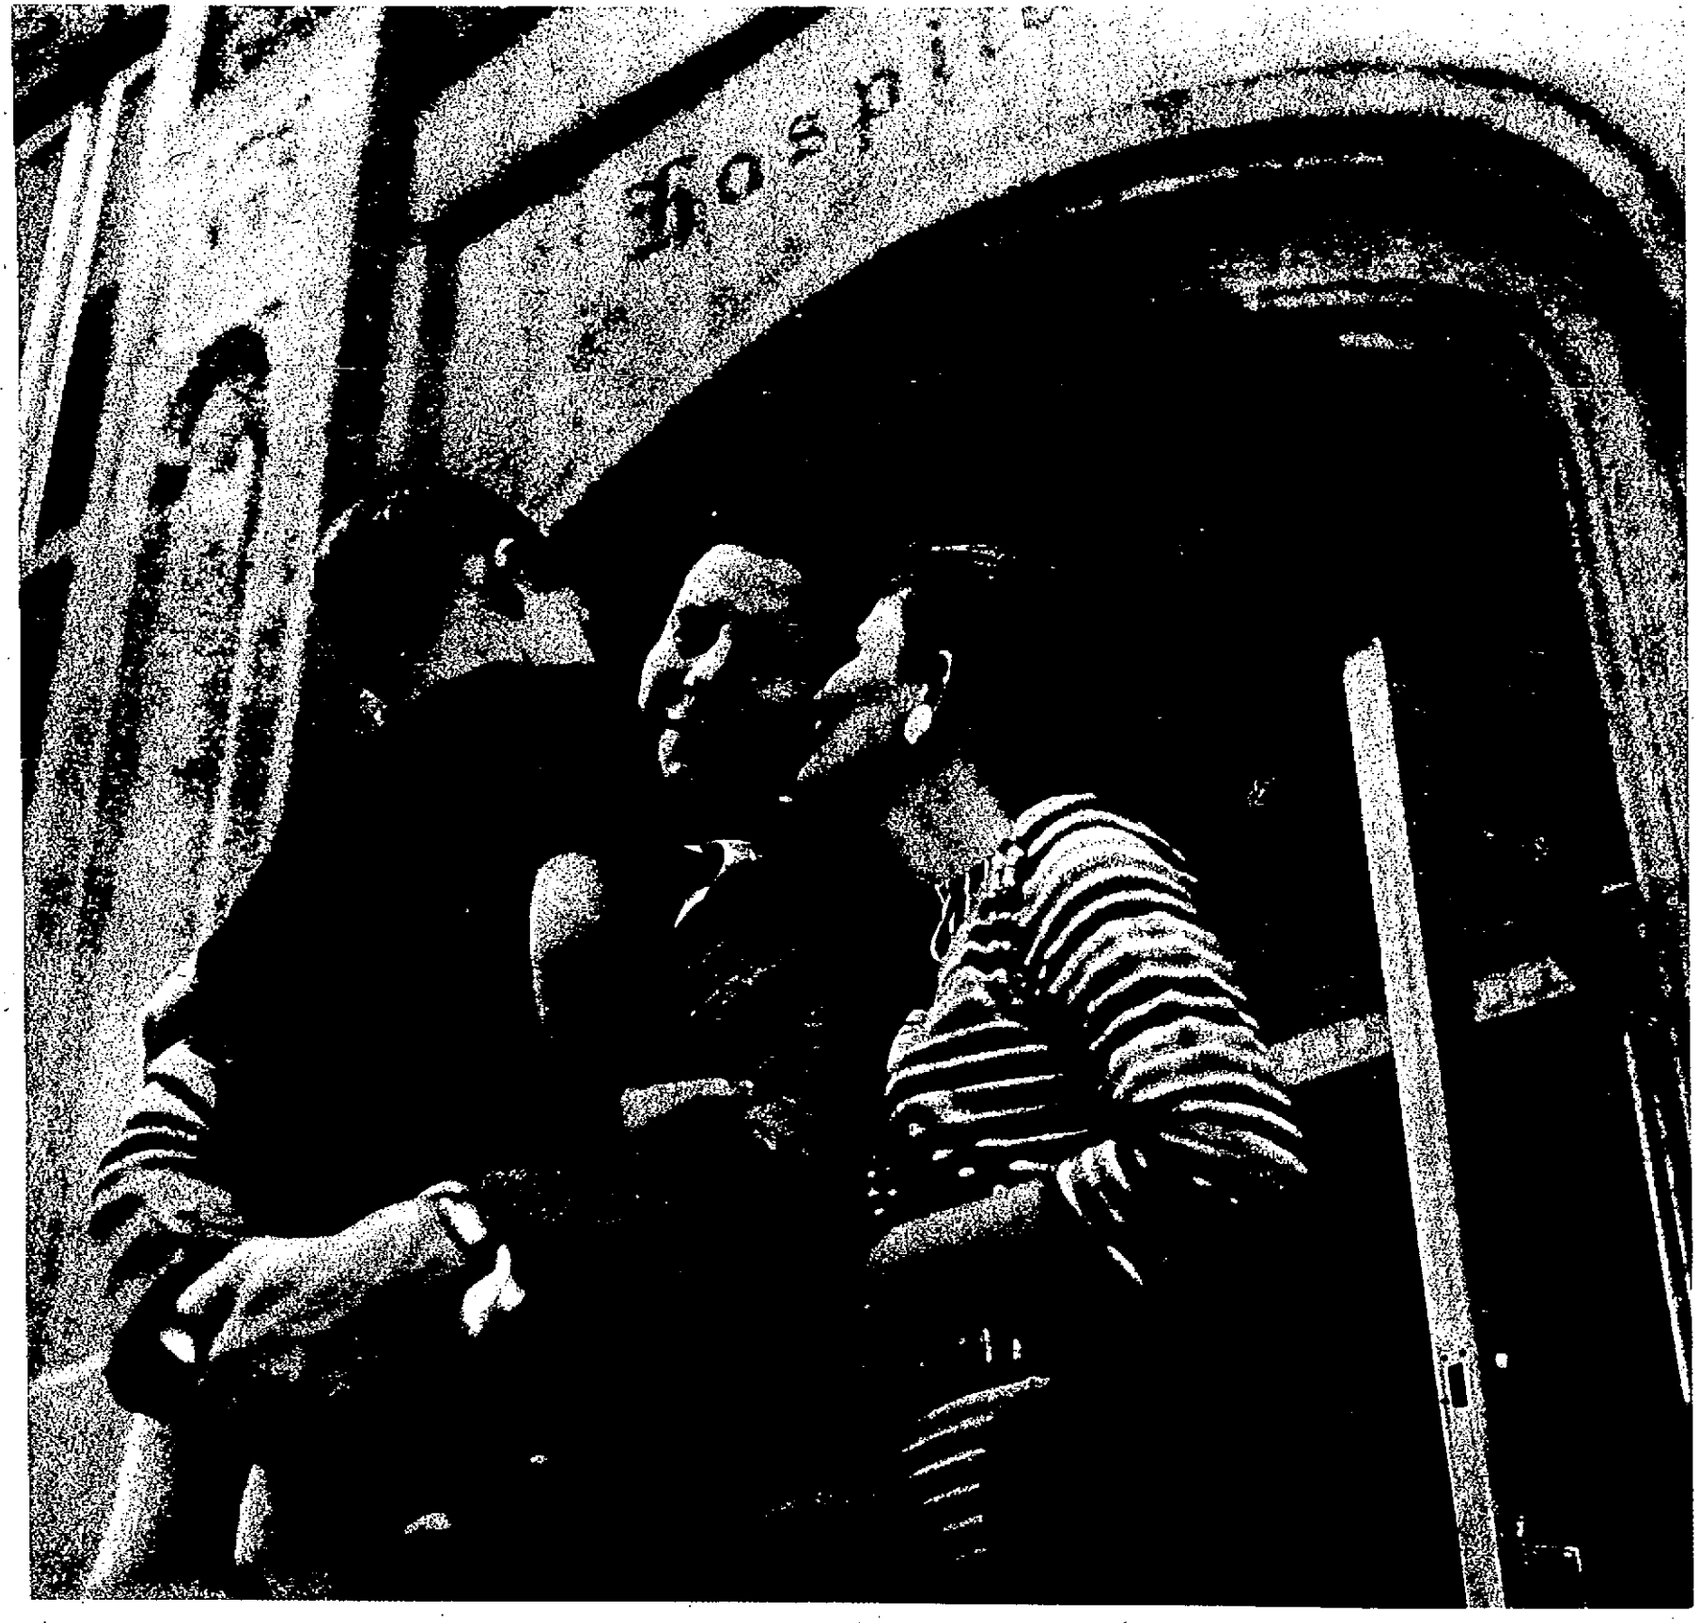

He Can Cook, Too

"I found great difficulty in sustaining a conversation with an actress," he says, "until I met Jill St. John." Jill is a pert starlet with a genius IQ of 162. The two have been dating steadily for six months.

"What I like most about her," Reventlow jokes, "is that she doesn't want to become an actress. She just wants to become a movie star."

Having been married at 16 and divorced at 17, Jill claims she has no marital designs on Reventlow. "I like to be with him," she admits, "because he's cultured, intelligent and brilliant. He knows books, art, music and how to cook. He can also laugh at himself which is the trouble with most young men these days. They consider themselves part of the 'beat generation.'"

For a young millionaire who was born "the world's richest baby" and whose whole youth was lived in the dark shadow of unhappy headlines, Lance Reventlow has turned out to be a nice normal guy. Money has yet to corrupt him. ■

Eight betters tell Parade...

WHY THEY GAMBLE

Pictured below are eight of the millions of Americans who gamble, betting between $15 and $20 billion a year. How much is this? Billions more than we spend, for instance, on medical care. Because we bet so hard, far more than any other nation, behavior experts are searching our subconscious to find out why.

Out of their probing have come new explanations for gambling, reported on page 11 by University of Connecticut psychologist Dr. Maurice L. Farber. But to get the other point of view — why betters themselves think they gamble — PARADE went to New York's Jamaica race track for these frank interviews.

JEAN KLEMPNER

"I don't think I am gambling. I come out only two days a week, on my days off. Those people who put $50 or $100 on a horse that's a longshot — they're the gamblers. Putting down $2 or $5 on a horse with a chance — provided you can afford it — is just a good, clean way of having fun."

LOUIS J. MOFENSON

"It's not the money. Nobody is so foolish to think they can make money here. You just try to stay even. In doing that, you forget anything troubling you. You don't think about getting older. You look forward to every day. Betting is a challenge that helps keep a fellow young."

ELIZABETH STONE

"Gambling is my only opportunity to be myself — to do what I want to do. I can be as uninhibited as my money will let me. Here's what I mean: On my way out here I study all the tips. But as soon as I get here, I ignore the tips. That makes me happy — even though I lose."

JAMES SHANAHAN

"There's no thrill in sports like having your horse pounding down the stretch in the lead. He's your horse because you bet on him. That thrill is something you come back for, again and again. It becomes a habit so bad, people let everything go for it — their clothes, their health, everything."

JACK BRIER

"Gambling is a science that I enjoy studying. I have been betting on horses for 42 years. You pit your knowledge against the public's, and if you come up with a better opinion than the average fellow's, you make yourself some money. But you can't get rich; you just try to make expenses."

MITZI PAYO

"I'm betting just to get even. If I ever do, I won't come anymore, except rarely. I've been betting five years. At first it was fun. I hit a longshot for about $100. Now I usually bet longshots but they don't win. And when I bet the favorites, longshots always win. I'm almost cleaned out."

JOHN CASE

"When you win a bet, you get a wonderful and exciting feeling that's hard to describe. I just bet small amounts — usually only $2 — but I couldn't watch a race if I didn't have a bet down. There would be no thrill, no kick, because if you don't lay a bet, you can't root for a winner."

CAROLLE FUQUA

"Gambling gives people a chance to compete with each other, to see if they can outpick the next person. Mostly, though, people who gamble have a void in their lives. They're usually lonesome and they feel themselves unfulfilled. Betting gives them that sense of being fulfilled."

The real reasons you gamble

by DR. MAURICE L. FARBER
Department of Psychology, University of Connecticut

Just for a fast buck? 'No' says an expert

In some African tribes, a man may wager his wife and children. Ancient Teutons bet themselves into slavery. And Chinese have been known to gamble their right hands — cutting them off in payment.

Americans, of course, don't go that far, but few of us can honestly say we never have gambled. For there is something fascinating about gambling — irresistibly fascinating.

What is the allure of gambling, even the moderate gambling in which most of us indulge? To make fast money? Yes, but that's only part of the reason. The excitement, risks, passions all indicate that there's more to gambling than money. Here are six vital factors, in my opinion, that answer the question: Why do you gamble?

1) To relieve boredom. Many people feel desperately bored and empty. Gambling offers excitement, an antidote to boredom. Playing the game makes the hours go by like minutes.

2) The challenge of a battle. To many, gambling is a "war," a battle of wits between the gambler and his opponent or "the system." While gambling, we can attack, conquer or retreat without the deadly effects of real battle. Money adds interest to the battle. If the stakes are not too high, no one is really hurt. Thus, gambling can be a way of having your cake and eating it, too.

The Long-Shot Hope

3) You can dream a little. Gambling often is related to the secret wish of many of us that something wonderful will happen, solving all our problems. Our ship will come in. Gambling small stakes for large winnings is a manifestation of the wishful day-dream aspect of gambling. It may explain why so many sweepstakes tickets are sold and why there is so much long-shot betting. Undoubtedly, there are people who never really expect to win, who know that the odds are heavily against them, but gamble only so they can dream luxurious dreams.

4) The feeling of power. The cravings people bring to gambling sometimes involve an unconscious or conscious magical belief that they are all-powerful and cannot lose. They believe the horse they bet on is sure to win, the speculative stocks they buy sure to go up. This is a complicated emotional side of gambling and even may be related to deep unconscious sexual feelings. Perhaps to the extreme gambler, the excitement of winning is something akin to sexual experience; to this gambler, losing becomes associated with sexual punishment.

5) The "family enemy" explanation. To some gamblers, the opponents stand for family members against whom the gambler feels hostility. For instance, an opponent may symbolize the gambler's father, who for various reasons may be resented by the gambler. Or the opponent may be seen as the brother who the gambler believes was favored by his parents.

Thus, the gambler seeks to "defeat" family members against whom he has harbored ill feeling since childhood.

Some Like Losing

6) The desire to lose. Perhaps the most curious paradox about gambling is that some gamblers really have an unconscious desire to lose. These gamblers seem so controlled by hidden guilt (which may arise from childhood experiences) that they actually play to lose as a means of relieving their guilt. People who persistently bet on very long odds often are of this type. They may protest long and loud about losing, but unconsciously they are deeply satisfied.

As you can see, betting can involve really complicated emotional string-pulling. But are gamblers themselves emotionally unhealthy?

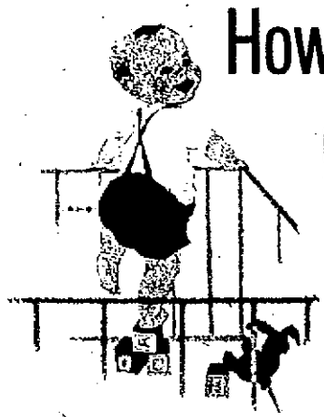

Occasional social gambling for small sums is not likely to be harmful and may even benefit the player by relieving his tensions.

However, if gambling dominates a person's life, if he risks sums he cannot afford, if he cannot stop, he is likely to be mentally disturbed and in need of treatment.

At all times, you must consider the question of whether the man controls the gambling, or the gambling controls the man.

How to help baby enjoy his playpen

Secrets of happy spoon feedings—

What about rough-house with baby?

TO get more use and more fun from baby's playpen, try these ideas: Start early, between 3 and 4 months. Before baby's creeping, the pen will seem like a big new world—not a coop. Move the pen to different spots indoors and out, so little Bright Eyes can see new scenery, new faces.

• A few toys at a time, subject to change, are better than a big pile all at once. Besides, too many toys leave no room for learning how to creep, sit up and stand.

• Remember: the older your cherub grows, the less he'll stay put in a pen without protest. If you lift him out before he cries, he'll likely go back later with better grace. (P. S. Of course you'll never use his pen as a punishment!)

• It's a gift you'd love to give or get—Heinz silverplated spoon and fork set. The bite-size spoon is the right size for baby's mouth. The long handle lets you get clear to the bottom of the jar so no food is wasted. For this handsome spoon and fork set, just send your name, address, 50¢ and 6 labels from Heinz Baby Foods to Heinz Baby Foods, Box 28, D-9, Pittsburgh 30, Pa. For the spoon alone, 25¢ and 6 labels.

• The #1 secret of happy spoon feeding isn't really a secret, but it's reassuring to remember: Most doctors start solid food before baby urgently needs it. There's no hurry about how much he eats, so you can relax and let him learn to enjoy eating. Heinz Strained Applesauce—smooth, sweet—is a good starter.

• Baby can't suck solid food, which will surprise him! Each bite must be rolled back by his tongue. To help, brush the food off the spoon on his upper lip. Babies love Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals: High-Protein, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereals—fortified with active iron.

• Heinz new screw-top baby food jars are just what you've wanted! An important Heinz "First", these screw-top caps make glass jars even more convenient. Available now on 4 favorite Heinz Desserts: Fruit Dessert, Custard Pudding, Strained Bananas, Strained Apricots and Oatmeal.

• Fun with Daddy is a fine thing for a baby. Although it may get strenuous at times, try not to break it up—unless the roughhouse gets too rough, lasts too long, or starts too soon after a meal or before bedtime.

High climber Chuck Davidson checks antenna which signals test missiles.

They watch the missiles go by

In the sunny Bahamas on the U.S. test range this family is leading a new frontier life

by JACK LONG

ELEUTHERA ISLANDS, BAHAMAS.

A FEW YEARS AGO, jobs like Chuck Davidson's didn't exist. But today, with the U.S. and Russia racing to perfect intercontinental weapons, Chuck and men like him are vital to U.S. security.

Chuck is a missile tracker on the U.S. missile test range, which stretches 5,000 miles from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic. And as a result, Chuck and Betty Davidson and their sons lead a life that is part utopian and part pioneering on this 90-mile-long, half-mile-wide Bahaman coral strip, 250 miles southeast of Miami.

A sunswept beach is only minutes from their door. Coconuts and tropical fruits are theirs for the taking. But they also must contend with chameleons, a balky water supply and a kerosene-powered refrigerator. And life is built around countdowns and launchings at all hours.

Chuck is listed as an electronics technician by Radio Corp. of America, which is in charge of tracking, guidance, safety and communications systems on the range. To the other employes of the tracking station, the 50 RCA men are "twidgets." Chuck and a co-worker, Bill "Snake" Donohue, are in charge of four tall racks of complex secret equipment.

There's Incentive — Money

When America fires a missile from Cape Canaveral, Chuck and his fellow-workers all down the range swing into action. Their equipment focuses on the missile, gathering by electronic eyes and ears millions of bits of data — altitude, speed, course, fuel consumption, skin temperature. All this is vital to the designers of the Thor, Atlas, Jupiter and other missiles that are the U.S. answer to Russia and the U.S. hope for exploration of space.

For living in the semi-tropics, Chuck draws 30 per cent additional salary. (Farther downrange, at remote Ascension, the incentive is 40 per cent.) In base slang, Chuck is a "brown-bagger" — meaning he lives off-base and carries his lunch (actually, he eats in the base mess hall).

The Davidsons' home is a four-room frame cottage, which costs $75 a month. Another $20 go for utilities — electricity, bottled gas for the range, kerosene for the refrigerator, and bottled water. It cost Chuck $67 to ship his car from Miami. Gasoline costs 40 cents a gallon.

Life is far different from Bradenton, Fla., where the Davidsons came from. Water must be heated. Table legs must be "planted" in water to discourage ants. Donnie, 8, and Jerry, 11, attend a one-room school. (But Jerry, a sixth-grader, already is studying Latin and Algebra.)

Fortunately, Betty is a self-reliant young woman who does not mind doing without TV, supermarkets, beauty parlors and telephones. Others among the two dozen wives here are less enthusiastic. Most men leave their families behind, live in bachelor barracks two to a room, save money and wait for alerts.

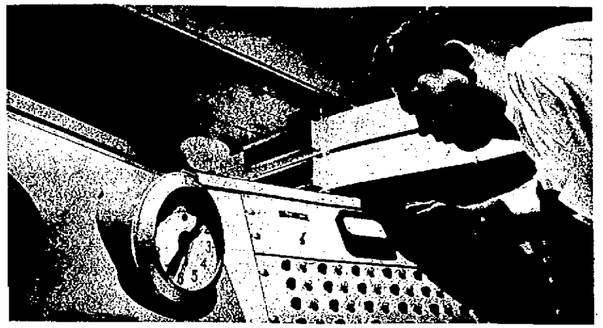

The Drama of the Countdown

When the word comes down the submarine cable from Canaveral that a launching is scheduled, tension begins to build. A voice on the intercom announces the minutes to firing time — as "T minus 90," or 90 minutes to the zero hour.

In the cluster of buildings, men check their radar gear, their computers and plotting boards. Chuck tunes his guidance circuits. Head technician Dan Kaylor mounts the magnetic tape that will record the missile's messages. Another technician mans a telescope on the roof.

As the minutes tick away, the men concentrate on their panels. Finally the intercom voice crackles, "She's gone." Receivers record a low hum, building gradually to a grinding roar. Wave patterns on oscillographs leap and dance as the missile goes by. And then, just as gradually, the waves subside, the hum dies. At last the intercom voice announces the end of test.

Chuck Davidson tears a length of paper from his recording unit, ending the day's work. Back home, Betty has been keeping the radio tuned to the Miami news bulletins. To her, a successful test means another advance for U.S. rocketry — and also that Chuck will be home for dinner. ■

At work: technician Chuck Davidson watches his control panel during "countdown." In radar-topped headquarters (r.), 25 men work.

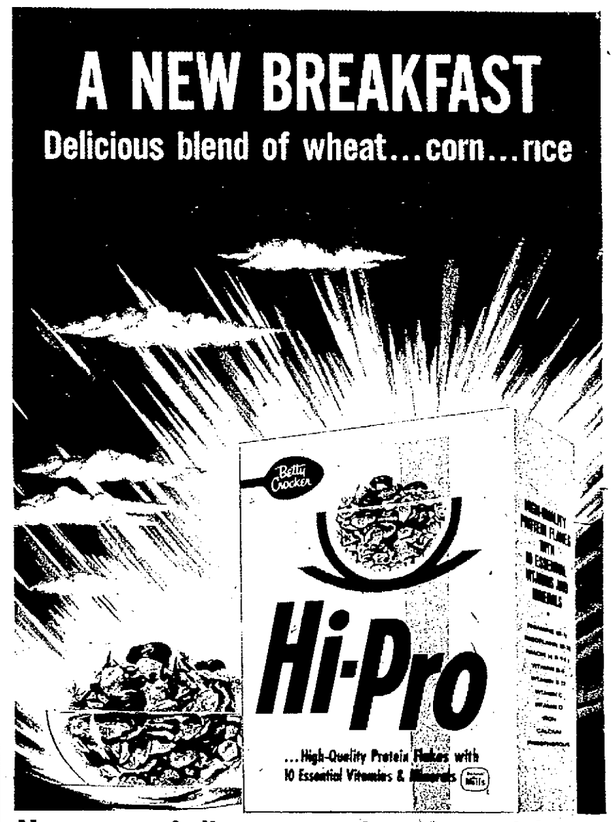

At home: Betty Davidson sees husband off outside their cottage. During the day, she listens to a Miami station (r.) for test news.

At play: the Davidsons sit on the Bahaman sand and watch the waves come in. The Davidson family is expecting a third child.

BEAUTIFUL

by PATRICK DALTON

LAGUNA BEACH, CALIF.

"You have no idea what it means for a girl to be born with a handicap," says Dorothy Funk. "I was born with bowed legs, and it made my life miserable. I never wore a bathing suit in public. I used to wear long skirts and slacks. I'd come into a room whistling so that people would look up at my face, and not down at my legs. I was so self-conscious that when I had to meet a date I got there first so he wouldn't see me walk in. My whole youth was a nightmare of regret and tears."

Because of this, eight years ago Dorothy Funk founded her present business, a company called Beauti-Legs, Inc.

Beauti-Legs offers new leg shapes to girls handicapped by bowed or thin legs. So far, about 600 women have subscribed to the service, which now is run completely on a mail-order basis.

The new leg-shape relies on two devices: pads which give them attractive contours, and special stockings to cover the pads and hold them in place. The pads sell for $1.50 a pair and the stockings for $5.5 a pair.

Determined Woman

Sounds simple? Well, it cost Dorothy Funk five years of heartache, $10,000 and thousands of painstaking experimental hours to come up with the solution to her problem.

"Back in 1950," she confesses, "I didn't know a thing about chemistry, mold-making or plastics. I had no money to speak of and no one to give me any. All I knew was that I had to have a more pleasing pair of calves. And I was determined to get them."

Dorothy began her experiments by mixing raw rubber in her cake mixer. She used her kitchen as a laboratory and her hair-drier to dry thin rubber hose. In a year's time she developed a skin-colored stocking. Her next step was to develop a foam rubber pad with edges so thin that they would not show through the stocking. She learned how to make plaster reproductions of badly-shaped legs, to sculpture new contours, to mix raw foam rubber and force it into molds.

"I almost called it quits dozens of times," she says. "But every time I looked at my legs in the mirror, I said to myself, 'Dorothy, you've just got to keep going.' "

Too Soft-hearted

After three years Dorothy came up with a pair of foam-rubber pads that clung neatly to her thin calves plus a pair of flesh-colored stockings to hold them.

After another year of research and experiment, she opened up shop in Burbank. A demonstration on television of the pads and stockings brought a tremendous flood of mail. Soon customers were beating a path to Burbank. Dorothy Funk had more business than she could handle — but she wasn't making money.

"What happened," she explains, "is that I was visited by many victims of infantile paralysis. The legs of these girls had withered because the calf muscles had atrophied. Their cases were heart-breaking, and I didn't have the heart to turn them down. I had to hire assistants. The overhead became enormous. Every case was a custom job. I spent every cent I made. I took in two partners for further financing, but eventually both of them pulled out because we weren't showing enough profit. They said I was a sucker for every sob story that came along. And I guess I was. When a girl wrote that all she could afford to pay was two dollars a week for some pads and hose, I let her have them."

Leg forms are kept in racks by Mrs. Funk, shown selecting one for a mail-order customer.

LEGS TO ORDER

A year ago Dorothy Funk moved here and opened a mail-order business. "Mail," she says, "helped eliminate the personal approach and for the first time put me on a business-like basis. This way I can make a living."

Women who write requesting information about Beauti-Legs are sent measurement charts to fill in. They also are asked to send snapshots. Mrs. Funk then mails out two or three sizes of pads and stockings. After trying them, the prospective customer can decide whether or not Beauti-Legs will help her.

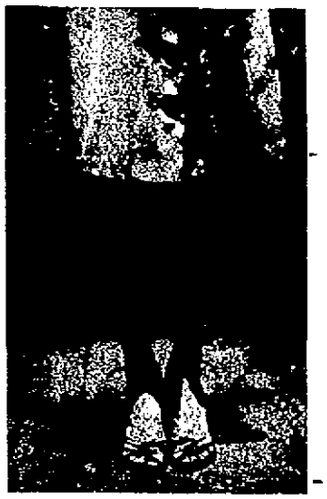

The Funk files are jammed with letters of gratitude. "You may not believe it," writes a woman from Oak Park, Ill., "but I would never have gotten married if it weren't for your Beauti-Legs. Sh-h-h. To this day, my husband still doesn't know."

"I lived in darkness," says a girl in San Diego," until I learned about your pads and hose. They've made a whole new life for me. I'm no longer socially backward."

Of late, Dorothy has been receiving requests from men in South Africa. Seems they're thin-calved golfers who wear knickers. Dorothy has turned them down: "Men have no right to be as vain as women. Let them stand on their own two legs."

Today Dorothy Funk stands proudly on hers and helps other women to do the same. ■

SHAPELY PAIR (above) are artfully padded to transform thin, bowed legs at right. Padding is virtually impossible to detect, because of special stocking. Mrs. Funk's biggest booster: Mr. Funk.

New taste–Chocolate Cinnamon Bars

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

HERE'S SOMETHING new in the pastry world. Chocolate-Cinnamon Bars combine the best qualities of cookies and cake. Easy to serve, neat to eat, good travelers, they have that good cake texture beneath a crunchy self-frosting. In addition, the blend of cinnamon and chocolate produces a delightful, different taste that harmonizes well with other things.

Chocolate Cinnamon Bars are quite perfect as an accompaniment to afternoon tea or coffee. They hold up well when tucked into a lunch box that goes to school or office. They're neither too rich nor too sweet to nibble for an evening snack with a glass of milk or cola beverage. And right now, with two beautiful autumn months ahead for picknicking, these cookies are wonderful to eat with fruit, as a picnic dessert. Carry them along in the baking pan and cut when ready.

CHOCOLATE CINNAMON BARS

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1⅓ cups sugar
- 4 teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ cup softened butter or margarine
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 egg
- 1 egg, separated
- 1 6-oz. package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, 1 cup sugar and 3 teaspoons cinnamon. Add butter or margarine, shortening, 1 egg and 1 egg yolk. Blend well with wooden spoon, or on low speed of electric mixer. Turn into a lightly greased 15"-x-10"-x-¾" jelly-roll pan; spread evenly with spatula. Beat egg white slightly; brush over mixture. Combine remaining ⅓ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, chocolate pieces and walnuts; sprinkle over top. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes. Cool. Cut into bars.

HOPE BENNETT talks with teenagers

When you move

THE PROBLEM — "I am 16 years old and my family is moving to a new town. I am simply miserable. How can I make new friends?" — Betty T., Fargo, N.D.

At Betty's age, nobody wants to move, at least, according to teens I talked with in Roanoke, Va., Greenville, S.C., and Jackson, Miss. But many of them had moved, and found tried-and-tested ways of adjusting to new homes, friends and customs. Here are some of the suggestions they make:

BE FRIENDLY — Murray Van Leer, 15, who moved to Roanoke a year ago, says, "Don't reject any offer of friendship at first. You can't afford to."

BUT BE WARY — Sue Daniels, 18, also of Roanoke, warns: "Don't make exclusive friendships at first. It's better to have an unorganized circle of friends than to be chosen — too soon, anyway — as a member of a closed clique."

MAKE A CHOICE — Michael Faulconer, 16, of Greenville, advises: "Circulate among the type of people you like. You'll make mistakes, but if you go slowly, it won't be too hard to steer away from somebody who's not congenial."

VOLUNTEER — Robert Scott, 16, of Greenville, suggests that a good way to find friends is to "go out for activities. If you're good at football, go out for the team. The same applies to dramatics and music."

ADAPT YOURSELF — "Do as the Romans do. That's a good rule," says Kent Stark, 18, of Jackson. "However," adds Harry Burns, 17, of Jackson, "don't try to be a carbon copy of the typical guy in the class."

BE YOURSELF—"But don't overdo it. And, especially," warns Bobby Scott, "don't act like a big wheel if you're not. You're sure to be found out."

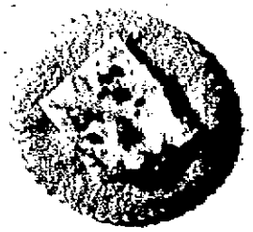

DRESS CAREFULLY — Jill Simpkins, 17, of Jackson, advises (the girls particularly): "Avoid loud, too casual or too dressy clothes. You are judged first on appearance, not on athletic or intellectual prowess."

LET OTHERS HELP — Sandra Aldridge, 18, of Jackson, who has attended eight or nine different schools, says, "Going to church has always helped me in a new place." And Karen Moseley, 16, of Greenville, adds: "Persuade your parents to let you ask your new friends to drop around for record playing or homework." ■

More answers please. Moving is a perennial problem-maker, and certainly the panel members quoted here don't have all the answers. Write me on how you see, and have solved, the problem. Address Hope Bennett, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

Don't analyze your

Marriage experts can't even agree with each other,

by ARTHUR GODFREY

From all sides these days, the American wife is being bombarded by advice from well-meaning psychologists and so-called marriage experts. Books, pamphlets and lectures are aimed at her, each with a neat set of rules. They tell her how to manage her husband, how not to manage him, when to kiss him, when not to, how to fight with him, how to get the most mileage out of him, what to do in every blamed situation that comes up.

Now do-it-yourself is a fine idea and I'm all for it. But when they start giving women a do-it-yourself marriage kit, complete with charts, graphs and blueprints, brother, it's time someone started to yell.

And I'm yelling.

The women, bless their hearts, eat up this sort of advice because the subject is important to them. In fact, a woman's whole world centers right around her man and those kids. She's desperately anxious to do anything that will hold them together and keep them closer around her.

For example, I heard about one woman who kept reading those warnings about the need to be a companion to her husband. She went to boxing matches with him, played golf with him, even tried to help him build a garage. She couldn't stand doing any of these things, of course, and you can imagine how bored he got. Finally, she saw the light and let the poor fellow alone. But she still kept worrying that she wasn't being a companion.

Another woman accepted the advice that she ought to cook breakfast for her husband each morning. So she gets up at 5 a.m. She's grouchy, frowsy and terrible company. But the book says a good wife gets up and that's what she's going to do. Naturally, it would be much better if she stayed in bed and let him whip up his own breakfast in peace. But you can't tell her that. She'd worry she wasn't being a good wife.

A Man's No Machine

Nor are wives the only ones. Even the lovely young girls who are about to step into matrimony now take the rule books to heart. Maybe your own daughter is like the sweet little girl of 18 I met recently who is mapping her marriage with infinite care. She's trying to figure out her guy as if he were a washing machine — use this kind of soap, don't overload, turn the dial up to there, call this number if repairs are needed.

Now please get me straight. I certainly think a girl should know what marriage means and what her responsibilities are. She should have long, serious talks with her parents. I have a daughter of 16 myself, and I want Pat to be a serious-minded and well-informed adult.

But the kind of detailed blueprint handed to girls nowadays is too much. A mountain of advice is not only unnecessary but even dangerous.

Why? Simply because no matter how you look at it, a man isn't a machine and a marriage isn't a kind of cake that you can bake from a recipe.

A marriage is built out of the stuff that comes from the spirit and the soul and the heart. Two people live, love, squabble together, and it's a wonderful union. Try picking it apart to see why and it's like taking the leaves off an artichoke one by one — you wind up with nothing.

Psychology Be Hanged

Is there an alternative? Certainly, and it's simple. Don't psychoanalyze your guy, just love him. Give him plenty of good, old-fashioned devotion, laugh with him, talk with him, have fun with him and don't worry about whether you're pleasing the psychologists. If you're loving, kind and just plain natural, the psychology will take care of itself!

Our grandmothers didn't know a complex from a water pump and they did all right with grandpa. They didn't worry about frustrations and traumas and such. They were just too busy taking care of the old man.

Why are women mixed up about marriage advice? Mostly because of the contradictions. The experts don't seem able to get together and, as a result, the women are confused.

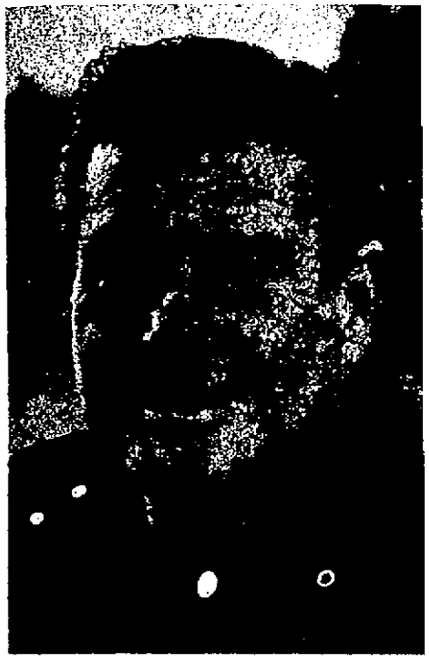

For instance, one rule book tells you never to reveal all your innermost thoughts to your husband because it would serve no good purpose; it would just make him sore and hurt the marriage. Another just as convincingly argues that there should be no secrets at all between husband and wife. One says it's extremely unwise to marry out of your religion while another points out that religious as well as cultural differences can be bridged.

And take the question of going steady. One side says it's a bad idea and offers all the reasons why. Another side says it's not so bad. A third advises kids to decide for themselves. (There's a smart cookie — he's not taking chances!)

One bunch of experts hammers at the notion that a wife or a husband should never try to reform each other. They lean on the old saw: "Marriage is not a reform school."

husband–just love him

says a noted husband. His advice? Ignore them all

A HUSBAND and father of two teenagers, Arthur Godfrey urges common sense in family matters.

But other psychologists feel there's no reason why you can't try to change some of your partner's annoying, everyday habits.

There are many more contrary pieces of advice, but perhaps the worst headache for wives today is the partnership question. Who's supposed to be the boss? Or is anybody? Here's what's happening:

A whole school of thought tells us that marriage has got to be a 50-50 proposition, with Mom and Pop sharing the work and the responsibility. That means the guy should pitch in with the housework, while the gal has an equal vote on all the important details of running the family.

But wait a minute. Other experts want their innings, too. They're saying that father should be the head of the family. They argue that women are getting to feel their oats too much and are making too many domestic demands on the poor tired breadwinner. Is it any wonder that the poor wife is completely confused?

The experts are giving us a hard time in another area — romance. Here is where I see red. They will say: "No marriage is soundly built until married love has taken the place of the romantic illusion." Well, I'll go for some of that. Certainly, romance alone is not enough on which to build a lasting union. But this kind of advice is being taken much too literally by women as well as men. Nobody's going to propagandize me into believing that moonglow and June-night romancing are reserved exclusively for the youngsters.

I once asked the wise and wonderful Bernard Baruch the question: "When is a man too old for romance?" Know what he answered? He said: "Arthur, you'll have to ask someone older than I am!"

A guy, no matter what his age, wants to — and should — do crazy, romantic things to please his girl. And a gal of any age wants to be romanced — don't you ever forget it!

What a heck of a life it would be without romance in a marriage. I don't mean just the dutiful flowers on an anniversary either, but the real stars-in-the-eyes stuff.

No, you don't need a road map for marriage, or for bringing up children either. Read the books and you're likely to fall for some cockeyed ideas about the kids, too. There's the theory that says you're supposed to let the youngsters swing from the chandeliers if they wish. It gives free rein to their creative imaginations, and you're not supposed to stifle their self-expression.

Too many mothers are swallowing this and, as a result, we have far too many pampered kids. They're over-protected, over-privileged, over-fed, over-dressed and underworked. They're given all they want and they feel the world owes them everything.

Chores for Pat and Mike

Mothers worry about security. Mollycoddling the kids won't give them security. Giving them chores, hard work and plenty of it — that'll do it. Why? Because real security comes from having confidence in your ability to take care of yourself.

My own kids get chores; they always have. I didn't let Pat and my son Mike get soft, mentally or physically. Pat rode a stallion bareback when she was 7. Last summer, Mike, who is 18, worked long hours as a grease monkey in a gas station.

I say to all wives and mothers: Please don't construct a marriage as if it were one of those erector sets, out of little bits and pieces of rules and advice. Just be a woman, girls, not a civil engineer. Be the same kind of woman who stopped the guy in the first place. Be the same gal who made him maneuver you in the corner that first time to steal a kiss.

The most important thing in a marriage is being natural, being yourself and giving love — and not all the professors in all the universities in the whole blamed world will ever be able to come up with a better formula. ■

Now-Remove Corns in 3 days

(AND RELIEVE PAIN OF CORNS RIGHT AWAY)

RESULTS GUARANTEED* WITH BLUE-JAY, the plastic corn plaster with exclusive wonder drug Phenylium®

How Phenylium medication gets rid of corns from underneath...

NEW CORN develops when skin grows tough and horny under constant pressure.

FIRST DAY—Blue-Jay relieves pressure, while Phenylium penetrates to base of corn.

SECOND DAY—Phenylium starts growth of new cell tissues underneath. This loosens corn, pushes it up.

THIRD DAY—Corn now lifts out easily. Stubborn, long-established corns may require second application.

Medical science has found a fast and effective way to relieve the pain of a corn, and get rid of it at the same time.

This treatment works by getting to the base of the problem. It actually gets rid of your corn by pushing it up from underneath.

The secret is a wonder drug from the Blue-Jay laboratories which took years to perfect. That wonder drug is called Phenylium.

How BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters relieve pain, remove corn

The Blue-Jay plaster consists of a felt ring surrounding a pad with Phenylium. The felt relieves the pain of the corn by removing the pressure and friction which causes it.

Simultaneously, the Phenylium goes to work to remove the source of the pain—the corn itself. It penetrates through the tough, horny skin of the corn to its base, where it stimulates the growth of new cell tissue.

In most corns, by the end of the third day this new tissue has grown to the point where it can be lifted out.

*Money Back Guarantee. Follow directions, get relief from pain... get rid of ordinary corns in 3 days... or your money back from Blue-Jay, 309 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago 6.

Regular or ladies size. Callus plasters, too. Look for the new BLUE-JAY package.

NEW WAY TO STOP HEADACHES FAST WITHOUT ASPIRIN!

READ THE FACTS ABOUT NEBS—FOR PEOPLE WHO SHOULD NOT TAKE ASPIRIN

The most important discovery for headache relief in over sixty years; Nebs is the only leading headache tablet to contain no aspirin. Nebs is pure Acetyl-p-Aminophenol. It works more efficiently than aspirin, buffered aspirin, or "3-ingredient" tablets to give you the fastest possible relief from pain.

If you find aspirin doesn't give you fast, complete relief, or if aspirin upsets your stomach—you should try Nebs. Nebs is safe, won't upset your stomach because Nebs contains no acid ingredients to cause upset.

This is especially important if you are the one person in five who, according to scientific research, should not take aspirin. For these people, aspirin may be more harmful than helpful. So why not play safe? Get Nebs, the one tablet that contains no aspirin, no acid ingredients of any kind, and get the fastest possible relief.
